RUSS ACCEPT BID TO BIG 4 MEET

Knowland Won't Count Self Out in '56

Hints His Decision Hangs on Whether Eisenhower Will Run

By WES PEYTON
(Of The Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican leader Knowland of California said in effect Saturday his decision about being a presidential candidate next year hinges on whether President Eisenhower decides to seek a second term.

In an exclusive interview with the Independent, Press-Telegram's Washington Bureau, Knowland came as close as he ever has publicly to announcing himself as a candidate. He also backed off considerably from his prediction of a year ago that President Eisenhower would run again.

Asked point-blank whether he would be a candidate if President Eisenhower decides to retire to his Gettysburg farm next year, Knowland replied—

"That's a pretty iffy question. I think I'd prefer to let the President make up his mind first."

Knowland also declined to take part in speculation, rife in Washington, about the President's intentions. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me) is the latest GOP voice to warn the Republican Party had better have another standard bearer ready—just in case.

"Some of the newspapermen have asked me what I think about Sen. Smith's remarks," Knowland observed, "but I just don't want to speculate. And that's all it is at this point. I don't think the President has made up his own mind yet."

Knowland added the President hasn't discussed the subject with him.

Just a year ago, Knowland was predicting President Eisenhower would find the pressure on him to run again too strong to resist. He pointed out that, historically, Presidents tend to the position that a second term is necessary to insure continuity of their programs and policies.

While Knowland sees no flagging of interest on the part of the President in his program, he isn't predicting a second term bid at this point.

About one thing Knowland was unequivocal.

If President Eisenhower is the Republican candidate in 1956, his running mate will again be Vice President Nixon.

Knowland also discounts Democratic Party claims that it has an excellent chance of winning the White House in 1956 no matter who the Republicans nominate.

"Despite their outward show of party unity," Knowland asserted, "the Democrats have a number of internal stresses and strains that will make themselves felt as convention time nears." He did not elaborate.

GOP Backers of Allen Feel L.B.'s Anger

By MALCOLM EPLEY

Aroused Long Beach people are making their indignation felt in Sacramento where the fight over Long Beach's tidelands oil funds is moving into a critical stage.

Legislators are hearing from Long Beach. Republican legislative leaders reportedly bore the brunt of a flurry of telegrams heatedly criticising Republicans who have sponsored or supported the bill of Assemblyman Bruce Allen (R-San Jose) to strip the city of all its tidelands funds as well as financial control over its tidelands projects.

Among those who are "getting the word" from Long Beach is Assemblyman Thomas Caldecott of Berkeley, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

Caldecott voted against Long Beach in a test on the Allen bill in the Conservation, Public Works and Planning Committee, and he is chairman of Ways and

DECISIONS FOR CHRIST

4,000 Heed Graham's Plea as London Crusade Opens

LONDON (AP)—Between 4,000 and 5,000 persons stampeded to the green playing field at Wembley Stadium Saturday night when Billy Graham called for "Decisions for Christ."

The American evangelist conducted the first of one week's revival meetings in the great football stadium which accommodates 100,000 spectators.

The night was unseasonably cold, and there were spatters of rain. There were blank patches among the tiers of seats but police estimated that between 70,000 and 75,000 persons were present.

For a moment it appeared the crowd would be thoroughly drenched by a sudden shower. Many thousands of umbrellas were raised. But as Graham began his sermon the rain ceased and the great crowd saw a spectacular sunset with two rainbows.

"This beautiful evening, after the threat of rain, is a splendid augury for the success of this work for God," Graham said.

Darkness fell as Graham—seen by most of the spectators as a tiny figure in a distant spotlight—moved from his sermon into his appeal to make decisions to lead Christian lives. At that moment floodlights were turned on and the playing field became a vivid green.

The response was one of the most spectacular ever seen at a Graham meeting.

Converts streamed down the dozens of aisles of the stadium, many with tears on their cheeks, and in a moment they made a dense mass covering an area half the size of a football gridiron.

There was no counting them, but stewards estimated there were somewhere between 4,000 and 5,000.

Councilors standing by to get the converts to sign cards to attend British churches were swamped by the throng. There was not literature enough to distribute and no time for the word of advice usually given individually at Graham meetings.

So Graham did not, as he usually does, address the converts in a separate meeting. He spoke to them as they stood on the lawn in front of him. He gave his four admonitions:

"Read your Bible every day, pray, bear witness for Christ by living cleanly, and go to church."

People filed out of the vast stadium singing hymns as they surged along the streets to buses and subway trains.

Judging by the crowds, Britain's general election—now just 12 days away—is running a bad second to Graham's crusade.

Getting a crowd of more than 1,000 to listen to a political campaigner, even one of the nation's political stars, has been a big job so far.

THEY MATURE EARLIER HERE IN CALIFORNIA!

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—A mother in California wrote her congressman to ask if the government had any advice on how to rear a four-year-old son.

Rep. Donald L. Jackson (R-Cal) replied that he would send her a copy of a government booklet, "Your Child From One to Six," if she desired it. But Jackson's typist hit the wrong key and spelled it "sex" instead of "six."

The reply came this week:

"Please send me the booklet mentioned for my son. On second thought you had better send two, as my daughter is enrolling at UCLA in the near future."

Dulles on Air Tuesday With Report to U.S.

Ike to Introduce Secretary's Talk on World Affairs

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — With President Eisenhower as his "announcer," Secretary of State Dulles will report to the nation Tuesday night on negotiations for a Big Four meeting and other historic events.

Dulles will speak in the President's office in the presence of the Chief Executive and ranking cabinet colleagues and his words will be broadcast by TV and radio. He will be introduced by the President.

The White House announced the broadcast Saturday in a manner to suggest that Eisenhower wants to give it a full blast of publicity to assure the largest possible audience, and also demonstrate his full support for his secretary of state.

Dulles will report on all aspects of his current mission to Europe, including the seat-

L.B. Man, 80, Found Dead in Burning Home

The body of an elderly man was found in the smoking ruins of a two-room home at 1481-B Warren Ave. Saturday night by firemen after they had extinguished a fire which gutted the frame structure.

The dead man was identified as Warren D. Cornish, about 80. James French, 318 E. Broadway, owner of the property, told police Cornish had rented the home Thursday.

The fire was discovered by Police Officers Vic Armitage and George Hanania, passing by in a police car.

Cornish's body was found in the kitchen of the home.

When a bruise was noted on Cornish's forehead homicide Insp. James A. Thiele was called. Thiele said the wound was superficial and all indications were Cornish had died an accidental death.

Asst. Chief William M. McGee, who directed fire operations, said the fire apparently started when gas from open jets found in the kitchen came in contact with wiring in an electrical refrigerator.

Cornish was pronounced dead on arrival at Seaside Hospital and the body was taken to Patterson & Snively Mortuary.

Fence Erected Across Roadway to 500 Homes

By BILL EDMOND

BELLFLOWER—Two thousand residents of a 500-home tract in the northern section here Saturday found themselves driving nearly three miles out of their way after an irate home owner threw a fence across a private, and well-traveled road in his front yard.

Puzzled deputies from the Norwalk sheriff's station scratched their heads when they attempted to untangle the snarled situation.

Ray Lemieux, 10253 Washington St., co-owner of the roadway said that the incident stemmed from a mistake made by the original subdividers of the area.

"The people who live in the area are understandably upset," said Lemieux, "but only because they don't understand our motives for building the fence.

"When the tract was built the contractors assumed that Washington St. was a county road, which it was not.

"I have spent in excess of $400 trying to keep the road in condition so that these people could use it. I work on it at night and on Saturdays and Sundays trying to keep it passable.

"The trucks and fast moving vehicles tear it up faster than I can repair it."

The 380-foot road is a continuation of Compton Blvd. east of Woodruff St. It joins Mapledale Ave. after passing across the front yards of three homes.

Lemieux said that an average of 50 cars an hour pass through his yard 12 hours a day going into or coming out of the tract.

He said, "We have trouble getting insurance coverage on our homes because the insurance companies say that it would be like trying to insure the middle of a freeway."

Ten days ago a small girl, on her way to school, was struck by a car in the disputed roadway. It was at this time, Lemieux said, that he decided that some drastic action had to be taken.

For nearly a year, he said, the owners have been trying to deed the roadway to the county but have been told by private sources that they must pay $4,200 for paving before the county would accept it.

County authorities Saturday night reported that they would make every effort to facilitate acceptance of the property, but Lemieux said that the fence will remain where it is until they do.

MRS. RAMONA DEITEMEYER
Church Will Share Prizes

Mrs. America Title Won by Mother of 5

ELLINOR VILLAGE, Fla. (U.P.)—Blond and blue-eyed Mrs. Ramona Deitemeyer of Lincoln, Neb., a mother of five, donned the crown of "Mrs. America" Saturday when she was judged the best homemaker among contestants from 48 states.

The 35-year-old wife of the managing editor of the Nebraska Farmer won $15,000 worth of prizes to add to a truckload of kitchen ware won in previous contests and a trip to Europe.

Mrs. Deitemeyer, who also won two of the preliminaries in the contest at this newly sprung-up tourist resort near Daytona Beach, took the jackpot when she was chosen by the seven judges as best homemaker.

Mrs. Deitemeyer is the wife of Carl Deitemeyer, 41.

Second place in the 17th annual Mrs. America contest went to Mrs. Billie Dorris, 27, Nashville, Tenn., mother of two children.

"Mrs. California," Mrs. Kathleen M. Girvan of Chino, mother of four children, placed third.

The slender new Mrs. America, a devout Lutheran, said "I only prayed each day to do my best, but I never expected to win."

She and her husband give 10 per cent of their earnings to the church.

"I don't know how we will work it out with all these different prizes, but we will tithe them so the church will get $1,500," she said.

Her husband had already planned to take her on her first trip to Washington and New York on their way home as a "consolation prize."

The new Mrs. America weighs 125 pounds, has a 34-inch bust, 26-inch waist and 35-inch hip. Deitemeyer, overjoyed at his wife's victory, said that he had known for the last 14 years that she was Mrs. America.

Peace Talks May Be Held in Six Weeks

Allies, Soviets Sign Independence Treaty for Austria Today

VIENNA (Sunday) (U.P.)—Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov has accepted an invitation from the West for a meeting of the Big Four Chiefs of State to ease cold war tensions, it was announced today.

The meeting of President Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin, British Prime Minister Anthony Eden and French Premier Edgar Faure may begin in about six weeks, a western spokesman said.

Molotov delivered the Soviet's unofficial acceptance of the invitation issued Tuesday by the United States, Britain and France at a meeting Saturday night with the western foreign ministers.

Western spokesmen said he accepted the western idea that there would be no formal agenda or fixed objectives for the meeting "at the summit." He agreed also that the foreign ministers should meet briefly before the high-level meeting to arrange details and after it to delve into specific issues.

In asking for the meeting, long urged by former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill, the West told Russia the time has come for "a new effort to resolve the great problems which confront us."

The meeting Saturday night between Molotov, U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay was friendly, western spokesmen said.

"General agreement on the purposes and underlying concepts of the meeting of the four Chiefs of State was reached," they said.

A Soviet note formally accepting the invitation was expected

Final Atomic Blast Slated This Morning

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (U.P.)—The Atomic Energy Commission at a formal weather evaluation Saturday night scheduled the 14th and final shot of the 1955 nuclear test series for 5 a.m. today.

The AEC said there was "sufficient possibility that the wind pattern at shot time would be acceptable to justify continuing preparations through the night."

Another evaluation was scheduled for 3 a.m.

The nuclear device will be detonated from a 500-foot tower. Unofficial estimates placed its power at 25 kilotons.

He Ran for His Hat

Some years ago a friend of ours ran for his hat—and dropped dead. For a year or more he had been having symptoms of a bad heart. His doctor had told him to take a rest and above all avoid heavy exercise. But one day his hat blew off and apparently on natural impulse he ran after it. His is much the same story of circumstances that cause the death of hundreds of thousands of people each year. Men and women with heart trouble, if taken care of, can live a long and useful life. But if they do not take care they may go at any moment.

Only very recently another good friend of ours had a rather severe attack. He was hospitalized for a week or more. Then he went home and had private nursing for a few weeks. He was getting along fine when the doctor told him he could go to the office for a short time once or twice a week. But our friend is a tense sort of person who finds it hard to give up activity. Result is he started spending longer hours at the office and getting more tired. Consequently he had another attack that just about finished him. Now he is trying to come back from the setback. He will make it—but he might just as well make up his mind to take it a great deal easier the rest of his life.

Much the same situation was presented in the true-motion picture, "A Man Called Peter." The wonderful Dr. Marshall was struck down with a heart attack in the middle of what should be a normal life span. His doctors told him he must stay in bed for several months. There was nothing but rest that would heal the damage caused by clots which had plugged up important arteries. He had been a strong virile person who found it hard to believe he could have heart trouble. He got up from his bed within a few weeks—and within a few weeks he was dead.

Heart failure is the greatest known cause of death in this country. It does not only happen to old people. Many a young and promising athlete has dropped dead on the track, football field or in the boxing arena. It is a weakness that can be detected by doctors with the propert equipment. Many specialists believe diet is a major factor in thickening of the arteries. The fats are believed, by this school, to thicken the blood and thereby the artery walls. This, in turn, causes a closure which catches a clot.

It is strange that this greatest killer of men and women is probably the easiest to avoid. That will be widely debated. But that fact is most heart attacks can be traced to over indulgence in food, drink, worry or work. But when a person has any symptoms of heart trouble he is more fortunate than many others with other illnesses. The heart patient can often avoid an attack by being careful. After an attack a person can lead a reasonably active life. But unless a person with symptoms goes to a qualified heart doctor for diagnosis and electro-cardiagrams he has no real information on which to plan. Often what a person thinks is a heart problem is simply an upheaval in his nervous system. In either case your life may depend upon knowing which it is and in either case, the cure is up to you.

GOP Backers of Allen Grab Bill Feel L.B. Ire

Means, before which the bill pends for hearing.

Democratic and Republican leadership in Long Beach see eye-to-eye on the Allen grab program. Groups of both parties have spoken out vigorously against the scheme. The telegrams criticizing Republicans are largely coming from Republicans.

Four of the five official sponsors of the Allen bill are Republicans. The two top men, Allen and Assemblyman Francis Lindsay, Loomis, are Republicans.

On the other hand, the Long Beach cause is drawing its supporters from both parties in the Assembly.

For example, Assemblyman Patrick McGee, Los Angeles Republican, participated actively on Long Beach's side in committee hearings, while Assemblyman Charles Wilson, Los Angeles Democrat, issued a blast against the Allen bill as a "share the wealth" scheme. The Long Beach Republican assemblymen, W. S. Grant and Herbert Klocksiem, are fighting vigorously against the bill, as is Sen. Richard Richards, Democrat representing Los Angeles County.

A defection that has stirred considerable talk was that of William Munnell, Montebello Democrat, who voted against Long Beach in the conservation and planning committee test. There is also considerable feeling about the votes in committee against Long Beach by San Diego's three assemblymen—two Republicans and one Democrat.

Next major development in the fight comes Thursday, when Allen's bill comes up for hearing in the Ways and Means Committee. Last Thursday, Allen, finding he did not have enough votes in the room to get out a do-pass recommendation, got action postponed for a week.

No presentation has been made yet before Ways and Means. Both Allen and opponents of his bill supposedly will be heard Thursday.

There was some talk in Sacramento Saturday of a possible compromise in the Allen bill fight. This rumo rwas attributed by one source to Allen, himself.

Long Beach spokesmen said Allen may be trying to advance his newest amendment to the bill as a "compromise" but they said it in no way alters the major purposes of the bill and is unacceptable. The amendment provided for a special $20,000,000 state fund, made up from Long Beach tidelands oil funds, out of which the Legislature would appropriate money for capital improvements of Long Beach harbor. This leaves budgetary control in the hands of the legislature. Its principal effect, it was pointed out, is to limit the amount of money that might be appropriated.

White House to Bare Polio Data Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced it will release a voluminous report Monday on the Salk polio vaccine program.

The mass inoculation of first and second grade children began picking up momentum again, after a week-long suspension for new safety checks, as government scientific inspectors moved into the second of five laboratories making the serum.

Enough vaccine for more than a million shots was released by the U. S. Public Health Service late Friday as a result of their inspection of the first plant on the list, Parke, Davis & Co. of Detroit.

The check and doublecheck team is now at the Eli Lilly & Co. laboratories in Indianapolis. Other plants to be visited, though not necessarily by the same team, are Pitman-Moore Co., Indianapolis and Sharp & Dohme, Inc. and Wyeth, Inc., both of Philadelphia.

The product of a sixth manufacturer, Cutter Laboratories of Berkeley, Calif., has been withdrawn for a special check.

Health officers in several states which have received the newly cleared Parke, Davis & Co. vaccine announced plans for resuming the voluntary inoculations at once, or at least within a few days.

The program is expected to pick up speed throughout the country again as more vaccine is turned loose from the five laboratories.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Monday's report will be delivered to President Eisenhower at 9:30 a.m. by Secretary of Welfare Oveta Culp Hobby, and will be released to the public a few hours later.

The document will include recommendations by Secretary Hobby, whose Health, Education and Welfare Department directed the study.

Mrs. Hobby, whose handling of the polio program has come under some sharp criticism on Capitol Hill, is also scheduled to appear for questioning Monday by the Senate banking committee.

Hallner Jury Still Knotted After 3 Days

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There was still no verdict in the Herbert Hallner case Saturday night as the jury was locked up for the night after more than 20 hours of deliberation.

When the jury began its third day of deliberations Saturday it was reported to be divided 7-5 on a decision. When Superior Judge Allen Lynch called the panel into the jury box at the end of the day, foreman John Modglin said the division was 9-3.

Modglin did not disclose which side was favored.

The judge ordered the panel to resume deliberations today at 9 a.m.

Hallner is accused of offering bribes to three city officials in 1953 to obtain aid in legalizing bingo-type games at nearby Venice.

Dulles on Air Tuesday With Report on Europe

ing of West Germany as a member of the Atlantic alliance in ceremonies at Paris, with British and French leaders on the Indochina crisis and the signing of an Austrian peace treaty in Vienna today.

But major interest focused on Russia's acceptance of the American-British-French invitation to a Big Four parley at the summit to discuss world tensions. Dulles will have had full opportunity to assess at first hand Foreign Minister Molotov's reaction to the Big Four session plans. He met with Molotov and other foreign ministers Saturday in Vienna. Thus he could gain some fresh impressions of what the Russians are up to in world affairs—with their sudden agreement to an Austrian pact and with the visit of their top leaders, Premier Bulganin and Communist boss Khushchev to Yugoslavia shortly.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty disclosed that Dulles will return to Washington Monday and broadcast to the nation from President Eisenhower's office Tuesday between 7 and 7:30 p.m., EDT (4 to 4:30 p.m. Long Beach time).

All four national TV networks will carry the report at the time. The radio networks will record it for later broadcast.

Letters Crusade Asks Reds to Free Priest

CHICAGO (UP)—A letter-writing crusade to obtain release of the very Rev. Harold W. Rigney, Chicago priest held by the Chinese Reds, will be switched from the State Department and directed straight to his captors.

Joseph Meegan, executive secretary of the Back-of-the-Yards Council which has spearheaded the campaign, said today the direct appeal will be made to give the Communists "a chance to put into deeds their words about freedom and justice."

Russ Accept Invitation to Big 4 Peace Talks

to be sent to Washington, London and Paris soon.

No definite time or place was set for the conference but "precise details are being worked out," a spokesman said.

Molotov was reported to have urged that the meeting be held in Vienna, while the western foreign ministers argued for a site in Switzerland.

The foreign ministers also agreed Saturday to sign today a treaty restoring Austria's independence.

Though Molotov's acceptance of the invitation to the meeting of the Chiefs of State was not a formal Soviet reply, western diplomats said "the acceptance was there."

A western spokesman said the meeting may get under way in about six weeks.

While Molotov "strongly urged" that the meeting be conducted in Vienna, the United States said it favored Lausanne, Switzerland, because of the convenience of hotel and travel arrangements there. The U.S. opposed Geneva because that was the site of the Far Eastern conference last summer that resulted in the truce in Indochina that gave the Communists the northern half of Viet Nam.

British Foreign Secretary Macmillan suggested the meeting might be held in Scotland—"perhaps facetiously," a western spokesman said.

Dulles said he would discuss the exact time and place of the meeting with Mr. Eisenhower after he returns to Washington.

The treaty to be signed today will make Austria a free nation for the first time in 17 years. It also will clear the country of all U.S., British, Russian and French occupation troops by Dec. 31 of this year.

Austrian Chancellor Leopold Figl attended the opening Austrian treaty session Saturday at the flag-bedecked Allied Council Building, which was surrounded by a cheering throng of 10,000 jubilant Austrians.

Western authorities said Figl told the meeting the Austrian Parliament would formally enact a law pledging Austria to abstain from military alliances and to maintain strict neutrality.

Molotov was said to have raised the question of a four-power guarantee of Austria's neutrality, but all five powers agreed to leave such a guarantee until later.

It also was unanimously agreed to drop from the treaty a "war guilt" clause that accused Austria of "certain responsibility arising from participation in the war" on the side of Germany.

The streamlined treaty, hitherto secret, was hammered out in 11 days of bitter East-West bargaining that reduced it from 59 to 38 articles.

The text provides that all occupation troops "shall be withdrawn from Austria within 90 days from the coming into force of the present treaty, and in so far as possible not later than Dec. 31, 1955."

Another key clause in the new treaty binds Russia to hand back Soviet-held properties in Austria within two months after the treaty takes effect in accordance with Soviet economic promises made to Austrian Chancellor Julius Raab at Kremlin last month— the so-called "Moscow agreements."

Inclusion of the "Moscow Agreements" in the text was the most bitterly fought issue of the treaty conference and almost caused collapse of the parley this week.

The West insisted that the text include the "Moscow Agreements," scaling down Austrian debts to Russia to be paid over the next ten years, so that Russia could not disown the agreements later and march back into Austria.

It took but 80 minutes to approve the text of a treaty it had taken 10 years to negoiate.

Signing will take place in famed Belvedere Palace.

For the Austrians it means the end of more than 17 years of occupation by the Nazis and later by the four World War II Allies.

L.B. Housewife Found Dazed; Rushed Aid Fails

Mrs. Bess M. Dollarhide, 52, of 731½ E. Broadway was pronounced dead on arrival at Seaside Hospital shortly after 6 p.m. Saturday. Police said she had been rushed to the hospital in a private ambulance from her home.

Police investigation revealed that Mrs. Dollarhide's husband, Orgie M. Dollarhide, had returned home about 5:40 p.m. to find his wife sitting in a dazed condition in the living room.

A neighbor, Mrs. Mary B. Griffin, said Mrs. Dollarhide had told her of taking sleeping pills. When informed of this the husband immediately consulted the family doctor, who directed that the ambulance be called.

The body was removed to Mottell's Mortuary.

Asian Equality Statue Urged

A proposal that a statue or symbol, something like the Statue of Liberty, be placed in San Francisco Bay as an indication of American respect for equality of Orientals was made Saturday to delegates to Civitan convention at San Pedro.

Frank Lindsey, Dallas, Tex., international trustee of the service organization, made the suggestion at meeting of the California-Arizona Civitan district.

Lindsey said the idea was first voiced earlier this year by the Oakland Civitan Club and he is presenting it to other groups as a possible Civitan project.

"This statue, or symbol of some type, could be put in San Francisco Bay," he said, "but it should not be a symbol of the United States alone, or of tolerance, but a sign that we consider Asiatics and Americans as equals and we regard them with mutual respect as men."

Panty Raiders Face Ouster at Oklahoma A&M

STILLWATER, Okla. (UP)—An Oklahoma A&M college official indicated Saturday several students face expulsion for a "panty raid," which the school discreetly termed a "laundry tub" theft.

The official said "expulsion" was being considered for "violation of college regulations in the disturbance of the campus."

A statement by the college said:

"Final punishment for offenders who broke into the storage room of one campus resident hall to carry away clothing from laundry tubs and created a noisy demonstration around two other resident halls and three sorority houses has not been determined. Cases of several students are still under investigation by the A&M student disciplinary committee."

Youth, 18, Wins U.N. Contest

Dave Copeland, 18, Wilson high school senior, won a $100 government bond Saturday by taking top local honors in the recent United Nations essay contest.

The youth, son of Capt. and Mrs. R. G. Copeland, 3529 Vista St., received the bond at the annual meeting of the Long Beach Chapter, American Assn. for the United Nations, at the Lafayette Hotel.

Lon E. Peck, who made the presentation, said that young Copeland took first place in Wilson high school ($25 bond) and first place in the city ($75 bond), and the awards were combined in the $100 bond.

Copeland expects to become a mechanical engineer. His father is commanding officer of the USS Caliente. Young Copeland is currently raising an impressive red, Abe Lincoln-like beard "just for fun."

Melvin Jalin, 16, of 3157 Lemon Ave., received a $25 bond for taking first award at Poly high school.

Richard Elden Ashcraft, 16, of 5224 Kildee St., who won second place at Wilson, has a Saturday job in a grocery, so his $25 bond was accepted by his father, Elden L. Ashcraft, insurance agent.

City Librarian Edwin Castagna was elected president, succeeding Roy Dial. Other new officers are Mrs. Laura Barr, Mrs. Javus Fortmann, vice president;

Dr. George E. Dotson, assistant superintendent for City College, will be chairman of United Nations Week, Oct. 17-24, retiring President Dial announced.

George Johnson, Independent, Press-Telegram attorney, described "12 Days Behind the Iron Curtain." A member of an American delegation of newspaper, radio and television representatives, Johnson recently toured Europe. He said he found the Iron Curtain people friendly, warmly if not smartly dressed, and well-fed. Prices were high. He described paying $10 and $12 for dinner. A friend paid $40 for a bottle of vodka in Warsaw, he said.

Three Injured in Saturday Traffic Here

A 23-year-old driver and his 16-year-old passenger were injured when their car went out of control while making a turn from Pacific Coast Hwy. onto Gardenia Ave. Saturday afternoon and hit a tree.

Forest L. McCord, 1732 E. 15th St., the driver, suffered possible head injuries and a lacerated tongue when his car knocked down a sign and then crashed into the tree. He got out of the car after the accident, then collapsed.

His passenger, Ronald E. Robinson, 3711 Fountain St., suffered an arm injury. Both were treated at Community Hospital and later transferred to Harbor General Hospital.

In another accident Saturday afternoon Motorcycle Officer Paul G. Goforth, 29, suffered a possible broken left foot and a sprained ankle when his cycle collided with a Harbor Department truck driven by Omal B. Reed, 42, of 4400 Gaviota Ave. at Artesia St. and Atlantic Ave.

He was treated at St. Mary's Hospital and later released. Reed said both vehicles were headed west on Artesia after stopping at the intersection before the accident. He was not cited by police.

Californians Option 87 Uranium Claims

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—An attorney for Circle Cliffs Uranium Co. said Saturday that a group of California business men has taken an option to buy 87 of the firm's uranium claims.

Attorney Claude T. Barnes said the claims, representing all Circle Cliffs' land assets, would be sold for $5,400,000. He said the California syndicate was represented in the option deal by Leo Higbee of Spokane, Wash., and Alden Higbee of Provo, Utah. Members of the syndicate were not announced.

MARLENE HAD A CRYSTAL BALL!

New Miss Welcome 'Picked' by Old One

By LEE CRAIG

Marlene Becker, last year's Miss Welcome to Long Beach, is probably the only winner of the contest who "chose" her own successor.

Last summer, one of Marlene's duties was selling Miss Universe event tickets in a booth at Walker's Department Store.

Judy Ware, a 17-year-old Wilson High School girl, who was working at Walker's during the summer as a salegirl, was assigned to help her.

The two became good friends and Marlene suggested:

"Why don't you enter the Miss Welcome contest next year? I think you'd have a good chance."

Judy laughed, but as time went on she gave the idea more serious consideration. She'd lose nothing by trying, she thought.

So, when contest time came this year, she entered and won, to become Miss Welcome to Long Beach for 1955.

The winner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ware, 363 Orizaba Ave., and her brother, John, 16, said they were even more amazed than she was.

"I didn't think she had a chance," John said, with brotherly frankness.

Judy is five feet, six inches tall and weighs 115 pounds, arranged in a 35-23-35 package. Her hair is honey-blonde and her eyes are green—unless she's wearing something yellow . . . "Then my eyes turn chartreuse."

She will be graduated in June from Wilson High—where she maintained close to an A average—and will enter Long Beach State College this fall.

She wants to be a teacher in elementary school, get married and "have at least six kids."

Among her high school studies were three years of Spanish, and she's looking forward to talking with Latin beauties in the Miss Universe Pageant.

Both Judy and John expect Monday to be a rough day at Wilson, with much good-natured razzing from schoolmates.

"That'll be okay," John said. "I'm proud of her."

L.B. Engineering Student Elected to Honorary Unit

Gordon Lee Bartholomew, 22, son of Juvenile Inspector and Mrs. Donald G. Batholomew, of 2774 Gale Ave., has been elected to an honorary engineering society at the University of California at Berkeley.

He will be graduated June 17 with a degree of petroleum engineer and is to be employed by the Shell Oil Co. During the past quarter, young Bartholomew studied on a $750 scholarship.

BARTHOLOMEW

While in Long Beach he attended Burnett elementary, Hamilton Junior High and Poly High schools and City College. He is married and has two children.

THINK THIS IS PROGRESS?

HUTTON GATE, England (U.P.) — Residents of this Yorkshire village protested to the nationalized British Railway system that the ancient gas lamps on the station platform were too old fashioned.

The gas lights were replaced Saturday—with oil lamps.

It's Great Day for Southland's Irish, May 22

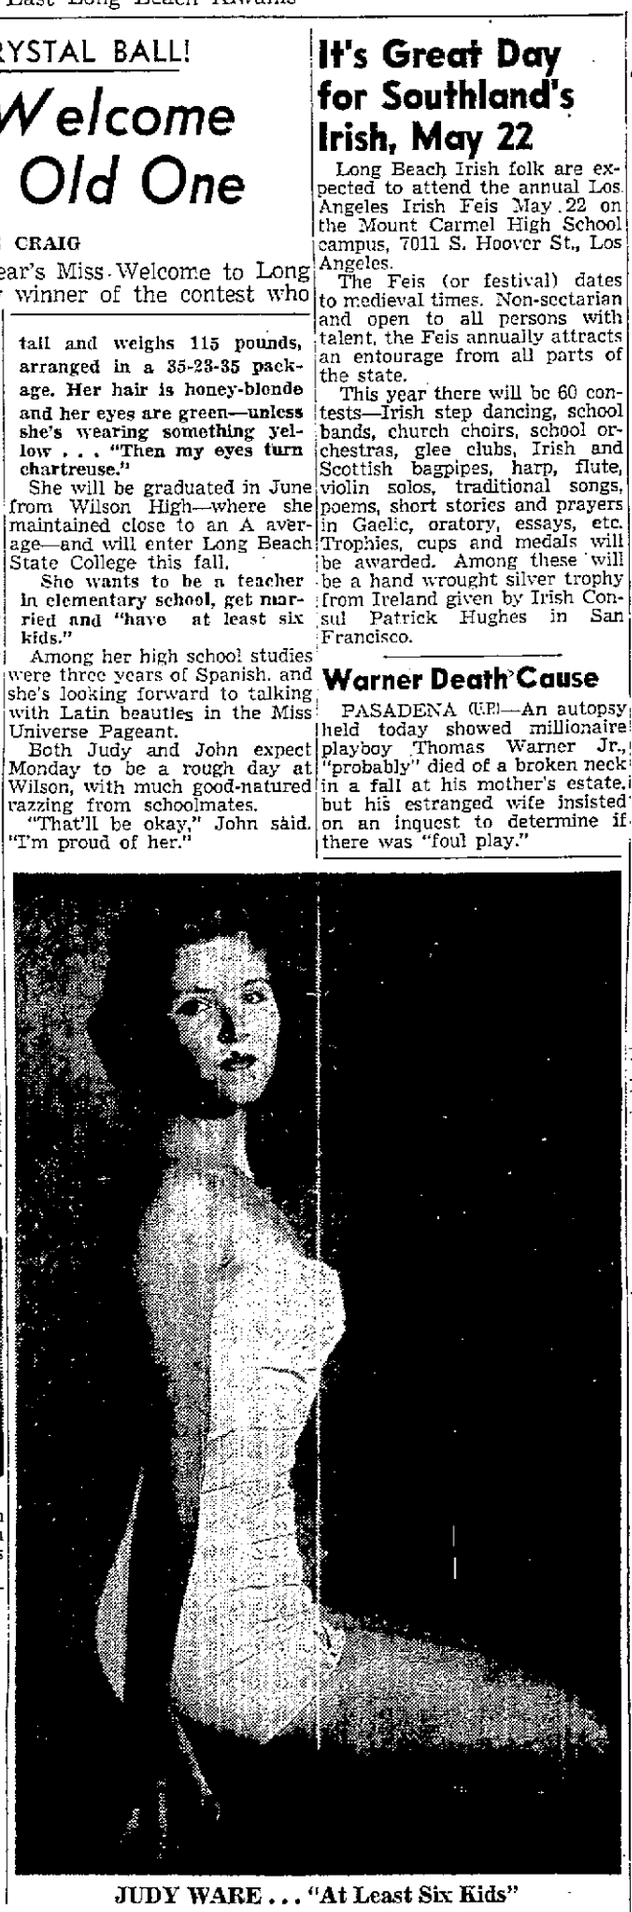

Long Beach Irish folk are expected to attend the annual Los Angeles Irish Feis May 22 on the Mount Carmel High School campus, 7011 S. Hoover St., Los Angeles.

The Feis (or festival) dates to medieval times. Non-sectarian and open to all persons with talent, the Feis annually attracts an entourage from all parts of the state.

This year there will be 60 contests—Irish step dancing, school bands, church choirs, school orchestras, glee clubs, Irish and Scottish bagpipes, harp, flute, violin solos, traditional songs, poems, short stories and prayers in Gaelic, oratory, essays, etc. Trophies, cups and medals will be awarded. Among these will be a hand wrought silver trophy from Ireland given by Irish Consul Patrick Hughes in San Francisco.

Warner Death Cause

PASADENA (U.P.)—An autopsy held today showed millionaire playboy Thomas Warner Jr., "probably" died of a broken neck in a fall at his mother's estate, but his estranged wife insisted on an inquest to determine if there was "foul play."

Kiwanis Club B-Day Draws 5,498 Diners

It was B-Day for East Long Beach Kiwanis Club Saturday at Recreation Park.

The B stood for batter and a record crowd of 5,498 persons attested they never tasted better.

That was the number in attendance at the fifth annual Kids Pancake Breakfast in Recreation Park, according to George Cain, president of the sponsoring club.

At 50 cents per head each breakfaster was entitled to as many hot cakes as he could eat. More than 18,000 were consumed.

Throughout the morning, lines of hungry people stretched around the picnic area.

The better batter was prepared by Louis Scott, a member of the club with a "secret" recipe.

The Kiwanians flapjack flipping efforts were augmented by the services of Mayor George Vermillion and City Councilman Toby Wick.

Entertainment was provided by Doye O'Dell, television cowboy, two accordion bands from Music Center, accordionist Myron Floren of Lawrence Welk's orchestra and the Bob Wells Dancers.

Dr. Robert Albright served as general chairman of the event.

Proceeds from the breakfast will be used in support of the Boy Scout Troop, Girl Scout Troop and Cub Scout Pack at the Tucker Orthopedic School.

Mass Meeting Slated to Protest Oil Trucks

Several hundred irate Sunset Heights property owners will meet Monday night in Ocean View School to frame protests against what they term "destructive and dangerous" methods of operation by oilmen in the area.

Orange County supervisor Willis Warner has promised to attend the meeting, according to Mrs. Herman F. Jones, 16812 Sims St., a leader of the property owners.

"Their heavy trucks tear up and down our private roads, throwing dust and dirt all over our property," Mrs. Jones said. "They leave oil sumps uncovered and don't even have fences around most of their wells and equipment.

"Our children will soon be out of school for the summer and we're afraid some may be hurt through these men's carelessness.

"Also, when a well comes in, it sprays oil all over the neighborhood. I'd just painted my house when it happened to me."

A few operators, she said, have fenced in their areas and take precautions against creating hazards or causing damage to nearby residences. These are in the minority, however, she said.

At the meeting, property owners will draw up specific recommendations to be presented to the oilmen. The latter are invited to attend a joint meeting with residents Monday, May 23, at Mrs. Jones' home.

The meeting this Monday will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Ocean View School, Huntington Beach Blvd. and Wintersburg Ave.

Two End Journey in 1915 Jalopy

LOCKPORT, Ind. (U.P.)—Clyde Zimmer, 53, and his son, John, 20, antique auto collectors, returned to their home here after safely negotiating their 1915 Ford from Sacramento, Calif.

Except for a burned-out valve, a broken drive shaft, and a heavy dust storm, the trip was uneventful, the elder Zimmer said.

The trip took 13 days, he said.

'I'll Retire When I Die,' Says Attorney After 50-Year Practice

Practicing law has become a complicated, many-angled procedure in the past 50 years, according to George A. Hart, Long Beach attorney.

Hart, 74, speaks with authority.

Fifty years ago Friday, he stood before the State Supreme Court to take an examination which would decide two important questions in his life:

1. Would he practice law?
2. Could he get married? For without the right to practice, he had no means of earning a living to support a wife.

He passed, however, and was soon married and had established practice here with another young lawyer, Carl Denio.

The two were partners for 48 years, until Denio's death two years ago.

"In the old days," Hart says, "you could apply to the state to form a corporation and it would be a running concern within ten days. Now, with corporation commissioners and boards of all kinds to cope with, it takes many times as much time and effort.

GEORGE A. HART
Things Are Complicated

"Also, there's the tax angle to be considered now. For instance, whether to have joint or divided tenancy of property—it makes a big difference, taxwise.

"I remember when William Jennings Bryan made his fiery speeches advocating postal savings and income tax. We Republicans laughed at him and thought he was crazy."

However complicated Hart may think the bar is now, he has no intention of leaving it.

"I'll retire when I die," he declares.

Hart, who has had an office in the Security Bldg. since the structure was built, has also been active in civic and social affairs of the city.

He served as president of the Long Beach Bar Association in 1921, the Lions' Club in '23 and the Chamber of Commerce in '38.

He and his wife, Lillian, reside at 243 Claremont Ave. Their son, George A. Hart Jr., is also an attorney here.

SIX WEEKS AND NO WINNER

Bonanzagram Award Jumps Up to $1050!

What can we say?

For the sixth consecutive week, NO WINNER!

The ante is now up to $1,050 for subscribers . . . mighty easy money, too, for anyone who has studied the puzzles carefully and has noted how the obvious answer is seldom right.

Anyway, here's how you should have figured last week:

PICTURES OF FORTS COMING BY COURIER. FORTS are logical military objectives for a spy to discuss. PORTS, therefore, aren't to the point.

BY LUCKY STROKE—STROKE means an action having a quick and pleasant effect; whereas STRIKE is a sudden success dealing mainly with winning money. HAVE FOUND TRACES OF BAND TRAINED AND READY FOR USE. This is better than TRACTS OF LAND AND READY FOR USE; the clue to the BAND appears later in the letter, where the need of a MOB is mentioned.

CONTENT TO REMAIN AROUND WAITING SIGNAL—if there had been imminent action to report here—that is, CONTEST TO REGAIN GROUND, surely the spy would have reported more fully on it.

CAN'T PROBE IT NOW means he can't take the time to explore the situation. PROVE IT NOW—obviously, a wartime spy wouldn't be expected to prove his points.

Dropping down to EAGER THAT ACTIVITIES FAN OUT—this has more meaning than WAGER THAT ACTIVITIES PAN OUT—a casual, unnecessary statement. SLOW GOING is not logical for the next phrase; everything so far has indicated speedy work.

I CAN'T SPEND TOO MUCH—clearly wrong, as from his demand for money, he's not worried about spending too much.

The sign-off is not the meaningless PENDING REWARDS and the signature is not the obvious TWENTY. It is, however, a selection of letters familiar to many people . . . the first six letters of the typewriter keyboard—QWERTY.

P.S. If you thought M. Spence in the previous puzzle should have been Millie, here's the answer. M. stands for Matilda and Tillie is an accepted nickname for Matilda.

PICTURES OF FORTS COMING BY COURIER. BY LUCKY STROKE, HAVE FOUND TRACES OF BAND TRAINED AND READY FOR USE. DUMPED ARMS BEING CULLED OVER. BORDER GUERRILLAS CONTENT TO REMAIN AROUND WAITING SIGNAL. SITUATION WITH TRIBES TOO SHAKY TO BE TRUSTED; CANT PROBE IT NOW. NEED MONEY FOR PAYOFF, SHY SIX THOUSAND. WILL DO AS TOLD. A MOB IS NECESSARY TO GAIN JOINT SUCCESS HERE. EAGER THAT ACTIVITIES FAN OUT. SHOW DOING FINE. I CANT SPEED TOO MUCH AS PER SCHEME FOR CLEARING UP ISLAND PROBLEM. HINDERED BY EFFORTS TO CRACK LEADER. SENDING REGARDS.

Guidance Assn. Presents Panel

$25,000 Suit Filed for Boy Hurt by Car

COMPTON—A suit seeking $25,000 general damages was filed in Compton Superior Court Friday in behalf of a 8-year-old boy injured in a traffic accident April 7.

The suit, filed against Virginia Mary Delegadillo, 23, of 1210 S. Gunlock Ave., charged the victim, Charles Sondergaard, son of Mrs. Alice Sondergaard, suffered a skull fracture, concussion and other injuries when struck as he crossed the street in the 1100 block on Gunlock Ave.

The plaintiff is represented by James G. Butler.

CAPITAL CAPERS

By WESLEY PEYTON and ROBERT E. LEE
(Of the Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON—Politicians seldom are noted for excessive modesty, but some blow their own horns louder than others.

This obvious fact is emphasized anew with each edition of the Congressional Directory, to which members of Congress contribute whatever biographical material they want. The latest edition discloses that the average member thinks his life story is worth about a dozen lines.

But the dean of the Senate, Walter George, who has served since 1922, uses only six lines to identify himself. George's Georgia colleague, third senior man in the Senate, tells his story in one line: "Richard Brevard Russell, Democrat, of Winder, Ga."

Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, who has been a member of Congress longer than anybody else now serving, takes 18 lines to tell about himself. Texas Congressmen as a group turn out to be unusually bashful — one member is a one-liner; one a two-liner; another a four-liner.

This isn't true of all Southerners, however. Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.), one of the Senate freshmen, takes long-distance honors with a 60-line autobiography. Besides noting that he was Dixiecrat nominee for President in 1948, Thurmond includes a lengthy war record, with 16 lines devoted to his medals and area campaign ribbons.

Rep. Clyde Doyle (D-Calif.) has the third longest biography listed by members of the House—47 lines.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert, a Louisiana Democrat of French descent, points out that his name is pronounced "A-Bear." Rep. Jack Westland (R-Wash.) reminds readers of the directory that he was National Amateur golf champion in 1952. Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn (D-S.C.) reports he is "the only man in American history who in less than 10 years served in a state House, state Senate, 3½ years in the Army, in the U. S. Congress, and made a strong race for the U. S. Senate." He doesn't add that he lost the Senate race.

North Dakota's autobiographers are among the most colorful. Sen. Bill Langer observes that his first school teacher was a cousin of Ann Rutledge, Lincoln's sweetheart.

Langer also says he was the "only person ever to be arrested in an English-speaking country for filing an affidavit of prejudice against a judge."

Usher L. Burdick, a North Dakota House member, can't top that, but he reports that he was born near an Indian reservation and "understands the Sioux language."

It is ESSENTIAL that you fill it in and save it until the correct solution to "Bonanzagram" No. 11 published next Sunday. Unless you do so, you will be unable to collect the prize if you should send in a winning solution. Check the rules below for further details.

BONANZAGRAM No. 11

The Explorer Scouts were in trouble. A sudden, huge rockslide had penned them in the main canyon of a range they were exploring. After some worried consultation, Scout Leader David Borden decided it was best to divide the group into two parties. He assigned one to their Indian guide and took the other himself. Using their maps and compasses, they set off in opposite directions in search of a "forked path" which, according to Indian legend, provided the second means of escape from the canyon. After two foggy and strenuous days, Borden's group found the way out, but meanwhile lost contact with the others. That night one of the boys on night watch picked up a code message from a distant flashlight. He had missed some of the letters, but Borden was able to decipher it and form a plan for reuniting the two groups. Can you, too, figure out what happened to the others?

How to Play "Bonanzagram"

Solve the "Bonanzagram" by filling in all the missing letters, as indicated by the underscores, in the message. Insert only one letter above each underscore. Many clues to the missing letters are hidden in the story, or anecdote, accompanying the message. Clues may also be found in the message itself, and, in a few cases, the contestant's general knowledge should provide the correct letter. The contestant will note that the message is unpunctuated. Proper punctuation is one of the important keys to a correct solution.

When properly filled in, the "Bonanzagram" will spell out a clear message that will conform in every way with the clues. In many cases it will seem that more than one word would be the correct one. That's part of the fun! You should weigh the clues and select the BEST possible word in each case.

How To Submit Entries

1. After solution is completed, "Bonanzagram" should be clipped and pasted to a two-cent postcard with your name and address.

Facsimiles made by hand and corresponding as closely as possible to the original "Bonanzagram" printed in the newspaper will be accepted but are limited one to a family. Mimeograph, duplicator or other unofficial mechanical reproduction is forbidden.

How To Collect The Prizes

The entrant must work out and keep duplicate solution as a claim check. When the solution is published in the Independent, Press-Telegram each Sunday, he should compare his "claim check" with the published solution, and, if his claim check is identical, he should call in person with it at the newspaper office, 6th St. and Pine Ave., between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. on the Monday following publication of the solution.

If a winner cannot call at the Independent, Press-Telegram office in person Monday, he should mail his solution to "Bonanzagram," Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th St. and Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. The letter must be postmarked not later than 5 p. m. Monday. Important: this address is only for claim checks, not entries.

Gen. Summerall, Hero of World War I, Dies

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Gen. Charles Pelot Summerall, 88, one of America's great field commanders of World War I and Army chief of staff from 1926 to 1930, died in Walter Reed Army Hospital Saturday after a long illness.

His son and daughter-in-law, retired Army Col. and Mrs. Charles P. Summerall Jr., were at the bedside. The general's wife died in 1948.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in the chapel at Ft. Myer, Va., and burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Summerall, who had been living in retirement at Aiken, S. C., was admitted to Walter Reed last August. It was reported at the time of his admission that he was suffering from leukemia.

OF OLD SCHOOL

Summerall was a soldier of the old school who believed in ramrod discipline and strict military courtesy. His military career spanned 66 years, including service in three campaigns, four years as Army chief of staff, and 22 years as president of the citadel in Charleston, S. C., one of the nation's oldest and proudest military colleges.

On his 88th birthday, March 4, he still was erect and soldierly in his bearing, precise in all his habits, and impressively dignified in his manner.

He was born in Lake City, Fla., on March 4, 1867. He won appointment to West Point, and graduated as an Army Lieutenant in 1892. He fought in the Philippines in the Spanish-American War, winning two citations for gallantry, and led the American unit that blew open the gates to imperial Peking during the Boxer Rebellion in China.

SENT TO FRANCE

He was Brigadier general when the United States entered World War I, and was sent to France to command the first American troops to take over a sector of the western front. He later commanded the famous "Fighting First" Division, and the 1st Army Corps, leading the latter in the Meuse-Argonne drive in the closing days of the war. He won a reputation as a brilliant artillery tactician, and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Honor, the Croix-de-Guerre, and numerous other medals.

After the war he held several domestic commands and was commander of the Army's Hawaiian department from 1921 to 1924.

He was appointed chief of staff, with the rank of full general, Sept. 21, 1926. During his four-year term as the Army's top officer, he reorganized infantry forces and put new emphasis on field training maneuvers; pushed the development of tanks and armored cars; and launched a drive to improve living conditions and family housing facilities at all Army bases.

Before his retirement in 1930, Congress passed a special act which permitted him to retain the rank of four-star general for life.

Parents of 2 Inoculated Tots Stricken

DENVER (AP)—Two adults, parents of children inoculated with polio vaccine manufactured by Cutter Laboratories, were in Colorado General Hospital today for treatment of what officials said was infantile paralysis.

One of the victims, Morton Solomon, 27, was placed in an iron lung. Hospital attaches described his condition as critical.

The other person is Mrs. Carolyn Gustafson, 25, a housewife who became ill May 1, developed fever and a stiff neck and was hospitalized May 8. She suffered partial paralysis but was described as "not so ill."

Mrs. Gustafson's husband, John, Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad employe, was suffering from high fever Saturday and was admitted to the hospital for tests.

Solomon, a structural engineer, was admitted four days ago. His 18-month-old daughter, Joan, was vaccinated by a private physician April 8.

The father developed paralysis of the right arm May 9.

Mrs. Gustafson's 18-month-old daughter, Judy, also was vaccinated April 18 with the California laboatory's polio vaccine.

The Cutter vaccine was recalled from distribution earlier this month when several children inoculated with that variety fell ill. Doctors emphasized there was no link established between the inoculation with Cutter vaccine and the children's illness, however.

Dr. Lloyd Florio, city manager of health and hospitals, said an analysis of the local cases "leaves us no choice but to say it is definitely possible" the Denver parents contracted polio from their children.

Kin of Persons Given Salk Shots Get Polio

ATLANTA (AP)—The State Health Department Saturday reported two cases in Georgia of persons who developed polio after association with members of their families who had been inaculated with Salk vaccine.

The persons, both inoculated with Cutter vaccine, had not contracted polio.

Mail Box Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of farmers are being asked to spruce up their RFD boxes. Postmaster General Summerfield issued the appeal in connection with the P.O.'s spring clean-up week May 15-21. The idea is to prettify postal facilities.

Uranium 'Fever' in Alaska Town

VANDEZ, Alaska (AP)—Uranium fever has gripped this port city of 1,000 people.

A uranium find was reported 55 miles up the Richardson Highway. Staking of 40 claims was reported Saturday morning, with more being added hourly. Cars were reported streaming up the highway to the site.

Thomas Harris, owner of the Valdez Hotel, described it as "a rat race."

Between 60 and 100 people were reported to be at the scene early Saturday morning, with more arriving steadily.

Automation—Boon or Threat—Is Here to Stay

By JIM PHELAN

"Patty-cake, patty-cake, a baker man
Bake us a cake just as fast as you can.
Pat it and roll it and mark it with a B
And put it in the oven for baby and me."
—obsolete nursery rhyme.

When you slit the wrapper on that loaf of bread this morning and dropped a couple of slices in the toaster, the chances are that you were the first human being to touch the loaf.

It was mixed into dough, kneaded, shaped into a loaf, put in a pan, baked, cooled, sliced and wrapped by a giant robot bigger than a football field.

The robot—called the automatic bakery—has retired the traditional white-clad, flour-smudged baker to the sidelines. It does the baker's job better, more efficiently, more hygienically, and infinitely faster.

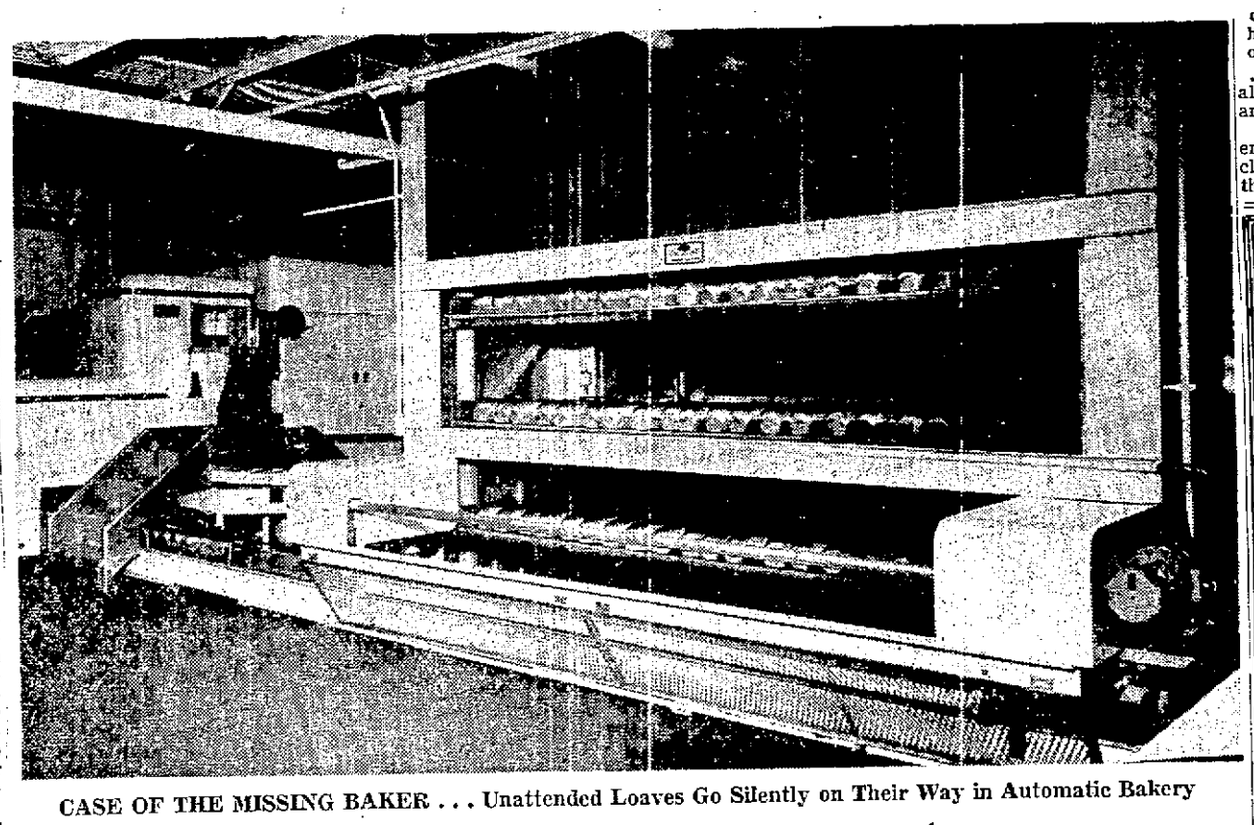

The automatic bakery is just another example of automation, a process that is much in the news these days.

Automation—the use of machines that do complex jobs formerly performed by human hands—is one of the most significant post-war industrial developments. Automation is the delight of manufacturers, a fighting word with unions, a puzzle to economists — and a cause for popeyed wonder for John Q. Public.

Automatic production basically is nothing new. Henry Ford revolutionized the automobile industry with it 40 years ago. Machines rendered the skilled glass-blower obsolete a half-century ago.

But today automatic machines are taking over an amazing variety of complex jobs that formerly required skilled hand labor.

In Harvard, Ill., a row of robots are producing television sets for Admiral Corp. At Rockford, Ill., a fully automatic factory, operated by the government, transforms steel bars into 155 mm shells without the aid of a human hand. In some industries—such as those producing gasoline, chemicals, and synthetics, automation has reached the point where the robots not only perform the job of production, but actually inspect their own products and correct their own mistakes.

CASE OF THE MISSING BAKER . . . Unattended Loaves Go Silently on Their Way in Automatic Bakery

The automatic bakery — there are several in the Long Beach area—has reached its peak of perfection in a giant plant over in the grimy southern reaches of Los Angeles.

Housed in a building that resembles a field house, the robot bakery is almost deserted even when running full blast. Only a few scattered employes man the complex production line at critical points. Most of the time they do nothing but watch; their function is to adjust the machines on the rare occasions when they develop a mechanical quirk.

Giant steel arms mix the dough in 1,500-lb. batches. Another machine cuts the dough into loaf-size pieces. A whirling merry-go-round device kneads it, sprinkles it with flour, and tosses it onto a moving conveyor. Other machines flatten the dough, roll it, shape it and dump it into a baking pan. Electric eyes keep an unwinking gaze on the conveyors, slowing them down, speeding them up to prevent any "traffic jams" on the constantly moving parade of pans. The robot can even call for help if things go wrong. Where the conveyor belt puts the pans in the oven, a warning bell sounds if the operation gets jammed up.

Automatic devices keep the temperature of the oven at precisely the same degree and each loaf stays in the oven exactly the same amount of time. Three machines take the finished loaves, slice them, and slap wrappers around them without any human help.

The robot bakery turns out 5,400 loaves an hour, or almost two loaves every second. It never tires, never sleeps, never complains, asks for a pay raise, or goes on a strike.

Automation is not limited to skilled and unskilled production jobs.

In the form of automatic computers, business machines, and electronic "brains"—like univac—it is invading the offices and taking over the jobs of white-collar workers. It is even encroaching in the field of engineering and designing.

Douglas Aircraft was able to put the big DC7 in the air six months ahead of schedule because of the efficiency of an electronic "brain" in working out complex aerodynamic problems. Before the war, these problems would have had to have been solved laboriously by engineers.

Critics of automation fear that automatic factories will be linked to automatic offices for an automatic business. What will happen, they ask, to all the workers thus displaced?

Friends of automation reply that automation makes jobs, rather than destroys them. They point to the fact that employment in the automobile industry, where automation is highly advanced—is at an all-time high. And it takes men to make and service the automatic machines.

Economists argue further that increased production and lower prices brought about by automation creates new jobs in new fields. While automation turns out more automobiles per man, the great stream of automobiles has created more jobs in highway construction, filling stations, garages, oil refineries, and so on.

Employment figures tend to refute—as of 1955—the contention that automation's robots are going to elbow man onto the relief rolls and hand him a welfare check spewed out by an IBM machine.

Employment today is near an all-time peak, and relief rolls are near an all-time low.

Over at the giant robot bakery the employment rolls give a clue to what is happening. While the automatic bakery doesn't have any flour-smudge bakers kneading the loaves, it employes 12 skilled and well-paid engineers for maintenance, repair, and emergency help to the robot baker. It gives work to a whole army of salesmen and provides jobs for auto repairmen to keep the great fleet of trucks running.

A boon for man or a threat, automation looks as if it is here to stay. You've probably never thought about it, but it already has invaded your home. It helped you to toast that bread that the robot bakery baked for you.

After all, what's a pop-up toaster but another example of automation, junior grade?

GM Prepares 'Attractive' Contract Plan

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Free Press said Saturday night there are indications General Motors is preparing to offer an "attractive" contract proposal to the CIO United Auto Workers within the next few days.

The newspaper said sources close to the current contract negotiations hinted the proposal would include a modified form of the guaranteed annual wage, which the union is seeking, and a wage increase of at least 6 cents an hour.

There was no immediate comment from either side. Contract talks will resume with General Motors on Monday.

McClellan Implies New U.S. Contract Scandals

WASHINGTON (UP) — Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) announced Saturday that his Senate Investigating Subcommittee will begin public hearings Monday on alleged corruption in military uniform contracts totaling "several million dollars."

He said the charges involve "actual cash payments" between clothing manufacturers seeking defense contracts and Defense Department purchasing agents. He described it as "a fresh case" involving incidents since the Republican administration took over.

In at least one case, he said, a gift of a home freezer—reminiscent of the 1949 RFC "five percenter" scandals — was involved.

McClellan implied that the hearings would bring even more shocking disclosures than the RFC investigation, which shook the Democratic Truman administration. He said the alleged corruption "goes beyond just a deep freeze now and then."

Though he would give no details, McClellan said the investigation involves the Army, Navy and Air Force, and that at least 10 contracts for military raincoats, garrison caps and white sailor caps are involved.

Most of the contracts, he said, were let by the Armed Services Textile Procurement Agency, a consolidated purchasing unit which existed from July 1952 to October 1953.

He indicated the investigation is more concerned with the performance of the contracts than with the method of letting them.

The subcommittee already has taken closed-door testimony.

British Actress Dies Following Surgery

MANCHESTER, England (AP) —Betty Ann Davies, a leading British actress, died in a hospital here Saturday, six days after an appendix operation. She was 44.

During the London run of "A Streetcar Named Desire," she took over the part of Blanche de Bois from Vivien Leigh.

George Hints Scare Try by Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George (D-Ga) said Saturday the Pentagon may be trying to influence Senate consideration of the new military budget by stressing increases in Soviet aircraft production.

"I don't attach too much importance to it," George commented.

Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, said he had no information on a step-up in Russian production of jet bombers and fighters, as reported by the Defense Department, but said Senate committees "will want to go into the situation."

The Pentagon put out a cryptic statement Friday, with White House approval, saying that Russia was cutting into this country's lead in the production of heavy and medium jet bombers. This was followed Saturday by reports that the Soviets have increased their lead in turning out supersonic jet fighters.

George, who is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, suggested in an interview that the Pentagon data "may be intended to have some influence on the Senate's consideration of the military budget."

The House passed to 31½-billion-dollar budget Thursday night, in substantially the form requested by the administration, and the next move is up to the Senate.

George recalled that Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, NATO commander, recently testified before the Foreign Relations Committee that Russia's air fleet does not measure up to this country's. He said he didn't know if Gruenther had "changed his mind," but commented that he should be in a better position to know what the Russians have than almost anyone else.

The Pentagon announcement noted that Russia had been parading heavy and medium jet bombers and a new all-weather fighter over Moscow.

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff, told the Senate Armed Services Committee last Feb. 24 that the Russians had two new jet bombers that represent a considerable technological gain for the Soviets.

Air Academy Designs Stir Mixed Views

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Architectural designs for the Air Force academy to be built in the shadow of Pikes Peak were unwrapped Saturday amid mixed reactions from congressmen flown out from Washington.

The architects said the buildings "through their great simplicity of design are timeless in their architecture."

But some of the score of senators and representatives tabbed the designs "heavenly," "radical" or "modern and futuristic."

One, Rep. Hardy (D-Va), told a reporter he heard someone say "the academy looks like a modernistic cigarette factory. I'm not saying that's my idea but let's call it unique."

Sen. Welker (R-Idaho) described the design to a newsman as "heavenly. I have nothing but thrills in my heart for the cadets who will enjoy this academy." He said he thought the design for the buildings to cost 58 million dollars should include "more western architecture—more good red, Colorado stone."

The models were unveiled at the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center by Secretary of Air Harold E. Talbott. Nearly 100 newsmen flown from throughout the country viewed the designs after the congressional preview.

The rolling pine-covered Rocky Mountain foothills where the academy will be built seven miles north of Colorado Springs were termed by the architects as "50 per cent of the design."

The buildings for the nation's third service academy will be constructed of combinations of aluminum, stainless steel, glass and marble, travertine and native granite.

Butler Raps 'Mishandling' of Vaccine

WASHINGTON (UP) — Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler charged Saturday the administration has "mishandled" the program for Salk polio vaccine. He was promptly assailed for "playing politics with a desperately serious situation."

Butler made his statement in a speech before a Democratic group in Cleveland. He coupled it with a general blast against the administration's health, welfare and other programs.

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N. J.) said Butler's speech was "disgraceful." Smith is the top Republican on the Senate labor and public welfare committee.

Butler said the administration has taken no effective action to assure a fair distribution of the vaccine. He charged that Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, secretary of health, education and welfare, had devised a "haphazard distribution of this new discovery" with doctors and drug manufacturers.

The political wrangle swirled around the program midst reports that Mrs. Hobby will soon leave the government, not because of her part in the vaccine program but because of her husband's health. He is 77 and has been ill for several years. The reports were discounted in some informed quarters.

Mrs. Hobby herself said she would have "no comment" on the resignation report.

German Vote Tests Strength of Adenauer

MAINZ, Germany (AP) — Pro-western Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and the opposition Socialists test their strength today in their first election battle since West Germany won sovereignty and joined the Atlantic alliance.

The state of Rhineland-Palatinate chooses a new parliament. The big issue is Adenauer's unswerving policy of armed alliance with the west.

He has called on this state's two million voters to endorse unqualified integration with the free world. The Socialists are plumping for a new look in Bonn's foreign policy — freedom from alliances with either east or west.

The election results could have a profound influence on rearmament. Adenauer needs to win in order to be sure of a two-thirds majority in the federal Bundesrat (upper house) for legislation approving conscription of the 500,000-man Wehrmacht he promised to his Atlantic allies.

Driver Injured

Michael D. Croll, 46, of 3435 Iroquois Ave., suffered a whiplash injury of the neck, Saturday, when his car was struck in the rear at American Ave. and Broadway by a truck driven by Robert W. Winquist, 42, of Whittier. Croll is at Seaside Hospital.

Probe Opens Monday on A-Sub Lag

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson disclosed Saturday an atomic energy subcommittee will investigate his charge that the Navy is "dragging its feet" on shifting to atomic-powered submarines.

The Washington Democrat said in an interview that he has called Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, to appear before atomic military applications subcommittee next Tuesday. Jackson is chairman of the subcommittee.

Carney will be asked to explain, Jackson said, why the Navy wants to continue building conventional submarines in view of the success of the atomic-powered Nautilus.

Jackson said the Navy's attitude toward atomic submarines "seems to be typical of the foot-dragging within the Navy over taking full advantage of atomic power."

Aside from the Nautilus, now undergoing extensive sea trials, the Navy has one other atomic submarine—the Sea Wolf—under construction. Two more atomic submarines were authorized in last year's defense budget, and three more are requested in the new defense budget. In addition, the Navy is requesting money to build five conventional submarines.

Seek Nature's Own Cancer Foe

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP) — Within the body is an unknown force to resist cancer, and it must be harnessed, a New York surgeon told leaders in his field Saturday.

If science can find this "defensive mechanism set within our body to destroy cancer cells," great strides will be made toward curing the disease, said Dr. Alfred A. Strauss, senior attending surgeon at Mt. Reese and Mt. Sinai Hospitals in New York.

He was one of the speakers at the all-day conference of the International College of Surgeons at Jersey City.

Sheriff Calls for Help as Women Riot

FAYETTEVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Lincoln County Sheriff Eugene S. Barnes Saturday night called for help to quell 25 rioting women strikers he had arrested earlier. The uprising subsided later when the women accepted $500 bonds posted by their husbands.

"They are about to tear our jail down," Barnes said. He reported he was unable to contact the governor, and highway patrolmen in the area refused to act without orders. He said a crowd had gathered outside the jail.

The women, who at first refused offers of bond from their husbands, had been picketing the strikebound Serbin garment factory. They were charged with violation of an injunction which prohibits unrestricted picketing within a 1,000-foot radius of the Serbin plant.

The strike began April 19. Owner Lou Serbin earlier threatened to cease operation here until labor peace is restored.

Barnes said the women went to jail voluntarily and first milled around the "bullpen" eating sandwiches provided by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union. Later, he said, they became unruly and smashed windows and soft drink bottles.

Judge Refuses to Vacate Sentences of Finn Twins

SAN FRANCISCO (U.P.) — Federal District Judge Edward P. Murphy today refused a motion to vacate the sentences of the flying Finn twins and declared bluntly he had no intention of "falling prey to the idiocy of the moment" and give in to public clamor.

The twins, George and Charles Finn, currently are on a hunger strike in the Federal Medical Center at Springfield, Mo., as a protest against the one-year sentence imposed by Murphy for handcuffing a U. S. attorney.

In their petition, submitted by mail to Judge Murphy, the brothers asked that their sentence be set aside because their offense was "no more than a technicality at most."

The judge, in brushing aside the motion, said the Finns were guilty "beyond any question of a doubt."

"Their trial was eminenetly fair," he said.

Murphy added he had no intention of modifying the sentence, pointing out that their sentence was already a lenient one in view of the fact their offense made them liable for a maximum of nine years and a $10,000 fine.

The twins case was brought to President Eisenhower's attention Saturday.

Rep. James Roosevelt (D-Calif) urged Mr. Eisenhower to exercise executive clemency. He said he was joining Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif) in the request.

British Deny Yank Skater Work Permit

LONDON (U.P.) — The British government has refused American ice skater Patricia Firth a work permit to appear in a forthcoming ice show here.

A spokesman for show promoter Claude Langdon said the Ministry of Labor's ruling has been sent "regretfully" to Miss Firth at her home in Seattle, Wash.

Labor Ministry officials could not be reached for comment.

The decision, however, appeared to be in line with the policy that work permits can be granted to foreigners only when comparable British talent is not available.

Miss Firth was to have appeared in the ice show, "Wildfire," scheduled to open June 16 at London's Empress Hall. The producers said they would find a replacement.

Honor Hero in Air Tragedy

A collection of special stamps, issued by Nicaragua in honor of Capt, Dean L. Ray, was presented to his widow, Mrs. Carmen Isabelle Ray of Sun Valley, Saturday afternoon at the Long Beach Air Force Base.

Capt. Ray was honored by the special stamp issue bearing his picture after he sacrificed his life by staying with his plane rather than bail out and allow it to crash into a heavily populated area of Managua, Nicaragua.

In addition to the stamp collection, Mrs. Ray received a personal letter from Anastacio Somoza, president of the Central American republic, praising her husband for his heroic act.

Capt. Ray was one of a group of Air Force pilots on a good will tour of the Latin America when his plane developed engine trouble over the capital city. He managed to maneuver it away from the populated area of the city and crashed into an open area.

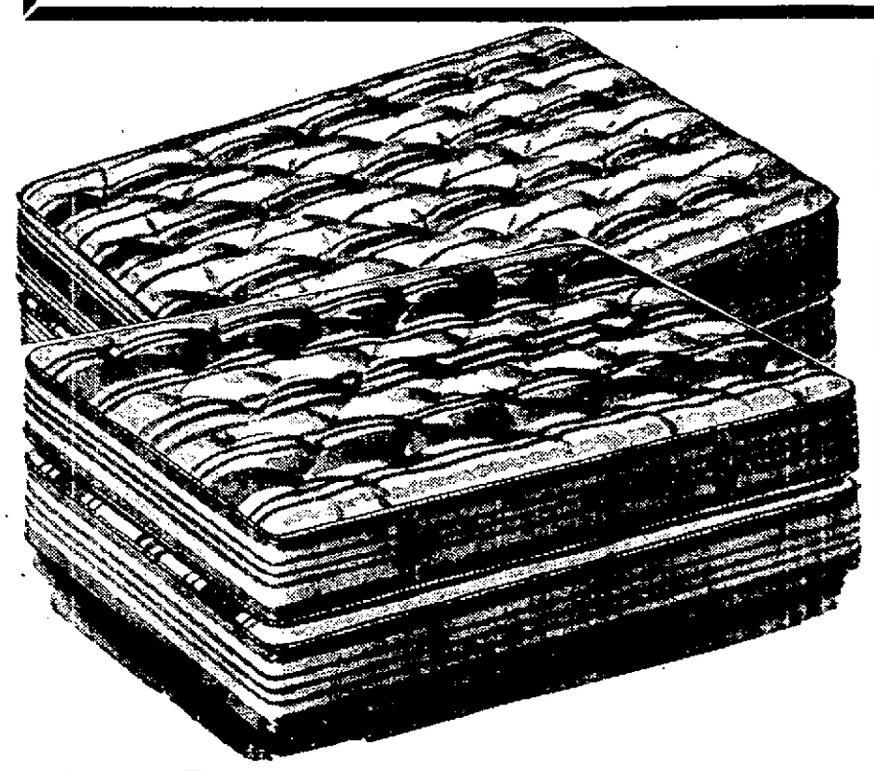

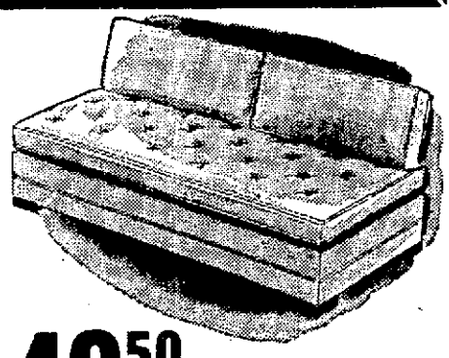

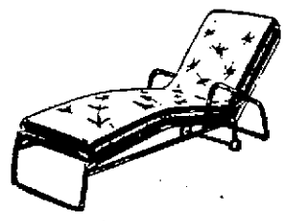

The presentation was made to Mrs. Ray in the office of Col. Thomas L. Wiper, base commander, by Roberto Membreno, consulat general of Nicaragua and Ronald Molieri, vice consul of Los Angeles.

Part of West Hit by Dust, Snow Storms

By Associated Press

Snow and dust storms buffeted parts of the West Saturday while sunshine warmed the upper Great Lakes area and the Mississippi Valley.

South central Idaho was in the throes of an unseasonable cold snap which was expected to last through Sunday. Snow was reported in many Idaho communities, but continued winds prevented frosts. The temperature dipped to 30 at Twin Falls Friday night, while Gooding, Idaho, reported .44 inches of rain.

In Utah, wind-whipped dust from the Great Salt Lake Basin churned as high as 20,000 feet in the air, according to commercial plane pilots. Salt Lake City was shrouded in dust. Visibility at the Salt Lake airport was down to one mile Saturday.

At Elko, Nev., there was two inches of snow on the ground at noon, snow was still falling and the temperature was 32. Just ahead of the cool air across central Utah and western Colorado strong southerly winds blew. At Milford, Utah, gusts exceeded 70 mph.

The plai is states were partly cloudy and warm Saturday, except in the extreme North where somewhat cooler temperatures and scattered showers moved into North Dakota. Temperatures from Texas to the Carolina border mostly were in the 70s and 80s, but South Dallas, Tex., reported 91 at noon Saturday.

BOIN-N-N-G!

Tuned up for the Long Beach Unified District elementary school festival Tuesday at 7:45 p.m. in Municipal Auditorium is Ronnie Herlacher, 9, a Buffum School fourth grader. Nearly 600 instrumentalists and 649 glee club members will participate in the concert. The all-city school orchestra and a dance group from Gant School will perform.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Fiery Hay Tossed Off Onto Street

PARAMOUNT—Ten tons of burning hay were strewn along six blocks of Paramount Blvd. early Saturday after someone apparently threw a cigaret onto a hay truck.

The truck driver, Ken Carpenter, 36, of 8836 Vans Ave., told sheriff's deputies he had parked the truck to have coffee when a man ran up and told him his truck was on fire.

Enlisting the aid of two passersby, Carpenter drove the truck for six blocks while the men threw the hay into the street. Firemen soaked it with hoses. Carpenter said the hay was too wet to have ignited by spontaneous combustion. He assumed someone threw a cigaret into it.

Victim Critical

The condition of Ray Van Woert, who was shot in a gun duel over a divorcee's affections, still was listed as critical at Harbor General Hospital Saturday night.

The 29-year-old sailor was wounded Friday when he exchanged shots with Eddie V. Leon, 31, of Lawndale at the home of Mrs. Edith Cool in Lawndale.

Killed by Pipe

SAN PEDRO—Patrick Nieto, 43, a Compton longshoreman was killed early Saturday when he was struck by a piece of pipe in the hold of the SS Weyerhauser on Terminal Island.

Nieto died in Seaside Hospital about an hour after a 1,464-pound piece of pipe fell on him after he was pinned between two other pieces.

Sailor Seriously Beaten by Pair

A 20-year-old sailor was in serious condition at Corona Naval Hospital after he and a companion were beaten early Saturday by two men as they got into a car near Magnolia Ave. and Seaside Blvd.

Doctors said plastic surgery may be required for Joe E. Virgil who had pieces of teeth imbedded in his jawbone. His companion, Johnny Barajos, 19, suffered bruises. Both are of the U.S. St. Paul.

Two Fullerton men, Joe V. Luna, 24, of 413 E. Truslow, and Luis N. Lopex, 20, of 204½ E. Truslow St., were arrested by police on charges of assault with a deadly weapon. The sailors said the attack was unprovoked.

LOVE IS....

30-Year-Old Blind Couple Wed Today

VENICE, Calif. (AP)—A blind couple who met on a bus ride to an opera performance will be married today.

Mrs. Jane E. Agele and Kenneth E. Bruce, 30-year-old Venice residents, will exchange vows at Oneonta Congregational Church in South Pasadena.

They met on the bus ride from the Braille Institute in Los Angeles to Glendale six weeks ago. Mrs. Agele, who has two children by a former marriage, told a reporter:

"We were out on the Ocean Park pier for a walk with our guide-dogs when he proposed. He is the best one-armed dog driver I ever saw. He had one arm around me and the other on the leash."

Bruce's German shepherd, Andy, and Mrs. Agele's collie, Winnie, led them last Monday to the marriage license bureau in nearby Santa Monica.

EASY CO. LEARNS MARKSMANSHIP

'Maggie's Drawers' Stop Waving

(This is one of a series of articles on the basic training of the Long Beach Platoon at Fort Ord.)

By PFC DON BURNS

FORD ORD — Control tower instructions came tersely over the Public Address system:

"Ready on the right . . . ready on the left . . . ready on the firing line. The flag is up . . . the flag is waving . . . the flag is down. You have five seconds. commence firing!"

Wham! The air was shattered by the whining clatter of 150 M-1 rifles as Easy Company and the Long Beach Platoon of the 20th Infantry Regiment began the most important phase of basic Infantry training.

It was a hard week for Easy's soldiers. Every day was spent on the range, first firing for familiarization, then for official record. It was out of the sack at 4 a. m. each morning. When the breaking dawn lighted the range sufficiently to see the targets, the firing began.

Fort Ord's K. D. (known distance) range is the largest of the 18 ranges which run for more than five miles along the beach parallel to Hwy. 1. Firing lines are placed at 100, 200, 300, 400 and 500 yards from the targets. Targets are run up on pulleys from concrete pits. Behind the pits is a high sand dune to stop the slugs.

Firing in two-man teams, the trainees fire in prone, sitting, kneeling and offhand positions, first in slow fire, then rapid fire

"Squeeze that trigger, don't jerk it!" cried the instructors a thousand times. "Like a lemon, like a lemon, squeeze!"

Officers and noncoms of the 6th Infantry Division Faculty Rifle Committee ran up and down the lines relaying messages telephoned from the pit and helping the trainees with their positions and firing techniques. The committeemen were exacting but their lessons were personalized.

"These instructors do more than just help us into good firing positions," explained Pvt. Bobbie E. Thomas, 21, husband of Mrs. Phyllis Jean Thomas. 4414 Long Beach Blvd. "They know we are nervous and uneasy. They do a lot to help calm us down so we can fire and hit the target."

The red flag—"Maggie's Drawers"—waved for many men firing their first rounds of live 30-caliber ammunition. The red flag waves when a target is missed completely.

However, it didn't take long for the Long Beach soldiers to settle down with the M-1 rifle. By week's end the red flag was hardly seen on the range. In its place was the big cartwheel, signaling a bull's-eye.

Dinner was a new Army experience for Easy Co. soldiers. They ate at the field kitchen behind the range. The men who served them their meals were also students of the Sixth Army Food School.

Taking their trays through the outdoor serving line, the trainees picked out spots on the ground and sat Indian-fashion. "We had a real floor show each time we ate out there," Pvt. Robert D. McLean, 17, son of Mrs. E. L. McLean, 3940 Jay St., said. "We watched beautiful civilian cars drive down Hwy. 1."

The Long Beach men pumped lead from dawn to dusk and there wasn't much chance for recreation later. There was a cleaning chore waiting. Steel brush, bore cleaner, oil, linseed for the stock, then lay that M-1 in the rack with careful hands.

'READY ON THE RIGHT . . .'

Galveston Mayor May Back Down on 'Reform' Plan

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—There were indications Saturday that Mayor-elect George Roy Clough may have backed down on his announced plan to re-establish Galveston's red light district.

He announced he would have no more public statements until he takes office next Tuesday. Last Tuesday he announced he would order all prostitutes confined to the district which was abolished about two years ago.

Opposition came from the district attorney, Marsene Johnson; the police and fire commissioner, Walter L. Johnston, and the Galveston Ministerial Assn.

New Larceny Ring Uncovered

NEW YORK (AP) — Authorities in Queens are investigating a new kind of larceny operation—a ring of baptism certificate thieves.

The disclose came with the arrest of 16-year-old Charles Milori, who was found to possess a driver"s license listing his age as 18—the age required to obtain a license without the consent of parents.

An assistant district attorney, who questioned Milori, quoted the lad as saying:

"All the kids in Queens do it. There's a gang that steals baptism certificates. You buy one from the guy and fill it in and take it down to the motor vehicle bureau."

Tests to Determine Merits of Courses

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UP)—Some 2,000 University of Iowa students will be tested Monday in a study of the merits of broad, general courses compared with specialized studies.

Dean Dewey B. Stuit of the college of liberal arts and sciences said the tests will help determine which kind of courses provide the more adequate background.

Bare Plans for Biggest Atom Power Plant

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (UP)—An atomic specialist said Saturday that a newly designed atomic power reactor would be "a major advance toward the economic generation of electricity from atomic energy."

Francis K. McCune, vice president and general manager of General Electric Co.'s atomic products division, said that one of these new dual-cycle boiling reactors will power the proposed full-scale nuclear electric generating station GE will build for the Commonwealth Edison Co.

The Commonwealth plant, subject to Atomic Energy Commission approval, will be built near Chicago. Plans for the plant set the generating capacity at 180,000 kilowatts—"the largest all-nuclear station yet scheduled," McCune said.

The new GE power reactor design will be able to produce several times as much power in a given size as its predecessor, the direct boiling reactor, the GE official disclosed.

McCune described the GE reactor as capable of being used without heat exchangers by generating steam directly inside the reactor core, thus eliminating the need for high operating pressures and temperatures used in liquid water cooled power reactors.

Mental Patients Write, Act TV Show

WASHINGTON (UP) — Scenes from a historical drama written, staged and acted by mental patients will be seen by the public for the first time tonight over the NBC television network.

The play, "Cry of Humanity," was put together by patients at Saint Elizabeth's Hospital here and is the first performance of its kind on TV. The program begins at 10 p.m. (Eastern Daylight Time).

The play was received so enthusiastically recently by a select hospital theater audience of 1200 persons that Dr. Winfred Overholser, hospital superintendent, decided it would be opened to the public.

"I am sure that it will lead to a much better understanding of the problems of mental illness in America," Dr. Overholser said. "Its therapeutic value to the patients who developed it and who are playing in it is beyond question. It has given many of them a new sense of purpose and hope."

The play will be presented as the feature of the March of Medicine program sponsored by the American Medical Association and the Smith, Kline and French Laboratories. The patients consented to appear after permission was granted by their relatives, guardians or physicians.

"Cry of Humanity" is based on the life and times of Dorothea Lynde Dix who was responsible for the establishment of Saint Elizabeth's and other mental hospitals. It is a story of the problems of the mentally ill from early times to the present.

The play was presented last week at an anniversary meeting of internationally known psychiatrists and other mental health authorities at Hitchcock Hall, and Dr. Overholser said "it brought down the house."

Dr. Gregory Zilboorg, professor of clinical psychiatry at New York State University college of medicine, described the performance as "the resuscitation of a spiritual drive all too rare today."

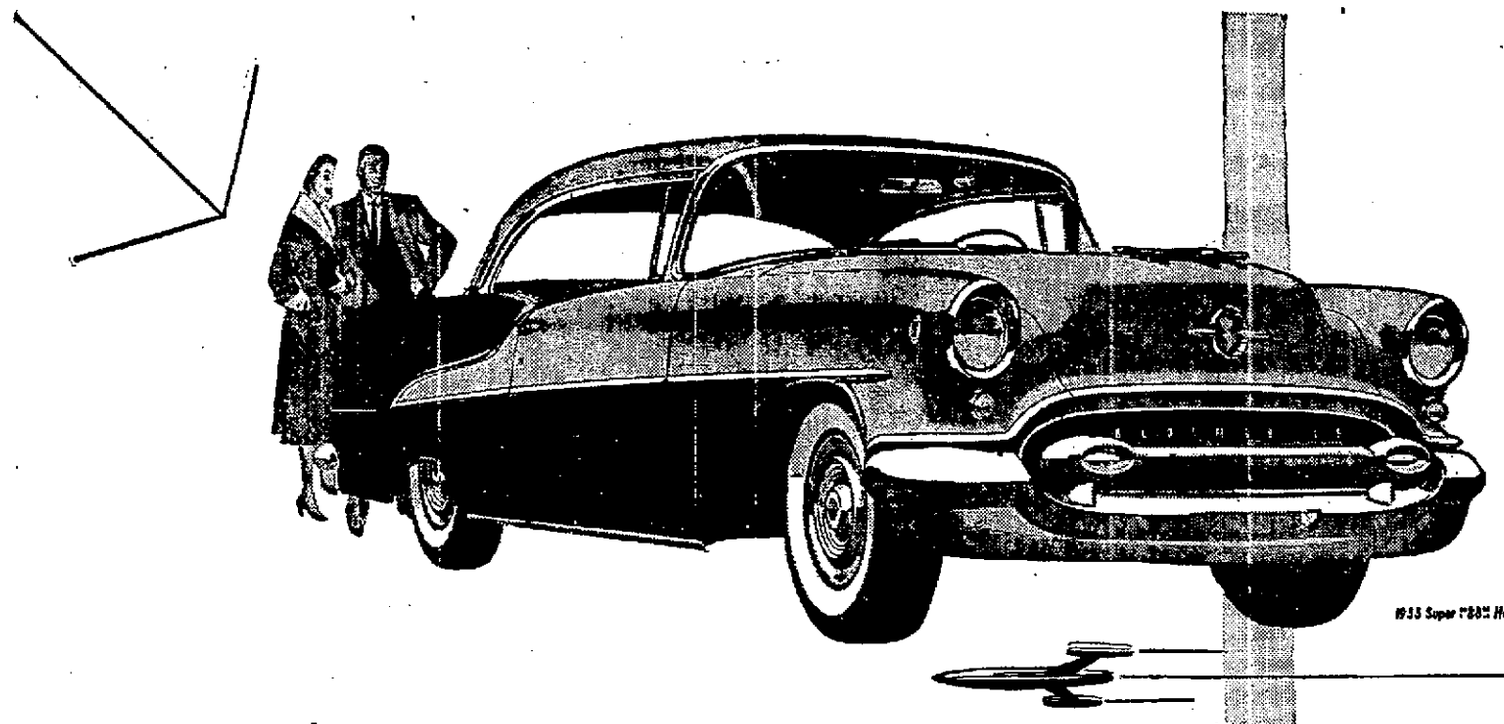

Dr. Overholser said many of the performers voiced belief that presentation of the play on TV would benefit the mentally disturbed wherever it is shown.

POETS GET TOGETHER

300 Poets, Poetesses Hold Conclave Here

Three hundred poets, men and women, this week end are attending the 16th annual convention of the California Federation of Chaparral Poets in the Lafayette Hotel.

Official hostess is Lyra LuVaile, president of LuVailian Chapter of Long Beach, author of a new book of verse, "Rhythm and Euphony."

Edythe Hope Genee of Hollywood, state president, is presiding.

Dr. Kenneth Oliver, chairman of the English department of Occidental College, Saturday afternoon addressed the group on "Peace of Soul Through Poetry."

"Man, with much too barren interests, seeks for values beyond his grasp," said Dr. Oliver, "Failing to grasp some of them, he decides they are ungraspable. He accepts things as they are, and finds that they are good after all. That is akin to the peace of soul through poetry."

Dr. Louis Mertins of Redlands, former Long Beach resident, addressed the convention last night on "Why Poetry?"

A verse play, "The Nature Poets," compiled from excerpts of 43 poems appearing in the American Bard Magazine, was presented by a group of verse writers.

How to write salable poems was discussed in a morning panel session.

Today the Chaparral Poets will have a boat trip through the harbor and lunch at Knott's Berry Farm.

Red 'NATO' Puts Satellite Armies Under Russ General

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Soviet Union and seven east European Communist states set up a unified military command Saturday to counter the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Soviet Marshal Ivan Konev was made supreme commander, with headquarters in Moscow.

The eight allies signed a 20-year mutual security and friendship treaty and a protocol grouping their military forces under a single command. Konev, the deputy Soviet defense minister, has been a Communist party member for 37 years.

The treaty ceremonies took place in a white and marble hall of Poland's parliament building. Premiers of the eight nations — the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania, Albania and East Germany—signed the documents.

Later, nearly 100,000 cheering resident of Warsaw jammed into Tzierdzinsky Square and heard top Communist leaders hail the new treaty as "a move for world peace."

Premier Nikolai Bulganin of the Soviet Union declared the Paris accords rearming West Germany sponsored "a new and dangerous militarism."

"We want peace," he cried, "but we will defend our countries by all means."

The loudest cheers and applause came when Bulganin told the crowd of Konev's appointment as supreme commander. He reminded the crowd that it was Konev who led the armies which liberated much of Poland from the Nazis.

(Western diplomats believe the Russians have been in over-all command of their satellites' armed forces for some time and that today's Warsaw action does not change the existing situation.

(But the pact gives Russians a legal framework under which Soviet troops can remain in the satellite nations through individual treaties between the Soviet Union and each country).

Tito Bid Said Russian Move in Cold War

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland Saturday viewed Russia's "peace mission" to Yugoslavia as a move to strengthen Russia's bargaining hand in Big Four talks.

Chairman Walter F. George (D-Ga.) of the Senate foreign relations committee, said he thought the move was primarily part of Russia's "intense efforts" to persuade newly-free West Germany not to rearm and to remain neutral.

In separate talks with newsmen, both agreed that one purpose of the scheduled "peace mission" is to get assurances from Tito that he will remain neutral in the east-west cold war.

"We can't lose sight of the fact," Knowland said, "that if the Soviets come to what they feel are satisfactory agreements with Austria and Yugoslavia, they will free some of their divisions to use some other place."

He said this would confront the Western allies with "greater force on a narrower front" and put Russia in a stronger bargaining position at Big Four conferences.

George warned that the United States may have to "re-evaluate" its aid program to Communist Yugoslavia if Marshal Tito resumes more friendly relations with Moscow.

"I don't think he'll change," George added. "Tito has never been much more than a neutral."

The Californian and the Georgian were commenting on the Moscow announcement that Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai A. Bulganin and Communist Party Secretary Nikita S. Khruschev will head a "peace mission" to Yugoslavia late this month.

"I doubt that the Communists would send such a high level delegation unless they had a reasonable belief that they were going to come out of it with an agreement satisfactory to the Soviet Union," Knowland said.

Salk's Findings Seen as Just Beginning

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (U.P.)—Vice-Admiral Ross T. McIntyre, former personal physician to President Roosevelt, predicted Saturday that discovery of the Salk polio vaccine will pave the way for elimination of influenza, liver disorders and even some "massive killers."

Speaking at the opening of the International College of Surgeons conference at the medical center here, McIntyre warned that "all people will have to use some tolerance" with the vaccine program until 100 per cent immunization is possible.

Segregation Quietly Ends in 500 Schools

NEW YORK (UP)—Segregation has been abolished peacefully in 500 schools across the country, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People reported Saturday.

Nearly 250,000 Negro and white children are attending classes together in schools that formerly were segregated, the NAAC said.

School desegregation has been initiated in the District of Columbia and Baltimore, in 2 towns in Arkansas, 29 counties in West Virginia, 30 communities in Missouri, 5 towns in Delaware, 6 cities in Kansas and scattered communities in Arizona and New Mexico, the organization found.

The NAACP survey was released to mark the first anniversary of the Supreme Court ruling outlawing segregation in public schools. The ruling was made last May 17.

The 250,000 children attending desegregated schools are only a minority of the 9,821,000 white and 2,397,000 Negro children enrolled in schools in segregated areas, the NAACP said. But it pointed out that the desegregation has been voluntary, because the Supreme Court decision found segregation unconstitutional but did not direct any school system to desegregate immediately.

Included in the 500 desegregated schools, the association said, are those located in four of the six communities involved in cases ruled on by the Supreme Court.

"Following the decision, Washington, D. C., initiated desegregation," the report said. "Earlier the Topeka, Kans., school board voted to 'terminate segregation in the elementary schools as rapidly as practicable.' The two school districts in the Delaware case already had admitted Negro pupils in compliance with a state Supreme Court ruling. Only Clarendon County, S. C., and Prince Edward County, Va., have refused to heed the court's decision."

The report said there had been some demonstrations of resistance that have been widely publicized — in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Milford, Del., Baltimore and Washington.

"However, for every Milford incident, there have been scores of unheralded instances of Negro children being welcomed by their new white schoolmates and teachers," the NAACP said.

"Indeed, this has been the rule; the hate demonstrations, the exception."

The survey found that parochial schools, while not subject to the court ruling, have not only complied with it but in some cases have anticipated it. This was particularly so in Catholic schools in Washington and St. Louis, the report said.

Also, in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Virginia and North Carolina, Catholic schools and occasionally Protestant schools "opened their doors to students without regard to race or color."

Indians in the southwestern states have benefited from the ruling too, the NAACP said. Indian children are now attending public schools in New Mexico whereas they previously had been confined to reservations.

AEC ORDER MEETS MILD OPPOSITION

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — In December, 1953, a town council resolution asking the end of school segregation in this federal atomic community nearly caused the ouster of the council chairman. About 70 percent of the population have grown up in the South.

Now, 16 months later, an Atomic Energy Commission order that segregation actually be ended in junior and senior high schools after the current school year has met what appears at most only mild opposition.

There is some opposition. C. A. Golden, for example, has talked of petitioning the AEC to the effect that parents won't send their children to school attended by Negroes. Golden is a P-T Association official in a school which would not be affected by the order.

And at least two Negro families have said they would move away rather than send their children to integrated schools.

At Scarboro School, Mrs. Arizona Officer—the Negro principal—expressed general optimism.

"A couple of Negro families told me they thought they would move away from Oak Ridge rather than send their children to an integrated school," she said. "But for the most part, I think the students and their parents are looking forward to it."

Warn Whites About Native Ire in Saigon

SAIGON, Indochina (UP) — French troops sealed off Saigon's European sector Saturday and warned all its residents to stay indoors during anti-colonial demonstrations called for today by South Viet Nam's revolutionary junta.

Gen. Paul Ely, commander of the French expeditionary corps, ordered his 40,000 battle-tested troops to smash any attempt at anti-European violence during the demonstration. The French force will be backed by 400 tanks and armored cars.

Blaring sound trucks circulated through Saigon and the suburb of Cholon calling on the capital's 2,000 residents to converge on the market place at 9 a. m.

The sound trucks bore insignia showing they had been provided under U. S. aid funds.

Singapore Paper Blames Police in Death of UP Writer

SINGAPORE (UP)—A government report said Saturday that police at a nearby roadblock and in a passing patrol car had other emergency duties and were unable to aid United Press Correspondent Gene Symonds when he was fatally beaten by rioters Thursday.

The Chinese-owned Singapore Standard said that Symonds, UP manager for southeast Asia, met his death because Singapore police were "ordered to take kid-glove methods to deal with a bloodthirsty mob."

Armed British hussars, Royal Air Force patrolmen and Gurkha troops patrolled the city of Singapore Saturday to prevent further riots by strikers and Chinese students. The rioters have caused the deaths of four persons, including Symonds, since Thursday.

The government statement said that Symonds passed through two roadblocks on the way to a riot scene Thursday night and told police he would take "full responsibility."

The nearest roadblock to the scene of the attack on Symonds was about 330 yards, the government statement said. Police on the roadblock were ordered to maintain the position and could not leave their posts. A radio car passed Symonds after the attack on its way to another riot and called urgently for an ambulance.

However, Symonds was picked up by a police van and taken to the hospital before the ambulance arrived. The newsman died Friday morning of multiple injuries, including a fractured skull and a broken left arm and leg. The mob beat him with clubs, bottles and stones, eyewitnesses told police.

Officials of the Hock Lee bus service and the bus line workers union announced Saturday night they had reached an agreement ending the strike which started the riots.

The official statement on Symonds' death said that the newsman left the American Club shortly after 11 p.m. Thursday and went in a taxi to his apartment to pick up a camera.

Then he proceeded by taxi through two roadblocks to the scene of the riot. Shortly after leaving the police roadblock Symonds gave the taxi driver his business card and told him if anything happened to go to police.

He stopped the taxi and walked toward a large band of shouting, gesticulating rioters. When he was only a short distance from the rioters Symonds turned and ran back toward the cab, but was attacked before he could reach the vehicle.

The rioters broke the taxi's windshield and attacked the driver, who escaped to report the attack to police at the roadblock.

The Singapore Standard blamed the newly elected Singapore government for indecisiveness in handling the mobs.

"Gene Symonds was at the scene to do his job as a newspaperman and he died in the line of duty," the newspaper said. "Neither he nor Constable Teo (one of two police officers killed) would have died if the police had not been ordered to take kid-glove methods to deal with a bloodthirsty mob."

Salesmen Selling 'Short'—on Shrubs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Residents of suburban Bethesda and Silver Spring, Md., are complaining to police about a door-to-door salesman who has been selling them trees and shrubbery without roots. One red maple was found to be a neatly sawed-off tree stuck in a tin can.

A-Expert Offers Aid to Japanese

TOKYO (UP)—One of America's top atomic experts today offered to share peacetime use of atomic energy with Japanese industrialists and scientists.

John Jay Hopkins, president of the company that built the first atomic submarine, told the Japan Atoms-for-Peace Council that atomic energy can bring peace and prosperity to the Japanese people, "such as they never had before."

Hopkins and two of America's foremost nuclear scientists arrived Tuesday on an unprecedented mission to help Japan's atomic energy research program.

Latest Thing in Aircraft is a 'Barrel'

WASHINGTON (AP)—An aviation magazine Saturday described a strange Franco-German "flying barrel" said to be capable of "speed-of-sound vertical takeoff" and cruising at twice the speed of sound.

Aero Digest said the so-called circular-wing aircraft is "the biggest jolt since jets to modern aerodynamics."

It said the flying barrel has been wind-tunnel tested, but so far as is known has not yet actually been flown. It added that the craft has potential value as a transport and "immediate significance" as a fighter plane.

Aero Digest described the flying barrel in these terms:

The machine, known as a coleopter, resembles a barrel open at both ends. It stands on end for vertical takeoff like a rocket, then gradually arcs over to fly horizontally.

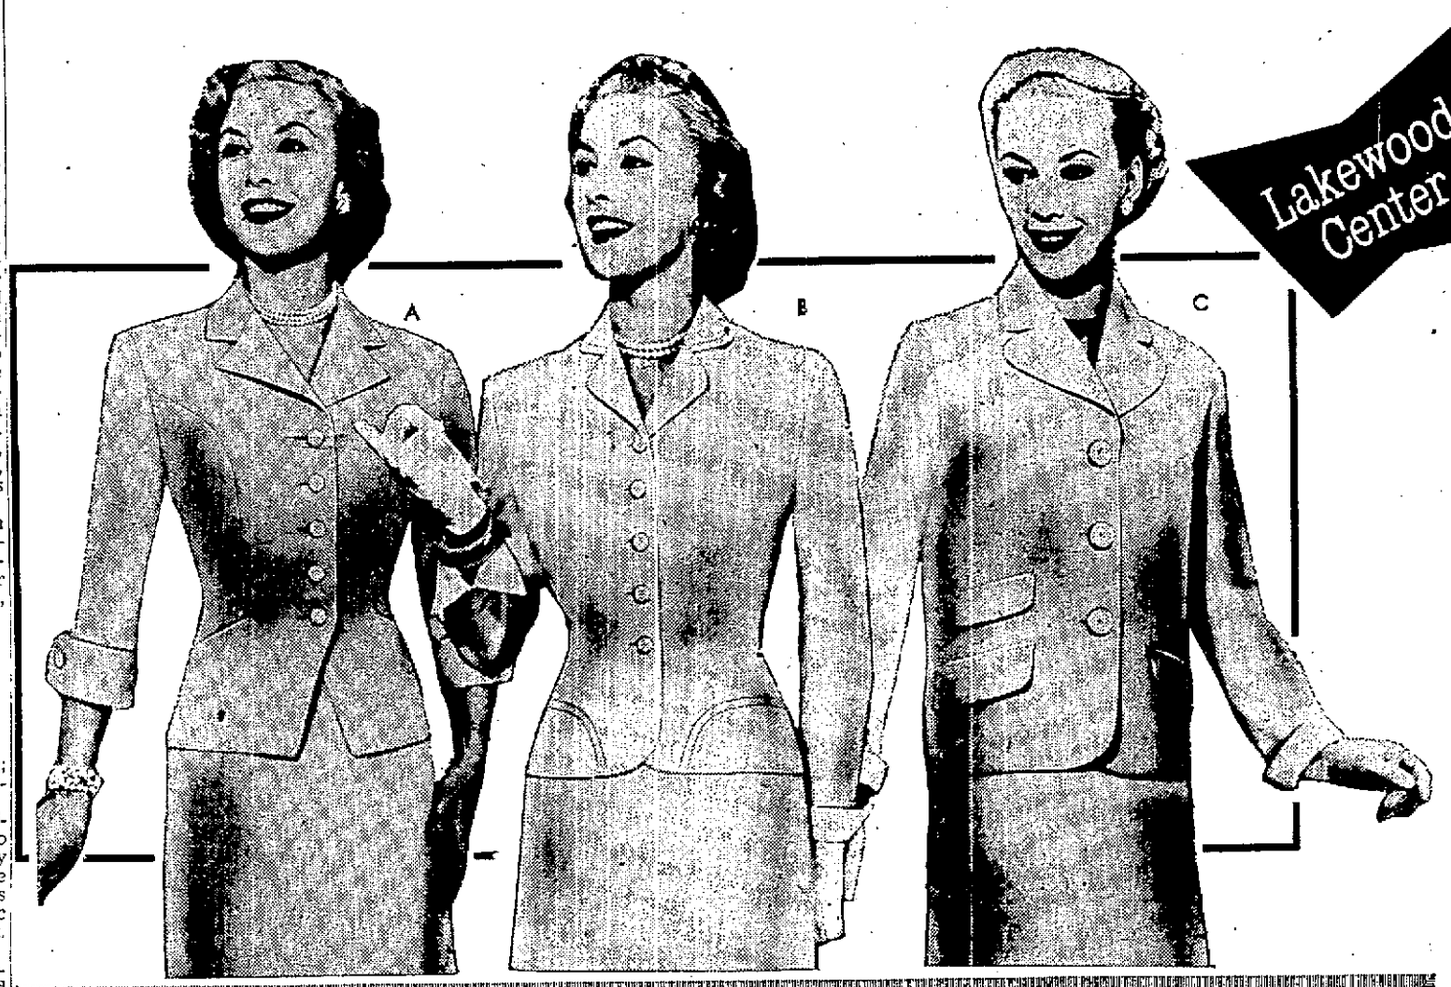

The pilot's compartment and power plant are inside the barrel or runnel of the coleopter.

Ace Student Held Without Bond in Killing

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Richard Kluckhohn, 21, brilliant student and son of Harvard University teachers, was held without bond Sunday on a charge of murder. The young gun fancier was accused of firing a pistol through his downtown hotel room window and killing a woman waiting for her automobile in a parking lot Friday.

Kluckhohn, who was graduated from the University of Chicago with a degree in anthropology at the age of 18 and had been doing graduate work there, will say it was "entirely an accident" when he is given a hearing early next week, the office of his lawyer said here. A policeman also quoted him as saying a pistol discharged accidentally as he was toying with it in his hotel room.

His father, Clyde M. M. Kluckhohn, anthropologist and director of the Russian Research Center at Harvard, was in California, but intends to return east at once, a friend of the family said in Boston. His mother, Dr. Florence Rockwood Kluckhohn, a lecturer in sociology at Harvard, planned to come here.

The bizarre Friday-the-13th slaying interrupted plans of young Kluckhohn for a June wedding with a classmate.

The victim—a woman he didn't know—was Miss Bernice Seawell, 43, of Arlington, Va.

Patrolman G. R. Creel of Chapel Hill, who arrested Kluckhohn at the request of Raleigh police, quoted him as saying a pistol discharged accidentally as he was toying with it in his hotel room.

Police said, however, that when Kluckhohn was returned here, he would say nothing.

EACH GLOBEMASTER A MIRACLE

Douglas Workers Long Will Remember C-124

Officials at Douglas Aircraft Co.'s Long Beach Division announced last week that the plant had delivered its last C124 Globemaster and would begin immediate production of a newer, greater transport—the C133.

But for thousands of Douglas workers, who felt a deep, personal pride each time one of the huge, lumbering monsters lifted off the runway in its maiden flight, the Globemaster won't easily be forgotten.

The largest transport in military service, the Globemaster presented production problems that at times seemed insurmountable.

To many workers, who saw the ships' component parts—wings, tail, fuselage, engines—merge together and finally take to the air like an office building on wings, each of the 445 Globemasters built here constituted a separate miracle.

STARS IN MOVIES

The big plane was one of the stars in the motion pictures "Strategic Air Command" and "Jump into Hell." It was a favorite of the public and no air show was complete without the metal monster on display.

Douglas people recall many incidents—some tragic, others humorous — in connection with the Globemasters.

Like the time a ship was moved out to be placed over wing ramps and its landing gear collapsed on one side, sending a huge wing crashing down.

There was much excitement, but little damage.

On another occasion, 12 workers were stationed inside a ship's nose to provide ballast to keep the engineless plane level.

When the noon whistle blew, the workers unthinkingly rushed out of the plane to go to lunch. Too late, they turned and watched helplessly as the ship's nose rose majestically in the air and the tail smashed down on the work stands.

The ships even proved attractive to birds, who settled happily down in nests built in the trailing edges of the wings of planes stored on the field.

CREATED TALL TALES

They were big planes and they created some tall tales in the making.

Chuck Milner, Department 288, remembers the time he crawled inside a wing tank.

"The wing was set on edge," he said. "And then I forgot how to get out. I had to send a message to the outside world by carrier mouse."

And Bob Cadnum, Department 507, recalls:

"How about those indoor rainstorms we caused every time we functioned the windshield wipers."

Think that's windy? Just a breeze compared with what Frank Saylors, Department 586, figures.

"We've hung over 1,788 propellers," he said, "and if the planes were lined up and all the props started, they would create enough wind to blow Long Beach right off the map with hurricane velocity."

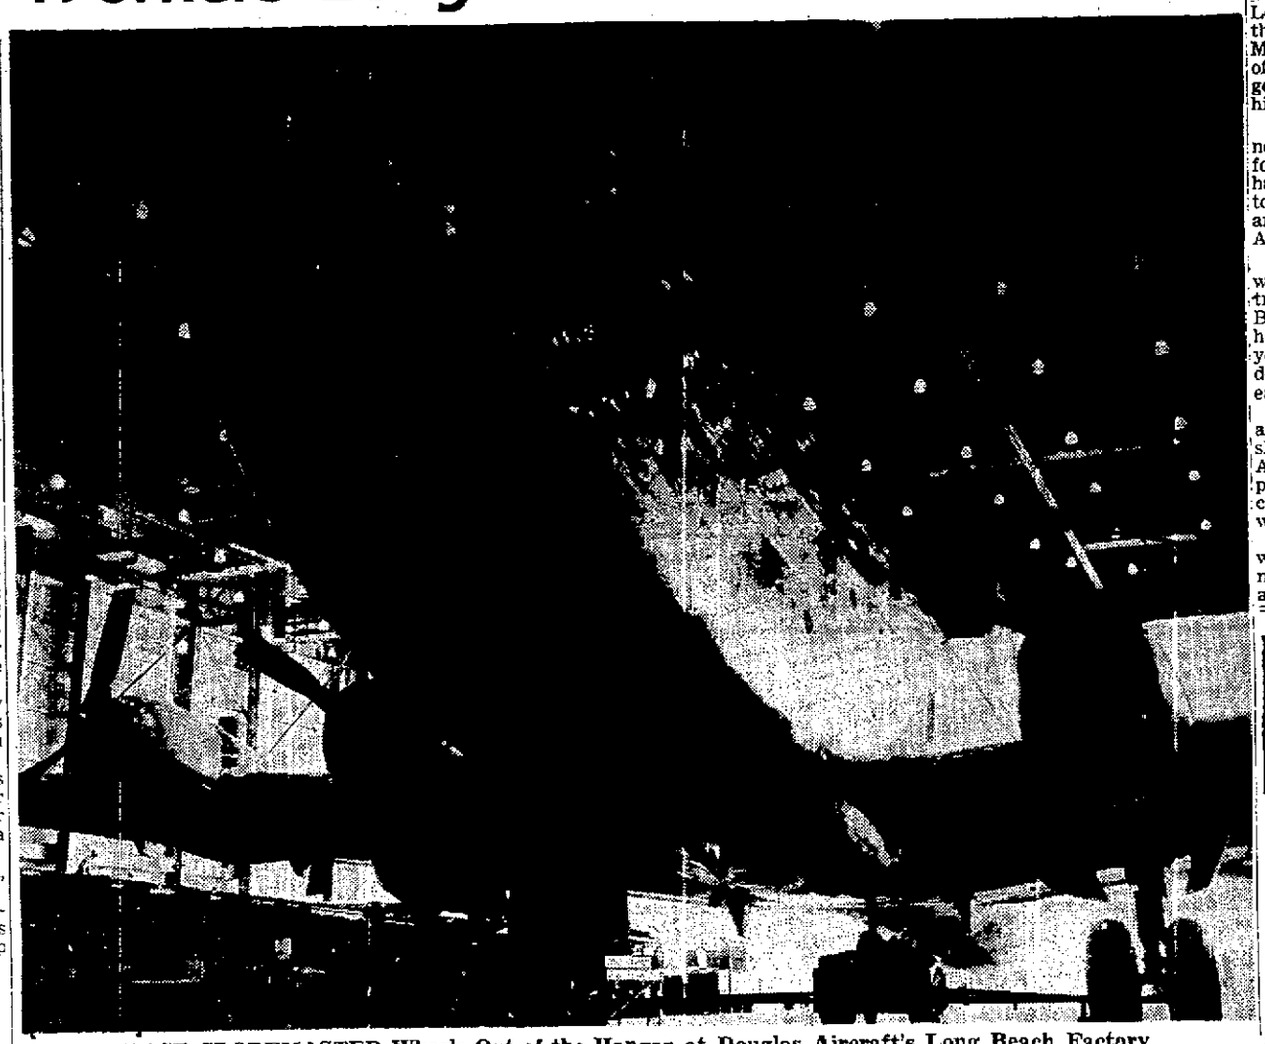

Statistics of the Globemaster indicate its impressive size.

The ship has a gross weight of 185,000 pounds and can carry a payload of 55,000 pounds. This can include 200 fully equipped troops or the equivalent in general cargo or military vehicles, which enter easily on ramps through big doors in the plane's nose.

Each C124 contains more than 156,000 feet of wiring.

Most of the details on the Globemaster's successor, the C133, cannot be told.

It will be, however, even bigger. Loading will be from the rear and the wing will be placed over the fuselage. The landing gear will descend from special streamlined pods placed alongside the fuselage to allow full use of the ship's interior for cargo purposes.

McCarthy Attacks Ike Again

APPLETON, Wis. (U.P.)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) Saturday night said that President Eisenhower has done nothing to free American servicemen held by Chinese Communists "except trying to soft-soap a Communist thug . . . General Zhukov, his Moscow 'pen-pal.'"

The Wisconsin Republican, in a speech prepared for his hometown post of the Catholic War Veterans, said "our government lacks the moral qualities of honesty and courage." He said American history does not contain "a more shameful episode than the refusal of the current administration to secure the freedom of our Korean prisoners of war."

McCarthy said the administration has attempted to create two false impressions—that only 11 or perhaps 15 American servicemen are held by the Chinese Reds, and that it first learned of this last November when Communist China announced it would try U. S. airmen as spies.

But, McCarthy said, there are "481 American uniformed men left in Communist prisons" and the administration has known about them nearly two years.

He said the Senate investigations subcommittee, of which he is a member, obtained the 481 figure from administration officials a few weeks ago.

(Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) said after the hearing that 481 represented only an "accountability" figure — the number of Americans believed to have been in Communist hands at some time during the Korean war, and whose fate is not known.)

Wolfson Wins Three Places on Nine-Man Ward's Board

CHICAGO (U.P.) — Financier Louis E. Wolfson Saturday won three seats on the nine-man Montgomery Ward & Co. board of directors in one of the biggest proxy fights in corporate history.

The final outcome was announced after both the Wolfson forces and the incumbent slate had been given an opportunity to recumulate votes cast at the annual stockholders' meeting last April 22.

Wolfson conceded then that he would fail to win outright control of the big mail order firm. But financial sources credited his campaign with forcing 82-year-old Sewell Avery to step down as chairman of the board earlier this week.

Avery, however, will remain as a director. He led the incumbent slate with 6,087,662 votes. John A. Barr, 46, former Ward vice president who took over as board chairman this week, was second with 6,083,733 votes.

Elected from the Wolfson slate were Wolfson; Alexander Rittmaster III, his chief financial advisor, and Bernice Fitz-Gibbon, merchandising expert.

Elected from the incumbent slate were Avery, Barr, Philip R. Clarke, Percy B. Eckhart, C. H. Shaver, and Solomon A. Smith.

'Build It Long, Low and Heavy,' Advises Soap Box Derby Ace

By BEN MARTIN

Build it as long, low and heavy as rules allow if you plan on being a contender for Soap Box Derby honors this year.

That's the advice of a champ.

That basic formula last year sent 15-year-old Gary Miller of Lynwood speeding to the Long Beach area championship and on to a scholarship-winning second place in the national finals at Akron, Ohio.

(This year's area championship will be decided here July 30 on the Redondo Ave. course north of Pacific Coast Hiway. Entry blanks may be obtained at your Chevrolet dealers.)

Gary learned the hard way.

It took him four years of Derby competition and six racers before he stepped up to the judges' stand at Akron last year to accept a huge trophy and a $4000 college scholarship.

His winning car incorporated all the fine points he learned during those four years and five previous construction projects, and it graphically illustrated how closely he followed his own advice about building it long, low and heavy.

GARY'S CHAMPIONSHIP racer measured just one-sixteenth of an inch under the maximum allowance of 80 inches; cleared the ground exactly three inches, as per Derby rules, and he and car together weighed in at Long Beach a half-pound under the top weight of 250 pounds.

Keep the car narrow, too, advises the champ.

Gary sat comfortably in the 15-inch wide seat of his fifth rader, strictly an experimental job begun 11 months before the 1954 races.

He shoe-spooned himself into a 12-inch seat in the final, competition model.

Lowest possible overall height is another important factor. Highest point on Gary's car was only 24 inches from the ground, leaving only his goggled-eyes and helmeted-head sticking up into the airstream.

The backrest was practically moulded to fit his back, so that driver and car fit together as one.

"That's important," says Gary, "building the car around the driver."

OTHER POINTS to consider in building a Soap Box racer are:

Make the body as smooth and sleek as possible, with nothing to slow down the wind stream;

Distribute the weight so that each wheel carries exactly the same amount;

Have wheels perfectly aligned with each other and the car;

Keep weight as low as possible — small, light drivers should use a heavy plank for floorboards.

As for lubrication, Gary thinks the official Soap Box Derby oils are as good as can be obtained—but for the actual competition races, he washed out his wheel bearings with kerosene and ran without oil!

HOW DID this knowledge pay off for Gary?

He's got a shelf-full of handsome trophies—winning at least one in each of his four years.

He's got a scrap-book full of memories, especially after the 1954 races when his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Miller, 3259 Pleasant St., went along with him to Akron as guests of the Independent-Press-Telegram.

And he's got a college education already paid for.

The champ, who'll be 16 Thursday, can't race in the Derby anymore, after once competing in the national finals, but he's graduating to adult-size cars now, anyway.

Much of the engineering and maintenance knowledge he gained in four years as a Derby competitor is going into the rebuilding of a 1934 sedan.

He'll drive it to the Long Beach races this year, where he'll be an interested spectator and willing advisor, with the hope that another Long Beach area driver will be stepping up to the winner's stand in Akron this year.

School Bus Plunges in River, 12 Die

TOKYO (UP) — An excursion bus carrying school children plunged into a river in northern Japan Saturday, killing 12 persons and injuring more than 30 others.

The accident occurred at Hanamaki, about 270 miles north of here. Reports said the bus was carrying 34 grade school children, three teachers, 11 parents and a baby.

Registered Cars Set New High; California Tops

WASHINGTON (UP) — Motor vehicle registrations in the United States hit an all-time high of 58,589,863 last year, the Bureau of Public Roads reported Saturday. This was an overall gain of 4.1 per cent over 1953.

Florida showed the greatest rise, 8.2 per cent, followed by Nevada with 8 per cent, and Louisiana 7.1 per cent. Six states registered more than 3,000,000 vehicles and accounted for more than 40 per cent of all registrations.

California kept the lead in this category with 5,698,842, followed by New York with 4,392,875; Pennsylvania 3,553,981; Texas, 3,506,599; Ohio, 3,300,486, and Illinois 3,086,792.

6 South Koreans Slain, Reds Say

TOKYO (UP)—The Communist Peiping radio said Saturday North Korean civil police had killed six men described as "military personnel" of a South Korean intelligence unit.

The broadcast, monitored here, charged that the six "military personnel of the American side. . . . illegally crossed the military demarcation line."

It said six of the men were shot to death and a seventh was captured in a battle with North Korean civil police.

Dear Sir, Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method." Signed, Mrs. Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "Five years ago I was badly stricken with neuritis in my shoulders and extremities. My hands and knees were so badly swollen that I could hardly use them. I wasn't able to raise my arms above the shoulders. I was told by several doctors that they have done all they could for me and that I no longer will be able to work again. Finally a friend referred me to try Dr. Chan's Herbal Therapy. After the first week I felt much improved and the fourth week found me walking much easier with the pains in my shoulders disappearing; my hands returned to normal and I had use of them once more. What Long Beach Has Given the State

THERE'S MORE than a touch of irony in the fact that during the coming week while California is celebrating World Trade Week, the city of Long Beach will be fighting in a state legislative committee to protect its tidelands oil revenue from a proposed state grab.

The irony is this:

Long Beach harbor has been a major factor in the development of the industrial, agricultural and commercial wealth of Southern California. The entire state has benefited.

The harbor was built on Long Beach initiative—by bonds retired from Long Beach tax money; by money from oil development carried out by this city.

Now Assemblyman Bruce Allen of San Jose is seeking not only to strip Long Beach of its tideland oil resources, but also to require Long Beach to go on bended knee to the state to get money for operation of the harbor.

The record shows that between 1908 and 1928 Long Beach voters approved bond issues totaling $8,245,000 for the purpose of buying land for and building a port.

It shows that prior to July 1, 1938 the city of Long Beach spent $6,138,838 from general property tax sources to cover bond interest and redemption costs on harbor bonds. The entire proceeds went to promote commerce, navigation and fisheries.

Since 1938 the city has spent $4,230,000 for harbor purposes from upland oil revenue—revenue not subject to limitations of the tideland trust.

The city each year has spent large sums from general fund revenues for maintenance of facilities connected with harbor operation.

Thus Long Beach has combined spending from general revenues with wise and farsighted development of tideland oil to build what has become a fine modern harbor.

The results in terms of benefit to the state of California?

The Port of Long Beach has become a key facility in the state's economic life. Last year it handled a total of 6,815,069 tons of general cargo, petroleum and lumber. Into and out of this port sail the ships of the world, bringing in the products the state needs and taking our own products into the world commercial channels.

Directly and indirectly affected by these operations are the motor truck, railway and airline industries; manufacturers, exporters, importers; wages, salaries, profits, investments throughout a wide range of industries employing many thousands of persons.

Obviously, the impact of the port of Long Beach has been great in California economic development. Yet without Long Beach tax dollars, Long Beach development of oil resources, Long Beach courage and foresight in undertaking the job, this harbor would not exist.

While Mr. Allen is talking about what the state should get from Long Beach, perhaps some thought should be turned to what Long Beach has given to the state. And World Trade Week is a good time for such thought.

'Going My Way?'

MALCOLM EPLEY

How Long Will His Luck Last?

HOW lucky can a man be?

With considerable justification, Assemblyman Bruce Allen has been winning a reputation as a "success boy" in his sponsorship of legislation to strip Long Beach of its tidelands oil money.

Until he was caught with his votes down and hastily averted a test at a committee hearing last Thursday, everything has gone his way in this fight, including the "breaks."

Supreme Court action came in perfect timing for him. After he introduced his bill, the Court found against Long Beach in the Mallon suit—the case Allen claims is legal justification for his program. "That's what I've been waiting for," Allen told newsmen.

Then, just an hour or two before a vital committee hearing, the Court denied Long Beach's petition for a rehearing. This was significantly announced in the Assembly session, and again to the committee when it gathered to ponder Allen's proposal. What more could a man ask? (The subsequent committee action, of course, was favorable to Allen.)

HIS OWN JUDGE

One of Allen's big advantages has been his membership on the two committees to which his bill has been referred—Conservation and Planning, and Ways and Means.

Let's look at the situation in Conservation and Planning. The chairman is Assemblyman Francis Lindsay, co-author of the Allen bill and perhaps even more than Allen obsessed with the idea of seizing Long Beach's millions. Allen is a member.

When the bill was called for hearing, Allen left his place on the committee platform, came down in front and argued for his bill before his fellow committeemen.

He was still sitting "in the witness chair" when a rash of motion-making broke out in the committee. Some spectators swear they saw Lindsay, the chairman, signal to Allen. Maybe this was imagination, but at the strategic moment Allen himself made a motion—for do-pass recommendation.

Here was Allen, the "witness" and "prosecutor," suddenly figuratively leaping into the jury box to help pass judgment on his own scheme. And it was all perfectly proper under committee procedure.

Assemblyman Patrick McGee (D-Los Angeles) exploded: "He can't do that!"

But Chairman Lindsay pointed out that Allen was a member of the committee and could do that. Lindsay put the motion, and it passed.

(When all this occurred, Long Beach had hardly started its presentation against the bill. It hasn't yet been given the opportunity to complete it.)

After the do-pass from Conservation and Planning, Allen's bill went to Ways and Means where it was set for a hearing last Thursday. A member of Ways and Means, is Assemblyman Bruce Allen.

ASSEMBLYMAN ALLEN

Over 50 bills were listed for consideration ahead of the Allen proposal in ways and means Thursday. Most of these were non-controversial and were quickly handled in routine manner.

Then Chairman Thomas Caldecott (R-Berkeley) announced that after the next batch of bills was acted upon, the committee would take up the Allen bill.

At that moment Assemblyman Lindsay (not a member of ways and means) walked across the room in front of the spectators, looking at Allen. Allen left his place on the rostrum, joined Lindsay in the hall.

Allen then returned and, as a member of the committee, was able to bring about a week's delay in the hearing on his bill. Later he virtually admitted he did not have enough votes on hand to get favorable action, stating that a number of Assemblymen, presumably his supporters, had left the room.

As both author of the bill and a member of the committee, Allen was able to handle the situation. There is nothing unusual about this, but it does show the disadvantage under which Long Beach has been fighting the Allen bill.

Chairman Caldecott of Ways and Means, by the way, voted against Long Beach in conservation and planning, so Allen had another sympathetic chairman in Ways and Means.

So Allen has been riding high. But can such good luck go on forever attending a bad cause?

Itinerant Secretary of State Dulles Operates With Restraint, Firmness

PARIS—There is something very impressive and of incalculable value about the new-fashioned diplomacy which brings the Secretary of State of the United States to Paris for informal talks with the Foreign Ministers of France and Great Britain as well as with the top men of other countries which comprise the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Critics may say the head of the State Department should not travel around, but it is difficult to imagine how any progress could be made any other way in solving present-day problems among the Allies.

Unfortunately, lots of mischievous rumors and some distorted reports reach back home to the parliaments and to the American Congress. It is not always easy to overcome the handicaps that interference, even by American legislators, sometimes brings. But if the members of Congress who are so reckless with their comments on world affairs, especially the carping critics among the Democrats, could attend a press conference held here by the Secretary of State, they would come to realize how delicate and complicated are most of the questions tackled by the foreign ministers.

THE MODERN WAY

This last week has seen many important conferences, but they are not unlike several meetings held here before. They are all significant. The modern way is for the top representatives of the Allies to sit down together and thresh out their differences behind closed doors. They talk frankly and at times heatedly, but they come out of it as a rule with a clear understanding of the viewpoint of their respective countries.

Perhaps the most ticklish of all the questions this week was the problem of Indochina. Neither the French nor the American government could afford to place itself in the position of trying to settle the internal affairs of South Vietnam, as this would only intensify Communist propaganda there. But certain parallel or common policies were agreed upon which may help to bring stability to the situation in the southern part of Indochina.

For, although the desire is to see some form of democratic government chosen, it is not easy to establish at once an electoral machinery such as exists in a European parliamentary system. But out of the turbulence of these last few weeks may come a representative system for South Vietnam, and that is the objective now.

Despite the newspaper reports about a grave crisis in the relations between France and the United States over the Indochina question, it is a fact that both governments recognized all along how important it is to reach an understanding and not to allow the Indochina dipute to impair their working arrangements on many other questions of far greater importance to both.

The American people can rest assured that Secretary Dulles handled himself very creditably here. Notwithstanding some garbled impressions that came to certain Senators, there was no mistake made here by Mr. Dulles in talking firmly where firmness was necessary.

SECRETARY DULLES

Those who heard his reply, for example, in the North Atlantic Council meeting to Foreign Secretary Spaak of Belgium on the Formosa question said it was an excellent rebuttal to a statement that completely misconstrued the American position.

Nor is Mr. Dulles stampeded or pushed around by the Soviet tactics. He was clear-cut in his announcement here that he wouldn't go to Vienna until the Austrian treaty provisions had been finally set down on paper ready for signing. He is equally determined not to become involved in a protracted discussion in Vienna about the details of the forthcoming four-power conference.

There is a restraint and a forbearance about Mr. Dulles' manner in these top-level negotiations, and, at the same time such an earnest reflection by him of the truly American viewpoint in international affairs, that the American people can well be proud of their itinerant Secretary of State.

Ike Would Like to Retire but Question Is, Can He?

WILL IKE RUN? There is a large body of opinion in Washington that President Eisenhower will not be a candidate for reelection.

It began forming when Ike gave Mamie the green light on fixing up the farmhouse at Gettysburg, Pa. "No man," reasoned the women, "would spend all that money if he didn't intend to use the place for something more than a week-end retreat."

Ike himself, has given weight to the one-term rumors by making occasional references to his age and the 21 months still left to serve.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith spoke up last Wednesday before 1,500 Republican women and said she has the impression that President Eisenhower "prefers to retire." It is reported that her statement brought "gasps from the dismayed audience."

KNIGHT

Later in the day, Ike said he didn't have "the slightest idea" where Mrs. Smith got that impression.

Of course Ike would prefer to retire. He likes the outdoors and chafes under the restraint of the Presidency. He has served his country faithfully for many years, and he isn't getting any younger.

The big question is: Can he retire?

Without Eisenhower, the Republicans have only a forlorn hope of winning the Presidency in 1956.

While Ike has never thought of himself as the indispenable man, he responds to the call of duty and he is hearing a lot about that little word from GOP bigwigs who are worried sick by the retirement rumors.

Will Ike run? Only if Mamie gives her approval, and right now Ike's eyes are glued on Gettysburg.

ONE FOR ALL

This column has received much criticism, for our frequently expressed belief that federated giving is the realistic way to raise funds for charitable activities and essential community services.

The main resistance against federated giving comes from several national groups such as the Polio Foundation and other local agencies who fear loss of identity.

Some state frankly they can raise more money by making their own appeals.

These agencies seem to forget that under this procedure, the better known causes get the lion's share of the money while equally important but less well known activities fail to make their quotas.

They also ignore the fact that the giver is still the master and his patience wears thin under the pressure of constant solicitation.

The Community Funds which are failing to achieve their goals year after year should get their heads out of the sand and take a good look at the world of today.

A large number of communities have achieved success with a single campaign. The givers respond generously because they know they will not be plagued throughout the year for additional contributions.

Akron and Detroit, among the first to see the merit of a "one for all" solicitation, are notable examples.

Washington, D. C. is turning to federated giving. Rochester, N. Y. is troubled by its multiplicity of campaigns. There people are getting into the habit of "just giving a dollar to everything" and losing sight of the fact that its Community Chest is soliciting in behalf of 75 agencies.

Ike Charges Demo Stall on His Highway Program

WASHINGTON—While the Democrats were accusing Republicans of playing politics on the postal pay-raise bill last week, President Eisenhower was dittoing the Democrats. He was irked because his pride and joy—the superhighway program—has been sidetracked in Congress.

"Those fellows (the Democrats) are putting partisan politics above the best interests of the country," Ike remarked bitterly at last week's secret White House meeting with GOP congressional leaders.

"I hope you will redouble your efforts to get this legislation out of committee, so we can at least have a vote on it," he urged GOP chiefs after they informed him that the $27,000,000,000, 10-year highway program was being effectively stalled in both houses, particularly the Senate.

PEARSON

"Our entire economy is geared to the highway program," he added. "It is tied in with steel production, transportation, and other industries and, of course, employment in these industries—not to mention the employment that would be provided by the actual building of the highways."

Ike was plainly irritated by the charges of Tennessee's Sen. Albert Gore, chief Democratic foe of the road program, that it would wreck the federal budget and would still leave our highways deficient after the money was spent. Without mentioning Gore by name, the President remarked caustically:

"The best brains we could get tell us the program is needed and that it will work."

The automobile manufacturers of Detroit were "greatly concerned" about the hold-up of the superhighway legislation, Eisenhower also reported. He added that auto production would be hurt in the future unless our highway system was brought "up to date" with the increasing problems of transportation.

WILSON'S CANE

But for an unforeseen hitch at an auction by the Women's National Democratic Club, former President Harry Truman would now be the proud possessor of a gold-headed cane used by another Democratic occupant of the White House, Woodrow Wilson.

However, Truman, who swings a mean walking stick himself, is happy that the prized cane wound up in the possession of his close friend, Mrs. Leslie Biffle, though he probably won't know the inside story until he reads it here.

Without telling Truman, a group of his former aids got together and quietly raised $500 to purchase the Wilson cane when they learned that Mrs. Wilson had donated it for auction to the Democratic women. About 15 in all were in on the deal, including former Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman, John R. Steelman and Dean Acheson.

They planned to present the gold-headed cane to Truman at the ground-breaking ceremony for his Memorial Library in Missouri this month. However, when the auction began, the spokesman for the Trumanites, former White House aid Martin Friedman, suddenly found himself in active competition with a "sleeper" bidder, Cortland Silver, of St. Paul, Minn.

Silver, a house guest of the Biffles, wanted to present the Wilson walking stick as a parting gift to Mrs. Biffle, who is till recovering from an accident and needs a cane to get around. Every time Friedman made an offer, Silver blithely upped the ante, unaware that he was bidding against the Truman "syndicate."

Silver finally won out with a bid of $625.

TOWN MEETING

First-Rank Artist

TO THE EDITOR:

In George Eres' Long Beach culture series Lorenzo C. Miller, head of the City College Art Department, states: "No artist of first rank lives here."

The article also says, Heavenrich is conscious of the fact that there is no nationally recognized artist in Long Beach."

Mr. Heavenrich is well aware that Ben Messick, a foremost American artist, not only nationally but internationally known and recognized, lives in Long Beach.

Mr. Messick has exhibited paintings and lithographs in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the de Young Memorial Museum, the Library of Congress, Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, the U. S. National Museum in Smithsonian Institution and practically every gallery on the coast.

He was featured in American Artist Magazine in November, 1950 and again listed in this magazine April, 1955, as one of the American artists "past and present who have made American art great."

Another Name

TO THE EDITOR:

Omitted in Mr. Eres' list of "name" people from Long Beach was the name of Fred Smith, tenor, who won a $5,000 Horace Heidt national contest conducted in all Army camps.

I think Long Beach has reason to be proud of this local boy.

'U. N. Nonsense'

TO THE EDITOR:

It is significant to note that even Mr. Lodge is concerned now about the high-handedness of the U. N. On April 31 he assailed a decision by a three-member administrative tribunal in Geneva ordering UNESCO to reinstate three Americans who were dismissed because they refused to appear before a United States loyalty board.

Mr. Lodge called it a "deplorable decision" and it is just a small sample of how the United States will be pushed around if we permit a world organization consisting of numerous enemies to tell us what we are to do. Let us stop this U. N. nonsense and stand on our own feet again.

Firmness

TO THE EDITOR:

What, do you think, would have resulted to freedom in the world if our forefathers of 1776 had so feared war that they would have failed to face the British tyrant with everything they had, and stop him?

How can our people now feel much pride of nation if our government so fears war that they fail to force the release of our unlawfully imprisoned airmen, but would belittle themselves by sitting down with the dishonorable, brutal Red Chinese to discuss reducing tension in the Far East when there would be no tension there but for them?

How can the infamous Chinese Reds have anything but contempt for us when our leaders are so ready to give them the chance they propose to trick us again with their deceitful doubletalk, instead of stopping them with force, or the stern threat of it?

Thankful

TO THE EDITOR:

I have just read about the people complaining about the noise from the Douglas Aircraft plant. I work there and I'm thankful we have a big company like Douglas which furnishes us with work. It's the biggest company, employing the largest number of people in the area.

I don't even think of the noise when I hear a plane going over. It makes me proud to know that these planes are built in our city, which I love and am proud to be a resident of.

I wonder if the people who complain about the noise ever stopped to think of what it represents to Long Beach in terms of bread and butter.

Finally Mere Man Wins in Battle of the Sexes

WASHINGTON (AP)—In this town, women are steadily moving in. Oveta Culp Hobby is in the cabinet. Margaret Chase Smith is in the Senate. Fifteen women, a record, are in the House. Step into almost any government office, and what do you see? A lot of women.

So it's a relief today to report a stunning reversal of this trend in the nation's capital. The District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers, with a membership of 27,000 elected John Gilliland president.

He became the first male to hold this job in the Congress' 50-year history.

Gilliland won the hard way.

As the choice of the nominating committee, he normally would have no opposition. But Mrs. Samuel Hooks was nominated from the floor.

When the decisive moment came, there were 500 female and three male delegates on the floor. The three male delegates and the one male reporter held their breaths. Could Gilliland win this unequal ballot of the sexes?

He could. Of 497 votes cast, Gilliland got 420.

If the national P-T.A. has its way, this sort of thing will be going on everywhere. It has been urging men to take a more active part in P-T.A. affairs.

But this advice has not been needed for Gilliland, an energetic, balding, bespectacled man of 51 who owns real estate and foam rubber businesses.

Gilliland has been holding P-T.A. offices of one sort or another for 15 years. One year he headed his elementary school P-T.A. Twice he was president of the P-T.A. at his junior high school.

In years when Gilliland wasn't president, who was likely to turn up in the chair? Mrs. Gilliland.

MR. OR MRS.

In fact, one of the toughest jobs facing the nominating committee was this: Should it be Mr. G., or Mrs. G.?

Gilliland thinks the answer should have been: Both.

"Co-presidents," he said, talking easily above the congratulatory twittering about him, "that's the answer. More men and women should go into P-T.A. work together. That's what will happen with me. My wife will supply the beauty, inspiration, ideas and do the work. I'll be the front man."

Then, as if he feared he was being overly modest, he said:

"One thing in my favor. I can talk louder."

At the average noisy P-T.A. meeting, that's a trait not to be sneezed at.

The Neighbors

Karim in Breeders Triumph

Karim, another son of the sensational Khaled who sired Swaps, raced to an easy victory by better than two lengths Saturday at Hollywood Park in the $25,000-added Golden State Breeders Handicap.

It was the second victory in two days for sons of the English-bred Khaled, El Drag having scored Friday in the $25,000 Premiere Handicap which opened the summer meeting here.

Karim ran like a son of Khaled in that he pushed the pace until ready to make his move coming into the stretch and then nailed the pace-setting Blue Trumpeter and pulled away as easily as did Swaps in the Kentucky Derby a week ago.

Blue Trumpeter lasted for second while the four-to-five favorite and defending champion, Golden Abbey, could only get up for third with his top impost of 122 pounds.

Karim raced the mile and a sixteenth distance of the race limited to California foals in 1.42 3/5, good time, although a second and a fraction slower than the track record of 1.41.

The winner went off at five-to-two and returned $7.10, 4.00 and 2.40 across the board. Blue Trumpeter paid $6.70 and 2.70 for place and show while Golden Abbey returned $2.20 to show.

6-10 for Dumas at Fresno

FRESNO (U.P.)—Four new meet records were set in the West Coast Relays Saturday, but Wes Santee, famous Kansas miler, failed in his bid for the four-minute mile.

Santee was clocked in a good 4:06.5 for his specialty while running in a 14 mile an hour wind, but he won by 30 yards over Len Simpson of the San Francisco Olympic Club.

A crowd of 10,000 witnessed the afternoon competition which mostly featured high school events, and another 15,000 packed the stands for the night performances in the balmy weather.

These were the features:

1. Adhemar Da Silva of Brazil, world hop, step and jump champion, bettered anything ever recorded by an American in his first attempt on U. S. soil. He leaped 51 feet, 3 inches. The best mark by an American was 50 feet, 1½ inches by Billy Brown, Louisiana State, in 1940. The U.S. record is 51 feet, 7 inches set by Chuhei Nambu of Japan in the 1932 Olympics.

2. Charles Dumas, 18-year-old Centennial High School youth, cleared the high jump bar at 6 feet, 10 inches, competing unattached in the open intercollegiate division.

3. Max Truex, SC freshman, won the 5,000-meter race in 14:57.5, beating the old relays mark of 15:02.2 set by Art Garcia of SC in 1952.

Santee's mark, of course, was a new stadium record.

The Kansan was very good—but not as fast as he had hoped. The wind, he thought, ruined his chances.

"It was the wind again," said Santee after the mile run. "I felt real good and thought this might be the day. But the wind was too tough down the backstretch."

This race was especially designed to give Santee a chance at the four-minute mile. He asked for and was given lane three. Art Dalzell, a former Kansas teammate, ran most of the first three laps in front to break the wind; and a lad named Gene Jones of the Santa Clara Youth Center ran along Santee's side shouting encouragement.

"I appreciate all the help I got, especially from Dalzell and Jones," Wes said as his wife embraced him at the finish line. "But it just wasn't the day."

Fernando Ledesma of SC finished third and Jim Hunt of San Diego State, fourth. Dalzell and Jones failed to finish.

The clockings by quarters were 59, 62, 63 and 62.5. The time for 1,500 meters, 3:48.5.

Young Dumas cleared the height on his first try while Ernie Shelton of SC needed all three of his jumps to make it. Both men failed on three jumps apiece at a measured height of 6-11¼, set at Shelton's request.

The 6-10 established a new relays' record, wiping out Shelton's 6-9½ set a year ago.

Dumas' leap was by far the best of his budding career and marked the third time he has bettered the National Interscholastic high jump record of 6-7½. The young Negro stands 6-2 and weighs 173 pounds.

Sam Iness of the Los Angeles Athletic Club beat teammate Parry O'Brien by more than four feet in the discus, flipping the plate 170-½ to O'Brien's 165-11. Des Koch of SC was a close third.

O'Brien won the shotput at 56-6, trailed by Tom Meyer, Oxy, 56-3; Ray Martin, SC, 55-7¼; Don Vick, UCLA, 55-2, and Clyde Wetter, UCLA, 52-10¼.

STATISTICS ON THE SLUGGERS

Here's how British challenger Don Cockell and heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano shape up for Monday night's scheduled 15-round title fight in San Francisco. Cockell has edge in numbers game except for height, but unbeaten Rocky is topheavy choice.—(Associated Press Wirephoto.)

S.F. EXPECTS 30,000 MONDAY

Unbeaten Champ Quoted at 8-5 to Stop Briton Within 5

By JACK HAND

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rocky Marciano is supposed to demolish Don Cockell, a broad-beamed British hog farmer, in the fifth defense of his world heavyweight title Monday night at Kezar Stadium.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Cockell Praised

SAN RAFAEL (U.P.)—Grant Butcher, who sparred 43 rounds with British heavyweight challenger Don Cockell, said Saturday the Englishman has "better than an even chance" of dethroning world heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano in their title fight Monday night.

"Cockell may give the Marciano camp quite a surprise," the former California State heavyweight champion said. "And if Marciano is planning a body attack he will find that Cockell's mid-section is like a brick wall."

Butcher said the only thing he could criticize Cockell for was a lack of aggressiveness, which seemed to straighten out as training continued.

"I caught him several times with good rights but he never really was troubled by them," Butcher said. "He takes a solid punch, knows how to roll and never seems to get confused. I think he will surprise a lot of people Monday—Marciano included."

The sturdy champ from Brockton, Mass., unbeaten in his 47-fight career with 41 knockouts, is such a topheavy favorite that there is practically no betting on the result. Even the promoters' release mentions a 5-1 price. One source lists Marciano as a 9-1 choice. They say it's about 8-5 that Cockell won't last five rounds.

Cockell, first British heavyweight to get a chance at the crown since Tommy Farr fought Joe Louis in 1937, has failed to impress in his training at suburban San Rafael. Although the 26-year-old fat boy has trimmed down from 220 pounds to 208, he has glaring defensive weaknesses and does not appear to have the punch to bother Rocky.

On the other hand, Marciano hit a peak in his closing drills at Calistoga, battering sparmates with a thumping body attack. Sharp at about 189 pounds, the 30-year-old champ seems to have only cuts to fear.

The nose cut that Ezzard Charles opened last September has leaked no blood during the long training grind. There is no guarantee, however, that it won't split again from a solid punch.

Marciano was gashed on the head and around the right eye the night he won the title from Jersey Joe Walcott in '52 and was cut around the left eye in both fights with Charles last summer.

San Francisco, which still remembers Jim Corbett and Jim Jeffries, has been slow to heat up for its first heavyweight title scrap since Charles stopped Pat Valentino Oct. 14, 1949. That bout set a California record with a gate of $167,870 at the Cow Palace.

Jimmy Murray, local promoter who is working with the International Boxing Club in staging the fight, has reported advance sales of over $150,000. Although they talk of $500,000, chances are a crowd of 30,000 and a gate of between $300,000 and $350,000 is more realistic. The stadium has 68,000 seats priced from $40 to $5.

Nobody can sit home and watch this 15-round match on his television set. There will be no home TV. The fight will be beamed, however, to 83 theaters in 59 cities on closed circuit theater television with California blacked out. It also will be heard on radio (NBC).

In order that eastern theater patrons can see the show at a decent hour, the title bout will start at 10 p. m. (e. s. t.), which is only 8 p. m., Pacific Daylight time. If it's a clear day, the sun will be setting beyond the Golden Gate about the time so the early rounds should be fought in twilight.

Marciano gets 40 per cent and Cockell 20 per cent of the gate receipts, theater-TV, radio and movie cash. If the beefy Briton should upset the champ, the movie rights in America and Britain will be worth an enormous sum. There is a 90-day rematch clause in the contracts, in case Cockell wins.

Monday night's heavyweight title match will be broadcast locally over KFI beginning at 7:45 p.m. There will be no television.

Golliday Ties 100 Record

9.3 by Wildcat Ace in Big Ten Relays

EVANSTON, Ill. (U.P.) — Jim Golliday, a slender Negro speedster from Northwestern toughened by two years in the army, sped to a world record-equalling 9.3 time in the 100-yard dash in the second annual Big Ten Relays Saturday.

Golliday's clocking tied the world mark set in 1948 by Mel Patton of Southern California and equalled by Hector Hogan of Australia in 1954.

There was no doubt about Golliday's clocking as two of the five timers caught him at 9.2, two more at 9.3, and another at 9.4.

He virtually spread-eagled the field with a perfect start and lengthy strides which carried him to an eight-yard margin over Edgar Brabham of Michigan State at the finish.

However, Golliday was helped along by a wind, certified at 3.32 miles per hour, which blew at his back during the dash. Officials said that a wind under 4.47 miles per hour would not interfere with recognition of a time as a world record.

Golliday's best competitive time prior to Saturday was 9.5, registered in a dual meet against Minnesota last Saturday.

Willard Thomson of Illinois, who captured both the 120-yard high hurdles and the 220-yard low hurdles, was the only double winner of the meet. His times were 13.7 and 22.9.

Thomson's time in the highs established a new meet record while Michigan State's sprint medley relay team set a new meet record of 3:24.5.

Minnesota's sprint relay team tied the meet mark of 41.8 established by Illinois last year.

Michigan won the two-mile relay in 7:42.1; Michigan State captured the 880-relay in 1:26.7; Karl Johnson of Illinois won the one and one-half mile run in 6:53.9; the distance medley went to Iowa in 10.18.4, and Michigan annexed the mile relay in 3:15.9.

MAN, DIG THAT CLOCK!

Zernia's Bat Leads Suds Win

LOS ANGELES (U.P.) — First baseman Harvey Zernia rapped three hits in four trips to the plate, including a double, to lead Seattle to a 5-3 win over Los Angeles Saturday. The victory evened the series at 3-3 and dropped the Angels back into third place.

Zernia's double before 5,782 fans was the only extra-base hit the Rainiers were able to get. Los Angeles scored two of its runs on two bases-empty homers by Bob Usher and Bob Talbot.

Both hurlers went the distance and performed about equally. Vic Lombardi (4-2), who emerged the winner, gave up nine hits, struck out one and walked three. John Pyecha (0-1), the loser, gave up eight hits.

Seattle jumped off for two runs in the second frame when Bobby Balcena scored on Gene Verble's sacrifice fly. Monte Basgall then scored on a single by Lombardi.

Seattle made it 4-2 in the seventh on a single by Rocky Krsnich, an infield out and an error.

9-FLAT '100'— BEFORE TAPE

NEW ORLEANS (U.P.)—Track officials shattered Billy Jones' dreams of a new world 100-yard dash record Saturday with a tape.

The Louisiana State sprinter was clocked in nine seconds flat in a meet against Tulane. Then officials found the distance was only 90 yards.

Brown Gains Net Finals

SAN FRANCISCO (U.P.) — Tournament favorite Tom Brown of the San Francisco Olympic Club dropped his first set but defeated sixth seeded Bill Crosby of San Francisco 6-2, 6-3, 4-6 and 6-1, Saturday to advance to the finals of the 55th annual California State Tennis Championships.

Brown was extended by the hard hitting Crosby, whom he defeated three weeks ago in the Bay County Tennis Tournament, but was a heavy choice to defeat Jack Frost of Stanford University in the finals today.

Frost, a former junior national boys champion, set down Nick Carter of the San Francisco Olympic Club 6-2, 6-2, 9-7.

Two 16-year-old girls stroked their way to the finals of the women's singles, assuring the youngest state champion in the history of the tournament.

Nitehawks Squeeze in 12th Nets 1-0 Win

Jimmy Jones squeeze-bunted in Bill Hull with two out in the 12th inning to give the Long Beach Nitehawks a 1-0 victory over Monterey Park in their season's softball opener at Park Ave. Field Saturday night.

The game was a duplicate of a pair of pitchers' battles between the two teams last season, both of which ended 1-0 in favor of Coach Joe Rodgers' Nitehawks.

This time it was Richie Stevens for the visitors for nine innings followed by Dick Loy, who picked up the defeat. For Long Beach, newly-acquired LeRoy Zimmerman made a spectacular debut, pitching six innings of hitless ball, striking out 13 and not giving up a base on balls. Ted Carlsgaard hurled the next five frames, allowing the only two Monterey safeties and Jack Randall turned in a flawless one inning stint to get the win.

Hull led off the 12th with a clean single to right-center. Bill Bullock attempted to sacrifice but popped to the catcher. Stan White then delivered a single sending Hull to second. Randall forced White at second on a near double-play ball. Jones then laid down his perfect bunt along the first base line and beat the throw as Hull crossed the plate.

FIRST LOSS SINCE 1950

Notre Dame Varsity Falls Before Old-Timers, 19-14

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (U.P.)—Passing seldom, Notre Dame's inexperienced varsity was defeated by the Old Timers, 19-14, Saturday—the Irish's first spring football game loss since 1950 when the team went on to a lackluster 4-4-1 record the following fall.

Bulwarked by such former Irish stars as all-America Ralph Guglielmi, who pitched one touchdown pass, and Johnny Lattner of the Pittsburgh Steelers, the Old Timers gave Terry Brennan's varsity a rugged battle. They outgained the Irish in all departments.

The varsity showed some bright spots, especially in the running of seasoned fullback Don Schaefer, who scored one touchdown, and quarterback Paul Hornung, who scurried 34 yards on a keep-it play for the other.

The Old Timers had several varsity players on loan and one of them, sophomore to-be fullback Charles Lima of Cincinnati, was proved the best ball carrier on the field, gaining 91 yards in 17 tries for a 5.4 average.

Harrison Two Up on Snead in Greenbrier

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (U.P.)—Great putting gave Dutch Harrison undisputed leadership in the Greenbrier Open golf tournament Saturday with a 54-hole total of 199.

The 45-year-old Missourian sank three 30-foot putts and a 15-footer as he stroked his way over the Greenbrier course in 67—three under par. He carded 66 in each of the first two rounds.

Harrison's spectacular putting performance enabled him to move into today's final round with a two-stroke lead over Sam Snead who had a 67 Saturday. Snead muffed a chance to pull into a tie with Harrison by three-putting the 11th green for a bogie five and then missing a six-footer on the 18th green.

San Diego Rapps Up Series, 10-9

SAN DIEGO (U.P.)—Earl Rapp slammed his 11th homer of the season and drove in five runs Saturday as San Diego overcame Hollywood's early 8-2 lead and nipped the Stars, 10-9.

Rapp, who now has driven in 49 runs in the season's first 39 games, collected two singles in addition to his homer to pace San Diego's 13-hit attack against Star hurlers George Witt, George O'Donnell and Cal Hogue.

The win gave the Padres a 5-1 lead in the eight-game series and a half-game lead in the PCL standings.

Hollywood shelled Padre starter Cal McLish from the mound in the second stanza with a five-run barrage. With the bases loaded, Bill Hall doubled in Bob Prescott and Bobby Del Greco. Gail Henley romped home when Carlos Bernier swatted a two-bagger. Witt singled home Hall. A single by Lee Walls scored Witt.

Once Over Lightly

by DAVE LEWIS

Not even the British journalists over here to cover the heavyweight title fight Monday night in San Francisco have any hopes that their challenger, Don Cockell, will last much beyond the eighth round against champion Rocky Marciano.

However, they believe it will be a lively affair while it lasts and they won't be the least surprised if Cockell actually is ahead on points until he goes down for the count.

They are confident that Cockell is capable of stabbing Marciano with his left for five or six rounds while piling up points.

"But once our Don is hit solidly, the show is over," says Gerard Walter, dean of British boxing observers.

"The history of Cockell indicates he doesn't absorb a punch well. That, of course, is no reflection on his courage. He is a tenacious lad. However, Marciano takes two or three punches to get in one and, unfortunately for Don, that one will eventually floor him.

"Marciano has no defense and is vulnerable to every sort of punch while our Don can move around real good, being surprisingly agile on his feet despite his stoutness. Yes, he should be able to elude the champion for a few rounds."

The British writer declares that Marciano is the hardest puncher he has seen during his 27 years of observing boxing matches. "I am convinced his fists are more lethal than Joe Louis' ever were."

IN TRYING to build up a case for Cockell, it has been pointed out that:

(1) Knockouts by Randy Turpin and Jimmy Slade were due to Don being forced to make 175 pounds. He was weak. He'll weigh around 210 for Marciano.

(2) He has the fastest pair of hands on a heavyweight since Joe Louis and has a sharp left hand. He is a converted southpaw.

(3) He is a good boxer and is particularly adept at setting up an opponent with a left feint and then crossing with the right, and

(4) There is always the chance he can cut up Marciano, who has a medical history of tenderness in the nose. He also has scar tissue over both eyes.

The only argument presented which is considered solid enough to figure Cockell as the winner is No. 4—the possibility that Cockell might cut Rocky.

However, most boxing men laugh off any possibility of Marciano being slashed that badly by the British fighter.

"Sure Rocky suffered a bad cut on the nose against Ezzard Charles, but it wasn't as bad as Al Weill claimed," one says. "Rocky himself admitted later that he didn't even know his nose was slashed. He thought he had a slight nose bleed. It wasn't bothering him in the least."

Charley Goldman, Rocky's trainer, says that "in all of my 43 years in the fight game, I've never seen a nose sliced quite like Rocky's was. It was a freak accident that wouldn't happen again in the next 100 years."

The slash was caused by the heel of Charles' glove.

COCKELL HAS an interesting background. He was an apprentice blacksmith at 14 and at 16 he was in the Army Cadets, a pre-training unit.

While in the Cadets, he was invited to enter an Army boxing tournament. He weighed 175 at the time and liked it so well that he joined an amateur fistic club.

After leaving the Army, he fought in the "booths" for about a month . . . joining the carnival fighters who tour England's county fairs "taking on all comers."

However, these booth fighters carry their own sparring partners and one of them usually runs up from the audience and accepts the challenge before any of the local yokels has a chance. Cockell was a good partner. He always ran up very fast.

After a month of that he decided to turn professional in order to finance his marriage. Like most other kids in London hoping to become a fighter, he went to Jack Solomon's gym.

John Simpson, his present pilot, at the time was handling Vince Hawkins, who was then British middleweight champion.

As a last resort after several of England's top managers turned him down, Cockell approached Simpson and talked him into letting him work a couple of rounds with the champ.

Before the end of the second round, Simpson called a halt. Cockell, only 17, was belting Hawkins around the ring with a natural left hook. He signed Don right then and there.

Now 26, Cockell is passing for a rich resident of England with a $15,000 farm of 40 acres in Sussex. He also has the chance of setting himself up for the rest of his life off the earnings from Monday night's bout.

Even if he loses, as expected, he still will collect upwards of $125,000. A good gate could bring him as much as $275,000. A win, of course, would be worth well over a million dollars!

STORIES OUT of San Francisco keep emphasizing that Cockell resents questions fired at him by American newspapermen, but Harry Mendel, one of the top boxing press agents in Centennial High qualified 16 men to lead all other schools in a Southern California CIF track quarter-final sectional at Paramount High Saturday.

The Apaches qualified three men each in the broad jump, high jump and the 180 low hurdles, with Ken Dennis taking his 100 heat in 9.8, his 220 heat in 21.4, and anchoring the Apache relay team to a 1:31.2 win.

Brian Shutts of St. Anthony's ran an official 1:58.6 880 to place third in his heat and lower the school record of 2:01.1 he set last week. The winner, Mike Hester of Torrance, was timed in 1:57.3.

John Berton was third in the 120 high hurdles finishing close behind the winner, whose time was 14.8. Berton was timed unofficially in 15.0.

The Saint relay team of Jim Engan, Roger Stanton, Shutts and Dick Wigfall finished second in their heat, four yards behind the Apache crew, who toured the course in 1:31.2, the top time recorded.

Other St. Anthony's qualifiers were Stanton, with a third in the 100, and Jim Horan, who was third in his mile heat.

Paul Maynez set two St. Anthony's Cee records, taking a second in the 120 low hurdles in 14.2 and a fifth in the broad jump at 19-7.

Rush Tosses Second Blank at Giants, 8-0

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs' big Bob Rush tossed his second shutout at the New York Giants Saturday, blanking last year's world champions, 8-0, as he allowed them seven singles.

Rush, who shut out the Giants, 6-0, on four hits in New York, May 3, allowed just one Giant to reach third base Saturday as he ran his skein of scoreless innings against Leo Durocher's crew to 26 and one-third innings.

Johnny Antonelli, a surprise starter for the Giants, suffered his fourth loss when the Cubs got to him for three runs in the fifth. Working four perfect innings, Antonelli allowed his first hit to Hank Sauer leading off the Chicago fifth.

After contributing two walks and a throwing error, Antonelli was lifted in favor of Marv Grissom. Rookie outfielder Ted Tappe greeted Grissom with a pinch single for the last two of the Cubs' three runs.

Sharpe Sparkles in Sprints

Wilson High topped all three divisions Saturday in quarterfinal trials for the CIF track and field championships at Oxnard by landing 11 places in the varsity, eight in the Bee events and six in the Cees.

Poly tied Wilson with six qualifiers in the Cees and also placed five in the varsity division and four in the Bees.

Sprint times were outstanding, but a stiff wind of from six to 16 miles per hour discounted any top marks that might go in the record books.

Wilson's crack sprinter, Fred Sharpe, won his heat in the 220-yard dash in 21.2 and was a close second to Compton's John Magnuson in the 100, which Magnuson won in 9.8. Poly's Jim Duke snared the varsity 440 in 51.8.

Sharpe shared the spotlight with Montebello's Nick Romano in the sprints as Ramono dashed to victory in his heats with times of 10.0 and 20.9.

The only other local to win two events in varsity competition was Poly's John Calloway who took the broad jump in 23-1 and tied in the low hurdles at 19.0.

Harrison Walker stood out for Poly in the Cee division by nabbing his heat in the 100 and coming right back to take first in the broad jump.

Wally Blaylock and Bob Eldon scored double wins for the Bruin Bees — Blaylock taking first in the 100 and 660 and Eldon in the 100 and 220.

Mickey Byers, standout of the Bruin Cee division, scored in the high jump and pole vault and Leighton Hazelhurst, also of the Bruins, placed second in the high and low hurdle heats in which he competed.

The CIF semifinals will be held at Compton next Tuesday and the finals at Chaffey on Saturday.

WINDS POSTPONE MANY

Hoyt Wins '500' Pole Post With Near-Record 140 Trial

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Jerry Hoyt of Indianapolis, literally a race driver since he was a child, won the pole position for the 39th 500-mile Memorial Day auto race Saturday by bucking gusty winds in a qualifying run at 140.045 miles an hour.

Only one other car qualified on the first day of the time trials.

Hoyt's time was the second best 10-mile speed ever made on the Indianapolis motor speedway. Hoyt's car is owned by J. M. Robbins of Royal Oak, Mich.

The wind blew all day in gusts up to 36 miles an hour, and car owners were trying to reach an agreement to stay off the track when Hoyt went out 13 minutes before the official closing time.

The 26-year-old Hoyt, one-time mascot of the Lucky Teeter thrill show, won the Rex Mays Memorial trophy for the pole car with a speed second only to 141.033 record set last year by Jack McGrath of Inglewood, Calif., in the 10-mile trials.

A crowd estimated upward of 75,000 sat all day waiting for action before Hoyt broke the stalemate.

Other drivers rushed to the starting line after Hoyt took the starting flag, but only Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., veteran of eight Indianapolis races, was able to qualify before the track closed.

Bettenhausen's speed of 139.985 in the Chapman Special was the third best in the track records.

Pat O'Connor of North Vernon, Ind., in the Ansted Rotary Special, started a qualification attempt but was running too slow and didn't finish. He will have two more chances.

Ready to go at the gun were Sam Hanks of Burbank, Calif.; Walt Faulkner of Long Beach, Calif.; two-time winner Bill Vukovich of Fresno, Calif., and Bob Sweikert of Indianapolis. They'll get other chances today or in trials May 21 and 22.

RAMS ACQUIRE 'TUB THUMPER'

SEATTLE (AP) — Bert Rose, assistant director of athletics and manager of the Athletic News Service at the University of Washington, announced his resignation Saturday to become public relations director of the Los Angeles Rams professional football team.

Rose joined the Athletic News Service in 1947. Two years ago he was named assistant director of athletics.

Rose said he regrets leaving the university but he feels he cannot pass up the opportunity offered by the Rams.

Daley Hurls, Bats Solons to 7-2 Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Sacramento chased over seven runs in a third inning eruption featured by pitcher Bud Daley's two singles to score a 7-2 victory over San Francisco Saturday and even the series at 3-3.

Besides sparking the Sacs at the plate, Daley set the Seals down with eight hits before a crowd of 1,950 and joined Al Gettel of Oakland as the only six-game winner in the PCL. Daley has lost three.

The 22-year-old lefthander singled off Steve Nagy early in the wild third and scored the tying run when reliefer Jim Walsh uncorked a wild pitch. Later in the frame he drove in the final two runs with a single off Maurice Fisher.

'Bull' Blanks Pirates, 6-0

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Brooks (The Bull) Lawrence pitched a four-hit shutout Saturday night and Ken Boyer belted a two-run homer to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-0 victory over Pittsburgh.

Lawrence, who faced only 30 men, got credit for the first shutout of his major league career. He struck out five and walked only one.

Tom Saffell collected two of the Pirate hits, all of which were singles.

St. Louis jumped off on Dick Littlefield with one run in the first inning on a walk, Wally Moon's double, an intentional pass to Stan Musial and a sacrifice fly by Rip Repulski, and that was all they needed.

SHARP DIVISION. Based on what they observed in spring practices, Big Ten football coaches stand emphatically divided on the new liberalized substitution rule which permits a player to leave and return to a game once in each quarter.

"A step in the right direction — toward platooning," is what Woodrow (Woody) Hayes, masterminded of Ohio State's 1954 Western Conference and '55 Rose Bowl champions, claims. "I would go all the way and favor the return to unlimited substitution, but the new rule will help and we plan to take full advantage of the change."

Michigan's Bennie Oosterbann thinks another way, to wit:

"It won't make too much difference. It's not going to change the game very much. It didn't in our spring sessions."

Realisitically, Indiana's Bernie Crimmins is convinced that it will be a help, although along lines not mentioned by Hayes.

"It will be safer and better game with the new sub rule," he offered. "It will help the caliber of the game by giving the coach a chance to talk to his players and suggest plays which might help the particular situation at hand."

Iowa's Hawkeyes may throw a combination offense at their rivals this fall—the split-T and the single wing. The new rule will help his club, says Iowa coach Forest Evashevski.

"At this time it appears that we are in no position to outpersonnel anybody in the Big Ten," he said last week. "The new rule probably will help Iowa's two-offense attack. It certainly will permit us to use more kids."

And Purdue's Stu Holcomb gave out with this observation: "It will make it possible to get more effective use out of strictly offensive players as well as provide needed rest for regulars who may be momentarily exhausted or shaken up."

On one point, argument was unanimous. The new rule will enable injured players to be called to the sidelines for checkups and if they're healthy they can return. This, the Big Ten coaches believe, makes a good "safety measure" out of the new rule.

As a serious injury preventive, the new rule has their 100 per cent backing. Otherwise, their interpretations are based strictly on their own individual problems which have come to the surface in spring drills.

PARADISE. Kansas City's ball park is being called the new home run paradise of the American League. In the first 17 home games the Athletics played, 56 home runs were clouted out of the orchard.

The reason is a short left-field fence. By measurement, it is 328 feet from home plate. It looks much shorter, however. A better description would be —more inviting.

At the rate of home runs rifled out of the park in the first 17 games, a season's effort would amount to something like 250 homers—in round figures. This would be more than a hundred more than were swatted in Fenway Park, home of the Boston Red Sox.

Fenway Park, it is said around the circuit, has been the AL's home run playground because of a reasonably short leftfield fence. Last year 139 were hit out of the park. This was tops in the league.

When KC looms on the schedules of the seven rival clubs, the sluggers with the four-ply appetites begin to drool!

NOW HEAR THIS! Call it loyalty to his paycheck source if you will, but old Chollie Ruffing, the former New York Yankee pitcher now toiling with the Cleveland Indians as a coach of pitchers, claims that Herb Score, Tribe rookie flash, throws his fast one with as much zip on it as does Bullet Bob Turley, claimed the fastest thrower in the American League.

"That boy has all he needs to be one of the great pitchers of our time," offered the old redhead, former Long Beacher, the other day. "His fast ball is as fast as Turley's, his curve is better, his control is improving and he has the youth. In other words, he has all the tools"

A contradictory report comes from the Detroit Tigers:

"We have seen Turley and have hit against Score," said Bill Tuttle of the Tigers. "Bob throws harder than Herb."

"Turley throws harder," adds Tiger boss Bucky Harris. "Bob does NOT throw as hard as Lefty Grove, Bob Feller and Dazzy Vance did in their prime."

The jury may be out a long time on this one!

ON THE LAM. Don't tell anybody I told you, but that man with the "silver strands among the gold" seen gum-shoeing around the Southland last week was Red Strader, coach of the San Francisco 49ers. He's in the Southland on a scouting mission.

In fact, all the 49er hired hands are living out of suitcases these days. Red Hickey, who used to handle the ends for the Los Angeles Rams, is doing the Big Ten and the midwest. Phil Bengstom is thrashing through the Pacific Northwest, and Frankie Albert is operating in the bay area.

They're looking for "sleepers," some of the 1954 collegians who were overlooked in the draft!

Wonder whatever happened to the Rams?

Turley Wants Right Score, Not Herbie

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Bob Turley of the Yankees cheerfully conceded the major league strikeout title Saturday to Herb Score, Cleveland's spectacular rookie southpaw.

Turley and Score, probably the two fastest pitchers in baseball, have each struck out 57 batters so far.

Many believe that Turley, who struck out 185 men last year and wound up tied with Robin Roberts of the Phillies for the major league lead, will win the title going away this year. Even though he lost his last start after five straight victories, he still fanned 11 Indians.

"As far as I'm concerned, Score can have the strikeout title," Turley says. "I notice that some of the papers are trying to build up a 'race' between him and me for the strikeout title, but I don't intend getting involved in anything like that.

"If I can just help the Yankees win the pennant, Score can have the strikeout title and any other title he wants. The only title I'm interested in is the world champion title for the club."

Turley admits that "it's only natural to want to be first in anything, even in strikeouts," but he insists they're not that important.

"What's the good of striking out 10 or 12 men if you lose the ball game?"

Some cynics may get the idea that the right-handed Yankee fast-baller acquired in a trade with Baltimore during the winter is a lot more interested in his strikeout total than he lets on. But that isn't the case at all. In the last game he pitched Wednesday against Cleveland, he took over the strikeout leadership from Score temporarily but his first question after the game ended was:

"How many did I walk?"

The answer to that question was eight and those walks contributed heavily toward his defeat.

"My control is something else that interests me much more than strikeouts," Turley says.

"I've improved it quite a bit in the last year but I still have a long way to go. I'm still working on it."

Turley's best pitch, of course, is his fast ball and perhaps the greatest tribute to it was paid by a specially-designed machine which revealed that he had thrown a ball even faster than Bob Feller did in his prime.

Howard Delivers in No. 4 Slot, Cleans Up on Tigers

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Rookie Elston Howard celebrated his installation into the cleanup spot with a dramatic ninth-inning triple that capped a three-run rally Saturday and gave the New York Yankees an uphill 7-6 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Howard's game-winning blow came off southpaw Al Aber and scored Joe Collins and Mickey Mantle. Southpaw Billy Hoeft, who nursed a 6-4 lead until the ninth, was chased in that frame when a single by pinch-hitter Eddie Robinson, a walk to Collins and Mantle's single produced the Yankees' fifth run.

The loss was charged to Hoeft, who yielded 11 of the Yankees' 12 hits, including Hank Bauer's seventh homer in the fifth inning, plus triples by Howard, Mantle and Bauer.

Jim Konstanty, the third Yankee pitcher, checked the Tigers on two hits over the last three innings to register his first victory of the season.

Detroit chased Yankee starter Bob Grim and broke a 3-all tie with three runs in the fifth on two walks, a single by Harvey Kuenn, a sacrifice fly and doubles by Al Kaline and Ray Boone.

Kaline, the American League's leading hitter who raised his average to .380 with a single and double, drove in Detroit's first run in the opening inning with a single after Fred Hatfield had looped a double to left.

Yogi Berra's single and Billy Hunter's double to right-center tied the score in the second inning but the Yankees went ahead with two runs in the third on Bauer's triple, an infield out, Howard's first triple of the game and Berra's single.

2nd Jensen Homer Nips A's in 13th, 3-1

BOSTON (U.P.)—Jackie Jensen's two-run homer in the bottom of the 13th inning, his second of the game, broke a 1-1 tie and gave the Boston Red Sox a 3-1 victory over the Kansas City Athletics Saturday.

The payoff blow was Jensen's seventh of the year and came off veteran Johnny Sain to spoil an excellent relief job for the former New York Yankee ace.

Sain pitched hitless ball after retiring the side in the 10th when Kansas City starter Art Ditmar loaded the bases. However, Sain gave up a single to Harry Agganis with one out in the 13th and then served the home run ball that Jensen hit barely fair down the leftfield foul-line.

Jensen gave Red Sox starter Leo Kiely a 1-0 lead in the fourth when he belted his first homer over the leftfield wall.

Kansas City tied the count in the fifth on three successive singles with two men out with Ditmar, who had three singles, driving in Joe DeMaestri.

Moon Scorns Cherished Soph Jinx

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (U.P.) —Wally Moon, the 1954 rookie of the year, refuses to take one of baseball's most cherished beliefs seriously.

"The sophomore jinx," Moon said, "is something that's entirely in a man's mind. There's no reason at all why a hitter shouldn't be just as good or better after a year's experience.

And the St. Louis Cardinals' outfielder's performance certainly upholds his opinion.

Moon, who regards the first 100 times at bat as a fair index, has all the figures on his side.

Last year he had 35 hits in the first hundred trips; this year it's 34.

But there's a good explanation for even that slight discrepancy.

He would have exactly the same number of safe blows were it not for a base-running booboo by teammate Frank Smith. In the April 14 opener with Milwaukee, pitcher Smith, on first, failed to run to second base as the potential winning run crossed the plate. The emmission converted Moon's clean single to right field into a force play, depriving Wally of the hit and the run batted in.

Moon, a devout believer in conditioning, credits his fine second-year start to a rigorous spring training schedule.

"I played winter ball before last season," Moon said. "I think that helped me to get away to a fast start and I wanted to be just as ready this year."

The 25-year old flycatcher, a native of Bay, Ark., now lives in St. Louis, which he visited as a basketball star with Texas A&M University.

The amazing parallel between his hitting in 1954 and this year is not limited to the garden variety of base hits.

He had four home runs after 100 trips last year.

This year, naturally, he again has four.

Phillies Drop 12th Straight

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Philadelphia Phils had the satisfaction of smacking ace Warren Spahn out of the game Saturday, but 6 1/3 innings of fine relief hurling by Ernie Johnson and Ed Mathews' homer gave the Milwaukee Braves a 5-4 uphill victory. The loss was the 12th straight for the last place Phillies.

Mathews' 400-foot bases empty homer off starter and loser Jack Meyer in the sixth inning provided the winning run but the key blow in the Braves' win was catcher Del Crandall's three-run double in the fourth. With the bases loaded on two singles and a walk and two away, everybody took off when Crandall hit and all made it home as the ball bounced off the leftfield fence.

Richardson Sparks Tulane to SEC Title

NEW ORLEANS (U.P.) — Davis Cupper Hamilton Richardson led the way Saturday as Tulane's powerful tennis team swept to its 13th Southeastern Conference tennis championship in 17 attempts.

Richardson, National Collegiate Athletic Association champion and third-ranking national amateur, breezed by Florida's John Hires, 6-0, 6-0, in a short 33 minutes in the number one singles to become the first four-time winner of the SEC singles championship.

Pitch 'n Putt Wininger 3 Shots Ahead

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (U.P.)—Bo Wininger, the 33-year-old Oklahoman playing his third year as a pro, pitched and putted himself into a three-stroke lead at the three-quarter mark of the $15,000 Hot Springs Open golf tournament Saturday with a 54-hole total of 202.

The chunky former Oklahoma A&M golfer fired his third straight sub-par round, a 34-34—68, over the Hot Springs Country Club's little-used No. 3 course to stay three strokes in front of veteran Johnny Palmer of Charlotte, N. C., who moved up into second spot as some of the half-way-point leaders floundered.

Wininger had his shorts irons working to perfection and he didn't have a really long putt all day.

Doug Ford, who was tied with Wininger for the lead at the start of the round, skidded to a one-over-par 73 and wound up in third spot at 207 along with Cary Middlecoff, who had his putting troubles and finished with a 71.

KARIM---

fans cheered Karim's victory despite making Golden Abbey the favorite. Karim had never demonstrated ability to go more than a mile but like Swaps he proved equal to added distance when pointed for it.

At the start of the race Blue Trumpeter shot out in front of the small field of five starters and by the turn had opened up a lead of two lengths. Dawn Lark stayed on his heels while jockey Ralph Neves had Karim tucked in on the rail in third position. James Session was fourth and Golden Abbey last as they headed into the backstretch.

But as the field neared the final turn Neves made his move, and turning into the stretch he collared Blue Trumpeter and began pulling away. Johnny Longden brought Golden Abbey to the outside and he closed gamely but could not catch the leaders and at the finish Karim was two and a half lengths in front.

The race had a gross value of $26,900 and a net to Karim's owner, Mr. and Mrs. John Eyraud, of $14,600. Karim, a five-year-old gelding, recently captured the Pacific Handicap at Golden Gate Fields and last winter won the Christopher J. Fitzgerald Handicap at Santa Anita.

It was Neves day all the way. He also scored on Deuce Admiral at $5.50 in the opener, on Fox Mor at $25.50 in the second and Noble Bell at $14.10 in the finale.

A crowd of 41,000 sent $2,448,421 through the pari-mutuel windows.

High Gun, Voltage Rack Up Victories

High Gun, the 1954 three-year-old champion, successfully launched his handicap campaign at Belmont Park Saturday with a runaway victory in the $36,400 Metropolitan Handicap despite high weight of 130 pounds.

Jockey Tony DeSpirito, riding the King Ranch colt for the first time, steered High Gun around the field entering the stretch and then broke the 62nd running of the stake wide open as High Gun pulled away from the field in the straightaway. He finished the mile in a sparkling 1:35 3/5.

It was the fifth fastest clocking in the history of the Metropolitan and it carried High Gun over the finish line four and one-half length ahead of James C. Brady's Artismo.

Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Joe Jones was third in the field of 10. High Gun was the favorite and paid $5:70.

High Voltage defeated eight other leading 3-year-old fillies in winning the $20,000-added Black-Eyed Susan Stakes at Pimlico.

The Wheatley Stable star, champion of her division in 1954, scored by a length over Pin Oak Farm's Bless Pat. Louis L. Haggin's Hen Party nipped Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Sometime Thing in a photo for third.

Ridden by Eddie Arcaro, who piloted her to victory in the Acorn at Belmont last May 4, High Voltage paid $4.60, $4 and $2.80.

Willie Shoemaker, driving home a winner on the underrated Beau Busher, took the big one at Golden Gate. Beau Busher negotiated the mile and a sixteenth $50,000 Oakland Handicap in 1:42 4/5 and paid $7.90.

Bezaha, with Gordon Glisson up, was second, and Guilton Madero, ridden by I. Valenzuela, was third.

The race was the feature of Golden Gate's closing day.

CONFERENCE HITS RECRUITING

Texas Aggies on Probation

HOUSTON, Tex. (U.P.) — The Southwest Conference put Texas A & M on two years probation and voided all of the school's letters of intent with prospective athletes Saturday in a heavy-handed slap at athletic director-coach Paul (Bear) Bryant's recruiting practices.

Aggie participation in post-season sports also was banned.

The stiff action came after warnings in September and December, 1954, that serious charges of recruiting violations had been made against the coaches and alumni and that further irregularities would be "met with prompt action."

But, conference secretary Howard Grubbs said in a prepared statement, "since these meetings, other violations have occurred . . . and the conference concluded that to improve recruiting practices more drastic action than further warnings were necessary."

Bryant accepted the "drastic" rebuke and punishment. He said A & M is an educational institution of "high standards" and he wants to correct any wrongs. But he said he doesn't think any rules were broken by his staff.

"We're not giving up. Our recruiting program will continue but we'll do all our own recruiting from now on without help from anybody," said Bryant.

Bryant was hired last year from Kentucky to improve the school's all-around athletic fortunes, but particularly those of the football team. The Texas Aggie team last fall won only one game.

To improve this situation, Bryant and his staff waged a relentless campaign throughout Texas to persuade high school athletes to attend Texas A & M. On the basis of the number of "name" players signed, the campaign apparently was a success.

Stanford Gains Loop Golf Title

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Stanford University captured the first four places and team honors in the Pacific Coast Conference Southern Division golf tournament Saturday.

The Indians collected 1218 points while University of Southern California scored 1297 for second place.

Phil Getchell, Stanford senior from Medford, Ore., was low scorer with 75-70-73-73-291 for the 72-hole, two-day tourney. Par is 71.

The next six ranking scorers included: Warren Daily, Stanford, 77-78-74-77-306; Chuck Van Ling, Stanford, 82-75-73-80-310; Fred Brown, Stanford, 78-76-78-79-311; Mike Starkman, UCLA, 77-80-79-77-313; Ed Trisley, SC, 78-83-80-79-320; and Don Patre, California, 80-79-80-82-321. Team results: Stanford 1218; SC 1297; California 1309; and UCLA 1321.

LaBonte Cracks Two SCIAC Swim Records

Whittier College's Jerry LaBonte, coach of the Long Beach YMCA team, set two new SCIAC records in the all-conference swim meet at Caltech Saturday.

The 1955 edition of the Long Beach City Championships — championship flight qualifying next Sunday—should be one of the most exciting in the 30-year history of the tournament.

Already there are 128 aspirants for the 64 championship slots and the prospective field is as marked with quality as it is with quantity.

Starting at the top, Del Walker of Virginia CC will be back to defend his title as will runner-up Craig Olson of Lakewood. Walker defeated Olson, 2 and 1, in the 36-hole finals last year.

In analyzing the field, one observation becomes paramount. Just as the young players are gaining prominence in the national scene, it appears that the 1955 City Championships will also boast an unusual amount of outstanding young talent.

Let's take a look. There are:

Dick Clover . . . the new Southern California Publinx champion.

Sandy Mosk Jr. . . . the Riviera CC youth who was runner-up to Dr. Bud Taylor in the 1954 Southern California Golf Association championships.

Lolo Saldana . . . the former Catalina Island Bobby Jones tournament victory, recently discharged from the Army.

Johnny Tate . . . the ex-Wilson High ace who was runner-up to Irv Cooper in the 1952 City Championships. Tate is in the Navy stationed at San Diego.

Johnny Lucas . . . the City Junior champion who last Sunday set the unofficial Recreation Park course record with a nine-under par 63.

Al Chandler . . . the former National Caddy champion who last Monday won the Southern California Junior College tournament representing El Camino JC.

Bob Darnell . . . the Recreation Park sub-par shooter who two weeks ago played the back nine at the Park in six-under par 30.

Dick McBride . . . the Loyola University ace who reached the quarter-finals in last year's championships.

Bobby Lewis, Dan Talbot and Dick Smith . . . Long Beach City College standouts. Lewis was the gallery favorite of last year's play, reaching the semi-finals and nearly catching Olson in a stirring stretch rally.

Keith Lopp and Mike Fedderly . . . Poly High stars. Fedderly was medalist in the recent L. A. City Championships and co-medalist in the Inglewood So. Cal. prep tournament.

Pinky Stevenson . . . Wilson High's team leader, who was a quarter-finalist in the 1954 National Junior Championships.

Ray Echols and Jim Kardas . . . Santa Ana CC and Hacienda CC junior aces, respectively.

So if youth must be served, there's certainly every indication that this could be its tournament.

But now comes the grizzled,

JOHNNY TATE

throaty dissensions of the "old-timers"—many who have watched the youths crumble under the championship competition in previous years.

Walker will be shooting for victory No. 5, and although hampered by a lame back most of the year, must be considered the one to beat.

The only other former champion in the field is Wally Taft, the veteran Orange County sports scribe, who probably has held more club championships than any other man in history. Taft won the city title in 1949. Medalist last year with a 66, he was upset in the very first round only to bounce back and capture the Mayor's Flight.

Two past semi-finalists back for another try are Stan Schulte of Hacienda CC and Chuck Brinkus of Los Angeles. Doug McKay, a veteran of many years of competition, is another returnee.

Another top entry is Neil Burgess of Western Ave.

It's quite a lineup—but only ONE will remain comes late afternoon, Sunday, June 5!

ENTRY DEADLINE for the National Public Links Championships to be held July 11-16 at Indianapolis, Ind., is June 3. Sectional qualifying is scheduled for June 19 at Griffith Park. Entries can be obtained at all public course golf shops.

GLEN ORGAN, 78-12, won the Virginia Men's Club Saturday Sweepstakes with a 66.

Tied for second at 68 were T. W. Buchholz, 88-20; Roy Brown, 80-12, and Jess Shakelton, 79-11. A stroke behind in third place were C. F. Van de Water, 86-17, and John Cone, 84-15.

Blind bogey (71) victors were Art Jones, Norman Lucas, Fred Kerns, Adm. Gillilian, Paul McBride, L. M. Foto, Delbert Walker, Charles Whitchurch and Dr. Charles Foulks.

Husky Crew Outrows Cal

SEATTLE (U.P.)—The University of Washington's smooth stroking crew outrowed California's varsity on Lake Washington Saturday to win the 2¾-mile rowing duel by six lengths.

Washington's victory in the varsity race came after a near tragedy was averted in the previous race when a Washington oarsman "caught a crab" and was flipped overboard. Bowman Doug Wetter's oar hit the water on the back stroke and tossed him into the drink a half-mile from the finish line.

The exhausted rower was having a hard time keeping his head above water and Ivar (Buzz) Birkeland, Washington's lightweight crew coach, dove to the rescue and kept Wetter afloat until he was picked up. The accident cost Washington's junior varsity any chance of winning that race, and the Bears finished four and a half lengths in front.

Washington's freshmen defeated the California frosh by eight and three-quarters lengths in their two-mile go.

Washington won the varsity event in 14:29, far off the course record set by Cal in 1949. California's time was 14:54.6.

WILLOWICK PROS

Boggs, Willis to Sepulveda

Dick Boggs, head professional at Willowick golf course in Santa Ana, has accepted a similar position at the new Los Angeles County Sepulveda Dam courses in the San Fernando Valley. Don Willis, his assistant at Willowick, will accompany him to the new location.

Boggs served as assistant pro at Lakewood from 1950 through 1952 and has been at Willowick since 1953. He is presently the SC-PGA tournament chairman. Willis, a Long Beach City College graduate, was assistant at Virginia CC before moving to Willowick in 1953.

The Sepulveda post was considered the most desirable in the Southland and it is a major boost for both Boggs and Willis. There has been no announcement of their replacements at Willowick.

Field of 5 in Miracle Mile at Coliseum

Wes Santee, the United States threat to the four-minute mile, and Denmark's Gunnar Nielsen, who has beaten Santee three times in indoor competition, will clash in a field of five in the third running of the "Miracle Mile" race Friday night in the Coliseum Relays.

This will mark the first time Santee and Nielsen have met outdoors. In one of Nielsen's three wins over the Lanky Kansan he set an indoor mark of 4:03.6. Santee had held the record of 4:03.8.

Darkhorse among the five entrees in the mile is Billy Tidwell of Emporia State Teachers' College in Kansas. The speedy Tidwell turned in a 47.0 and 1:48.6 in the 440 and 880 in the Kansas and Drake Relays, respectively. He also has beaten Santee twice in the mile run.

Sid Wing of SC and Phil Coleman from Champaign, Ill. round out the field. Wing's best clocking is 4:11.7 while Coleman has run around 4:10 several times. Wing has plenty of early speed and is expected to pace the field for the first three laps.

Another feature "grudge" match pits the world record holder, the Olympic champ, Olympic runner-up and the national collegiate champ in the javelin throw.

World record holder Bud Held of the San Francisco Olympic Club will attempt to hit the 270-foot mark. Held's world mark currently stands at 263-10.

Nielsen, the Copenhagen newspaper man, arrives in Los Angeles this afternoon at 2:30 after a trans-polar flight from Copenhagen on Scandinavian Airlines.

JUDO TOURNEY

L.B. Entries at Olympic

Four local boys will enter the third annual AAU National Judo tournament to be held in Los Angeles May 28-29. Entries from the Long Beach Judo School will be Al Quast, Ron Saragin, Dave Cox and Leo Buckman. John Ogden is coach.

All contestants must be amateurs as defined by the AAU. A "round-robin" elimination will be held between the champions of each weight classification to determine the tournament's grand champion.

A touring Black Belt team from Japan will put on an exhibition to highlight the opening night's festivities at Olympic Auditorium.

The HOT CORNER

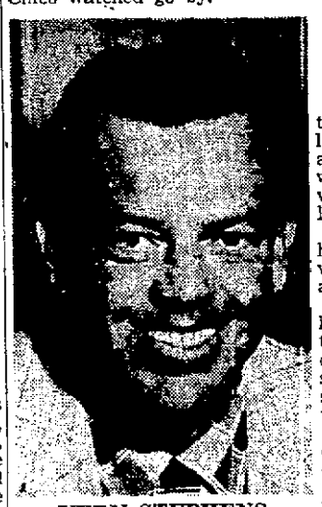

by VERN STEPHENS

CHICAGO—The best rules change in recent years, in my estimation, has been the narrowing of the catcher's box. It has added more skill and excitement to the game.

It has made a difference in at least four games that I know of. The offensive team won three of the games, lost the other.

The one I remember best is the time Baltimore's Don Ferrarese tried to intentionally walk Chico Carrasquel of the White Sox.

Farrarese threw the first one right over the plate for a strike, but then threw the next three wide. However, Chico tried to slap at one of them, but missed as the count leveled out to 2-2. Farrarese tossed another intentional ball to make it 3-2, but then got real cute and came in with a wide curve that Chico watched go by.

VERN STEPHENS

Nellie Fox, the next batter, walked (but not intentionally) to load the bases with two out . . . but Minoso popped up to end the inning.

As there were two men on, the bases would have been loaded had Carrasquel walked and the base on balls to Fox would have forced across the winning run for the Sox, who lost the game in the next inning.

That's one time Chico should have accepted an intentional walk without trying to slap at a wide pitch.

The other three games, though, have gone the other way with the batters reaching out when one got a little too close and slapping the ball into the opposite field for a base hit to score the winning runs.

We all think the smaller catcher's box has added a lot of color to the game. The intentional walk is no longer "automatic."

PAUL RICHARDS HAS SOME DANDY "PETS" on his Baltimore club.

For instance, one of them—a pitcher—is the "sleepingest" player in the major leagues. His "hobby" has also caused him much embarrassment at times, but this hasn't cut a minute off his sleeping time.

One of the pitcher's favorite tricks is to get a pair of sun glasses the outfielders use, put them on while sitting on the bench . . . and then doze off.

Twice that I know of before leaving the club and moving on to the White Sox the rest of the Orioles have gone to the clubhouse and left him sound asleep on the bench.

One time during spring training, we got dressed at our own clubhouse, boarded a bus for a short trip to a neighboring city for a game and then came back by bus to shower in our own clubhouse before returning to our hotel.

This player slept all the way over to the game, during the contest . . . and all the way back.

He was still sleeping soundly when the rest of the team got off to shower. The bus returned to the garage with him still stretched out in a back seat. He didn't wake up for a couple of hours and you can imagine his amazement to find himself in the bus barn.

He had to walk practically all the way across town in his uniform to the clubhouse to get his clothes and billfold so he would have cab fare back to the hotel.

But this did stop his siestas? Nope, the very next day he slept through a full 10 innings of play!

PAY AS YOU SEE

Subscription TV Near

NEW YORK (AP)—If the Federal Communications Commission decides to approve subscription television this year, it is entirely possible stay-at-homes will have to pay to watch baseball games next season.

All three metropolitan clubs—the New York Giants, New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers—have expressed interest in this new source of income, according to Arthur Levey, head of one of the three firms manufacturing pay-as-you-see equipment. If clearance comes this year, Levey added, his outfit, Skiatron, Inc., will be ready to service baseball games by next spring. Hearings on the subject will begin June 9 in Washington but Levey does not expect a final decision until the fall.

"We've discussed the matter with Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers, Horace Stoneham of the Giants and Dan Topping of the Yankees," said Levey, "and they all expressed a keen interest."

If subscription television is adopted, Levey said he envisioned a 25-cent charge for every set tuned into a baseball or football game, a $1.00 charge for such special features as a heavyweight champion fight. No programs would be sponsored. At this rate, he estimated a baseball club would clear as much as $40,000 to $50,000 a game.

Penn, Cornell Top Rowers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pennsylvania and Cornell, bitter football rivals, rowed off Saturday with top honors in the hotly contested 10th running of the Eastern Collegiate Sprint Rowing Championships.

The big victory went to Coach Joe Burk's Penn Crew, which trounced all opposition in a one-sided triumph in the varsity championships. Its time was only a tenth of a second over the course record.

Less spectacularly Cornell won the $30,000 Rowe Cup by collecting the most points in the three-event Potomac Regatta rowed partly in the rain.

Cornell, which had been given a fair chance to sweep the river in the varsity, junior varsity, and freshman races, won only the Jayvee event. That victory came only after a thrilling stretch duel with lightly regarded Yale. But by finishing second in both the varsity and frosh races, Cornell earned a total of 18 points. Penn, which finished last in the finals of both the Jayvee and frosh races, wound up with a total of 10 points. Harvard, winner of the frosh race, had 8.

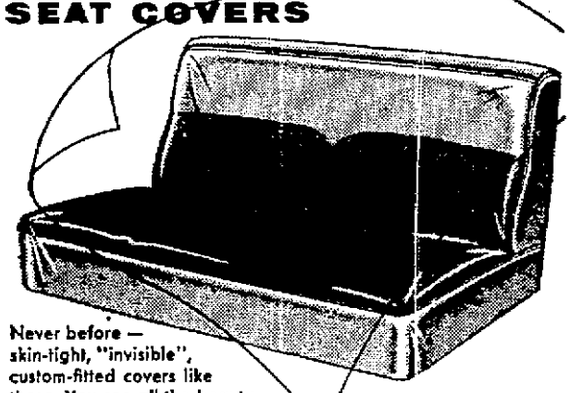

Navy, regatta champion for the last three years failed to collect a point, finishing dead last in the varsity finals.

Jack Kramer Admits Illegal Amateur Pay

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Jack Kramer, now a professional tennis promoter, disclosed Saturday in an article written for This Week Magazine that he took money for playing tennis when he was the amateur tennis champion of the U. S. in 1946 and 1947.

Kramer said that in view of the fact that tennis was a 52-week a year business for anyone playing at the top tournament level, and that inasmuch as he had "a wife and a family on the way," he couldn't live on the $10 a day and travel expenses, the going rate at the time.

"So I became a professional without mentioning the fact," he said. "This will be news to the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, whose governing body, had it known I was being paid by tournament sponsors, would have thrown me out of the game."

Kramer suggested that "the feasible method to take hypocrisy out of amateur tennis is the open tournament with the professionals and amateurs competing for the prize money."

Investigate Big Money Bet on Mederos

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia police continued their investigation of the Harold Johnson-Julio Mederos fight along the lines that big money was bet on Mederos, the 4-1 underdog in the scheduled 10-round bout at the Arena last May 6.

Inspector John F. Driscoll said Saturday he had learned that an out-of-town gambler arrived in Philadelphia about noon the day of the fight and proclaimed he had a bundle of cash to bet on Mederos. Driscoll said he learned that local gamblers, fearing a "fix," steered clear of the visitor and would not cover his bets.

Johnson collapsed at the end of the second round. Tests made by physicians and chemists disclosed the fighter had traces of a barbiturate in his system.

Mederos was given a technical knockout victory.

Driscoll said he was seeking the visiting gambler.

Promoter Herman Taylor, who staged the bout in cooperation with the International Boxing Club of New York, Referee Dave Beloff and Judges Nat Lopinson and Jim Mina are to be questioned by police.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

By BERT RESNIK

(Fishin' for Donnell Culpepper)

Seventeen years is a long time for a man to stay away from fishing.

And it's the duty of every self-respecting father to introduce his son to the singular fascinating relaxation that accompanies the sport.

It was our day off so 7-year-old Davey and I hopped into "Old Hoss" (our car) and took off for Irvine Lake.

The evening before had been one of eager anticipation. We examined and reexamined the two poles the conductor of this column, Don Culpepper, had provided us.

We put hooks on one, figuring we'd let the other go until we go into the boat. That way there would be less chance of tangling the poles in the car—we thought.

We left the house a little after 8 a. m. and I did most of the talking. The thing I liked most, I told Davey, was that we are going to be fishing with worms.

Seventeen years ago worms were the principal entree for the sunfish in Lake Zurich, Ill.

While still in the car, I had Davey put a life preserver on and repeated my warnings about standing in the boat or rocking it.

We boarded the rowboat at 9 a.m. and a few mimnutes later dropped anchor about 50 feet off the pier. I baited Davey's hooks, then started searching my pockets for the other hooks.

They were in a safe place atop the televisison set about 30 miles away.

We rowed back to shore and I bought some more hooks.

We got back in the boat at 9:45 a.m. Fishing was wonderful—for everybody else.

At 12:11 a.m. Davey had a nibble. The nibble got away. Davey was very excited. And you know what excitement will do.

So before it did too much, we headed for the little wooden house across the way where "MEN" was scrawled. I cautioned Davey again not to stand up in the boat.

Near the shore, I stood up in the boat prepared to jump out and beach our launch.

I didn't get a chance. My heels chased my head and I went spilling into the lake. I did not, however, tip the boat.

I emereged and got aboard.

"You sure got wet, Dad," said Davey. "How come you didn't take a life preserver?"

Sometimes kids ask the darndest questions. Just no answering them.

At 2:45 p.m. Davey caught a fish, the first in his young life.

I could have kissed that croppie. Seemed to me it had literally jumped into our boat just to make a small boy happy.

Still soaked, I was ready to call it a day. But Davey didn't think it was a good idea. We had to stay out until I caught one, too. Mom would sure kid me if I didn't.

So, ok, we stayed.

The fish didn't like my worms nor did they show any more preference for Davey's. I remembered that Don had told me to buy something else but all I could think of was lice. I was sure that was wrong. (Later I found out it was li-cut.)

At 5:45 p.m., the wind whipping my soaked skin like a December snow, I finally caught a fish. It was a real small one and I'm not sure it was recognized by any piscatorial species.

But it was a fish and they couldn't take that away from it.

So we headed home.

Mom (Annette) was tremendously admiring, between sporadic fits of choked laughter. Our 3-year-old daughter, Eve, touched one of the fishes tails.

As I washed them off, the croppie opened and shut its mouth. It was—believe it or don't—still alive. Davey's eyes widened, but he didn't say anything—then.

We put the fish in the refrigerator and that was that.

The next morning I was at work — another singular fascinating relaxation with much less strain—when I received a call from home.

Mom put Davey on the phone. He was sobful.

The fishes were still alive, he said. Why should we kill them. He hadn't meant to hurt them. Couldn't I come home so we could take them to the bay and throw them back in.

Seventeen years is a long time for a man to stay away from fishing. It's going to be longer next time.

FISHING ROUNDUP

Night fishing at Catalina Island remains red hot! Sixty-four anglers on three Pierpoint Landing boats landed 29 big white sea bass and 39 yellowtail Thursday night and early Friday. The fishermen reported they lost at least 80 white sea bass hookups.

Daylight catches of white sea bass at Catalina have slowed considerably, but yellowtail are on the upgrade. San Clemente Island continues to produce yellowtail. Halibut have moved into the Horseshoe Kelp area.

Fish-off for the first qualifying period in the San Diego Yellowtail Derby is Wednesday. The second qualifying period got under way today. Top qualifier for the first period is Dick Fleming of San Diego with a 50-pound 3-ounce yellow taken at the Point Loma kelp beds.

Trout plants were made by the Department of Fish and Game during the past few days in Big Rock Creek, Crystal Lake, Jackson Lake, East, North and West Forks of the San Gabriel River, Los Angeles County; Holy Jim, San Juan and Trabuco Creeks, Orange County; Big Bear Lake, Deep Creek (at Bowen Ranch), Falls, Forsee, Grass Valley, Diversion, Mill, Miller Canyon and Mountain Home Creeks, San Bernardino County; and Boulder Creek, Doane Lake, Pine Valley Creek, San Luis Rey River and Sweetwater River (Green Valley Camp area), San Diego County.

Privately-operated Irvine Lake will be stocked Monday with 1,000 large trout. Plantings will be made each Monday.

12 Rivals Out to Cool 'Ice'

By BOB RUSKAUFF

The guy who tried to talk his way out of trouble saying "I didn't know it was loaded" is no relative of Carl Maginn, the Glendale speedboat ace who defends his National Cracker Box runabout championship May 30 on Marine Stadium.

Nationals for the rough-shod and colorful fleet will feature running of the seventh all-Western Memorial Day inboard sweepstakes.

Cracker Box entry list, as revealed Saturday, bids to be an "unlucky 13" boats. And every rival in the field will be loaded. The target: Maginn and co-pilot Don Oakley aboard Hot Ice.

For the speedboater-contractor it's a case of double trouble. Hot Ice not only defends national honors but won out in the class last Memorial Day.

To date the Hot Ice combo has had it rough in western circuit meets leading to the classic here. At Bakersfield the boat flipped and sunk. At Parker, Ariz. she was rammed in starting maneuvers and forced from action.

All real threats to the Hot Ice combo are Southlanders and unquestionably most dangerous are the Van Nuys brothers, Bob and Tom Patterson with Hot Cinders.

Almost as rough will be the Bakersfield father-son combination of Earl Johns and son Ronald with It'l Do, and the No Go of Pico with Paul Pierce and Robert Rice aboard.

Other top goers include Monkey Motion (not the one involved in the recent Marine Stadium accident), Princess Lynn, Hot Toddy, Shiftless, Zitz Kid, Stir Crazy, Chatterbox and Vaya Con Dioz.

INBOARDS WILL boom it for May 30 here next Sunday at Modesto. Stock outboards race today at Bakersfield. Racing outboards, to clash here June 19 in the Coral Sea regatta for Navy relief, do battle next Sunday at Palmdale, on a brand-new course.

SPRING SERIES sailing races are on tap on two fronts this afternoon. Third and final round of races for some 10 classes is slated by 'Cabrillo Beach YC which has the "welcome sign to all boats bringing three or more entries" according to Rear Commdr. Bill Evans.

Second round Newport Harbor YC races (of three) will be held, starting 1 p.m. First CBYC action starts 11 a.m. off the clubhouse at the foot of Miner St., San Pedro.

TITLE GO---

title in modern days since Bob Fitzsimmons knocked out James J. Corbett at Carson City, Nev., in 1897. Although "Reudy Robert" was born in Cornwall, England, his family moved to New Zealand when he was 9 and most of his fighting was done in America.

The new Ring ratings, soon to be released, list Cockell as the No. 3 challenger, behind Archie Moore and Bob Baker. Unbeaten since he ate his way into the heavy class in '52, Cockell has a spotty lifetime record of 61-10-1. He has been knocked out five times. In '51 Jimmy Slade dropped him five times on the way to a 4th round TKO and in June, 1952, Randy Turpin, former middleweight champ, had him down three times before the referee stopped it in the 11th.

Cockell claims weight-making 181 for Slade and 174¾ for Turpin) weakened him in both instances. Since becoming a 200-pounder he has won the British Empire title from Johnny Williams, beaten American Harry Matthews three times and outpointed Roland LaStarza, a Marciano victim.

A stinging left jab and hook are his best weapons while Marciano throws about everything in the book in combinations. Cockell hasn't fought in 10 months and Rocky has been idle for eight months.

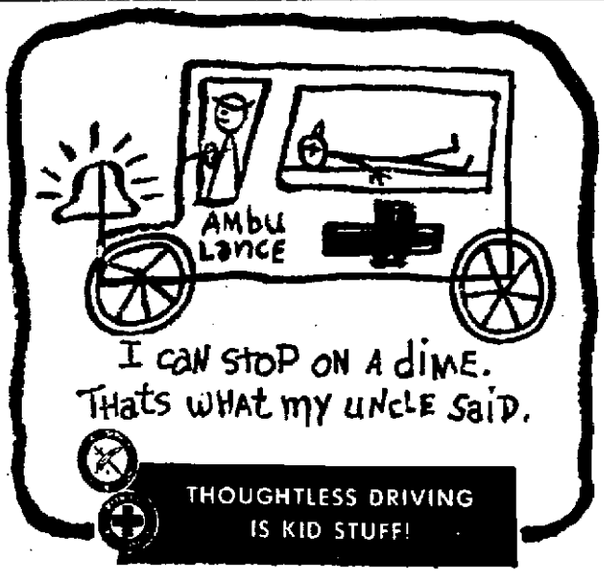

Under California rules, an unusual divided 11-point system will be used for scoring by the referee and two judges. An even round is scored 5½-5½ and others on a 6-5, 7-4 or similar basis. Total points determine the vote of each official with a majority vote needed for a decision.

For the underdog supporters it should be pointed out that Walcott was a 10-1 shot in his first match with Joe Louis and Jersey Joe was a 6-1 short ender the night he flattened Charles to win the title.

Shuffleboard Victor

Ray Cooper won the semi-annual City Association Shuffleboard tournament at Lincoln Park this week by winning two out of three 100-point games. Karl Erickson was second.

EX-UTAH STATE STAR

Gordon Succeeds Cure as Jordan Bee Football Coach

Vaughn W. Gordon, who served as assistant coach the past season, has been named head coach of the Jordan High Class B football team, it was announced Saturday by Athletic Director Rocky Kemp.

Gordon succeeds "Doc" Cure, who recently was appointed varsity football coach at Poly High.

Gordon was an all-state prep quarterback at Tooele, Utah, in the late 1930s and starred for the Utah State Frosh in 1939. However, a promising varsity career was wiped out by a serious injury. After serving 4½ years in the Air Force as a captain during World War II, he returned to Utah State to get his degree. From 1948 through 1953 he served on the school's physical education staff. He has been at Jordan since 1954.

Meanwhile, the post of varsity line coach is still unfilled. Kemp revealed that Dick Brown, who served in that capacity the past season, is giving up coaching to accept the post of "director of activities" at Jordan.

Poly Shotput Star 'Athlete of Month'

Ernie Gordon, Poly High's record-shattering shotputter, has been named Long Beach's "athlete of the month" for April by the Sports Boosters, president Don Otto revealed Saturday.

The big Jackrabbit athlete edged out Wilson High pitcher-outfield Bob Campbell and Jerry LaBonte, local swimming sensation, in the balloting.

Gordon earned top honors with one big effort in the Poly-Wilson dual meet when he cracked Norm Standlee's 18-year-old record with a put of 52 feet, 8 inches. The great toss was the climax to months of hard work by the 6-foot, 2-inch, 220-pound youngster.

Last year, as a sophomore, Gordon could do no better an 43 feet with the 12-pound weight. However, a long winter of practice bore its fruit this spring.

One of the 16-year-old's Christmas presents was a 16-pound shot. Ernie spent hours practicing in the backyard of the Gordon home. James Gordon, Sr., the boy's father who set swimming records in his years at Poly, revealed that about one-third of the Gordon lawn now resembles a sunken garden as a result of Ernie's practice sessions.

Campbell also had himself quite a month. He slashed six hits in 20 trips to the plate for an even .300 average, and pitched a two-hit, 5-3 victory over Compton in his first mound try. Included in his six hits were two homers, one a 350-foot poke which provided the margin of victory over Poly.

LaBonte set a new National YMCA record in the recent championships at Tucson, Ariz., swimming the 200-breaststroke in 2:29.4. A sophomore at Whittier, the 21-year-old swimmer has already cracked six records this spring.

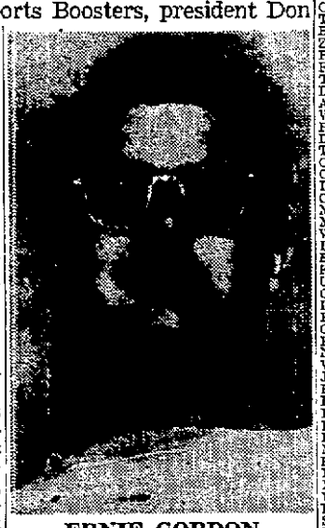

JALOPY MEET

Local Pair in Limelight

A pair of stretch-running experts, Rex Schendley of Lakewood and Fred Russell, Long Beach, figure to hold the limelight today during the CJA jalopy races at Gardena Stadium as they've become the fans' favorites due to their brilliant come-from-behind driving.

Trials open at 1, racing at 2:30 p. m. on the 139th St. and Western Ave. quarter-mile clay oval. Ed Van Eyk, Termite Snyder, Paul and Jasper Lopiccolo, Ted Rosenberger, Frank Kephart, Bill Mitchell, Bob Ross, Rip Erikson, Andy Anderson, Dave James and Fuzzy Anderson are other threats.

A 30-lap main, 15-lap semi-main and two 15-lap "hooligans" top the jalopy speedfest today.

Rockets Go After Third Win Today

After an enforced two weeks vacation because of rain and wet grounds, the Long Beach Rockets finally get an opportunity to notch their third straight victory today. The locals will tangle with 20th Century-Fox in a 2:15 engagement at Recreation Park.

Since dropping their first four games the Rockets have improved greatly. They scored 20 runs and collected 23 hits in their last two outings against the Long Beach All-Stars and Mary Star.

Manager Walt Carson has found a set lineup since the last loss to the Glendale Dons on March 20 and will probably use the same crew again today.

Outfielder Ev Pearson, who leads the Rocket regulars in batting with a healthy .357 average, again will bat in the cleanup spot. With the loss of Don Taylor to organized ball, Pearson is the only Rocket hitting above .300. Next is shortstop Red Meairs with a .294 mark.

Probable Rocket batting order with averages:

George Selfridge, cf	.000
Chuck Winslow, 2b	.261
Jay Cooke, 1b	.235
Ev Pearson, lf	.357
Red Meairs, ss	.294
Bob Carter, rf	.125
Joe Conhran, 3b	.200
Al Zigelman, c	.167
Larry Jones, p	(1-2)

the game, thinks Don is one of the easiest and most cooperative fighters he has ever worked with.

"The only reason I can give for his clamming up on the American press is that he was treated pretty rough by the newspaper crowd in New York. Then, too, some of the boys have been asking such ridiculous questions that it would be silly for him to even try and answer them.

"The boys who have been kicking about Cockell's interviews should have been around when Tommy Farr fought Louis. Farr wouldn't talk to anybody—not even his own manager. And when Randy Turpin was over here a few months ago he was awfully hard to handle.

"When you come to comparing fighters I've worked with, Joey Maxim stands out in a class by himself in disposition. He was twice as good in interviews than he ever was in the ring.

"Buddy Baer was another wonderful guy to work with. He was never too busy to answer questions. Joe Louis was another great fellow. The Bomber was one of the most thoughtful guys in the business. He couldn't do enough for you.

"Tony Galento was the worst buzzard of them all. He was downright mean. In one training session, he deliberately butted three sparring partners—cutting them badly. He also was the most foul-mouthed man I've ever worked with.

"Archie Moore and Ray Robinson are a couple of more who are tough to handle.

"I'd put Cockell on a par with Ezzard Charles as a guy to write about . . . not too easy, yet not too hard.

"I think the writers would have far more success with Cockell if they gave him a little credit for being intelligent and also took into consideration the British think and act a bit differently than we do.

"In America, Cockell would be known as a roughneck from the wrong side of the tracks, which makes it all the more important to handle him right. He's sarcastic to those who don't know him, but once you get him in a group of people he knows, he lets his hair down and is the life of the party!"

Morey Shoots 73 in Walker Cup Drill

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (U.P.)—Dale Morey of Indianapolis shot a 73 on the St. Andrews course Saturday for the best score of eight U. S. Walker Cup golfers who tried out the ancient links where the international matches against Britain will be played next week end.

Following the practice rounds, each of the Americans praised the course, especially the condition of the turf. Of the nine-man U. S. team, only Captain Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. V., ever had played St. Andrews before.

Bruce Cudd of Portland, Ore., youngest player on the team at 21, was suffering from a stomach disorder and was the only American who did not work out. He was expected to be in shape for a practice round today, however.

Dick Yost of Portland, Ore., had the next best practice round with a 74, while Campbell and Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N. C., each shot a 75. Lt. Joe Conrad of San Antonio, Tex., went around in 77; Harvie Ward of San Francisco and Jim Jackson of Glendale, Mo., in 78 each, and Don Cherry of Wichita Falls, Tex., in 79.

British observers who watched the Americans play the course were impressed by their performances, especially when it was considered that the Yanks went almost directly to the course from their overnight train ride from London. Par for the layout is 73.

The Walker cup matches will be played next Friday and Saturday. Four doubles matches, in which partners hit alternate strokes, will be played on the first day. Eight singles are scheduled for Saturday.

America has won 13 of the 14 biennial matches that have been played.

Stella Walsh Wins Four SPAAAU Events

Immortal Stella Walsh won four events for individual honors in the women's SPAAAU track and field meet at Bellflower High Saturday.

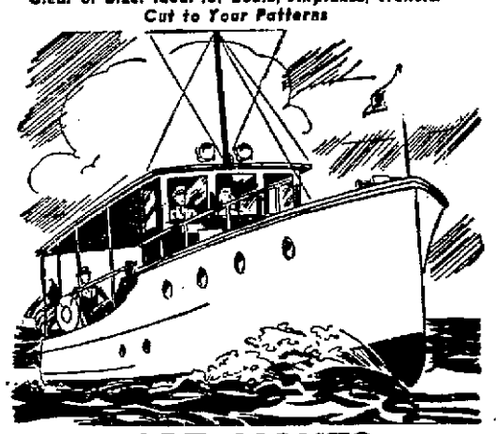

She won the 220 in 27.6, shotput at 35-3, discus at 97-2½ and javelin at 104-6. Diane Saunders of Bellflower was another high-point winner with seconds in the 100, 220 and broad jump.

No records were set but Camilla Mascolo of North Hollywood equalled the meet 50-yard dash standard of 6.4.

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—Mrs. Scott Probasco of Chattanooga, Tenn., took an early lead Saturday to win the 40th annual Womens Southern Amateur Golf Tournament by downing Mary Pat Janssen of Charlottesville, Va., 5 and 4.

Model Kitchen Attracts Parisians

PARIS (U.P.)—U. S. Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks today opened the American Pavilion at the 44th annual Paris Fair to give Parisians a glimpse of a modern middle-class American home, its comforts and gadgets.

Weeks opened the pavillion at where three typical model American rooms were shown with two girls from the American Embassy demonstrating kitchen gadets.

The display included a living room decorated in pastels with modernistic chairs and lamps.

The exhibition which drew the most interest was the gleaming kitchen with lemon yellow electrical appliances and slate grey furniture.

Yul Brynner Gives Men With Bald Pate a Boost

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—To all men who comb their hair with a towel, this is dedicated.

For, in Hollywood, the male star who is flurrying more feminine hearts than Gable or Brando is a broadway actor with a head so bald that even a clue ball looks fuzzy by comparison.

A bald-headed publicity man introduced Yul Brynner to me with a reverence seldom seen outside of church.

"Yul," said the publicist, "has done more for us than Max Factor ever did."

Factor, of course, makes toupees.

One female columnist, seldom enthusiastic, wrote of Brynner: "He has more sex appeal than any star in Hollywood or the theater."

A mile columnist tabbed him: "Mr. Personality."

The secretaries on the Paramount lot, a true testing ground for any star's appeal with women, sigh when he enters the commissary. A veteran cop, in charge of studio tours, comments: "Haven't seen anything like it since Valentino."

Brynner, himself, comments: "I never could see where hair—or the lack of it—had anything to do with a man's appeal to women."

Oddly, Brynner wouldn't have to be bald if he didn't want to be. He's been that way by choice for the last five years.

"I have a good head of hair but I keep it shaved—every three days as a matter of fact."

Actually, his work has had something to do with it. He played the bald-headed king for four years in "The King and I."

Then Cecil B. DeMille signed him for the role of the pharoah, Rameses II, in "The Ten Commandments."

"I learned that the Egyptian kings shaved their heads every three days just like I do. I am all for it. It's so comfortable."

DeMille didn't require him to shave his head. Even a director as overwhelming as DeMille knows its virtually impossible to get a big star to shave his head—even for such a big movie as "The Ten Commandments."

Brynner, half gypsy and half Mongol, looks upon his association with DeMille as an education. Before his starring days, Brynner was one of television's first directors — dating from 1942.

"In my time, I have directed everything from the United Nations to Studio One to the Giants-Dodgers games — even wrestling.

"DeMille is the master of epic direction — mass movements — and I'm learning something new every day."

He hopes to become a director after "the Ten Commandments" and a movie version of "the King and I."

Will he let his hair grow out then?

"I doubt it," he answers. "Baldness can be a great asset."

It Happened Last Night

PEGGY MAKES BIG TIME

NEW YORK—Peggy King and her mother flew in from Hollywood and Peggy promptly got a hansom cab and showed her mother Central Park.

I've covered a couple hansom cab rides before, but never with Peggy King. So I went along.

"Mother left Daddy alone back in Ohio for the first time in 27 years and came to Hollywood to visit me," said the Judy Garland-looking little gal on the George Gobel show. "We phoned him we'd take 3 days more to see New York and he said, 'Oh, NO'."

We were riding up around 72nd St. where it sure does look purty this time of year.

"I think I'm going to learn to sing louder so I can come to New York and do a show!" enthused Peggy. Her mother said she liked this place more than anywhere she'd been.

"Tell him some of the movie stars you met in Hollywood," Peggy told her mother.

Her mother, Mrs. Margaret King—Peggy's also Margaret—a small, quiet woman with glasses, mentioned Walter Brennan, Fred Astaire, Gale Storm, Charles Farrell, and others.

"Johnny Mercer took her to dinner," Peggy said. "And Dinah Shore—well, she took 5 minutes saying 'Aren't you proud of Peggy?'"

And I met George Gobel," Mrs. King spoke up.

"George is very shy," Peggy said when we stopped to take some pictures around the lake. "Mother has a parakeet that says 'I'll be a dirty bird' and George laughed about that.

"We're going to 'Pajama Game'," Peggy went on. "Mother's never seen a show."

Peggy took her mother to the Warwick—swanky surroundings compared with the little West Side apartment about as big as a maid's room that she had 3 years go when she was singing at the Blue Angel and just getting known.

She was just 18 then, but already a well-informed young lady, having sung with the Charles Spivak and Ralph Flanagan bands touring Air Force bases. Then she'd been on the Mel Torme color TV show—all this now seems long ago.

Peggy—deluged with night club and summer stock offers since her success on the Gobel show—and also with a picture deal on at Paramount—was only sure of one plan.

She was going back to Ravenna Township High School for 3 days and sing at a carnival to raise money for the school from which she was graduated in '47.

"You see, I started in school in Pennsylvania when I was 5," Peggy said. "I was born in Greensburg, Pa., 30 miles south of Pittsburgh, and grew up in Ravenna, 30 miles south of Cleveland. I'm always 30 miles south of somewhere . . ."

THE WEEK-END WINDUP

"DON'T PRINT THAT!" When Garry Moore was starting on radio in Chicago, a kid of 16 asked him for a job as a writer. The kid was Steve Allen, whose wife Jayne Meadows is now on Moore's "I've Got a Secret" panel . . . Bart Crum denies dropping a big client: "A wise lawyer never gets out of litigation while he still has a child in college."

Stan Kenton's coming back with a big band . . . Mary Pickford's biography, "Sunshine and Shadow," is due May 19.

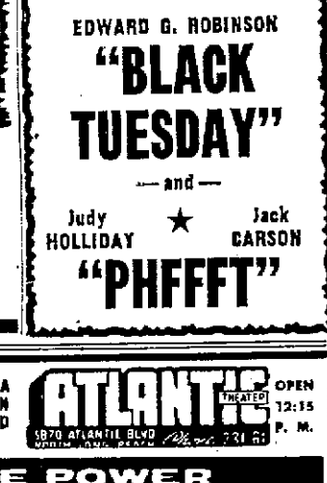

Someone fluffed a line at a Godfrey rehearsal and a bystander whispered, "There goes the next guest star of the Ed Sullivan show."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Frank Cerutti described a mean Broadwayite: "Why, that guy even hates people he don't owe money to!"

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A comic noted for stealing jokes complained to Phil Foster: "How come I get $250 a week while you get $5,000—and I use the same act you do!"

Jimmy Komack claims a western hero today is a hombre who totes two Geiger counters. That's earl, brother.

Singer Lili Monnet to Open Chandelier

Ernie Glaser's new Chandelier Room, 4205 Atlantic Ave., which will open about June 7, will feature a granddaughter of Field Marshal Foch as the French torch singer. This was announced Saturday when Glaser returned from a trip to Chicago, where he arranged the booking.

Lili Monnet, whose ancestor was the famed French leader in the first World War, is a former concert singer who now is appearing in top supper clubs and doing TV work and recordings.

A personality that pleases because of the combination of a continental sophistication and glamour, the Fabulous Lili, as she is billed, will perform in the Chandelier Room as a soloist bringing songs of old France as well as exotic songs of the continent.

LILI MONNET
Granddaughter of Foch

The Chandelier Room itself will be one of the most exotic dining places in the Southland, Glaser explains. Special French buffet luncheons are planned each noon while during the evening hours the menu will feature foreign specialties as well as steaks and prime ribs. Some of the foods will be served on flaming swords. It will have a private dining room for parties. Highlighting the decor of the place is a big chandelier obtained from an old castle.

Charles E. McInnish, 8, was bitten by a snake in the back yard of his home, 1420 Walnut Ave., Saturday, and was given emergency treatment at Community Hospital.

The body's mother, Mrs. Louise McInnish, told police that he was hunting for a baseball, lost in the tall grass, when the snake bit him on the right ring finger.

She said the snake was black with white spots, about 16 inches long and one inch in diameter.

OPENED FOR DINERS

Gallagher's Galley, formerly at Ocean and Pico St., has moved to the Pacific Sportfishing Landing on Pier A in the harbor. With all new equipment and furnishings, the restaurant is operating 24 hours a day. Art Morgan and John J. Turner are the owners.

Gallagher's Galley Now on Waterfront

A new dining room on the waterfront with a vista extending across the shoreline to the mountains, has been opened on Pier A in the harbor.

It is the new Gallagher's Galley, occupying a large section of the new site of Pacific Sportfishing Dock. Both moved to the location to make way for improvements in the harbor and everything is entirely new for Pacific Landing and Gallagher's.

Art Morgan, well known Long Beach cafeman, who with John J. Turner operates Gallahgher's, said more than $25,000 was spent on new furnishings for the restaurant.

The entire north wall of the restaurant is a vast window which gives a full view across the placid waters of a bay formed at the mouth of the Los Angeles River, toward downtown Long Beach.

Pacific Landing is reached by driving out Pier A, at the foot of Pico Ave., nearly a mile. Signs indicate a left turn toward the landing.

With the opening, Morgan announced that Gallagher's will operate 24 hours a day. "We will feature a fishermen's breakfast, buffet lunch and outstanding fish dinners," he added.

"Long Beach waterfront diners should be as well known as Fishermen's Wharf in San Francisco and we hope to help make this possible."

The restaurant will seat 115 persons. The same chefs who were in the old location of Gallagher's Galley at Pico and Ocean Blvd., will be in the new restaurant, Morgan said.

Why Waste Lights Just to Make Laws?

COLUMBIA, S. C. (U.P.)—Darkness crept into the South Carolina House of Representatives while the legislators debated the pros and cons of a deficiency tax measure.

Perturbed by the lack of light, Rep. Matthew Poliakoff of Spartansburg rose and asked if "the state deficit is so great we can't afford to turn on a few lights?"

"Yes, sir," replied House Speaker Sol Blatt of Barnwell, "the Senate has us completely in the dark."

Elbe River Vets Tell 'Wonderful Time' in Russia

PARIS (U.P.) — Nine American veterans arrived from Moscow by plane Saturday after "a wonderful" reunion with Russian veterans they met in the Elbe River link-up 10 years ago.

"It was deeply moving to see again the Soviet soldiers we met at Torgau at noon April 26, 1945, in the ruins of Hitler's Reich," said spokesman Joseph Polowsky of Chicago.

"We all think it was a wonderful, tremendous experience.

"We hope our reunion will help create better feeling between our two nations," he added.

The group landed here from Prague via Amsterdam aboard a Dutch KLM plane. They left by air for New York Saturday night.

Polowsky said he and his eight comrades were "very, very grateful" for the State Department's aid in making the trip possible.

Big Clamshell Taxes Dockers

NEW YORK (AP) — Two husky longshoremen strained and heaved to unload a clamshell from the freighter Pioneer Isle.

The two halves of the shell each are three feet long and weigh more than 200 pounds. The giant shell, of a clam called Tridacna Gigas, was sent to importer James S. Dolan by a friend in Sydney, Australia.

Dolan admitted he didn't quite know what he would do with the thing.

Davies Sells Mansion

Talent-Short Vegas Tries Full Broadway Musical

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (U.P.) — A plan that would have the dual purpose of giving further life to Broadway musicals and solving some of the entertainment problems of the big casino-hotels in Las Vegas will be tried out in the Nevada resort this summer.

Sid Kuller, primarily a writer but also part owner of the new Royal Nevada in Las Vegas and producer of its shows, has just returned west after wrapping up details to present "Guys and Dolls" on the stage of his hotel in August.

He has signed Vivian Blaine, Sam Levene, Robert Alda, B. S. Pully, Tom Pedi, Stubby Kaye and others of the original Broadway cast for the production, which is quite an accomplishment in itself.

"The only difference will be that the show will have to be cut by about 34 minutes," Kuller said. "We'll have a 90-minute production and perform twice nightly seven days a week."

The show, which had a run of almost three years on Broadway and is one of the most highly regarded of modern musicals, is booked into the Royal Nevada for six firm weeks, with three two-week option periods.

Kuller explained that the propect was prompted largely by the increasing problem of getting fresh entertainment at reasonable cost into "the strip" at Las Vegas where 10 plush hotels and their gambling rooms vie for trade.

"Everyone knows about the astronomical sums that these hotels pay for talent," he said. "The price has gone up steadily in recent years until this year we find performers like Mario Lanza and Liberace being booked for $50,000 a week. The $15,000 or $25,000 weekly salaries have been common for some time.

"Granted that the hotels never expect to make money on their shows—they're window-dressing for the casinos—that's just more red ink than even a prosperous gambling place should have to absorb.

"There's another angle. There are only a comparatively few really big names who have a sure-fire box-office draw. Most of them have played Vegas spots over and over again. It seems to me that the time has come to rely on the draw of productions rather than on individuals.

"I figure that 'Guys and Dolls' will represent a weekly running cost to us of around $55,000. In this case we have to create a new production, but the cost of sets, costumes, rehearsals and so forth can be amortized over a six- or eight-week run.

"I hope that later on we won't have to create our own productions, except in the matter of cutting them down," said Kuller. "What I'd like to do is to get touring companies put out by the regular Broadway producers to play the Royal Nevada just as though it were a regular theater date."

SHE CHECKED CHECK ARTIST

NEW ORLEANS (U.P.)—Austin G. Ready of Winter Haven, Fla., had a ready reference when he asked to have a check cashed at a hotel here, police reported.

Why didn't she just call Police Chief C. E. Collins at Dundee, Fla.?, Ready asked Cashier Kathleen Stennett when he presented his personal check for $35.

Miss Stennett did. Sure, Collins knew Ready. He was wanted in Florida for passing bad checks and leaving the state with a mortgaged automobile without authority. And, said New Orleans police who jailed Ready, it looks like Florida will get him.

Aircraft Club Aids Hospitals

Hospitals of the Long Beach area have shared in recent distribution of funds by North American's Donate Once Club, fund raising organization of employes of North American Aviation, it was announced Saturday night.

Presbyterian Community Hospital in Whittier received $15,000 for its building program; Torrance Memorial Hospital received $3,000 for equipment; St. Francis Hospital, Lynwood, received $3,000 for beds in the recovery room.

City of Hope received $5,000 for research equipment.

Whoops! Almost Slipped on Sam!

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House customarily speak of each other in tones of Chesterfieldian elegance.

Sen. Francis Case (R-SD) almost slipped a notch, but caught himself in time.

In a prepared speech, he referred to "smart old Sam Rayburn." But in delivering it he changed it to call Rayburn a "very shrewd statesman who is now Speaker of the House."

Cadillac

One of the Great Steps of His Life!

When a man takes possession of his first Cadillac, many wonderful things happen.

First of all, of course, is the great "lift" he gets from the car itself. When he settles down behind the wheel, turns the ignition key and starts for home—well, it's a great life, and no fooling!

There's a wholly new feeling of security. Weight and size and strength are all about him. There's a new sense of mastery over the car. The response of the engine—the action of the brakes—the easy feel of the steering wheel . . . everything gives him a feeling of confidence he never knew in a motor car before.

And, of course, he can't help noting the quick glances of approval he gets from other motorists. Quite a change from yesterday, when he himself was stealing glances at the people in Cadillacs!

And so it goes on that first wonderful ride—with a new thrill every minute—until the nose of the car turns into the driveway. And then comes the greatest thrill of all—the wild and enthusiastic approval of that little group whose welfare is his constant inspiration.

Don't worry about dinner tonight—let's go for a ride!

This is only the beginning, of course. Every day and month and year adds to the satisfaction. There's the joy of the first cross-country trip; the pride from that first matching of gasoline and mileage; and the constant proof that the dream he dreamed is in almost everybody's heart.

Yes, when a man steps into his first Cadillac, he takes one of life's great steps.

And it's a much, much easier step to take than most people realize. The cost of a Cadillac is remarkably low. And once you own it . . . well, many contend that it is as economical, over the years, as any car you could buy.

Better come in and see us soon. We'll give you a ride that will thrill you—and some facts and figures that may amaze you. Why not make it today?

Guided Missile Showing Set

With MALCOLM EPLEY

ONE of the minor anxieties of life in our community is remembering to put out the rubbish.

The collector comes on a certain morning—and if yours isn't on the curb, you've got it to cope with for another week. It not only is in the way and looks bad, but that ugly pile is a reminder for a whole week that you weren't on your toes—you forgot something.

If you've got it covered up in receptacles, you've got to find some others to handle the extra week's accumulation.

Forgetting to put out the rubbish isn't exactly calamitous, but it's awkward, disturbing, and humiliating.

THIS brings us to the story related by a Lakewood resident who was sleeping happily the other morning when he was awakened by his wife.

She was standing beside the bed in her night clothes, a look of frightened anxiety on her face.

He sat up like a jack-in-the box, thoughts of any number of possible family crises racing through his head.

"Wake up! Wake up!" she shouted. "We forgot to put out the rubbish!"

NOW it was his turn to be excited. He leaped from the bed, glancing through the window and noting that dawn—and garbage collection time—had arrived.

Without waiting to put on a robe, he rushed out the back door, picked up a big box full of rubbish, and staggered with it to the front parking.

He made a second trip, and stood, breathless and relieved, there in the cool dawn.

Suddenly he was aware of strange, clattering noises up down the street. Glancing both ways, he saw his neighbors, industriously carrying rubbish receptacles to their parkings.

All were wearing various styles of night garb, and glancing furtively around to see if anybody was observing them in such attire.

By that time his thoughts were collected, and he realized the why of this seeming mass forgetfulness. A couple of weeks before the day for rubbish collection had been changed. As it happened with him, the others hadn't yet gotten into the new routine, and had awakened in the morning to the alarming realization.

WELL, he got himself a cup of coffee and was sitting by the window when the rubbish collection truck came by.

A medium-sized fellow got off the truck and, with some difficulty, dumped the stuff from the heavy receptacle into the truck.

While this was under way, the driver, for some reason, got out of the cab and watched the struggle.

He was a huge, muscular individual.

AN INTERNATIONAL incident was narrowly avoided the other day when Oscar Meinhardt, the Miss Universe boss, corrected a slight to the Republic of Korea.

Last year, after the first Miss Korea participated in our pageant, Meinhardt was told by the publicity representative for Korea that sending a girl here was just too costly, and they didn't plan to do it again.

So Meinhardt didn't send any official invitation to Korea for this year's pageant.

He had dismissed the matter entirely from his mind when his 'phone rang the other day and he was informed Korea was on the line.

In very broken English, a severe voice on the other end of the radio-telephone call informed him that it represented the foreign minister's department of the Republic of Korea, and it wanted to know where was Korea's invitation to send a girl to Long Beach.

It took 20 minutes—at Korea's expense—for the Miss Universe man and the Korea fellow to come to an understanding. Oscar was profuse in his apologies and explanations and Chung Ang, the Korean, finally said he understood.

Meinhardt rushed the invitation and franchise material to Korea, it came back right away. They're planning a big contest over there to select the beauty, and she'll be here for our international pageantry of female pulchritude and personality next summer.

Word Champion Carol Crosswhite Goes to Washington for a Spell

Fullerton Whiz Calmly Awaits Nationwide Bee

Carol Crosswhite, 13-year-old Fullerton girl, spelling champion of the Long Beach area, and her mother, Mrs. Ralph Crosswhite, will leave by plane this morning for Washington, D. C., where Carol will compete in the 1955 National Spelling Bee.

Carol, eighth grade pupil in the Wilshire school, Fullerton, who defeated champions of 45 other schools in the Long Beach Area Championship Spelling Bee April 16, sponsored by the Independent, Press-Telegram, will compete with 57 city, state and area winners in the National Spelling Bee Thursday in the Department of Commerce auditorium.

Is Carol frightened at all this competition?

"No, not really," she says, "I'm thrilled to pieces. It will be fun."

Carol has some new sweaters and skirts for the trip, including an orange and brown outfit that she especially likes. And she has a new turquoise dinner dress.

The entire week will be Bee Week in Washington. Contestants will have a get-acquainted banquet Monday night in Hotel Willard.

The next day they will start six sightseeing tours, which will include a boat ride on the Potomac River. Tours are planned to give the pupils a view of the city and an educational close-up of the national government at work. They will see the Washington Monument, Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials, White House and Capitol. They will visit the FBI, the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Mount Vernon, the Congressional Library and the Smithsonian Institution.

The boy or girl who wins the national championship will be awarded $500 in cash, a bonus prize of $100 for a three-day sightseeing trip to New York with a suite in Hotel New Yorker, an engraved trophy cup and a championship plaque for his or her school.

Second prize will be $300 and third prize $100. The next 20 finalists, in the order of their standings in the contest, will receive $50 each, and all remaining contestants $40 each.

Awards will be presented at the annual Bee banquet for finalists Friday night in the Crystal Room of Hotel Willard. That is when Carol—win or lose—will wear her new turquoise dress.

'CIVILLY DEAD'

Judge Tells 'Lifer' Can't Grant Wedding

By FRED SCHOTT

Sentenced to a life term in prison as a "habitual criminal," William R. Hagan, 31, had only one request to make of the judge who imposed the term.

Hagan stood up and asked Superior Judge Fred Miller of Long Beach to marry him to the mother of his two-year-old child.

"You mean me personally?" asked the surprised judge.

Hagan nodded. He went on to say that his parole officer had prevented the marriage earlier.

Judge Miller replied he needed time to see if he had authority to perform the marriage. He said Hagan would know before his 30-day stay of execution for appeal purposes had expired.

By now, Hagan, a Los Angeles truck driver, should know the judge's answer. The judge wrote him a letter Thursday and sent it to the county jail.

In the letter, Judge Miller said he had no authority to marry Hagan because, in the the eyes of the law, the ex-convict is "civilly dead."

The judge arrived at this conclusion after searching through the California Civil Code. There was no previous case to be found on this point, according to the jurist.

The judge first looked up Section 55 of the code, which defines marriage as follows: "A personal relation arising out of a civil contract, to which the consent of the parties capable of making that contract is necessary."

Hagan said the girl was willing.

Judge Miller next turned to

Coar's picture was entered in the wire, syndicate, magazine photographers and press photographers for daily newspapers (cities over 200,000 population) category. He will receive a medallion and a check for $200.

The same photograph was "Picture of the Week" in Life Magazine in April last year. It also is included in a traveling exhibit circulated by the Encyclopedia Brittanica in conjunction with the National Press Photographers Assn.

In addition to the Graflex contest this year, Coar won three other awards in the Associated Press regional contest with other pictures.

S. Lakewood Unit Ballots on Annexing

It will be election day Thursday in a portion of South Lakewood, for the second time within two weeks.

This time voters in a 105-acre area identified as Increment 137 will ballot on whether or not to join Long Beach.

A polling place at 3823 North Hackett Ave. will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Eligible for ballots are 507 registered voters in the triangular section bounded by Heartwell Park on the north, Palo Verde Ave. on the west and Los Coyotes Diagonal on the southeast. The City Planning Commission's latest population estimate is 1,746.

Residents in the area predicted a vigorous contest. The petition for an election, filed Feb. 23, was signed by 145 of the 496 electors on record at that time.

It will be the fourth annexation election of this year. Two areas voted to annex in March. A third—the largest of the South Lakewood increments, No. 141—cast an affirmative majority on May 5. A fifth poll has been scheduled for June 2 in Increment 147, Lakewood Plaza Units 1 and 2.

4 TICKETS!

Aw, Shucks, Officer! I Gotta Hurry

BUENA PARK—U. S. Marine Sgt. James Richard Benge, 32, really was in a hurry to get back to Camp Pendleton Saturday morning.

He collected four tickets before he got through Orange County, and finally San Clemente police turned him over to the military to take him to his base safely.

Buena Park police began chasing Sgt. Benge at 5:33 a.m. on Santa Ana Freeway. Before he was stopped at Magnolia Rd., the officers hit 100 miles per hour. They ticketed Benge for doing 85 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone.

He was cited to appear in Anaheim Municipal Court May 26.

Anaheim police, alerted by radio, missed Sgt. Benge, but Santa Ana police caught him at 5:55 a.m. on the freeway and ticketed him for doing 75 in a 55-mile zone.

He was ordered to appear in Santa Ana Municipal Court May 20.

Tustin police said that Benge was doing only 45 when he reached their city, so they decided not to ticket him for speeding. However, he was warned and was cited for failure to have proper registration in his car.

By the time Benge reached San Clemente, he was hitting 60 in a 45-mile zone and officers ticketed him for that. They also charged he drove over the double line.

He will answer to these charges May 23 in Laguna Beach Judicial District Court.

Police in San Clemente decided against letting Sgt. Benge drive any more. They called in the shore patrol and the military took over, transporting the Marine safely to his base.

Sgt. Benge was due to answer roll call at 7 a.m., he explained.

WRONG GUY ON RIGHT BUS?

Traffic Zoo Tests Driver

By GEORGE ERES

Got on the wrong bus the other day.

Figured I was about to take a tour through a zoo, but it was a come-on.

Fellow was standing outside the bus, passing out brochures called Highway Zoo. Looked interesting so I bit. Turned out, the fellow was making a pitch for the Long Beach Safety Council.

Actually, the bus didn't go anywhere.

And this Highway Zoo come-on by Paul Jones (illustrations by Ralph Moses) was the bait. Highway Zoo characters: The Wildcat ("the snarler who hates everything on the road"); Kangaroo (" . . . jumpy jerk who drives by leaps and bounds—from one stop to another"); Wolf (" . . . the prowler, the rogue of the road, the cruising Casanova. He may be middle-aged, bald and a little winded. But he's giving every babe the eye, regardless . . ."); Octopus (" . . . the busy boy who is always reaching for something while he drives—the car roof, a cigarette, the lighter, the road map, the coat on the back seat . . .").

Culinary Workers Shape Plans for New Contract

More than 4,000 culinary workers and bartenders of Long Beach and surrounding communities will convene Monday in meetings to discuss wage increases and other benefits to be sought in new five-year labor contracts.

The sessions will be held at 10 a. m., 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. at the Culinary Bldg., 324 E. 4th St.

The call for the mass labor parley was issued jointly by Jack Arnold, secretary and business manager of the Long Beach and Orange County Culinary and Hotel Workers Local Union No. 681, and M. R. Callahan, secretary and business manager of Long Beach Bartenders Union Local No. 686. Presiding at the tri-session conferences will be C. T. McDonough, international vice president.

Members are expected to certify requests for new five-year contracts calling for fringe benefits, pensions, additional health and welfare benefits and wage increases, Arnold indicated.

The 1955 program of proposed wage increases and other changes is recommended by the Long Beach and Orange County joint executive board of the two locals, he added.

'Lifer' Learns Marriage Ruled Out by L.B. Jurist

Section 1556 to find out who can make a marriage contract.

"All persons are capable of contracting, except minors, persons of unsound mind, and persons deprived of civil rights."

Is Hagan deprived of his civil rights? The judge next looked up Setcion 2600 of the code.

"A sentence of imprisonment in a state prison for any term less than life suspends all the civil rights of the person so sentenced."

Hagan, who knows enough law to have persuaded the District Court of Appeal to reverse one of his previous convictions, would have been the first to point out he had been given a life term. Section 2600 says "less than life."

But the judge found one more section that applied—Section 601. It reads: "A person sentenced to imprisonment in the state prison for life is thereafter deemed civilly dead."

Judge Miller sealed his letter to Hagan and remarked: "Maybe's he's smart enough to find a loophole, but I can't."

Hagan was convicted by a jury here May 4 on two counts of armed robbery. He had admitted four prior felony convictions, one a kidnaping in San Francisco in 1952.

The judge did give Hagan one slight ray of hope. He informed the soft-spoken bandit he might persuade the Adult Authority to give him permission to marry some day.

However, as Hagan told the court, it was a parole officer under the Adult Authority who prevented the marriage in the first place.

MARINES OPEN CAMP PENDLETON

CAMP PENDLETON — The most elaborate Armed Forces Day celebration planned here in several years takes place Saturday when Marines of the 1st Marine Division and units of Force Troops, Marine Corps Base, and the Naval Ammunition Depot at Fallbrook combine in this base's demonstration of "Power for Peace."

Open House will be held here from 10 a. m. until 4 p. m. Visitors will be directed to the display and demonstration area at the 11 Area parade ground upon entering any of Camp Pendleton's five gates (Main Gate, Las Pulgas Gate and San Onofre Gate from U. S. 101; Naval Ammunition Depot gate from Fallbrook; San Luis Rey gate from the Vista cut-off).

Troops from Marine Corps Test Unit No. 1, the unit designed to explore the problems proposed by nuclear warfare, will provide the highlight of the day-long activities with a helicopter assault.

Sixteen helicopters from the Marine Corps Air Station at El Toro will transport the combat-clad Marines as they descend on the assault area.

Offers Free Traffic Zoo Driver Test

with the Naval Shipyard, New Car Dealers, Used Car Dealers and the Association of Garage Owners. It's part of the preliminaries for the big safety check on automobiles set for May 23-28.

But back inside this innocent looking bus . . .

You're surrounded by an assortment of gimmicks for testing: your eyesight, your reaction time, distance judgment, field of vision.

The equipment's used by the Navy to test applicants for driving jobs, but the man who runs the tests, Lester R. Kellogg, 1120 E. 71st St., says the scores required for average, above average, etc., have been lowered for the demonstrations.

Men, confided Kellogg, generally score higher than women on these tests.

There's no instrument for measuring degree of back-seat-drivingness of the women who take the tests.

"None of them have tried to tell me how to operate the tests," Kellogg said.

THE PURPOSE of the whole business, according to Dr. Charles Fabish of the Long Beach Safety Council, is to make people conscious of their weaknesses and be careful while driving. Know who the safest drivers are? Handicapped people. Why? Cause they're the most careful.

Nobody picks up your driver license if you flunk the test hands down. Nobody even tells you if you flunk. You just look up your own score on conveniently posted cards that tell you if your score is average, above average or below average, etc.

Starting at 10 a.m. Monday, the bus will be parked all week near Sears' at Fifth and American. The ride's free. And you can learn something about your driving.

My score?

Oh, it's like I always figured. I've got a pretty fair chance of staying out of accidents if the other guy will only cooperate and stay out of the way.

Barton Reports Big Garage Deal

Celebrating his 35th year in the real estate and investment field in Long Beach, Edward F. Barton, announces the best sale just completed by his office so far this year.

The Cooper - Arms Garage building, being 100'x150', located at the corner of First and Linden Avenue, was sold for Juliette D. McGrew and her sister, Geraldine D. Loomis, to the Mitchell Land and Improvement Company for a consideration of $750,000. The property was purchased as an investment; then, was leased by Barton to the Lafayette Hotel Co., which is managed by David Tallichet, for a period of ten years.

Barton maintains his office at 112 Linden Ave., and is associated with his son, Richard E. Burton, who is active both in the insurance and building business, and who has just recently completed and sold a 12-unit Own-Your-Own apartment at 6th and Olive Ave., and is now in the process of building a 12-unit Own-Your-Own at 723 East 6th St.

Photos Will Attend College Reunion Representing Alumni Who Can't Go

LYNWOOD — Seven pictorial reports, in company with written resumes of what's been going on the past 40 years, will "attend" a 40th class reunion at Springfield College in Mass. next month.

The reports will represent seven Californians unable to be with their classmates of the Class of '15.

They represent an idea, and considerable work, launched by Herb Halliday, secretary-manager of the Lynwood Chamber of Commerce, one of the class members.

A list of the 50 members of the class showed that seven lived in California—a larger number than in any other state besides the college's home state. Halliday contacted each of his six classmates and found that none were planning to attend.

So, being an ardent camera fan and still imbued with college spirit, he set out to compile the pictorial report.

In Long Beach, Halliday got together with Walter W. Bell, long-time physical education director at Poly High School, and W. Scott Ryan, connected with the state employment service. They took colored pictures of themselves, their families.

Remaining true to his profession, Halliday made sure the colored photos showed off California's sea coast and floral scenery.

A weekend at San Diego took the Hallidays to see two more classmates — Victor Welton and Elmer E. Heidt—and the picture file grew.

At Ontario, retired Chaffey High School teacher Fred W. Clapp added his face to the growing collection.

Halliday will complete the layout by mail, the remaining member being Ralph Mitchell, of San Jose.

Each of the seven will submit a written report on his activities and accomplishments during the past 40 years.

This year's "Chemical Progress Family" are the Robert W. Conners of High Point, North Carolina.

The Age of Chemical Plenty

Today's modern family enjoys better health, a higher standard of living, more leisure time, as a result of new advances by America's chemical manufacturers.

The American Saturday afternoon dramatizes our "Age of Chemical Plenty." Chemical achievement has contributed to practically everything we use, for pleasure or profit.

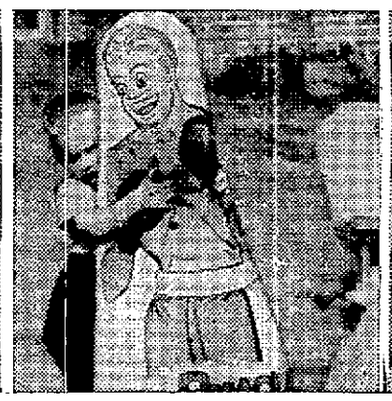

BETTER HEALTH, NUTRITION, CLOTHING—Medicinal chemicals have helped increase our lifespan, cut diseases and infant mortality. Chemicals have helped supply America with more and better food. Fertilizers have jumped our nation's crop yield by as much as 20%. Further, chemical fibers and dyes have helped make Americans the most comfortably dressed people on earth.

CONSERVING THE NATION'S WEALTH—Chemical advances help conserve our natural resources, make us less dependent upon other countries. Rubber, all of which once was imported, now is also produced synthetically from chemical products. Thus the chemical industry is a main source of our strength for national defense.

In addition, chemicals continue to play a major role in developing many of the benefits arising from our atomic energy program. With the magnitude of its research program (average annual research cost: $300,000,000) the chemical industry is your assurance of a brighter, more prosperous future.

FOR THE GARDEN—Wonderful new agricultural chemicals help increase America's food production. For example, a test spraying of apple trees in Pennsylvania increased the yield from two to eleven bushels per tree.

FOR THE CHILDREN—Plastic play products are typical of the many thousands of items for leisure time made available by the chemical industry. Parents approve of plastic toys because of their relative low cost and safety.

FOR THE BACKYARD COOK—Chemicals help preserve the taste and quality of food. Example: chemically developed wrapping in which frozen meats are packed. Other chemical products are plastic cups and plates, and cellophane.

FOR THE MOTORIST—There are more than 256 chemical products in today's automobiles, ranging from long-wearing seat covers to batteries. And upkeep is easier with safe, effective detergents, polishes and waxes.

Ominous Sound Snoozing Hound

TEANECK, N. J. (UP)—A telephone operator called the police this week and told them one of the phones on her line was off the hook and she could hear heavy breathing.

The police rushed to the address where the phone was listed and found a friendly dog which had knocked the receiver off the hook and gone to sleep to the hum of the dial tone.

TV Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

Mental patients in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Washington, D. C., have written and will act in tonight's "March of Medicine" at 10 p. m. (4), which replaces the "Loretta Young Show" one-time-only.

"We, the Mentally Ill," will have no professional actors, announcers or commentators, but will feature the mental patients themselves in their own treatment stories. You'll see them and hear them as they explain their own cases, the aid given by their doctors, and the results of the treatment.

The patients will not be masked but their names will not be made public. In addition to the St. Elizabeth's group there will also be remote pickups from the New Jersey State Hospital and the Manhattan State Hospital.

THE SAINT—Gian Carlo Menotti's opera, "The Saint of Bleeker Street," will be brought from Broadway to the NBC Opera Theater at 12:30 p. m. (4). Davis Cunningham, Virginia Copeland, Rosemary Kuhlman and Leon Lishner have starring roles. It is a tragic tale of a brother and his unwell sister living in the all-Italian district of New York. The ill sister has visions and is regarded in the neighborhood as a saint. The brother kills the girl he loves and is forced to flee, and the story goes on from there.

8 P. M.—Last week, as usual, Martin and Lewis copped the lion's share of the TV audience at 8 p. m. However, tonight probably will be a different story. Abbott and Costello bring their tired comedy to the "Comedy Hour" (4) supported by Rhonda Fleming and Gordon MacRae. Show will originate at March Air Force Base, Riverside. . . Ed Sullivan (2) throws the team of Gary Crosby and Louis Armstrong against A&C and then adds Sammy Davis Jr., England's "Mr. Pastry"—Richard Hearne—and Senor Wences, the ventriloquist.

GUESTING—Dale Evans and children visit "Mary McAdoo at Home" (4) at 4:30 along with Bob Cobb, owner of the Brown Derby, who brings along the artist who does pictures for his Record Room—Nicholas Volpe. Monday Mary and her hubby, Bob Hussey, board the Lurline for a trip to Hawaii to celebrate their 18th wedding anniversary. . . A soon-to-be released inmate of San Quentin and a man who has been paroled for some time will discuss "the outside" during "You Asked for It" (7) at 7 p. m. . . Arlene Francis is back on "What's My Line" after a visit to Europe and Dorothy Kilgallen heads for the continent. Show (2) at 7:30 p. m. . . Marlon Brando is interviewed by Sidney Skolsky (7) at 9:15 p. m. . . Gov. Averell Harriman of New York will discuss the Russian situation with Drew Pearson (7) at 12 noon. . . Bill Bridgeman, famed test pilot for Douglas Aircraft, will visit

DALE EVANS
Visits Mary McAdoo

"Cavalcade of Books" (2) at 3:30 p. m.

DRAMA—Jackie Cooper stars in "Pardon-Me Boy" on the Television Playhouse at 9 p. m. (4). Scene is a jury room where the boys holds out for acquittal of a man charged with murder. He thus asserts himself for the first time. . . Barry Sullivan stars as a ruthless film director on the G. E. Theater at 9 p. m. (2). Play by Rod Serling—"Patterns"—has the director getting revenge on everybody who has ever stood in his way. He picks a has-been star for the final and crowning indignity and proceeds to tear to shreds what is left of the star's self-respect. . . There's more revenge when Stage 7 presents Jan Sterling as a girl friend to a condemned man who receives word that she will die on the same day as his execution. The psychological thriller is on (2) at 9:30 p. m. . . The story of Damon and Pythias is told on "Hall of Fame" at 5 p. m. (4) with Ray Danton and Marshall Thompson starred. . . "Lou Gehrig's Greatest Day," July 4, 1939, in Yankee Stadium is reported by "You Are There" (2) at 6 p. m. This was the day 60,000 fans paid tribute to the famed "Iron Man of Baseball" who was slowly wasting away from an incurable disease. . . Romance and intrigue in post-war Central Europe is on tap for "Appointment With Adventure" (2) at 10 p. m., starring Elaine Stritch, James Daly and George Voskovec. . . Tom Drake portrays a modern-day "Man Without a Country" during the Playhouse (7) at 7:30 p. m. This man is aboard a ship but no country will permit him to land due to his past reputation.

TELETIPS—Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D.-N. M.) will answer the questions on "Youth Wants to Know" at 2:30 p. m. (4) via quick kinescope. Show used to be a delayed kine but the new sponsor wants things timely, thank heavens!

DESIGNED BY CLIFF MAY

Patio areas, full floor-to-ceiling windows and smart redwood exteriors are shown in this typical Cliff May designed home now offered in Anaheim and Tustin. Living area and master bedroom both open into patio area. Homes offer free draperies, built-in range and oven, fireplace, forced-air heat and many other features in most models.

Newest May Homes on Three Locations

A choice of 3 select locations and a wide variety of floor plans, offered in the famed Cliff May features, and financing is now "Magazine Cover Homes" in Orange County the area's developer, George M. Holstein & Sons, announced.

The May homes as featured in a score of national publications are designed for inside-outside patio living and bring the modern home owner styling that is slanted to the young Californian, Holstein said.

Sales head Gene Mahaffey stressed that features included the built-in Western-Holly range and oven in choice of color, natural cabinets, forced air heat, massive stone fireplaces, full floor to ceiling windows, custom draperies throughout, big double garages, interior planters and many other advantages.

"Financing too is versatile," Mahaffey explained. At the Ball Rd. site just off Lincoln (Carson) and the Santa Ana Freeway vets can move in for only $50. "This is the total cost without impounds or extras," Mahaffey assured.

At the other May site in Anaheim on East Vermont St. (just off South Los Angeles St.). vets can move in immediately without one cent of impounds, costs or down payment, the sales chief explained.

The Tustin location brings the luxury estate buyer a May home in the $13,000 to $16,000 bracket. Here big lots and many other advantages are offered and vets can purchase for no down payment except costs and impounds.

The Tustin site can be reached by driving out Seventh St. in Long Beach or Garden Grove Blvd. to Santa Ana then south to First St. Stay on First St. through Tustin and turn on Red Hill Ave.—the first street past Tustin High School.

All three sites offeer immediate occupancy and a good choice of models although buyers are urged to act quickly for best selection.

LOW TERMS FEATURED

Dale Park homes are priced from $9,688 and offer monthly terms as low as $49.96 for GI buyers. This is one of the models of the Murray-Sanders project.

Dale Park Homes Priced From $9,680

Most popular feature of Murray-Sanders' second unit of Dale Park residences, themed as "Achievement Home" series, and located in the close-in Garden Grove area of Orange County, has proved to be their exceptionally easy financing arrangements, report officials of Walker and Lee, Inc., sales directors.

"Priced from only $9,688 for the large three bedroom, one full bath models, many GI buyers tell us that monthly payments schedule, ranging from $49.96 to 56.65 for the specious 3-bedroom-and-a-den homes with 2 full baths, has resulted in substantial savings since they took possession, as original VA loan arrangements requiring nothing down of qualifying veterans except usual costs and impounds, are still in effect," sales officials said.

With all payments including principal and interest, and unusually easy financing also available for the FHA buyer, large 3-bedroom-and-a-den homes are fully priced at only $10,971, it was pointed out.

Luxury features offered include natural beechwood kitchen cabinets; ventilator fans; semi-automatic dishwashers; birch-paneled walls in living room; disposers; large workshop and storage area off garage; concrete garden patio for outdoor living; colored bathroom fixtures; rock wool insulation; TV aerial lead-in plug; and tub and shower in each bath.

Model homes will be open from 10 o'clock this morning, and will remain open until 9 o'clock tonight and during the week from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. for the convenience of home-seekers employed during the day.

Development may be quickly and easily reached from Long Beach by driving east on Seventh St. to Huntington Beach Blvd. (Highway 39); turn left (north) and go to Chapman; then right about 200 yards to model homes and Dale Park.

REALTOR OF WEEK

'Fisherman' Fabe Blackman Been Too Busy to Fish

A fellow who for five consecutive years sold over $1 million of property a year, then quit the selling field to look after leasing, and now has given up some of that work to enjoy life is the Realtor of the Week honored by the Long Beach Board.

Fabe C. Blackman, the hon-

FABE C. BLACKMAN
"Million -a-Year" Man

ored Realtor, had a large hand in the development of Long Beach from the small city to the metropolitan rank it holds today. For nine years he served on the City Planning Commission, two years of that as chairman, and this was during the 1942-51 development of the city.

Fabe came to Long Beach from Paris, Ill., in 1924. He had been engaged in real estate business 15 years in Illinois. In 1924 he became affiliated with the Deeble-Chapman Corp., which built the Times Building here. He became treasurer of the corporation in 1928 and served 3 years. Then Fabe decided to go into business for himself and in the following 5 years sold over $1 million per year.

Blackman joined the Long Beach Board of Realtors in 1928 and has been on the board of directors several times. He was president of the board in 1941. He was president of the Los Angeles Planning Congress in 1945.

Fabe's biggest sale was the Times Bldg. He entered into the property management field in 1947 and since 1950 has handled the W. B. Stewart Estates property. After selling the Times Bldg., Blackman took over the job of managing the big structure for the Diamond-California Realty, Inc. His success was noteworthy in reducing vacancies to less than 2 per cent.

Only last week he gave up management of this big structure and recommended his successor, George Ditson Jones, who has taken over.

While he said it was the "pressure of outside business" which cused him to resign, Fabe's intimates say that outside business undoubtedly is the call of the sea. Fabe has owned a small cabin cruiser for several years but for the last two has been too busy to get out fishing.

"Oh I'll still handle retail store leases and the sale of retail business properties," says Fabe. "But did you say the yellow tail are hitting? Man, that's for me."

Jimmy Phelan, the Salesman of the Week, says he served his Realty apprenticeship in 20 years in the restaurant business. This gave him the training in meeting and serving the public.

Reared and educated in Wichita, Phelan began his business career as a traveling salesman for a hotel and restaurant supply firm. In 1924 he married his school days sweetheart.

When the depression hit he found business slumping. A friend had opened several restaurants and sold them and several came back to him.

"He practically gave me one with a sales talk equal to some used in the real estate field today," says Phelan. "If I took in $50 a day, $25 would be mine. It sounded good. But the business was closed at the end of the first day. He had forgotten to tell me that out of my half I had to pay the lights, gas, help, rent, etc."

In 1936 the Phelans came to Long Beach on a vacation for two weeks and remained 3 months. When they returned home they kept thinking about

Long Beach, sold out and came here. For 7 years he was a supervisor with Thrifty Drug.

In 1946 he opened and operated Ivan's Dinner House in Lynwood. In 1949 he sold his interest and became interested in buying and selling fountain leases. Included in his deals was the Finer Fountain Grill, 255 American Ave., which he decided to keep and his wife still operates it.

The Phelan home is in Seal Beach. He has been in real estate since 1953 and is with H. Herschel Hart, 4321½ E. Carson St. He is a member of the board of trustees of Bay Shore Community Church, Seal Beach Toastmasters Club, Masonic Lodge and Seal Beach Chamber of Commerce.

HOMES SELLING FAST

Blue Bell Manor, Orange County development by Monogram Builders, is half sold, officials report. Vets still can buy a home such as this model for no down except costs and impounds.

Quality Is Stressed in Blue Bell Manor

Over 50 per cent of the Blue Bell Manor homes in Garden Grove are sold, according to Ben Wisnow, of Monogram Home Builders, developers. This represents some $650,000 in sales.

Wishnow urged vets and non-vets alike to visit the tract where vets can purchase on a no-down payment except for the usual impounds and non-vets can buy on liberal FHA terms.

"Prospective home owners have to see the quality of these homes in order to appreciate them," Wishnow commented.

He further explained each floor plan and model is entirely different and incorporates every desirable feature wanted in a new home. The custom homes have such variance in exterior finish and design, many of the prospective home owners find it hard to believe this is a tract project.

Monogram Home Builders have many years of building experience to their credit, having erected housing tracts in San Fernando Valley as well as commercial buildings throughout Los Angeles County.

Moderate payments can be arranged for either veterans or non-veterans on these luxurious 3- and 4-bedroom homes with two baths. Four basic floor plans and three exterior designs, all in choice locations on estate-size lots for individual selection, provide ample choice for the prospective buyer.

Conveniently located near grammar schools and a shopping center, street improvements are in and paid in the development. Another feature of Blue Bell Manor is its accessibility to the beaches.

Outstanding features include log-burning fireplaces, thermostatically controlled forced-air heating, acoustical ceilings and ceramic tile in both kitchens and baths. There are oak floors, large kitchen cabinets with natural wood finish door, aluminum sliding glass patio doors and an oversize kitchen dining area.

Blue Bell Manor is reached by way of the Santa Ana Freeway east to Euclid, south on Euclid to Chapman, east to West St. and then north to the tract.

Dudley Steel Adds 400-Ton Press Brake

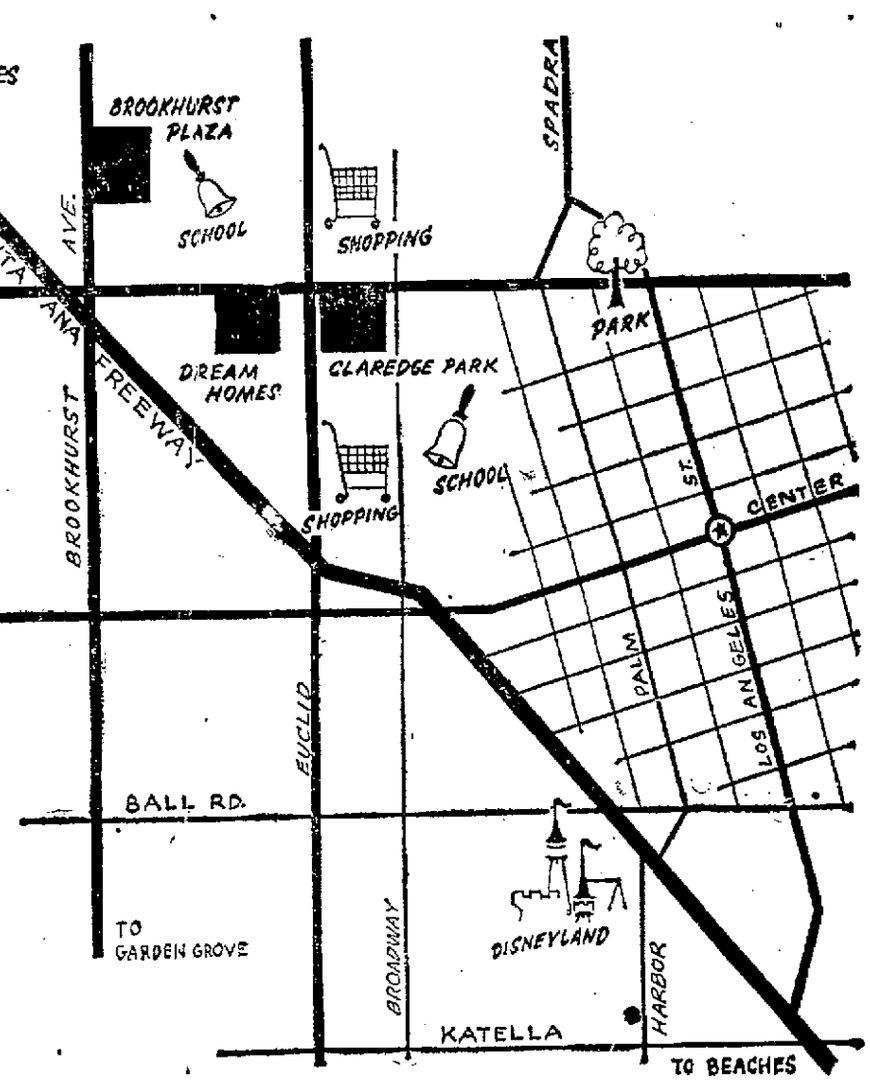

What is believed to be the largest privately owned press brake on the Pacific Coast was completed recently by the Dudley Steel Corp. in South Gate, according to Dudley D. DeZonia, president.

Climaxing the current expansion and modernization program underway at Dudley, the press brake was designed, fabricated, and installed under the supervision of Jack Spencer, chief engineer. The press brake will be used in forming certain structural members of steel buildings, and has a 400-ton capacity. It can handle materials up to 26 feet in length and three-sixteenths of an inch in thickness.

Also added to Dudley's steel-building facilities are new multiple punching, automatic welding, and automatic painting equipment and modern innovations in material-handling fixtures.

FAMED PARK NEAR HOME

Giant palm trees frame Anaheim's famed LaPalma Park where lucky Anaheim youngsters enjoy Legion baseball, sandlot games, football, picnics and other youth activities. The famous park that includes training quarters for Coast League baseball teams is just a short distance away from the popular new home area of Brookhurst and LaPalma Aves. in smog-free Anaheim. Three home builders are now offering a wide selection of homes in the close-to-Long Beach sites. Area is very near Broadway Shopping Center and can be reached by Carson (Lincoln) Blvd. and left at the Santa Ana Freeway.

Wide Selection of Models in Brookhurst-La Palma Homes

Anaheim's newest home developments in the Brookhurst-La Palma section of the city offer variety in style, price and features and combine with a location that is the "nearest yet" to Long Beach, the builders declare.

More than 200 homes and 20 different models will be on display this week-end at the West section of the Orange County city that can be easily reached via Carson (Lincoln) Blvd. to the Santa Ana Freeway. A left turn brings the shopper to Euclid, Brookhurst and LaPalma where the three sites are located.

Selected as very favorable by three Southern California builders—the R & W Construction Co., George D. Buccola, and Dream Homes, Inc.—the area is described as offering advantages such as proximity to the extensive Broadway-Hale Shopping Center at Euclid and the freeway, Disneyland, schools, local shopping areas, playgrounds and parks. The area is also at convenient distance from Los Angeles and Long Beach via the Santa Ana Freeway and Lincoln (Carson) Blvd.

R. & W's Brookhurst Plaza on Brookhurst just off the freeway, offers "Futura Homes" in three and four-bedroom plans and veteran financing at no down payment. Nonvets can also purchase for only $1900 down on 30-year FHA terms. The home style combines the features Contemporary and Conventional styling, the builders pointed out.

A choice of 15 designs and five floor plans in Contemporary design is offered at George D. Buccola's Claredge Park where veterans can also purchase without a down payment and only closing and escrow costs. The homes feature three and four-bedroom plans with large fireplaces, floor-to-ceiling windows, builtin range and oven and other features.

LOCATION GIVEN

Just off the Santa Ana Freeway on La Palma Ave. Dream Homes will preview their newest La Palma Villa this week end with three and four-bedroom homes offered to veterans for no down payment. Variety is the keynote, with choice of both Contemporary and Provincial stylings. Fireplaces, sliding glass doors and choice of rock, shingle or rock roofs are stressed by the builders. Homes have hardwood floors and painted plaster walls.

The three developments can be reached by turning off the Santa Ana Freeway on LaPalma or Brookhurst and they will show furnished and unfurnished model homes.

Planning New Community Just West of Santa Ana

Plans for Orange County's first complete community, a small city of nearly 1,000 new homes, a centrally located school and shopping center, have been announced by Don Coleman, sales agent for Excelsior Village.

Carefully planned with curved streets and the school situated in the center of the homes, the over-all plan includes sidewalks, curbs and streetlights. The community will bring the new home buyer every advantage for raising a family, Coleman pointed out.

The homes, too, are planned for the family, the sales chief stressed. Over 1,500 square feet under roof and with double garage, built-in range and oven, built-in washer and dryer, and located on large 7,200-square-foot lots, every home will be a 4-bedroom, 2-bath model.

Excelsior Village is located just west of Santa Ana on 17th St. and Brookhurst. From Los Angeles, visitors should turn off the Santa Ana Freeway at Brookhurst and drive straight to the community approximately four miles. From Long Beach, the community is straight out Westminster Blvd.

One Aldon Unit Near Sellout; Will Open Another on June 3

Most consistently high sales level in the 9-year history of the Aldon Construction Co. yesterday brought report of a 95 per cent sell out of the 521 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in the "Masterpiece Series" at Buena Plaza, Miller St. and La Palma Ave., just off the Santa Ana Freeway, in Buena Park.

"Though nearly sold out, the 'Masterpiece unit' still offers a good choice of stylings, floor plans and color schemes," a key Aldon official commented. "And, of course, there is also a tremendous sales activity in the new 'Triumph Series' of 3-bedroom, 2-bath homes, for which grand opening is scheduled June 3, with five model dwellings to be furnished by Aaron Schultz."

General sales agent E. "Billy" Hamburg reported thousands of visitors attending the present popular Buena Plaza home show, featuring eight "Masterpiece" model dwellings, all furnished in varying motifs by Aaron Schultz and on view seven days a week, early and late.

Hamburg said much of the buyers' attention focused upon Buena Plaza may be credited to the availability of both the 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in the "Masterpiece Series" and the 3-bedroom, 2-bath models in the "Triumph Series." Vets' terms on both series are no cash down, not even for costs and impounds, Hamburg explained.

The homes are priced at $12,750 and $13,725, with no cash down terms for vets, not even for costs and impounds and monthly payments of $66.16 for the three-bedroom homes and $71.49 for the four-bedroom models, for both principal and interest.

It was noted that the monthly payment on the three-bedroom homes includes the built-in Western Holly gas range and eye-level oven, available in choice of five pastels, stainless steel or copper finish. In the 4-bedroom series, there is an additional monthly payment of $1.94 for buyers who wish the built-in range and oven.

The new planned community of Buena Plaza, which eventually will have 2,000 custom-built homes and its own giant shopping center, is located near two famed tourist attractions—Knotts' Berry Farm and "Disneyland," now under construction.

Features of the homes include floor-to-ceiling forced-air heating, 1,350 square feet of living space on the average, sliding glass walls and functional New Freedom gas kitchens with big double sinks, Waste-King garbage pulverators, lustrous self-edged and coved work decks and splashes, natural finish birch or knotty pine cabinets, Dish-Whiz semi-automatic dishwashers, copper-finih range hoods and ventilating fans.

Will Attend

M. J. Long, 4344 Linden Ave., will attend the May 18-21 homecoming meeting of the President's Club of Kansas City Life Insurance Co., at Kansas City, Mo. Only approximately 10 per cent of the company's top-ranking producers qualify for membership in the President's Club.

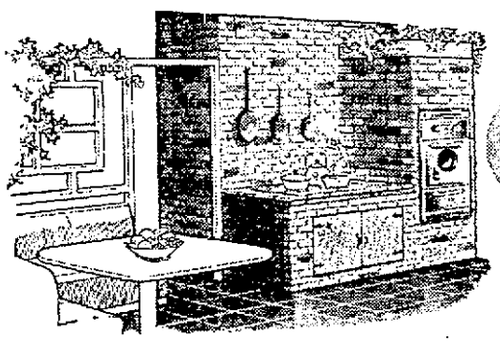

TERMS NOT CHANGED

The new Aldon community of Buena Plaza, typified above, offers both three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes to vets at "no cash down." Location off Santa Ana Freeway is Miller St. and La Palma Ave., Buena Park.

IN MIRADA PARK
This is one of the models offered in the new Mirada Park section. The homes may be reached by driving east on the Santa Ana Freeway to Valley View Ave., turn left to the models on Foster Blvd. "No-cash move-in" is offered veterans.

Mirada Park Homes Attracting Throngs

Mirada Park's three model "interpretation" homes that dramatically display, in furnishings, appointments and decor, three of today's most popular home stylings—Modern, Early American and Contemporary—played the starring role in last weekend's "rain check" preview showing of this series of Larwin Co. 3-bedrom-and-a-den, 2-bath, 2-car garage homes located in the La Mirada Hills residential section of Los Angeles County, it was reported. Showing drew throngs of prospective buyers, most of whom were GI's desiring to take advantage of the "no cash to move in" VA financing plan still in effect, it was explained.

Leading in popularity during the preview was the Early American home furnished by Barker Bros. with its built-in range and oven and massive interior chimney set in an effective background of natural color used brick, it was pointed out. Reservations taken on this model through the week outnumbered by nearly 2-to-1 those received on the other 2 stylings.

Second was the home done in the modern manner by W. & J. Sloane. Especially effective is its unusual selection of rugs, bright, modern colors and coordinates.

Contemporary home delighted many of the young marrieds who seemed particularly interested in the sleek, uncluttered lines of the smartly-designed lamps and distinctive wall features, as well as the matching and contrasting furnishings.

Featuring a 5x20-foot "launderoom"—an exclusive Mirada Park development—and choice of 3 distinctive floor-to-ceiling fireplaces, each authentically styled to the design of the home, Mirada Park homes are fully priced from $13,550, with low monthly payments from $70.78 that include principal and interest, builders say.

Launderoom, according to Larwin officials, provides more than ample space for all modern appliances, freezer and workbench, a 220-volt power circuit already installed for an electric clothes dryer, plus storage room for garden tools and supplies.

A wide variety of custom architectural stylings which give the homes an individual appearance, plus the recognized rugged durability of genuine lath and plaster construction, complete weather-stripping and insulation that eliminates drafts, make Mirada Park homes outstanding from the value viewpoint, builders state.

Other popular features include Slidemaster glass doors up to 24 feet wide, aluminum sliding windows, 4x12 exposed beam ceilings in contemporary design, mahogany interior and exterior slab doors, a mahogany paneled wall in every bedroom, specious wardrobes with mahogany sliding doors; built-in clothes hamper, mahogany kitchen cabinets, breakfast nook, double sink with disposer, TV jack, asphalt tile floors, a 200-square foot concrete terrace, 75,000 BTU forced air heating system with thermostatic control and switch for summer cooling and louvered folding doors that separate the living room from the den.

Also included at no extra cost are built-in Western Holly high oven and range top, and Westinghouse colored refrigerator, washer or dryer are also available at option, builders point out.

Complete landscaping with front, side and rear lawns planted and growing, shrubs and a parkway tree are also included, it was explained.

Available to veterans who qualify for no cash down, no costs and no impounds, Mirada Park Homes also offer easy terms for non-veterans, Larwin officials say.

Situated within 15 minutes of Los Angeles, Mirada Park is close to many conveniences, including a nearby grade school, parochial school now under construction, and a new college planned. Churches of all denominations and Norwalk's multi-million dollar shopping center are only a few minutes away.

Homeseekers are advised to drive east on the Santa Ana Freeway to Valley View Ave. (first stoplight on the Freeway); left on Valley View, and then straight ahead to model homes at Foster Blvd.

Chemical Industry Means Much to Area

Recognition for the dynamic growth of chemical industries in the coastal region of Southern California was initiated by Long Beach's Mayor George M. Vermillion in a proclamation inviting observance of Chemical Progress Week during May 16-21.

In making the announcement, Mayor Vermillion pointed out that more than 30 chemical plants in the vicinity of Long Beach produce a wide variety of raw materials and finished products. Most of the plans have been built during the past decade, and their contributions to the community and to the local economy are of increasing importance.

Assisting the mayor in issuing the Chemical Progress Week announcement, O. Morgan Williams, manager of Shell Chemical Corporation's Dominguez plant, acted as an industry representative.

"Hardly a manufactured article is made today without the aid of chemistry," Williams commented. "The week is being observed nationally for the purpose of bringing this fact to the public's attention. Chemistry is involved in thousands of daily-used products: synthetic fabrics for clothing, life-savings drugs, hundreds of household appliances, synthetic rubber for transportations, plastics, detergents, fertilizers and insecticides to produce more food, and thousands of other items that reach practically every industry as well as every home."

In Southern California, the chemical industry represents a $500-million segment of the total economy and has a payroll totaling more than $80-million a year.

Chemical Progress Week is also an appropriate time to remind young students of the importance of their education, according to Williams. Growing industries need technically trained personnel. With the chemical industry conservatively estimated as growing four times larger during the next 20 years, there will be many fine career opportunities for the young men and women now in school."

Mrs. N. H. Studley, chairman, and Mrs. Kathleen Wachel, secretary-treasurer, of the Long Beach chapter of the California Motel Assn. attended a board of directors meeting at Barstow this week.

John. J. Toner has opened a branch office at 5820 Lakewood Blvd., Lakewood, on May 10, just two years to the day since he opened a new realty office at 4503 E. Carson. Before that Toner had his original Lakewood office at 4151 Norse Way.

He has been selling real estate in the Lakewood area since 1946, in association with Hal Gerling and H. Neal Tuttle. Toner is also a former chairman of the Lakewood Real Estate Association. The branch office, formerly known as Lakewood Office will be managed by Ed H. McCracken. His associates are H. J. Nicholson, Verne Price, and Clinton Stuart.

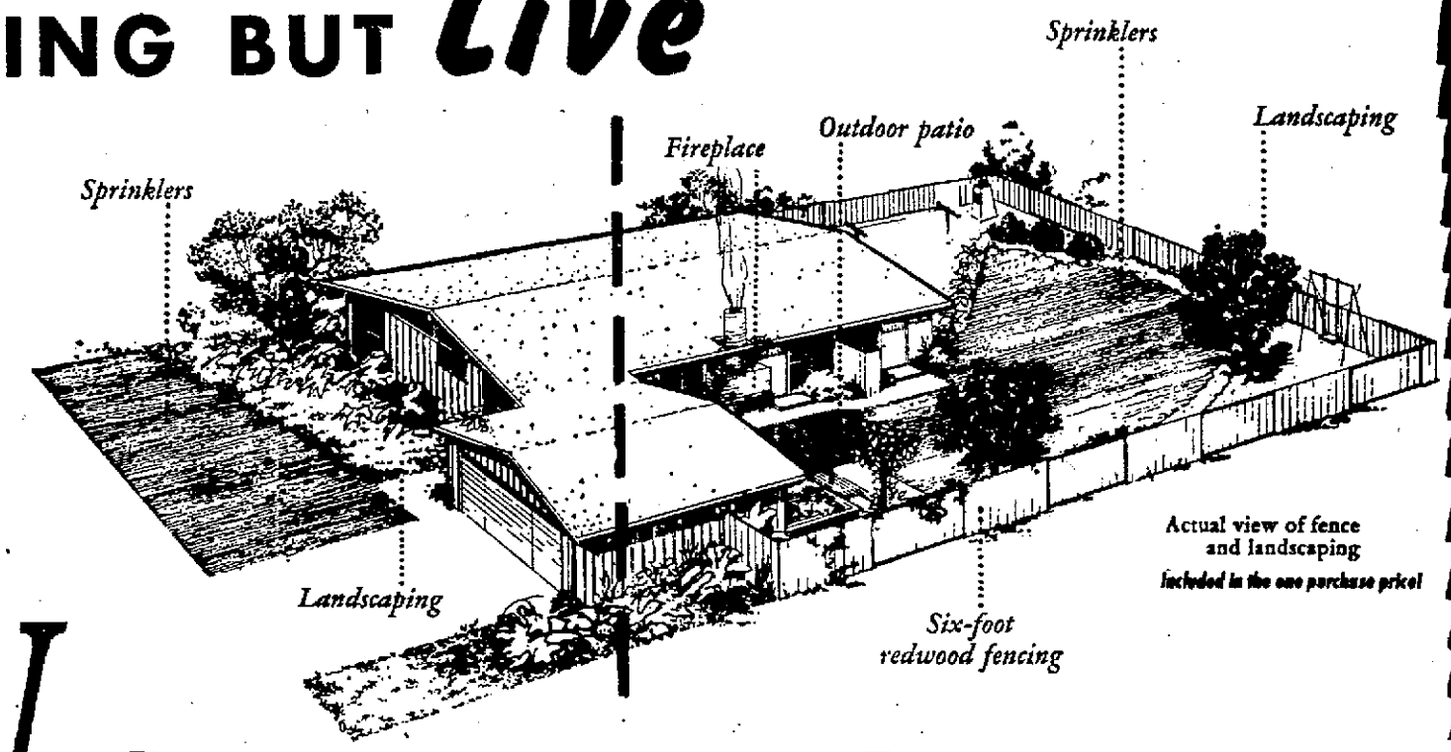

Toner will manage the Carson Street Office and his staff will consist of his brother, L. G. Toner, Carl B. Hensley, and James Williams. With one office last year, the volume exceeded $1,200,000 and the first four months of 1955, they stacked up an impressive $536,879.

Cox Previewing His Refrigerated Homes

CLIMATE CONDITIONED
Ultra-modern for the next 20 years is the way builder Henry C. Cox describes his unique "climate conditioned" Lifetime Modern Refrigerated Homes, previewed today at Chapman and Brookhurst, Garden Grove. Note glass gable above floor-to-ceiling sliding glass wall, affording dramatic daytime lighting.

"Climate conditioning" is the unique feature of Lifetime Modern Refrigerated Homes which homeseekers who demand the ultimate are previewing today at Chapman and Brookhurst, Garden Grove.

Marking a significant advance in the homebuilding industry, "climate-conditioned" Lifetime Modern Homes are another "first" introduced in this area by Henry C. Cox, Garden Grove's pioneer builder with a reputation for innovations in the home building field. Cox describes "climate conditioning" by Weathersphere as a feature that will mark a Lifetime Modern Home as ultramodern for the next 20 years.

In Lifetime Modern Refrigerated Homes, the flip of the switch gives thermostatic control for both heating and cooling requirements, providing economical year 'round air conditioning for health and comfort. Forced air heating is supplied through the same ducts, located at strategic points in the home, thus providing a complete "climate conditioned" interior for all areas of a Lifetime Modern Home..

As beautiful in design as they are ultramodern in facilities, Lifetime Modern Homes are built on what Cox describes as "ground hugging" lines. Gables are glass, affording dramatic daytime lighting.

Lavishly spacious, Lifetime Modern Homes offer 3 or 4 bedrooms, plus a den, a dining room and breakfast nook, a roomy pantry, and two lavishly tiled baths.

Other features that mark Lifetime Modern as homes with a future include four foot overhangs, shading sliding glass walls and aluminum-framed sliding windows. Lighting is ultramodern Touch-Plate. Only the finest of automatic electric equipment has been built into the scientifically designed kitchens.

Sales Continuing Strong in Harmony Manor Tract

An appreciable increase in weekly sales at Harmony Manor was interpreted yesterday by sponsors of the new residential community in Garden Grove as a mark of special interest in the fact that it is one of the last deals in which vets may buy homes on no cash down, even for costs and impounds.

"Both the number of visitors in our model homes and the total sales for the week were appreciably above the preceding seven-day period," a spokesman for Heftler Construction Co. reported. "Buyers exhibited great interest in our no-cash-down terms, with no hidden charges of any kind."

It was pointed out further that monthly payments for vets are only $61.35, for both principal and interest, in the new development at Magnolia Ave. and Ball Road, just off the fast Santa Ana Freeway.

"Another big sales factor," an official said, "is size of our homes—3 bedrooms and 2 baths, featuring a special 'Jack and Jill' room with play and sleeping quarters for two children and an outside entrance to save the youngsters running through the rest of the house."

The model homes, furnished by C. Tony Fereira, noted decorator, reflect the many stylings available, together with diversified floor plans and varied color schemes, it was noted.

The many luxury features include built-in Western-Holly range and eye-level oven, built-in serving bar with formica top, aluminum louvered windows, wall of glass with sliding door, covered breezeway, electric garbage disposers, spacious two-car garages, Bel-Aire hardwood natural finish kitchen cabinets and other decorative and functional accessories.

Harmony Manor, close to a wealth of community facilities, including schools and churches, shopping and recreation, may be reached via the Santa Ana Freeway to Magnolia Ave. The new homes are rising south of the Freeway on Magnolia Ave. at Ball Rd.

VETS CAN BUY WITH NO DOWN
Lakewood Crest offers homes such as this to veterans for no-down payment except closing costs and impounds. The big four-bedroom models are fully priced at $13,240.

Lakewood Crest Continues Easy Terms for Veterans

Cntinued easy financing of homes in Unit 2 of Lakewood Crest that makes three rambling California ranch-style 3-bedroom, 3-bedroom-and-a-den or 4-bedroom homes, all with 2 bathrooms, available to qualified veterans for no down payment except impounds and closing costs if the GI buyer has a monthly income of $345 a month, was cited yesterday as being the major factors in the development's rapidly rising sales volume in recent weeks. Biltmore Homes is the developer and builder.

Conveniently located at Studebaker and Turnergrove Rd. in close-in Lakewood, this newest unit offers a choice of six basic floor plans, and a wide variety of exterior designs, with excellent financing also available for FHA buyers.

With the popular 4-bedroom, 2-bath models fully priced at $13,240, luxury features in all homes include built-in ovens and range tops; large brick fireplaces with extra-wide hearths and gas log-lighters; garbage disposers; exhaust fan over range area, and electric heaters in the master bath.

Also included are 50-gallon water heaters; Matico parquetry floors in living room, dining area, bedrooms and hallways; natural-finish birch kitchen cabinets and doors; built-in upholstered breakfast nooks; large two-car garages, some with extra door into the house, and all with storage areas and room for laundry equipment; pullman lavatories, and wainscoting in the den. Large showers with glass shower doors are featured in the second bath.

Lakewood Crest may be reached by driving out Lakewood Blvd. to Del Amo Blvd.; east on Del Amo to Palo Verde Ave.; south on Palo Verde Ave. to Turnergrove Rd.; then left on Turnergrove Rd. to Studebaker Rd. and furnished model homes and sales office.

IN GLEN DELL PARK

Veterans are offered no-down terms on Glen Dell Park homes such as this model with monthly payments ranging from $60.25 for principal and interest. Colors used in the homes are attracting great attention.

Second Magnolia Estates Unit Sales Soar to Near $2 Million

Popularity of Magnolia Estates' second unit of 217 large 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes on Magnolia Ave., just south of the Santa Ana Freeway, between La Palma and Crescent Aves., in Anaheim, is reflected in total sales of more than $1,750,000 in less than a month.

Sales figures for the new residential community were released by Louis A. Towne, president, and Richard H. Doremus, vice president in charge of planning, of Exhibit Homes, Inc., builders and developers.

Sales have been boosted, it was stated, by terms to vets of nothing down with no cash needed for costs and impounds and monthly payments from $63, including principal and interest.

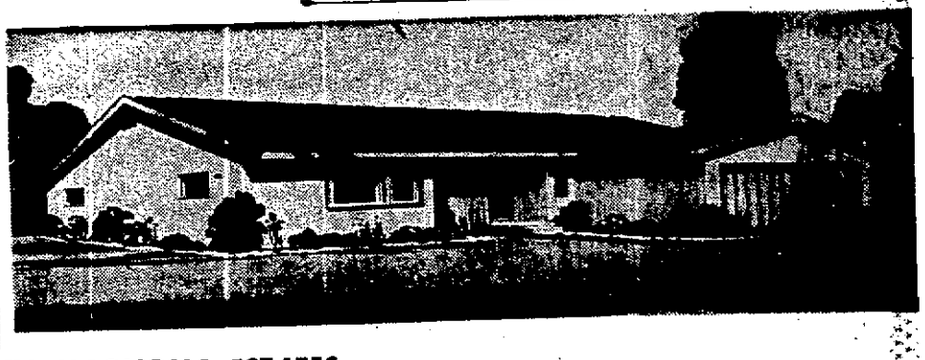

"We continue to offer 'no cash needed' terms since these homes were cleared for such terms before April 28," it was explained by a spokesman for the developers.

"Since such terms have now been ruled out by the Veterans' Administration, veterans have been rushing to buy at Magnolia Estates," it was stated.

The new residences, which are priced from $12,300, are typified at the development by a display of four model homes, each furnished and decorated by C. Tony Pereira. The models are open daily and Sundays.

Features attracting attention, it was noted, include thermostat-controlled forced-air heating, all metal sliding glass doors for indoor-outdoor living, steel sash windows, decorator planned color schemes, lath and plaster construction, custom lighting fixtures, picture windows, stall showers with ceramic tile floors and all chrome bath accessories.

Also features include extra large kitchens, natural finish cabinets, ceramic tile counters, large dining nooks, spacious service areas, pantry closets in some models, 40 to 50-gallon gas water heaters, rockwool insulation and front and rear door chimes.

IN MAGNOLIA ESTATES

The above attractive exterior is representative of a choice selection of stylings in three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes in Magnolia Estates on west side of Magnolia Ave. between La Palma and Crescent Aves., south of Santa Ana Freeway, in Anaheim.

Color Co-ordination for Glen Dell Park Drawing Attention

Exterior color coordination of homes in Glen Dell Park in Garden Grove which was developed exclusively for this latest D. & E. Corporation home development by Mel Grau, noted southland color coordinator, has attracted attention from several national publications interested in use of California color since it presents a new and unusual handling of redwood with bright, interesting California tonals, William P. Bowman, vice president in charge of sales, explained.

As a result, plans have been set in motion to register these color formulae to reserve their exclusive use for D. & E. Corporation homes in this area, Bowman said.

Bowman also announced that Glen Dell Park homes are still being sold to qualified veterans for nothing down, and on monthly payments that range from $60.25, including principal and interest, with the VA loan program requiring vets to have a gross income of only $86 per week after contractural payments.

Also greatly influencing heavy sales of these conventionally constructed 2-bedroom-and-a-den or 3-bedroom homes is the mortgage-payment insurance protection, with premiums paid for one year, issued each GI buyer by Weiner and Crocker Insurance of Bexerly Hills, according to Norman Crocker, president. Plan provides enough money to take care of mortgage payment for at least one year in the event the GI home-buyer is unable to work because of a disability to the insured, he explained.

Featuring such conventional construction as typified by solid hardwood floors over sub-floors raised 18 inches from the ground, and genuine lath and plaster walls designed for solidity and permanence, other attractive appointments are sliding glass doors; extra-large service porches; builtin storage racks in unusually wide two-car garages, and covered terraces that overlook tree-shaded lots.

Offered in 23 exterior designs and a wide choice of varied functional floor plans, other refinements are the central-hall plan; forced-air furnaces; birch kitchen cabinets; hammered copperized range hood and matching hardware; exhaust fan; garbage disposer and builtin combination dining nook, breakfast bar, buffet and organizer desk all in one.

Model homes, furnished by Aaron Schultz of Long Beach, and entire development of 137 homes, can be reached from Los Angeles by driving out the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor; right on Harbor to Chapman; right on Chapman to West Street, and right on West to Glen Dell Park.

UNIT OPENS SOON

Chapman-Magnolia Park invites homeseekers to a pre-opening showing today at the new unit of 338 homes which is opening soon. This is one of the models.

Chapman-Magnolia Park Previews Big Unit Today

Predicting the last of the "no cash needed" financing arrangement for veterans moving into a Chapman-Magnolia Park home in Garden Grove, officials of Ajax Construction Company, builders, issued an open invitation to all prospective home purchasers to visit the new 338-home development this week-end and attend pre-opening of the final unit.

In commenting on the favorable financing still being offered that requires no cash impounds or cash closing costs of qualified vets, executives of the Robert McCutchin Co. explained this may be the last time this offer can be made, and urged all home-seeking veterans interested in it to visit the new community today without fail. Homes are fully priced from $11,600 to $13,900, it was explained.

All during the week-end visitors will be invited to inspect the wealth of closet space and spacious bathrooms, sales officials said, especially in the four bedroom models that offer a choice of either two or three bathrooms. Three-bedroom-and-a-den residences have 2 large baths, as have the 3-bedroom units, it explained.

Pointing up the "country life" features of these luxurious homes themed as "distinctive rustic," this final unit of Chapman - Magnolia Park dwellings features distinctive interiors where wall space, windows and generous use of floor space make effective and restful decoration and furnishing simple and inexpensive, if desired.

Among other features cited, are built-in gas ovens and range tops in a virtual rainbow of colors, complete with automatic timing devices and controls, spacious built-in breakfast nooks, and large "newview" picture windows especially engineered for maximum light and controlled, draft-free ventilation, it was explained.

Prime location of the development, only minutes from opportunities within a radius of six miles of Garden Grove, were also cited as important to prospective home-buyers.

Two model homes will be on display from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Home seekers from Los Angeles interested in selecting choice locations in this final unit of Chapman-Magnolia Park, are advised to drive out the Santa Ana Freeway to Highway 30 (Grand Ave. in Buena Park); turn right and drive south to Chapman; left on Chapman to model homes. From Long Beach, drive east on 7th Street, past the Veterans Hospital to Highway 39; north one-half mile to Chapman, east one-half mile to model homes.

Near Sellout in Shamrock Village Unit

"So many people have taken advantage of the rent-with-option-to-buy plan featured in Shamrock Village that only a few dwellings remain in this Garden Grove development," reports Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker and Lee, sales agents. "This plan has proven particularly popular to servicemen who have not yet qualified for veterans' financing," Hart added.

Ranges, automatic washers and refrigerators, all consumer's choice, are available to buyers in the development, Hart said. Dwellings have three or four bedrooms and one or two baths, with many features, including king-size lots, with landscaped front and side yards.

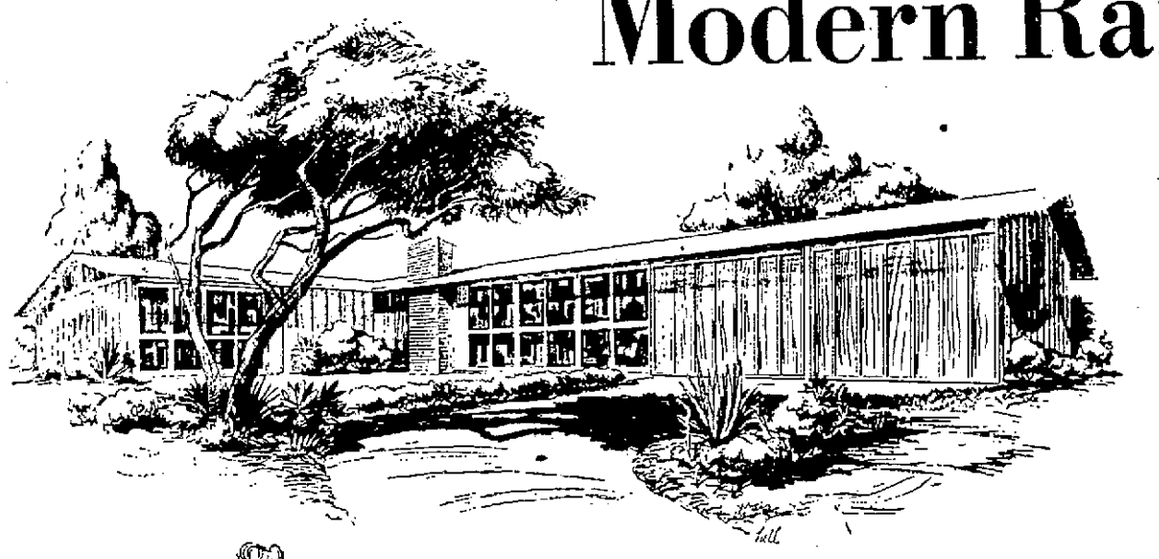

Thermostat-controlled heat, rockwool insulation, television jacks and outlets, weatherstripping, decorator-planned color harmony on both interiors and exteriors and oak hardwood or cork floors are more features.

Kitchens are equipped with garbage disposals and work surfaces are of ceramic tile. Bathrooms, with pullman-type lavatories, have colored fixtures, Marlite over tubs, stall showers and some models have electric bath heaters. Mahogany slab doors, 40 or 50-gallon water heaters are more attractions.

Priced from $10,400 to $11,700, Shamrock Village homes are being sold to veterans for no down payment. Churches and schools are within walking distance and transportation, shopping, recreation and industrial areas are near by.

Models of the homes are open daily. Visitors from Long Beach drive out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn north on Harbor to Shamrock Village.

TIETZ TO BUILD FOR DOCTORS

Opening of an 11½-acre Orange County Medical Arts Center at Chapman Ave. and Euclid St. is announced by the Tietz Construction Co. Under the rental plan, the doctors get clear title to their suites after 15 years of rental.

Plans Completed for Medical Arts Center in Orange County

A unique rental plan, which will give each doctor in Garden Grove's new Orange County Medical Arts Center clear title to his offices after 15 years of occupancy at the regular rental figure, has been announced by Tietz Construction Co., builders and developers.

All offices in the 11½-acre Center will be designed and built for the medical tenants either in individual buildings or in groups of two or three structures with a common wall division. Each doctor will be privileged to plan the size, number, location and decoration of rooms, in consultation with the Tietz Company's architectural and rental departments, according to Bill Tietz, president.

"Occupancy of all offices in the Orange County Medical Arts Center will be limited to doctors of medicine or dentistry in good standing with their local county professional groups," Tietz announced. "Our plan is that the doctor will occupy offices designed specifically for him at a standard rental figure comparable to rents in Type A medical space. At the end of 10 years of occupancy, at no additional cost beyond the monthly rental figure, the doctor will be entitled to purchase the building and adjacent grounds over a period of five years."

Exclusively reserved for medical and dental practice, the Orange County Medical Arts Center will have facilities for referred practice, such as radiology, pathology, medical and dental laboratories, centrally located. Commercial stores will be limited to prescription pharmacy, prescription optical store, brace shop, gown shop, and surgical and dental supply.

Individually controlled heating plants and air conditioning systems, sound-proofed walls and ceilings, built-in laboratory cabinets, and adequate parking space adjacent to each office are among the leading features.

Orange County Medical Arts Center is on Chapman Ave. near Euclid St. in Garden Grove. It is in the approximate geographic and population center of the Orange County trading area and is centrally located in relation to all nearby hospitals.

Tietz Construction Co., one of Southern California's leading residential development firms, has been building better class homes in the Garden Grove area for the past three years.

May Co. to Build Cleveland Unit

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—The May Department Stores Co. will construct a large suburban branch store in the University Heights section of Cleveland.

N. L. Dauby, president of the May Co. store in downtown Cleveland, said the branch unit will be a four-floor store of contemporary design built on a 17-acre site that is now occupied by a golf course.

It will contain more than 300,000 square feet of space. Parking space for 2,000 cars will be provided. The structure and fixtures would cost in excess of $5,000,000.

The May Co. in Cleveland is a part of the May Department Stores Co., which operates 10 downtown department stores, 17 branch stores and a shopping center, located in nine metropolitan areas—from Baltimore to Los Angeles.

It has under construction branch stores in Los Angeles, St. Louis and Denver and a 10-story addition to Kaufman's, its downtown store in Pittsburgh.

CHAPMAN LUXURY ESTATES
The above is one of 142 three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes offered on both GI and FHA terms in the new community of Chapman Luxury Estates at Commonwealth Blvd. and Cypress Ave., in Fullerton.

Chapman Luxury Estates Continues Veterans Terms

Brisker than usual sales at Chapman Luxury Estates were credited yesterday by the developers to increasing interest in the many special features of the 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in particular, their spaciousness, with each home averaging 1400 square feet.

This report was given by a spokesman for the Pioneer Land Co., sales agent for the property at Commonwealth Blvd. and Cypress Ave., Fullerton, just off the Santa Ana Freeway.

"Another big attraction at Chapman Luxury Estates," the spokesman added, "is the continuation for veterans of terms featuring nothing down and only $95 to move in, with monthly payments from $72.40 for principal and interest.

It was noted that non-veterans, who may buy on FHA terms, constitute a fourth of the buyers of new homes in Chapman Luxury Estates. Immediate occupancy is being offered to both veterans and non-veterans, and there remains a wide selection of stylings and floor plans, typified by three fully furnished model homes, open daily and Sunday.

Officials of the Pioneer Land Co. said the terms are proving especially attractive because of the quality construction and many special features.

These include brick or slumpstone fireplaces, sliding walls of glass, 75,000 BTU forced-air heat, Western Holly built-in ranges, Philippine mahogany kitchen cabnets, large living area, mosaic tile stall showers, garbage disposers, rear patios and other appointments and accessories.

Improvements af the planned community of Chapman Luxury Estates include ornamental street lights, sidewalks, paved streets, sewers and all utilities.

The property, which is near to all community conveniences, may be reached by way of the Santa Ana Freeway to Commonwealth boulevard, then continuing east on Commonwealth to Cypress Ave., where a left turn leads to the homes.

Whirl of Bridal Showers Fete Sharon Martindell

For attractive bride-elect, Sharon Martindell, who will wed Guy Leonard Doster on June 4, shower time is here. The popular young lady was feted at a kitchen shower recently by Mrs. Charles Louden, 3511 Lime Ave. and Mrs. Louden's daughter, Linda Sue, who was in town for the occasion from her studies at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

The affair was a kitchen shower and gifts were brought to the honoree merrily ensconced in a clothes basket covered with bright gingham and with appropriate kitchen gadgets festooning the container. Special guests were Miss Martindell's mother, Mrs. Henry Martindell, her grandmother, Mrs. Fay Marsh and her aunt, Mrs. Yorke Quimby.

Lilacs and snapdragons were used for the floral decor by the hostess and she served attractive desserts and coffee to her guests at the conclusion of the afternoon.

Another affair in the offing for the bride-elect promises to be one of the season's prettiest parties and will be given Thursday evening by Mrs. Fred Rumph in her home, 144 West San Antonio Dr. Mrs. Rumph's daughter, Olivann, a student at the University of California, Berkeley, will be Miss Martindell's only attendant at her wedding.

For Thursday's shower Mrs. Rumph will use fragrant bouquets of spring flowers in pastel shades, throughout the home. Those who will sign their name to the pretty card which will accompany the group gift are the honoree's mother, grandmother and aunt, Mrs. Quimby, another aunt, Mrs. Henry Klumpp of La Canada and daughter, Mrs. Henry Frost, as well as Mmes. Foundation Talk

Work of the Exceptional Children's Foundation will be told at the meeting of the Wives Club of Internes and Residents of the Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the hospital.

NEW PROVISIONALS will be honored Saturday evening at the annual spring formal dinner dance given by Rick Rackers, junior auxiliary to the Assistance League. Mrs. George Green Jr. is in charge of arrangements.

To Entertain at Dinner

Conversation will beat an animated tattoo in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Berry, 4110 Country Club Dr., next Saturday evening when, with co-hosts, Dr. Herbert and Mrs. Carlson, they entertain at a farewell cocktail and dinner party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Kendall who leave in June for an extended tour of Europe.

Assisting the hosts and hostess will be Mr. and Mrs. John W. Brooks of Orangewood Acres. Thirty-five friends have been bidden to the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendall, prior to sailing aboard the SS New York from New York on June 24, will visit in New Orleans and will be guests of Mrs. Wallace Miller of Annapolis. While on the continent they will tour the majority of the countries of Europe. In Paris the Kendalls will be entertained by Michelin Bardin, star of the Paris Opera, and a very good friend of Mrs. Berry, who is arranging the transoceanic introduction of Miss Bardin to Mr. and Mrs. Kendall.

DBE Hostess

A luncheon for Kitchener Chapter, Daughters of the British Empire, will be given by Mrs. E. O. Longfellow at 12:30 p. m. Tuesday at 377 Coronado Ave.

From 10 a. m. to 12 noon on Wednesday Mrs. Ralph Anderson and her sister, Mrs. O. W. Van Derhoof, will entertain at a fashionable brunch in the Anderson home, 3601 Falcon Ave. More than 100 invitations have been received by friends across town bidding them to the attractive spring party.

Assisting during the morning hours will be Mmes. John F. Grant, mother of the hostesses, Don Gordon, Ely Somerville and Wesley Rollo.

Compliment Miss Russell

Honoring Miss Dana Russell, who will become the bride of Doyle Edson Aug. 12, a tea and shower were given recently at the home of Mrs. Luther Shawver, 3921 Locust Ave. The table, covered with a pink cloth, bore pink and white candles and a centerpiece of pink gladioli, gardenias and pink rosebuds centered by a miniature bridal pair.

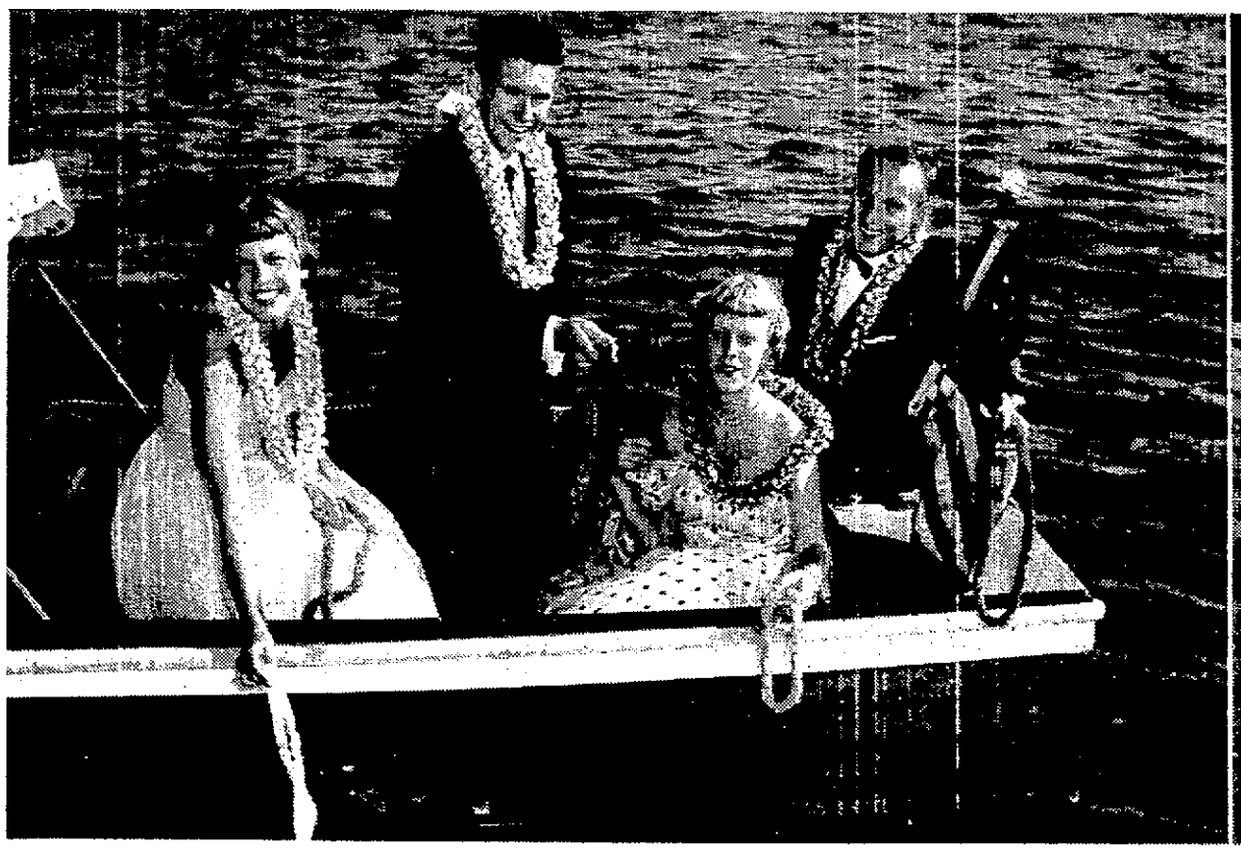

Pouring tea and assisting Mrs. Shawver were Mmes. Howard Pierce, A. E. Saunders, Bryant Wilson and Owen Day. Greeting guests were Mrs. C. G. Holbrook, Mrs. A. Supernaw and Miss Signe Gissberg. Receiving guests were Mrs. Winfield Edson, Mrs. Brooks Russell and the honoree, Miss Dana Russell.

Guests calling during the afternoon included members of the Jensen and Golden Circle classes of First Baptist Church.

Library Group

Members of the Alamitos Library Assn., their husbands and guests will have dinner and cards Friday in the East Branch Library. The committee includes Mrs. R. C. Sherman, Mrs. Laura Castin and Miss Ollie Bain.

Seniors Bid Farewell to High School Days at First Nighters Formal Party

The Wild Waves Are Saying

People Around Us in Champagne Mood

By IOLA MASTERSON

Some weeks are pretty dull affairs and then all of a sudden, like spring, things "bust out all over" and that's the way we like it! This week's notes are full of a variety of things to put the people around us in a champagne mood. So peek over our shoulder while we spin a story or so.

The pleased murmuring that broke out in certain sections the past few days indicated cherished invitations had been received from Ettie (Mrs. Gordon) Brown, Gladys (Mrs. Walter) Furie and Winifred (Mrs. Harold) Morris for the first in a series of parties the three hostesses are planning for their many friends. The first, per se, will be a coffee next Friday in the Brown manse at 5027 Vista St. Other equally festive coffee hours and luncheons will follow in June and July.

Having looked into the future lets take a look at the past, just to prove we're impartial! Last Saturday night John and Lynn Arkush discovered that when Peninsula folk say you're welcome they really mean it. Lynn and John moved to that spit of land where informality reigns supreme and before their packing crates had been picked up by the trash man they were guests at a sparkly welcome cocktail party given for them by Nada and John Richards in their home at 6424 E. Ocean Blvd. The Arkush address is 6525 E. Ocean. Nada used big, spicy roses and other friendly spring flowers to lend a party-air to her home. Another sort of lending was done by Harry Schumaker and Dr. Walter Gilkey, who loaned their energies to become merriest of potion mixers, seeing that the 50 or so guests were never long without a filled glass!

The sounds of merriment hovered in the air around Pat Van de Water's home, 3939 Pacific Ave. Wednesday and it would have taken a very sober sided type person, indeed, not to enter into the mirthful mood of the annual party given by sustaining members of the Junior League as they welcomed the years "newest" to the fold. A poolside luncheon highlighted the informal affair and bubbling with laughter over the decorations were the 55 women present. The decor was arranged by Carlene Burrell and her committee including Marge Conley, Gertrude Guertin, Ola Murphy, Helen Fielding and Ruth Hubbell. It was Ruth, we understand, who did the "art" work. As to the tongue-in-cheek decorations—really we wouldn't dare!

The thermometer is probably soaring down in Palm Springs this weekend but no matter how high it goes it will have trouble going any "upper" than the spirits of sun-tanning guests at the El Mirador. This marks the annual weekend when the San Bernardino Assistance League takes over the resort hotel for a close-of-the-season affair. Ethel and Pete Long (we never have forgiven San Berdoo for taking them away from us) asked Ellie and Frank Person and Marge and Roy McCullough to join them for the two fun-filled days. And with coolest clothes and brightest spirits they accepted.

On the theory that all work and no play makes a pretty sorry kettle of fish, Florence and Orville Cole invited the directors of the Long Beach Community Players to their home for buffet supper preceding the regularly scheduled business meet tonight. Not only that, they asked said directors to bring their wives or husbands as the case may be. One of the most interested and interesting women present will be Orville's mother, here from Norman, Okla., to visit. In her 80's, the sprightly lady can out-mancuver (mentally and physically) most people half her age!

Land of manana, down Baja California way, sounded just right for a few days to Dell Berry so, with friends from San Diego, she motored down to the Hamilton Ranch last Wednesday for a few sunny Mexican days. She'll be home Wednesday to tell Don all about it.

Off into the porpoise lanes went Carrie and Al Vignolo and Artelle and Pascal Dilday last weekend aboard the Dilday's cruiser for a sea jaunt to Ensenada.

All the haole (white) wahines (women) and kanes (men) of the Symphony Juniors banded together last night at Meadowlark Country Club for a genuine luau and dance; roast pig, poi, pineapple and all. Naturally, this called for some okolehau, too! Shirley and Jim Herley were hosts at their table to Les and Darrell Callahan, Beverly and John Henderson, Ed and Miriam Strickler and Vivian Crist and Dr. Bob Harris. Where the Turners, Loralee and Tom, sat there also were their guests Frances and Ray Parker, Garnette and George Hedley, Margaret and Jim Pino and Veda and Don Wells. A glance toward Jackie and Bob Campbell's table netted a pleasant glimpse of their guests, Joanne and Dick Barry. Many another tableful, too, gay with joyful people.

Our cool and misty atmosphere feels heavenly to at least two travelers just back from a wonderful trip (even if starchy hot) and they are Fred McDowell and his gracious mother, Mrs. Theresa McDowell, who landed at International Wednesday after several weeks plane hopping and relative visiting in the deep south.

Off to Arizona's dry and high mesa land went Ann and Guy Barton for a rest-up weekend. They'll be home tonight with memories of the sounds and sights of Yuma and Tucson.

Chic Wilma Hastings and her big, debonair husband, Glenn, would hardly be recognized this weekend by their friends about town for they turned into typical and doting grandparents. Wilma's platinum grey hair has been rumpled repeatedly by the baby hands of her grandsons, Robbie and Bill, and Glenn, we'll betcha, is wearing a pair of wrinkled trousers where youngsters have ridden hobby horse across his shins! They've been in Tranquility, Calif., (near Fresno) for a relaxed and lovely long weekend with their son and wife, Glenn Jr. and Fay, and the little boys. They'll be home tonight, hair back in place and trousers pressed, but hearts forever bent the way babies want them. Glenn Jr., incidentally, plans to come here this summer to finish studies for his master's degree at Long Beach State—a school he thinks is tops. Glenn is a phiz ed coach at Tranquility High School.

A rendezvous in Paris took place a few days ago between Bea Park, her niece, Donna Bradfield, and Mauvais Park. Bea and Donna sailed aboard the S. S. United States end of April and Mauvais followed by air a few days later. They were guests in Paris of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Louis E. Cunliffe (Mrs. C. is the former Barbara Anne Bradfield) and together they are now on a motoring tour which will take them across 2500 miles of the continent.

Most children would have trouble understanding how grown ups could have so much fun "gettin' educated." But fun they're having and we refer to those women gaily involved in the "Know Your Community" series of field trips and talks sponsored by the Community Volunteer Office. Thursday the gang saw what makes City College's Business and Technology Division tick and, during the luncheon hour at the school, heard Dr. George Dodson. Among those attending the fourth of the series (two more to go) were Bess Olson, the chairman; Patty Landis, Nina Trutanich, Jody Alpers, Pat Brennan, "Bert" Swanson, Mildred Wing, Berta Fast and Betty Ann Kirkpatrick, to name a few.

After tour, talk and luncheon they visited the new Tucker School for more inside information on things educational in Long Beach.

Silver Wing Girls Celebrate Silver Anniversary

Airline Stewardess Styles, Duties Change With Years

By JEAN MOORE

A salute to young women who pursue a career in the skies is being paid this month as the airline stewardess profession marks its 25th birthday.

Three Clipped Wings, former hostesses for United Air Lines, first company to initiate the idea of airborne stewardesses, live in Long Beach.

Vicy Zelsdorf, Bette Lou King and Roseanne DeGraw got together this week with Betty Kolodge of Torrance to compare hostessing in the "good old days" with today.

Actually the good old days in the experience of the vivacious trio goes back only a scant 10 years. Their meeting with a currently employed hostess revealed that changes have taken place.

Bette Kolodge has rarely cared for an airsick passenger. She works in pressurized cabins.

Grimacing, her predecessors recall caring for dozens of airsick passengers at once. They remember stewardess friends who developed anemia over a period of time by being so busy with airsick persons that they didn't have time to take oxygen themselves.

Bette Lou, a hostess from 1948 to 1950, and Vicy, who served from 1946 to '49, remember serving meals brought to the plane in boxes wrapped in asbestos paper. They weren't warm long.

Roseanne, who became a Clipped Wing in January when she married passenger Fred DeGraw, and Bette, with a June wedding ahead with a passenger, are accustomed to electric ovens where entrees are kept piping hot in casseroles.

Reaching and stretching for pillows and blankets on racks over passengers' heads actually increases the height of a hostess, they assert, adding that the maximum 5'5" requirement has been increased to 5'7" because today's planes are higher within.

During the stocking scarcity of World War II, girls aloft were allowed to wear leg makeup. They asked to continue the custom during summer months, but the company refused the request when nylons became plentiful.

Nail polish worn by Vicy and Bette Lou had to be pale or colorless, but gradually deeper shades are being accepted by officials. Heels at least two inches high were regulation several years ago. The shoes could be dolled up with bows, a surprise to Bette and Roseanne whose pumps must remain unadorned. News to the "veterans" was the wearing of flats while working long flights. In fact, regulation flats are now being worn, although their wearers don't care much for the style.

Hostesses today have it soft. Not so many years ago each stewardess was responsible for a 20-pound medical kit. Often they had to lug it for blocks. Now the kits are driven to the plane by a medical supply house.

Whereas hostesses used to receive instruction in delivering a baby, giving insulin and hypodermic shots, emphasis nowadays is on emergency procedure. All are still required to pass the Red Cross first aid course.

The first girls who took to the airways a quarter century ago were all registered nurses. Late requirements were two years of college and a year's business experience. While the coed is still given preference, a girl with three years in an office can now wear silver wings too.

It costs United $1,200 to train a stewardess. In the beginning a girl would serve an average of six months and succumb to Dan Cupid. Gradually her average service extended to a year until hostesses today are sky charmers for about 25 months before matrimony overtakes them. Whether the company's offerings became more attractive, men less plentiful or hostesses more choosy is not determined.

Dior's New Look ruined the morale of hostesses flying in the 40's. His notoriously long hemlines were impractical in air line work. Besides, the company had spent thousands of dollars providing trim uniforms with skirts at calf length and wasn't about to order longer versions at a Frenchman's whim.

The hostess' collective fashion sense may have been piqued, but the male public loved the air line for its decision. In New York, especially, whistles shrilled and eyes focused on the shorter skirts of the stewardesses as they stepped from taxi to their hotel.

Through the years their uniforms have progressed from awkward capes over lint-catching green flannel to slick navy winter gabardines and brighter blue summer linen. English manufacturers of the summer fabric call it "crash linen," but for obvious psychological reasons the air line avoids the term.

In addition to caring for three small children, Bette Lou King now helps her husband run private swimming schools in four cities in the Los Angeles area. Wife of a United captain, Vicy Zelsdorf is a homemaker with several children. Do they ever miss their old jobs? Yes, they admit. Looking down on white clouds is something they shall never forget.

All four agree on two things. Babies are the best passengers and there is a wonderful, indescribable something about working afloat in the wild blue yonder.

FASHION IN FLIGHT

Skimpy skirts and a cape were standard garb when United Air Lines initiated the stewardess profession 25 years ago this month. Former hostess Mrs. Robert Zelsdorf, 122 Granada Ave., models it here. Alongside is Mrs. Stuart King, 6731 Stearns Ave., attired in her uniform of the 1940's. Betty Kolodge, 5500 Torrance Blvd., Torrance, wears the trim summer uniform designed in the 40's and still popular. Newest outfit, winter weight and navy, is shown by Mrs. Fred DeGraw, 265 Glendora Ave. Mmes. Zelsdorf, King and DeGraw were settled down to earth in Long Beach by marriage. Still flying, Miss Kolodge will be grounded by matimony next month.—(Staff photo.)

Donna Organ Lovely Bride

Three gold coins representing the purest of metals and symbols of happiness and fortune in Holland were presented to the bridegroom by Dr. George McDonald after the wedding of Miss Donna Marie Organ and Harry Charles Donkers of Washington, D. C. Dr. McDonald officiated at the early evening double ring ceremony in Virginia Country Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Organ of 520 Mesa Way are the parents of the popular bride, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Johanna M. Donkers of Lima, Peru.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional gown of Chantilly and bridal satin with a chapel train, a cap of Chantilly, pearls and illusion tulle. She carried a Bible with a white orchid and white ribbon.

James Dudley was best man. Ushers were Bill Organ, Bruce Koppe, Vance Thurston, Tom Uecker and Kelly Clement.

A champagne reception for the guests followed at the club. Barney Sorkins Orchestra provided music for dancing. Assisting as hostesses during the evening were Mrs. Stuart Lemon and Mrs. John Hunter.

The bride, who was graduated from high school in St. Louis, Mo., attended University of Oregon two years where she was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. The bridegroom, who was born in Peru and reared in Holland and Belgium, was graduated last June from the University of Oregon with a bachelor of science degree. He is now serving in the Air Force and later plans to enter the diplomatic service.

After a honeymoon in Palm Springs, the couple will live in Washington, D. C.

Democracy's early art — an exhibition for the citizen as much as the art lover—comes to the Municipal Art Center, in "Little Masters of 17th Century Holland," from May 22 to June 26.

American democracy of today—despite a three-century, 3,000-mile gap — was forecast in the republic of the 17th century Dutch. The Netherlands cast out European feudalism and monarchy to become a modern nation, a constitutional federation of states, when it wrenched its independence from Spain in 1609.

Like Americans now, Dutch painters of the 17th Century possessed a democratic spirit. The Little Masters were the first artists in modern history to find inspiration in the everyday stuff of life. Their genius transformed everyd reality into art: studies of a merchant's or a housewife's face, pictures of middle class home life or peasants merrymaking, scenes of land and sea.

Painting by van Goyen, Everdingen, van der Neer, van der Heyden, Fyt, Netscher, de Vries, Duyen, Jongh, Huysmans, Klomp, Lingelbach and Naiven will be on view.

"Little Masters of 17th Century Holland" was prepared by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, and is circulated under the auspices of the American Federation of Arts. Supplementing the exhibition will be Dutch prints lent by the Palace of the Legion of Honor, San Francisco.

Today is the last day of the Municipal Art Center's current exhibition, The Architecture of Japan.

Ben Messick's water color, "A Prayer for Peace," in the Grumbacher Traveloan exhibition of water color techniques, is getting around. It was in the Grand Central Art Galleries in New York during March; now it is in the Coliseum in Austin, Tex., and next it will go to the Centennial Art Museum in Corpus Christi, Tex., for two weeks.

Spectrum Club members will sketch today at Henry's Yacht Anchorage on Terminal Island.

All artists living in California are invited to exhibit in the "All California Exhibition" at the Laguna Beach Festival of Arts July 16-Aug. 14. Cash prizes totalling $2,000 will be awarded oil paintings and water colors in both conservative and modern categories. Prospective exhibitors may obtain entry forms by writing to the Festival of Arts, Laguna Beach.

NEW RESIDENTS

Two months ago Mr. and Mrs. Gene L. Lentzner arrived from St. Louis, Mo., to join other young couples living in the Los Altos area. Their sons are Alan Neil, 6 months, and Jay Robert, 2½. The Missourians now live at 2611 Marber Ave.

We Welcome -- -- --

From St. Louis to Sun Come the Lentzners

By JEAN MOORE

A honeymoon to California and several subsequent vacations finally brought Mr. and Mrs. Gene L. Lentzner to uproot themselves from St. Louis and head for Long Beach. Among the city's newer residents, they arrived March 1 and are now living at 2611 Marber Ave. in Los Altos.

More than 50 years in the ready-to-wear business is the heritage of Gene Lentzner, so it was only natural that when he finished school he should become an assistant buyer for Stix, Baer and Fuller in St. Louis, one of the country's largest department stores.

Again, it naturally followed that he should work through the ranks to become, in five years, one of the seven divisional merchandise managers of the store.

But a person can become lost in a store of 4,000 employees. California not only offered climate, but opportunity to run his own shop. Gene Lentzner now owns Gene's in downtown Long Beach. He considers the name coincidence a good omen.

Born in St. Louis, Gene received his BS degree from Washington University in that city, then went on to Harvard to receive his master of arts degree in business administration. He earned the Phi Beta Kappa key at Washington U., and was a Baker's Scholar, a comparable honor, at Harvard.

Extra curricular activities occupied him on both campuses with the result that he became a member of Beta Gamma Sigma, business honorary; Delta Sigma Rho, economics honorary, and the national forensic honorary society.

Current active affiliations are the Associated Retailers and the Chamber of Commerce in Long Beach. As a member of the teacher's staff of the St. Louis Associated Retailers organization, he taught merchandising and buying techniques.

Music has played an important role in his life. At seven he studied piano and has never stopped. There was a time when he was ambitious to become a concert pianist, but the ready-to-wear strain was stronger.

For his own enjoyment and his family's, he often fills the air at home with classical or semi-classical music after shop hours. World War II sent him to North Africa and Europe for three years with the infantry.

He's as handy with a tennis racquet as a piano keyboard—or accessorizing a feminine ensemble. He admits his wife is a "tough customer." A size 9, tiny Mrs. Lentzner has her own ideas of fashion, too. It may take some conferring, but with the two of them pooling their ideas, she emerges fashionably attired to suit both their tastes.

Seizing an obvious opportunity, the reporter slyly asked which feminine fashion through the years Mr. Lentzner thought most flattering to most women. "The bouffant skirt and the nipped-in waist, like today's styles" was the immediate answer.

Collinsville, Ill., is Mrs. Lentzner's home town. She attended the University of Illinois before taking over the credit office of her family's furniture business in Collinsville.

Her own little credits take most of her time these days. They are Jay Robert, 2½, and Alan Neil, six months. The two little charmers bear out another tradition in the Lentzner family. Never yet has a little girl enriched the family clan. If and when she does she'll hear from men on all sides of the family telling her how to dress.

Social Meeting

Verba Buell will be chairman of the social meeting of Degree of Honor 108 at 8 p. m. Thursday at 728 Elm Ave. President Gene Graham will preside.

Surprise Fetes Brighten Lakewood Social Scene

By BERNICE AHRENDES

This past week surprise parties have been held in several Lakewood homes.

On Thursday evening Barbara Ham, was surprised with a bridal shower given in her honor at the home of Barbara Williams, 5908 Dunrobin. Cookies were decorated and placed on plastic toothpicks to form parasols over colored cups filled with ice cream. Crepe paper was used to complete the decoration theme of yellow and green.

Bidden to attend were Mmes. Vera Emery, Betty Spence, Evelyn Carpenter, Lorraine Clyker, June Luckel, Lois Holbert, Irene Gumm, Marie Schaefer, A. Russell, Juanita Morris, Hattie Oldenkamp, Elenore Young, Jeanne Bachar, Lucille Grubb, Bernice Oban, Cookie Steveson, Dorothy Libbe, Martha Skinner, J. Honores, Edith Orth and Vivian De Younge.

Miss Ham will become the bride of William Wagaman on May 27 in the First Baptist Church in Bellflower.

Novel cakes were conversation pieces at a party on Saturday night to welcome home Jim Allred and bid farewell to Tim Crosby. Mr. and Mrs. Wesley D. Heusdens were the hosts. Allred has just returned from Guam where he served with the Air Force. Crosby left Wednesday for Arkansas, following completion of basic training with the Army at Fort Ord.

Crosby's cake was decorated in true hill billy style with "Take To the Hills, Tim" written on it. Allred's cake was enscribed with "Welcome Home." Over 25 guests attended the party and enjoyed talking over their old times at Excelsior where most of the young fellows graduated in 1951. Dancing and games were also on the agenda.

The home of Miss Pat Robeson, 6118 Adenmore was the scene of a bridal shower Thursday to honor Rachael Wall who will become the bride of Lynn Reineke on June 19. Assisting hostess was Janice Reineke.

Invitations were sent to Mmes. Fay Heinzy, John Brown, Fred Roland, Fay Heinzy, Phyllis Fairy, Lucile Mack, Betty Curl, Ed Jurvy, Worden Burch, Esther Reinke, Helen Robeson, Miss Dorothy Bishop, Florence Sealy, Juanita Seay, Lucille Mack and Mildred Hazelwood.

Table decor centered around an attractively decorated wedding cake trimmed with blue umbrellas, pink doves and white wedding bells. Pink and white candles were used and pink streamers trailed from a lovely pink umbrella to the various gifts brought by the guests.

Mother's Day will mean something special for two Lakewood families from now on. To the Henry Dixon family at 5932 Clark Ave., a baby girl was born at St. Mary's Hospital in Long Beach. To the Ralph Gillispie family at 5907 Pennswood a son was born in a Hollywood hospital. Both families had two children previous to their Mother's Day blessed event. The Dixon's have now three girls and roll call at the Gillispie home will find three boys.

Among Career Women

Long Beach Women Elected to Highest State Posts at Dental Assistants Parley

By ANNE GILCHRIST

The singular honor of having a president and vice president of a state organization elected from a local chapter has come to Long Beach with the election this week of Mary Joyce Peters to the state presidency of California State Dental Assistants and Rose McIlvaine as vice president. Both are past presidents of the Harbor Dental Assistants. Mrs. Peters is an assistant in the offices of Dr. Edwin R. Harvey and Mrs. McIlvaine is employed by Dr. Marcia Sneden.

The election of the two career women occurred at the state conclave in session at the Statler Hotel, Los Angeles, May 8-10, with their installation taking place Tuesday. Dr. Leslie Wingfield of Los Angeles conducted the impressive ceremonies.

As if the erection of the two top officers wasn't sufficient glory to bring to one chapter at the annual meet, still other honors were won decisively when clinic awards were made. The first three trophies were won by three members of the Harbor District Society with first place being taken by Thora Dowling; second place by Evelyn Parsons; and third place by Jeanne Kasten. First place for the student award trophy also was taken by Long Beach student members Peni Katzoff, Ann Schwartz and Marilyn Sprague. These students are members of the Dental Assistants class taught by Mrs. Alpha Cook at the City College Business and Technology Division, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

President Mary Joyce Peters called a directors' meeting and introduced her statewide board to her counsellor, Mrs. Cay Rammel, of this city. Plans were discussed for national convention to take place in San Francisco this October.

Long Beach delegates in attendance at convention, which had a registration of 831 people, were Viola Engel, Rosemary Leedom, Harriet Beadle, Dorothy Allen, Jacqueline Van Sickle, Jean Hatch and Joan Travis. Alternates were Martha Siegen, Katherine Van Etten, Theresa Hansen, Katherine Stephens, Mildred Dunken, Alpha Cook and Eva Miner.

Exchange Teacher

After nine months spent observing schools for exceptional children in England, Scotland and various countries on the continent, Miss Harriett Knoblock, 839 Grand Ave., special training teacher at Long Beach Polytechnic High School, will embark for home tomorrow from Rotterdam on the M/S Arendskerk. She will return via the Suez Canal, Bangkok, Singapore, Hong Kong and Yokohama. Her return to Long Beach will thus complete a trip around the world for the attractive educator who began her travels with a Ford Foundation scholarship which she received last year.

For three months, Miss Knoblock visited schools for exceptional children in England. She has written home that she has been received with the utmost courtesy and kindness by the heads of various schools.

For her future work with exceptional children, she writes that she has found much of value in studies in Scotland, Sweden Denmark and Belgium. Miss Knoblock's trip has been the culmination of many years of work with exceptional children. She was one of the first teachers in this field at Poly High and received her master's degree in special education at San Francisco State College.

Insurance Women

Votes were cast and results tabulated at the last meeting of Insurance Women of Long Beach, a dinner affair at the Victor Hugo, and new officers elected were Marie Eckles, president; Constance Winkler, vice president; Doris Dean, recording secretary; Clara Moore, corresponding secretary; Audrey Hood, treasurer, and Pauline Kincaid, auditor.

Those named to the board of directors were Leatrice Skarpa, Sandra Smith, Esther Trujillo, Joanne Roost, Reva Stewart and Jane Ann Campbell. National convention in San Francisco this June will be attended by delegates Marie Eckles, the president, and Doris Dean. Alternates will be Marguerite Otto and Leatrice Skarpa.

Harriett Knoblock

Jane Ann Campbell presided at election meeting with education chairman Doris Dean presenting the program. She introduced Keith James, coordinator of LBCC B&TD, and Robert Krogfoss, instructor at the college, who told of the new insurance assistant's course to be given this fall.

Two new members were initiated, Adah James and Dorothy Gillelen and out-of-town guests, Patty Pierce of San Gabriel Valley Insurance Women and Carolee Corey of the Omaha, Neb., club were welcomed.

Manuela Nieto

With the coming of summer, elections continue to be the big news in club circles of town. Manuela Nieto Business and Professional Women's Club is another group to announce election results and installation plans. Miss Pat Freeman will accept the president's gavel at ceremonies Tuesday evening to be conducted in Woodruff Community Church.

Taking office with her will be Mrs. Yola Brazil, Mary Pierson, Sadie Michnnick, Margaret Nagel and Opal McIntosh. Outgoing president, Elizabeth Derry, will be in charge and officiating at installation will be Kathleen Head, vice chairman of Sierra Mar District.

Theme for the evening will be "Good Neighborliness" and a program in the spirit of a fiesta has been arranged.

National Secretaries

The third annual three-day state convention of National Secretaries, which ends today in Santa Monica, has 17 members of the local Queen Beach chapter in attendance including official delegate, Jeanne Hissner, president of the Long Beach group. Those at the sessions have been Verla Wilson, Madaline Ferguson, Edna Ley, Marie Wells, Marilyn Hart, Cal Holmes, Jo Knoerr, Elma Braid, Charlene Tritten, Phyllis Trepinski, Margaret Ericson, Betty Mahoney, Wilma Conde, Felda Wilson, Luella Darnell and Jean Taylor.

The conclave is being hostessed by the Santa Monica chapter and approximately 200 members from the 21 California chapters are in attendance. The Miramar Hotel has served as headquarters for the convention.

Quota Club Begins Year

Quota Club's first meeting of the new year was called to order at Victor Hugo's last Monday evening by Connie Brown. A gala note was added to the evening by the presentation of a beautifully decorated birthday cake to the new president.

Ways and means fund activities of the evening were participated in by Genevieve Parker, Marguerite Wood and Kathryn Wiand.

Virginia Youngquist announced plans for a hospital party to be given in Ward C of Long Beach General Hospital next Thursday. At this time birthdays of the patients will be observed.

It was announced that president Connie and vice president Rita Stanfield would be in attendance this weekend at a president's council meeting taking place at Mission Inn in Riverside. Mrs. Brown was named delegate by Quotians to attend the international conference of Quota in Banff next June. Rita Stanfield will be alternate. Other major plans under way are for the district conference to convene in October here at the Lafayette Hotel with Marguerite Wood serving as chairman.

Monday Event

Mrs. Walter C. Williams will preside at the meeting of the executive board of the Democratic Women's Study Club at 10 a. m. Monday at Linden Hall. Luncheon, to which the public is invited, will be served at noon. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Evelyn Woll, chairman, or Mrs. Carl Prough, vice chairman. Bridge and canasta will be played in the afternoon.

Carnation Club

Carnation Club will have a luncheon and card party at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday at the home of Celene Ewers, 2010 Olive Ave.

Will Accent Pilot Theme on Program

Apropos of Pilot Club's theme for the year, "Women of Service, This Is Your City," will be their program meeting Wednesday when they meet at the Lafayette Hotel at 7 p.m. and hear as evening's speaker, Samuel M. Roberts, director of finance of the City of Long Beach. Roberts will show a film, "Municipal Dividends," based on municipal activities and produced by the city.

Pilots will be personally interested in the film beyond their interest in city because member Margie Cate, juvenile inspector, appears in some of the scenes and Nina Boyle, another Pilot, assisted with the movie's preparation.

Ruth Tay, new president of the downtown club, will preside. She wielded the gavel for the first time at the club's recent business meeting in their clubrooms at the Lafayette which was followed by informal dinner in the Ballerina Room. It was at this meeting that reports and plans for the new club year were presented by each chairman.

Mrs. Thayer to Lead Poly FacultyWives

Mrs. Howard Thayer will wield the president's gavel next year at meetings of the Faculty Wives of Polytechnic High School. She and her officers were installed Friday following a dinner in the home of Mrs. William Carls, 3719 Weston Pl.

Husbands of members were witnesses to the installation ceremony when others taking office were Mmes. Richard Fairchild, first vice president; Ronald Prescott, second vice president; Jess Lee, secretary; Neil Van Steenbergen, treasurer, and Paul Lynn, publicity.

Travel pictures shown by Mr. and Mrs. Claud Freeman and a white elephant sale for a fund for underprivileged students rounded out the evening.

Hostesses were Mmes. Harland Eslinger, William Carls, Norlyn Dull, Donald Smith, Arthur Alverado, Calvin Rossi, James Argubright and Arthur Stribley.

does your face magnify your age?
if your mirror tells heartbreaking truths, you need
Jacqueline Cochran's
FLOWING VELVET
the only beauty formula containing hydrolin

This modern flowing formula has already given new hope to countless women who looked too old, too soon! Women like you . . . who'd almost despaired of a dry, lifeless skin . . . those aging lines creeping up around your mouth, throat, under your eyes.
What to do? Jacqueline Cochran wondered, too. Long before she won fame as a flyer, she was a recognized beauty authority. She saw how most women "buttered" their faces with heavy creams and spent small fortunes on stopgap treatments. But all in vain.
Something entirely new was needed. Jacqueline Cochran was first to detect why these methods failed. They only treated superficial dryness, not the real cause; merciless dehydration of sub-surface tissues. Then, in her own laboratories, after years of research, she discovered Hydrolin, a new and unique ingredient which she owns and controls. For the first time, Hydrolin can . . . and does transfer beneficial moisture into the deep tissues of the skin.
Exclusive Hydrolin makes Flowing Velvet unique. It cannot be duplicated or imitated successfully. Thanks to Hydrolin . . . and other rich components, only Flowing Velvet acts in these 3 ways:
1. It furnishes moisture that actually sinks into the skin.
2. It provides necessary oils for essential lubrication.
3. It maintains the normal balance of oils and moisture.
Your mirror can tell you. What just one touch of Flowing Velvet does! Your face feels cool, refreshed . . . tiny lines smooth out . . . there's a luminous glow. Your skin actually grows lovelier by the day.
Make Flowing Velvet your 24-hour beauty care. It contains no hormones! Flowing Velvet is greaseless, too . . . so you can wear it all day under make-up, all night without smudging your pillow. Why not start today!

May Motif at Nautical Club

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

A May Day motif was used at the monthly luncheon party of the Nautical Club Thursday at the Officers Club, Allen Center. Mrs. H. E. Anderson and Mrs. Robert Craig were hostesses for the afternoon.

Mrs. Philip Ruth, newly elected president, conducted the business session.

Just recently returned from the east are those very nice folks, Rear Adm. George J. McMillian and Mrs. MacMillian, who had a wonderful five weeks vacation. Most important was seeing their beautiful new granddaughter Megan Mack, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. William Mack of Washington, D. C., and also seeing their 12-year-old grandson Bill. Many, many parties were the order of the day both in Alexandria, Va., and Washington, D. C. for the popular pair. Among those entertaining were the admiral's cousins, Adm. and Mrs. Preston V. Mercer and Capt. and Mrs. W. A. Saunders.

Probably the most exciting and a time of really old friends getting together was the surprise "Guam Party" given for them by friends, Col. and Mrs. Charles Todd. Invited were shipmates and friends who were on Guam together at the outbreak of World War II. Among the well known Navy personnel was Capt. L. Jackson, NC, now chief nurse for the Navy Nurse Corps.

House guests of Comdr. and Mrs. Robert Slach from Tucson, Ariz., are Mrs. Slach's sister, Mrs. Ted Weitz and daughter Susan.

Visiting with Col. and Mrs. Frank Lowery recently were Mr. and Mrs. David Lowery of Torrance and Frank Lowery, Jr., from UCLA.

Entertaining their many friends at a beautiful luncheon and card party last week were Mmes. George J. McMillin, D. C. Laizure, Arthur Moen, and S. D. Truesdell.

Capt. and Mrs. Barry James entertained at a dinner party last Monday night and guests of honor were Col. and Mrs. T. L. Wiper.

Thursday was an exciting day for Mrs. William W. Davis and pretty little daughters who drove to San Diego to meet ChPCL Davis who arrived from the Far East on the USS Kearsarge. Now at home on leave with his family the navy warrant officer and his family are beginning to think about packing as they will leave in the early summer for new duty and residence at the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard. They now are at home in Lakewood to their many friends in this area.

The nominating committee of the Long Beach Air Force Officers Wives Club with Mrs. T. L. Wiper presiding met for luncheon and a business meeting last Tuesday at the Officers Club at the Air Base.

Mrs. Nancy Creed is leaving for New York shortly and from there will go to Europe for a vacation.

Delighted to learn that Rear Adm. and Mrs. Arthur T. Moen now have three fine grandsons, the latest being Gregory Moen Goethals, who resides with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Goethals in Glendale. His two little brothers are Ricky and Tommy.

Mrs. Ted Timbers and children recently enjoyed a few days in Taft with Mrs. Timber's folks.

Major and Mrs. Leon Foreman and Mrs. T. Ray recently visited with Mrs. Foreman's mother, Mrs. Eugene Williams in San Diego.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. T. E. Hawkins, president of the Coast Guard Officers Wives Club entertained her board members at a luncheon at the Officers Club, Allen Center.

Shortly Lt. and Mrs. Hawkins and small daughter, Gwen Lynn will enjoy a cross country vacation with destination being Cleveland, Ohio, where they will visit relatives.

Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. C. A. Murray have gone to Denver, Colo., for a two weeks vacation.

And down to Mexico for the weekend "Kentucky Derby" races went Comdr. and Mrs. M. Steltenkamp, who made it very southern, though south of the border, with mint julips and all.

Mrs. Rose Gartner, national president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Fleet Reserve Association will be honored at a luncheon party on May 23 at the Towne Club. Given by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Fleet Reserve Association, Branch 43, the chairman is Elsie Richter assisted by Frances Pugh, Rena Arlt, Mary D'Andrea and Rose Davis.

Reunion parties to take place in the future are the shipmates and friends of the USS Nashville on June 3. and USS Nevada shipmates on Aug. 6.

Hear that there's to be a ship's party at the Wilton Hotel port, and starboard on May 19, and 20 for the personnel of the Long Beach Group, Pacific Reserve Fleet and their wives and guests.

Lt. (jg) Ann Dixon over at the Naval Station has just returned from a wonderful vacation in Hawaii.

Paul Haverlock from the VA in San Pedro was speaker at the Service Wives Coordinating Committee luncheon recently.

Twyman R. Brammer, supervising freight traffic officer at the Naval Supply Depot, will speak to Navy Wives on "Shipment of Household Goods" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Savannah Housing Clubroom. A potluck dinner will be served at 6 p.m. All Marine, Navy and Coast Guard wives are invited.

Esterly-Tuttle Vows Repeated in Evening

In the presence of 250 guests, Miss Mary Jayne Tuttle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Millard Charles Tuttle, 1107 Marshall Pl. and Harry Edwin Esterly, son of Mrs. Walter Rothingass, 3240 Clark Ave., and the late Walter Rothingass were married at 8 p. m. May 14 in Atlantic Ave. Methodist Church. The Rev. Willard A. Schurr officiated in the double ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Herbert Tuttle, and her twin sister, Opal Jean Chambers, was matron of honor.

The bridal gown was styled with a white lace yoke and with lace points over the full satin skirt. A crown of net and small pearls held the fingertip length veil, and the bride carried a white Bible with a detachable orchid and stephanotis.

The matron of honor wore light blue taffeta with white lace top, long pointed sleeves and carried a crescent of white iris. something to talk about...

Our prediction: Lemon Ice will be a basic fashion fact by the end of summer. Lemon Ice, the clear, cool, light-to-bright color range of yellows that mean freshness and flattery to your summer wardrobe. And in this season of tone-on-tone colors, Lemon Ice accessories complement Lemon Ice costumes (this means you in yellow from brim top to toes).

So be sure to see our high fashion accessories in Lemon Ice . . . see the longer, slimmer gloves that hug the arm all the way from wrist to almost-elbow, or the very, very short ones that barely reach your wrist . . . see the smaller, more compact handbags that keep in balance with the lean, simplified silhouette and almost always come in soft, luxurious calfskin . . . see matching earrings, bracelets and necklaces by Coro in a gilded chain, linked together with gilded circles and altogether a striking masterpiece of intricate design . . . see the new stockings "filmed in color." The color you wear on your legs can be as effective as the color of any of your other accessories, so choose them carefully—and let Phoenix and Walker's hosiery experts help you with the hosiery color shades for your Lemon Ice costume.

All in all we're sure you'll be fashion-right and color-bright in Lemon Ice for summer!

P.S. See Walker's main floor and Pine Avenue windows all dressed up in Lemon Ice.

6 DRESS SIZES, 56 POUNDS SLIMMER

Mrs. Barbara Maddock (case history #42) is shown in the picture on the right, at the start of a new life. It is hard to believe that she was once the woman in the left hand photograph. Only similar facial features prove that this is true.

Several months ago, Barbara Maddock weighed 178 pounds, wore a size 44 dress. She felt she could never be normal and attractive again. She was self-conscious, unhappy, hated to leave the house. She was finally driven to seek my help because of severe headaches and backaches.

BEFORE: Barbara Maddock weighed 178 pounds, wore a size 44 dress.

One of my figure consultants guided her in a personalized, "tailored" reducing program. In three months, she slimmed down 56 pounds, 6 dress sizes. She lost 11 inches from her waist, 12 inches from her hips, and 18 inches from her thighs. These results were guaranteed her.

Now she says: "I feel young again. I wear smart clothes, have lots of friends, and go anywhere."

When a woman begins to look and feel better she takes greater pride in her clothes and appearance, takes on a certain grace and poise that immediately make her more popular, accepted. This can happen to you. You can look youthful, attractive . . . wear smart clothes . . . enjoy life. I will guarantee you the results Barbara Maddock achieved, no matter how difficult your problem. You'll start seeing these results within two weeks. Try it . . . phone one of my salons now.

The new slenderizing service I have developed will delight you because there are no starvation diets, no strenuous exercises. It features personalized attention, privacy, low cost. For information about this service phone now or call collect to one of my salons. You can have a complimentary treatment and figure analysis without obligation.

"For reducing, relaxing, beauty and health."

TODAY: Except for facial features, she is completely changed. 56 pounds, 6 dress sizes slimmer, she is youthful, attractive.

WRITE IN THE WEIGHT YOU WANT TO BE
I will guarantee to slim you down to the weight you want and will tell you how long it will take. Tear out this box, and bring it when you come for your complimentary treatment.

Until today you might as well have been putting your expensive creams on glass!

MAX FACTOR'S new discovery, the SECRET KEY, throws open the barrier in your skin that's been holding back your creams and lotions!

For several years, we at Max Factor have been searching for the answers to certain questions:

"Why do women with dry skin problems never seem to get the help they long for, even from the most expensive creams?"

"Why do so many women keep switching from one 'oily skin' treatment preparation to another?"

"Why do blackheads and blemishes still persist—even when a woman follows the strictest corrective beauty routine?"

A PERSONAL REPORT FROM MAX FACTOR on the Secret Key, the discovery that opens up a whole new approach to a naturally lovely skin.

We spent thousands of hours in the Max Factor Laboratories searching for the answers to these puzzling questions. This search uncovered a startling fact: there is a chemical barrier in the skin that keeps creams and lotions from getting in and going to work. This barrier develops because the skin does not have correct pH* balance (It is either too acid or too alkaline). No wonder women were creaming their skins faithfully night after night, peering into their mirrors hopefully day after day—and finding disappointment. For few women have that proper skin balance.

We unlock one of Nature's closely-guarded secrets! A way had to be discovered to break through this stubborn barrier, so that creams and lotions could bring relief to the parched or oil-clogged skin cells underneath. A way had to be found to return a woman's skin to its proper pH* balance. I can now reveal that our scientists have found a way to do this successfully—through the use of a remarkable liquid preparation we call the Secret Key.

The Secret Key returns the skin to the acidity-alkalinity balance characteristic of a young, healthy skin. It brings back a natural freshness and radiance that you cannot get from a surface cosmetic. And, by returning your skin to the correct acidity-alkalinity balance, Secret Key opens the way for treatment creams and lotions to do their beautifying work.

The discovery of the Secret Key, we realized, opened up completely new possibilities for a woman to bring out all the natural loveliness of her skin.

We proceeded to develop four new groups of corrective creams and lotions — treatments for the dry skin, the oily skin, the disturbed skin and the normal skin that could follow right behind the Secret Key and help the skin to help itself. We believe these products are the finest to come out of any laboratory.

Suddenly, you will begin to notice a real improvement! Laboratory tests have proved that the use of Secret Key before these new corrective creams and lotions made them completely effective, because there was no longer a barrier of abnormal chemical composition through which they had to fight. Secret Key then, was the key we had been searching for for years.

Today, I am happy to be able to place these new products in your hands—and to bring you the Secret Key that can open the way to the skin beauty you have longed for.

This is the Secret Key to a lovely skin

What is "Secret Key"?
The Secret Key is a remarkable new liquid preparation that opens up your skin to accept needed correction from the outside. A skin that would not respond to treatment last week may suddenly begin to bloom when the Secret Key is used.

How does it work?
By applying the Secret Key you actually return your skin to the acidity-alkalinity balance of young, healthy skin. This removes the natural barrier that has been keeping creams and lotions from their beneficial work.

6-oz. bottle of Secret Key
$1.50 plus tax

How is it used?
To restore the natural radiance to your skin, Secret Key may be used alone after cleansing.

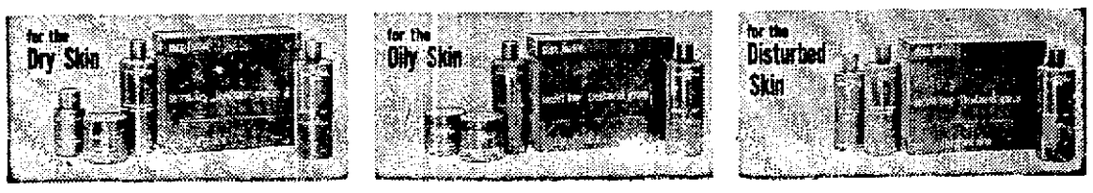

To correct a dry skin, use Secret Key with its related dry skin creams: Double-Depth Cleansing Cream, Enriched Hormone Cream, Active Moisturizer (a new-type moisturizer that remains active all day under make-up.)

To correct an oily skin, use Secret Key with its related oily skin creams: Gentle Foam Cleanser, Facial Pack, Vita-Night Cream (uses Vitamins A and D to absorb and gradually correct excess oiliness).

To correct a disturbed skin, use Secret Key with its related formulations for disturbed skin: Gentle Foam Cleanser and Clear-Up (skin-tinted antiseptic lotion that conceals and helps correct unsightly blemishes.)

To soften and smooth a normal skin, use Secret Key with its related skin creams: Double-Depth Cleansing Cream and Velvety Night Cream.

Emotions Affect Good Health

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

A letter from a reader asks "Will you please write something about anxiety and family conflicts affecting the glands and blood pressure? Perhaps a lot of people would be in better health if they understood this and would be nicer persons to live with."

It is a well known fact today that our emotions can change the chemistry of our bodies, can affect every organ we have, and cause a whole flock of miserable physical symptoms when there is actually nothing wrong organically.

People just do not yet believe what tremendous repercussions our moods and thoughts have on our physical vitality and appearance! They read about it and accept it to a degree. But they do not truly believe it or they could not do what they do to themselves, unless they wish to commit suicide.

They go right ahead all tensed up, bickering with their family and friends, defending their little rights, hurrying and worrying, in short, wasting their time and causing ill will.

Gumline cavaties have been correlated with times of strain and it is possible to break out in a rash because of worry. Just the nervousness many persons feel when going to a doctor can raise blood pressure. We can damage our health or shorten the youthful portion of life by tense and dreary attitudes.

When I think of the dinner hour when the family gathers about the family board it is a wonder to me that there are not many more people with indigestion and ulcers than there are

This should be a time of charm, with exchanges concerning the day's experiences. It should be a time for laughter, for relaxation, rather than a battleground on which family problems are fought out. This latter will happen even in the happiest homes unless you make a few rules and abide by them.

At the evening meal never discuss problems or anything that will create tension. Set aside a problem hour twice a week and talk difficulties all over then. Usually you can do this. Of course, sometimes there is a crucial decision which cannot wait, but more often you have just fallen into a habit of mulling problems over all of the time. Surely you can save just the dinner hour for shared laughter and fun.

It's tricky, I know, to avoid fireworks at the dinner table because this is one time when you are all together. But if you and your family will really make an effort to shelve controversial topics at this time you will see how delightful your family can be.

Anticipation Is Keynote of Successful Living

By ANGELO PATRI

Teachers report, and the mail confirms, that there is fear in the minds of our adolescent boys and girls that their lives are to be cut short by war so the thing to do is to enjoy whatever they desire while they can and never mind such things as lessons, preparation for the future that may never come.

That is an unhealthy and a constricting idea. A very wrong idea. The future is a sealed secret and if we believe what we say we do then this world of ours is not coming to an end. Life is going on and will continue to go on and we along with it and in it. Nobody, during the known history of this world, ever yet owned it and used it as his garden though many have tried. "The earth is the Lord's," remember.

Suppose the worst comes to the worst and there is war. We have had wars before and many of us lived through them, even those who fought on the battlefields. Are we to be less courageous, less dedicated to our ideals? Impossible. We have a generation of youth that are more intelligent, more able, more stable and more dedicated to righteousness than any on earth. Who is afraid?

Experience teaches us that nothing is as bad as it looked at a distance. We all know that most of the things we worry about never do happen. but suppose the worst does happen? Wouldn't it be better to be in good shape to meet it rather than be in a confused and weakened state? Truly.

Then, my boy, and my girl, consider. What will give you the most strength, physical and spiritual power? A healthy body and a steady mind; a sure faith in oneself, one's country. That faith is essential to the whole matter. When doubt and fear and despair fill the mind the body fails. There is no altruism in life where that sort of thinking can be helpful.

Then isn't the best thing to do to build strength and courage and power to believe you can do it and act on that belief? Wouldn't staying in school to learn as much as possible and acquire as much skill as possible be sensible? Wouldn't trying to make each day a high day in achievements of one kind or another be more effective toward happiness than letting go and dropping below your own standard of a good life?

Let's not take the easy way of letting down. That way is the coward's way. Let's keep on the job trying to make it better every day and let's keep faith with those who died to give us the wonderful land we live in.

This Play Asks Major Suit

NORTH'S response of two clubs in today's hand was part of the Stayman Convention. Such a response does not necessarily show a real club suit but asks the opening bidder to show a major suit if he happens to have one.

South obediently bid two hearts. This not only showed a four-card (or better) holding in hearts but also denied a four-card spade holding. With four cards in both of the majors, South would have shown his spades first; and South's failure to bid the spades indicated that he didn't have as many as four cards in the suit.

North immediately realized that game in spades was out of the question. He therefore went at once to game in no-trump.

West's rather normal opening lead of a low diamond gave declarer a free finesse at once. South didn't know exactly where his nine tricks were coming from, but he led the jack of spades and hoped for the best.

West covered with the queen of spades, and dummy won with the king. Declarer now led a heart from dummy and put up the king from his hand. When the jack of hearts dropped, South led a low heart to dummy's nine.

East refused the second heart trick, so South got to his hand with the king of diamonds and led the queen of hearts. West had already parted with a diamond and now discarded a low club. Dummy released a club, and East took his ace of hearts.

East returned a spade, and South took the ace. Declarer now led the ten of hearts, and West felt the pinch in three suits! West unwisely decided to discard the ten of clubs, and now declarer made the rest of the tricks. A small club to the ace picked up West's king, and declarer had a finesse through the jack of clubs, making four club tricks!

Wants to Break Engagement

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am a foreigner. I am 25 years old, single, and have been in this country for almost two years.

This is my problem. I left my sweetheart in my country to seek my fortune here in the United States. Before I left we had a sacred vow to be engaged to each other. I promised to return after three years and we would be married.

We have been exchanging letters two times a week until four days ago when I received a letter from her which is a very sudden and great disappointment to me. She was requesting me to set her free because of the following rasons: (1) She is very sick, having heart trouble as well as a peptic ulcer. (2) She doesn't want me to suffer by marrying her and having to take care of her if she becomes seriously ill. (3) Her doctor has told her she must stop worrying all the time, and she can only obey this order if she is freed from our engagement and can have peace of mind.

She promises though that she will stay single until my return in one year's time, and if I am still willing to marry her she will consent then.

You can see how badly I feel, and how torn I am. Won't you please advise me?—ALMOST BROKEN HEARTED.

DEAR ALMOST:

I think you should feel very proud that your girl friend is so honest with you—and so considerate. I think, too, that you ought to write to her and tell her that you have no wish to break off the engagement, but, that if her doctor feels you ought to, you will. But, you can tell her you want to hear this from him. You can ask her for the doctor's address, as you most assuredly want to check with him about her health, don't you?

Since she says she will stay single until you come back, and that she will marry you then if you want her too, I can't really see that the engagement is broken, can you?—M. M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I would appreciate your kind readers sending my mother cards. She has just turned eighty. For the past three years she has been a shut-in, sitting in a chair with her leg up. She has lost two toes from gangrene caused by diabetes. The doctors say it is a miracle she has survived.

She is lonesome and loves to receive cards. She is Mrs. S. Bannister, 2504 Alma St., San Pedro, Calif.—DAUGHTER.

Alonzo Baker to Analyze GOP Prospects for Council

Politics and travel will be discussed at the meeting of the Long Beach Council of Republican Women Wednesday in the Pageant Room of the Wilton Hotel.

At 11 a. m. Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, who recently returned from a globe-circling trip, which included a safari, will show pictures and relate experiences on this trip. Her talk also will embrace the political and economic conditions as she observed them in foreign countries.

Mrs. Logan H. Goodknight will report the high lights of the spring conference of the women's division of the Republican National Committee in Washington, D. C., May 9-11.

At 1 p. m. Dr. Alonzo Baker, professor of political science and international relations at College of the Pacific, Stockton, will speak on "Republican Prospects for 1956." Dr. Baker is a member of the California Republican State Central Committee and is a frequent visitor to Washington, D. C. Next month he leaves for the Orient and Middle East to study the impact of America's foreign policy from Tokyo to Istanbul.

He will be introduced by Mrs. Henry O. Christiansen, program chairman.

Coffee hour at noon will be followed by a short business meeting. Mrs. Charles C. Davenport and her hospitality committee will be in charge of the coffee hour.

Mrs. Cartwright Hunter, president, will preside.

Remember Special Dates With Cards

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case O-330: Ruth G., 64, is a widow with eight grown children. "Cora, when you don't have anything else to do, please drop me a line," she recently wrote to my wife, who is her niece. I certainly like to get mail. It makes me feel blue and lonely whenever I see the mail carrier go past the house without leaving something for me. Besides, I think I feel more alone because I used to have the house full of children."

The motto of the Boy Scouts is to do one good turn every day. Most of us are far too negligent as regards sending a postcard or letter or appropriate greeting to our relatives and friends.

"What can I do to help my church?" is often the eager query of new members who are imbued with great zeal to make this world a better place. Well, you can always begin in your own home or even your single rented room if you are a young person living in a dormitory or boarding house.

First of all, tack a calendar on the wall above your writing desk. Then go through it and mark the dates of all birthdays, anniversaries and other occasions on which you should remember your relatives and friends. Second, lay in a supply of 2c postal cards or 3c stamps. Or, if you see some unusually clever greeting cards, don't buy just one. Get a dozen or more so you will have a reserve supply on your desk. Then resolutely watch your calendar and send off the cards or greetings, with a scribbled note attached.

Sunshine Circle

Dr. Margaret Clark Sunshine Circle will meet Tuesday noon for a coffee hour and business meeting in Colonial Hall. New officers will be installed. Cards will conclude the day's activities.

Officers will be elected at the luncheon meeting of the National Council of Jewish Women, Long Beach Section, at 12:15 p. m. Tuesday at Temple Israel. Music will be offered by Ceci Julian and Mrs. Harry Landy. Mrs. Sam Rown is in charge of luncheon arrangements. Mrs. Louis Hechtlinger will preside at the business session.

Cake Topping

A sumptuous frosting for a just-out-of-the-oven cake—that's what folks love. And it's a praline topping made this way: Mix together ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar, two tablespoons cake flour, ¼ cup melted butter, two tablespoons water and ½ cup finely chopped nuts. Spread carefully, a little at a time, over your cake. Return to the oven of your range and bake five minutes more.

SUDDENLY WE OWNED AN IMPERIAL!

We never expected to change. The new car we had planned to buy was to be the same kind; it was almost traditional

Then, before we knew it, we were driving a new Imperial. It happened like this.

Some friends had just bought one and were so enthusiastic that one evening we decided to have a look ourselves.

Did I say we took a look? The whole town did! We drove out to my brother's home and back. When we stopped for a light, we could see faces turning our way. They couldn't help it. And we could see and hear their excited comments.

The same thing happened every time we passed another car. It was fun, and flattering, because I had nearly forgotten the sensation

So we decided . . . and later that evening we were sure our decision was right when the youngsters came racing down the lawn. Their approval was as sincere as it was instantaneous. "Gee, Dad's got a new Imperial. What a car!"

And their enthusiasm is being reflected everywhere we go. The country club . . . shopping . . . driving to the office.

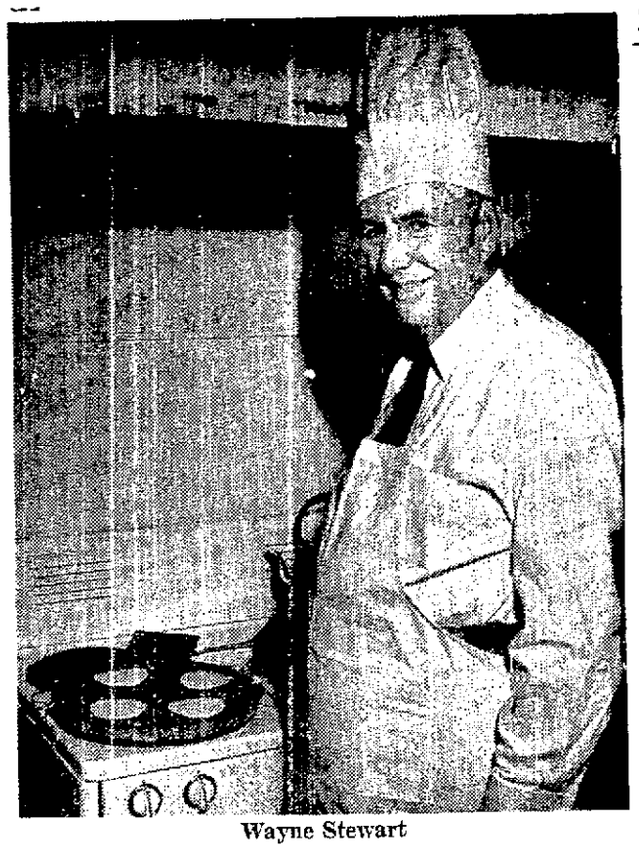

It's catching, too. Even our "Chairman of the Board" has a gleam in her eye. "What if our Imperial did cost more than most other cars," she says. "It's worth it."

Wayne Stewart Reveals Old Griddle Cake Recipe

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

He is the strong, silent type—a great corner cutter who doesn't spend life putting in comas and semicolons—is a terrific organizer, modest, and with kindliness and generosity very much in evidence. Chef of the Week Wayne Stewart is a natural for president and general manager of the Community Chest.

Stewart has had two distinct lives — one in these United States—another on the Island of Hawaii.

Born in Indian Territory, Stewart's parents homesteaded on the Cherokee strip in Oklahoma. All the adventures of life among the pioneers were his, until the advent of World War I. Then the scene changed to France, where he spent 18 months with a corps of engineers.

At the close of the war, Seattle, Wash., became his home port, and he was head of the Automobile Club for a period of nine years; but in 1927 the islands beckoned him. Once there, he organized and managed the Royal Hawaiian Transport Co. with offices in the then newly built Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

Civicly he was busy, too, as prexy of the Rotary Club, head of the Community Chest, and the guiding light of the YMCA for three consecutive years. He also helped organize, and became the 1st District Governor of Rotary's District 100. He has been a Rotarian for 28 years.

After 15 "enchanted" years on the Islands, he returned to Long Beach in 1941 to become manager of the old Lang Bus Co. He stayed with that company until 1948, when he took his present position with the Community Chest.

Stewart is an excellent shot! He shoots in the low 70s on the golf course, and has bagged many a deer on the Island of Molokai. Keen at any kind of competitive sport, he's a worthy foe at a game of cribbage.

When it comes to cooking, he is completely immune to dirty dishes. After his creation has been prepared, he partakes of it with gusto and then retreats in the direction of a comfortable chair.

Today he's taking us way back to the Indian Territory days and is preparing his Great Grandmother's Griddle Cakes. He recommends a soapstone griddle, uses no grease and guarantees no smoke.

GREAT GRANDMOTHER'S GRIDDLE CAKES
By WAYNE STEWART

Make a batter of 2 cups flour and 2 cups buttermilk. Allow to stand over night.

Next morning add the beaten yolks of 2 eggs
¾ tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking soda dissolved in
1 tbl. hot water and
1 tbl. maple syrup

Lastly add the stiffy beaten whites of 2 eggs. Bake on hot soapstone griddle. Do not grease griddle.

Child Care

Atmosphere at Mealtime Is Important

By MILTON I. LEVINE, M. D.
and
JEAN H. SEGILMANN

Q.—My little girl, who is 3½ years old, has no appetite whatsoever. I've tried bribing her, but nothing helps. The doctor says that she's perfectly healthy and not to worry. But I worry anyhow.—Mrs. J. T.

A.—One fact may be of great consolation to you and to the thousands of other parents whose children are so-called "feeding problems." No child of this age ever starved himself to death. Many children have picky appetites and their own ideas of how much and what to eat. Parents naturally worry when they see their youngsters picking at a little food, and never eating a complete meal.

The best way to handle a "feeding problem" is first to try to relieve yourself of your anxieties about it. Your concern and worry every time your youngster sits down to eat, and the anxious expression on your face, are sure to have an effect on her. Do not bribe her or try to force her to eat. This makes mealtime a tense affair, whereas it should be pleasant and relaxed. Do not discuss food or eating at all. There are far more interesting topics of conversation.

Children, unlike adults, do not seem to need variety in their foods. If your little girl likes any particular food, it is perfectly all right to keep on giving it to her day after day.

At first, place only very tiny portions of food in front of her. Sometimes children are overwhelmed by seeing too much on their plates and cannot eat at all. If she finishes everything, then gradually increase the amounts. Don't leave the food in front of her any longer than thirty or forty minutes. At this time, just calmly take it away, saying "I guess you've eaten all you can."

The important thing is to make mealtime pleasant and serene even if your daughter eats only a few spoonfuls. In this kind of atmosphere she ought to start eating again soon.

U. N. POLLS NATIONS

Reform of Calendar Target Set for '61

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

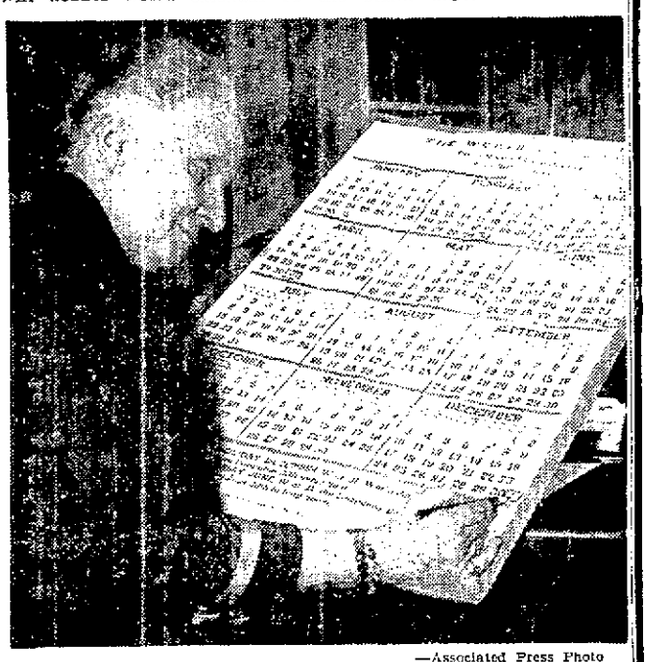

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—World calendar reformers have scrapped their old target date of Jan. 1, 1956. They now hope, with United Nations help, to change the civil calendar once and for all on Jan. 1, 1961.

Elizabeth Achelis, president of the World Calendar Assn., Inc., says that's the next New Year's Day after 1956 on which the proposed world calendar will coincide with the Gregorian calendar, which has been in general use for the past 373 years.

The world can't shift from the one to the other sooner, she says, because at least two years' preparation will be needed beforehand. She's sure the change, eventually, will be made.

"It's coming — definitely coming," she declares.

A lot depends on the U. N. Economic and Social Council. It will debate world calendar reform in a session here starting Monday and decide whether to inaugurate it, consider it further or drop it.

ELIZABETH ACHELIS . . . "It's Definitely Coming"

At the 18-nation council's request, Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold has asked 84 governments, in and out of the U.N., what they think about the idea.

Only Thailand so far has said it favors changing the calendar. Sixteen countries, including the United States, say they are against it. Nine put themselves down as undecided. The rest have yet to reply.

The association has headquarters in New York City. It claims 55,000 members and has 39 national affiliates.

It holds the calendar introduced by Pope Gregory XIII is faulty because quarter and half years are unequal and each year starts a day or two later in the week than the last.

It would substitute the so-called world calendar.

This would put one month of 31 days and two months of 30 days each in every quarter, equalizing both the quarters and halves.

It would stick a blank day, not part of any week, at the end of every year, a holiday called "Worldsday," and another blank day midway of every leap year, a holiday called "Leapyear Day."

This would make the calendar perpetual. New Year's Day would always come on Sunday, Christmas always on Monday.

India argues that the present calendar is inexact and makes it (1) impossible to arrive at exact quarterly and semi-annual statistical comparisons and (2) necessary for authorities to fix court and legislative sessions, and so on, anew each year.

The United States, Great Britain, Burma and others object to the blank days. These would break up the cycle of sabbaths every seventh day. Israel says this "would bring confusion into the religious and social life of Jews all over the world." Pakistan says "the dislocation of Fridays would be unacceptable to Moslems."

Australia and the Philippines call the present calendar satisfactory. Portugal, Norway, Sweden and Finland say a change would be inconvenient or untimely. France sees no "wide support from public opinion."

Yugoslavia asks continued U. N. study. Canada says reform might prove useful. Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Iceland, Monaco and Paraguay want to know how the Vatican stands.

The U. N. has asked the Vatican, but has no answer yet. In 1912, the papal secretary of state told the international chamber of commerce the Holy See would not oppose calendar reform if fixing feasts was left to the church. Last June 28, the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano reaffirmed this view.

Miss Achelis is encouraged by such things. She is not discouraged by the adverse replies of governments. The returns, she points out, aren't all in yet.

400 Dogs of Beagleville Help Radio-Activity Test

By HOWARD S. BENEDICT

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—In a unique village on the University of Utah campus more than 400 dogs are helping humans find out what radio-active elements are potentially harmful.

They are beagles and their village, naturally, is called Beagleville.

The dogs, Dr. Robert Bay, and seven technicians are under an Atomic Energy Commission contract—the only one of its type in the country. The experiments are important because of the great number of people who might be exposed to radioactivity at various AEC installations.

They might take on even greater importance some day if this country ever found itself a target in a shooting war.

Beagleville was founded in 1950 because the results of radioactive experiments with mice and rats could not be related accurately to humans. What was needed was a larger animal that lived longer. The beagle was selected because of its easy disposition, its short hair, its ideal size for lab work and because it is one of the oldest pure breeds in the United States—giving better control of experiments.

The AEC invested an initial half million dollars in the lab and has spent about $200,000 a year since.

The beagles are injected with graduated doses of radium, mesothorium, plutonium and radiothorium—all highly radioactive—and then observed closely.

The four substances used at Beagleville lodge in the bones and attack cells with damagaing alpha particles. Some of the particles go after the bone marrow, which manufactures blood cells; others attack the membrane covering the bones and others the bone cells. If the marrow is damaged, it shows in the blood count.

Dr. Bay, a veterinarian, explains that a change in the blood count is the most reliable indicator of the effect of radioactivity.

After five years of experimenting, Dr. Bay and his assistants are able to predict how much radioactive material will be discharged by the dog at a given time, when tumors will develop, and the long range toxic effects of certain types of radioactivity.

The 400 dogs get better care than many children. Their diets are regulated from a well-equipped kitchen. Their kennels have long outside runways with radiant heat for melting snow. They are bathed regularly. Their kennels are disinfected three times a day.

They are treated with antibiotics whenever infection threatens.

A Pointer

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (UP)—Roger Coppenbarger, filling station attendant, scared off two men who pulled a gun on him and demanded his money, simply by pointing a finger at a squad car that had just stopped for a traffic signal across the street. The men fled.

Cantata Planned by High School

The Brethren High School will present its fourth annual Festival of Music in the new school auditorium, Olive St. and Orange Ave., Paramount, Friday, May 27, at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

The music festival features the high school choir, the girls' glee club, the ninette and the male quartet.

Miss Carleda Hutton, head of the music department at Brethren High School, is director of the festival.

Highlight of the evening will be the Brooklyn Baseball Cantata presented by the school choir. This cantata is a humorous arrangement depicting a game between the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees.

CHRIS GUGAS
Polygraph Expert

Lie Detector Expert Speaks

How a lie detector works will be described and demonstrated Thursday noon in the Pageant Room of the Wilton Hotel before members of the Long Beach Masonic Club by Chris Gugas, polygraph expert.

Gugas is a member of Paul Coates' Enterprises and has appeared on Coates' television show, "Confidential File," several times. A polygraph expert of 14 years' standing, he has given lectures and demonstrations before many bar associations and police groups.

Chairman of the day will be L. V. Bostwick. Dr. Reynolds B. Thompson will preside. Dr. Russell M. Brougher is in charge of programs.

Jewish Center Topic Will Be Child Problems

Problems of children, their emotional tensions and improved methods of directing children will be told by staff members of the Mental Hygiene Clinic, headed by Dr. Irving Nissenbaum, in a public program at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Jewish Community Center.

The program will be presented by Bernard and Milton Sahl Post 593, Jewish War Veterans.

Besides Dr. Nissenbaum, speakers will include Miss Louise Metcalf and Mrs. Ruth Currie of the Mental Hygiene Clinic.

A question and answer period will follow the discussion.

Personal holidays

Each member of this Virginia family enjoys his own

by EVELYN HUFFMAN VIEHMAN

ARLINGTON, VA.

Veterans' organizations may observe Poppy Day, but our family has a special holiday we call "Be-Kind-to-the-Poppy" Day. We also celebrate "Be-Kind-to-the-Mommy" and "Be-Kind-to-the-Michael" Days. (Poppy—my husband Bob—is a salesman; Michael, 11, is our son; our daughters, Jan, 2, and Lisa, 8 months old, are such babies we consider every day "their day.")

All of us in these busy, complicated times occasionally reach a point where we feel we've "had it." We've called on too many clients, changed too many diapers or attended too many classes. In our house, when Bob feels thus depleted, he has only to say the magic phrase, "This is Be-Kind-to-the-Poppy Day." From then on, he's freed of all his regular responsibilities and may "goof off" to his heart's content. He doesn't have to answer the telephone or even get out of his pajamas if he doesn't feel like it. Ditto for Mike and me on our "days."

Each of us has a favorite way of spending his home holiday. Bob usually starts off by taking a stack of reading into the bathroom and relaxing in a warm tub for three or four hours to "unwind." Then he may watch his favorite TV sports program or just putter around the house, while Mike and I divide up his usual domestic chores.

Mike likes poring over comic books, working out moves on his chess board or playing favorite pieces—instead of scales and exercises—on the piano. He particularly enjoys providing the accompaniment for a family song fest, so on his "days" Bob and I try to arrange a time when we can join in, no matter how little we may feel like vocalizing.

I spend about half my "day" in bed, catching up on back issues of favorite magazines that have been lying temptingly on the coffee table for weeks. Later I may cut my hair in a new style I've been longing to try, or even give myself a manicure. I don't go near the kitchen!

As you can see, nothing very spectacular happens on our one-day holidays. But what we actually do isn't half so important as the fact that we're doing exactly what we want, in a leisurely way, with no outside pressure.

Our "days" have done more than just provide us with a chance for relaxation when we need it most. They have strengthened a feeling of family togetherness by giving us a fuller understanding of our individual problems and a wonderful opportunity to do something for one another. I am convinced that if everyone took these one-day vacations from all responsibility, half the hospital beds in the country would not be filled with mental patients. ■

● Today's striking portrait of Sir Anthony and Lady Eden is a bit of a feather in PARADE's cap—for Britain's new Prime Minister has been photographed rarely in color, and his wife even less. Months ago, PARADE managed to get photographer Dave Preston cleared to visit 1 Carlton Gardens, London residence of British Foreign Secretaries. So busy was the then Mr. Eden that Preston got exactly 12 minutes to pose, light and snap the couple. He succeeded brilliantly—and the result, held in readiness until now, makes a noteworthy starting point for the intimate family story of the Edens on page 6.

BODY BY FISHER

And that means by the world's best known builder of automobile bodies! The fine craftsmanship of Body by Fisher is found in many of America's costliest and most luxurious cars. And you get it only in Chevrolet in the low-price field.

DOUBLE-ARCH COWL CONSTRUCTION

The ventilation system air chamber is actually a double arch of steel that is an integral part of the body. This sturdy structure acts as a girder, adding the strength of an extra cross-member to the frame. It contributes to Chevrolet's solid feel on the road.

12-VOLT ELECTRICAL SYSTEM

Delivers twice the punch of electrical systems in other low-priced cars! This means quicker starting in all weather, with up to 30 per cent faster cranking speed, better ignition for finer performance, and a greater reserve of electrical power.

ANTI-DIVE BRAKING

Chevrolet's the only car in the industry that stops with its head up! Anti-Dive braking control is an exclusive Chevrolet development that greatly reduces the tendency to nose down under sudden stops. You stop on the level—without lurching!

OUTRIGGER REAR SPRINGS

They're spaced wide apart, like outriggers on a canoe, to give you sure-footed stability on curves. The new Chevrolet corners like a sports car! And the rear springs are longer and wider to smother bumps and soak up road shocks.

BALL-RACE STEERING

Special ball bearings in the steering system roll with the turn of the wheel to reduce friction. Nothing makes steering and parking easier except Power Steering itself. And only Chevrolet and higher priced cars give you ball-race steering.

SIX ENGINE-DRIVE CHOICES

New "Turbo-Fire V8"—the hottest, shortest-stroke V8 in the industry. Two new "Blue-Flame" 6's—most powerful in the low-price field. New Synchro-Mesh transmission, or as extra-cost options, new Overdrive or improved Powerglide.

HIGH-LEVEL VENTILATION

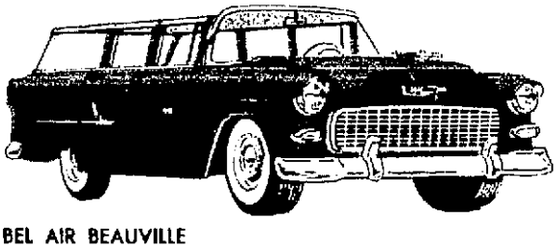

Takes in air at hood-high level, away from road heat, fumes and dust. A special air chamber beneath the ventilation louvers prevents rain from entering the car and supplies a more even flow of air. You enjoy the best of ventilation.

Money can't buy these Chevrolet features in other low-priced cars!

That's why Chevrolet's stealing

the thunder from the high-priced cars!

Come drive it and see for yourself!

BLACK & WHITE

It Tells a New Summer Fashion Story

Ask a man what color he likes on a woman, and he'll usually say blue or pink. He thinks they're romantic. But he'll be surprised—and delighted—at how fresh and charming the new black-and-white cottons will look this summer. On warm days, a white dress seems wiltless; printed with black, it looks even whiter.

The black-on-white prints most favored in the new collections are polka dots in all sizes, paintbrush daubs, stripes, zigzags, Greek-key motifs. And there are touches of black velvet and black patent leather everywhere. Many designers frost cottons with ruchings and pleatings.

Black and white lends itself to bright color accents in jewelry, hat or shoes. With fair or suntanned skins, it's summer's prettiest coloring scheme.

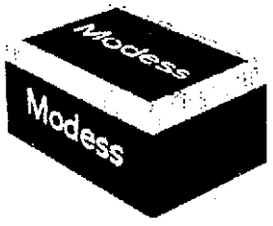

Above is one of the most feminine of the new cottons — clear fresh white printed with tiny bubbling dots. The curvy top is crisped with a fine band of pleating and black piping. The skirt is full and borne along on its own petticoat. For extra shine—a black patent belt and little shoe buttons. From Parade Dress, around $23. ■

LADY EDEN looks proudly at her husband before they dined with the Queen the night Sir Winston announced his retirement.

Sir Anthony's Lady

In three short years, Clarissa Eden has gone from working girl to prime minister's wife

LONDON.

Several years ago, two house painters were hauled into court here, charged with having stolen $1,800 worth of jewelry from the apartment of Clarissa Churchill, niece of the great Sir Winston, then Great Britain's Prime Minister.

To the amused judge and press corps, the painters explained that the jewelry was in a margarine container, covered by a tomato box and stored under the kitchen sink. They thought it was junk and had given it away to various relatives. The case was dismissed.

Since then, as all the world knows, Sir Winston has stepped down from his high post, and his forgetful niece is now Lady Eden, wife of the new Prime Minister and hostess of 10 Downing St.

Little has been written about Lady Eden, but that "jewel theft" discloses an important side of her character. Clarissa, former working girl, writer, editor, who studied painting, philosophy and once delivered political speeches, is what might be described as an "arty" girl—in a nice way.

She loves to discuss politics or ballet, hates cooking. In 10 years as a career girl before marrying Sir Anthony in 1952, her five-room apartment contained, no radio, television or phonograph. She preferred to read. Once, asked to serve as interior decorator for a 32-room mansion, she did all the rooms in "broken white"—white with varying gray touches.

To Lady Eden, an elegant, tall (5'7") ash blonde, who at 34 is 23 years younger than her husband, life has a definite structure. Books, the arts, politics, her devotion to Sir Anthony are important. Jewelry stored under the sink, domestic chores and acting the role of a demure, retiring wife are not important.

She's a Real Churchill

For, as her friends point out, Clarissa is "a Churchill through and through." She has a good deal of her uncle's wit and charm; she also has traces of his forcefulness, strong will and stubbornness. When Clarissa decides to do something, she does it.

Shortly after the Edens had moved into 1 Carlton Gardens, official London residence of British Foreign Secretaries, Clarissa ordered new curtains. The Ministry of Works, responsible for furnishings of government residences, had the curtains put up while the Edens were away. When they returned, Clarissa immediately sent for the official responsible. He had selected the wrong material, she said. It would have to be changed.

The official argued and argued, but to no avail. She was adamant. The curtains were changed the next day.

Clarissa is not without her little whims. Late last month, when the Edens moved into 10 Downing Street, a problem arose. Her bed has a huge canopy with drapings of Chinese brocade suspended from the ceiling. It was a tight squeeze in Carlton Gardens—and at No. 10, the ceilings are even lower.

There was another complication. Clarissa likes to lie with her feet lower than her head. So her bed is propped up at a 40-degree angle. That factor also caused the movers to sweat a little.

The Edens see little of each other during the day—which is why Lady Eden prefers to accompany her husband on diplomatic

A debutante's life was not for Clarissa—gay, young London blades simply bored her trips. Sir Anthony usually gets up at about 8, spends 45 minutes poring over the London Times at breakfast and then is off to work.

Lady Eden, on the other hand, rarely gets up before 11. After breakfasting either in bed or off a table in her room, she spends the rest of the morning with her secretary arranging appointments or answering correspondence.

Because of the pressure of time, Sir Anthony rarely lunches with his wife. Clarissa usually eats alone or with friends. Often it's the same with dinner, but when, once or twice a week, they do dine together, they adjourn to a lounge to read or discuss what each has been doing that day.

Clarissa, deeply interested in her husband's work, often shoots questions at him about domestic and international affairs, proffers advice here and there and lets him in on the political gossip she picks up.

Neither of the Edens retires early, though Sir Anthony occasionally slips on a dressing gown and lies across his bed for hours reading official reports brought to him in flame-colored boxes by official messengers.

Today, deeply aware of the role she has to assume in public life, Lady Eden is considered one of the most clever, interesting hostesses in London. Her luncheons and dinners have been a big success. At lunch, she likes to serve rice dishes and end the meal with coffee served in black cups—perhaps a carry-over from "bachelor girl" days when she held small parties which were attended mostly by artists and writers.

Although Clarissa is a Churchill, she was never a rich girl. She was born the third child of Maj. John Strange Spencer-Churchill, Sir Winston's brother, and Lady Gwendeline, beautiful daughter of the Earl of Abington. Major "Jack" stayed out of politics and, despite his heroism in the Boer War, he was tagged "the Churchill nobody knew." He died in 1947 leaving his daughter an annuity of only 200 pounds ($560). Educated in England and at a French finishing school, Clarissa was presented at court in 1938, where she was hailed as "the most beautiful debutante of the year."

But she refused to be bound by the customary round of parties and dances which kill time in a deb's life. Men-about-town bored her. So she continued her education at Oxford and the University of London.

When the war broke, Clarissa went to work in the Foreign Office—close to her future husband's office—decoding telegrams. Transferred to the Ministry of Information, she wrote propaganda for British publications which appeared in Russia. After the war, she wrote and edited magazine articles on books, ballet, art and travel.

Sir Anthony's romantic interest in her took London by surprise. No one had thought that "Britain's most eligible bachelor," who had been divorced in 1950, carried on more than a casual friendship with Clarissa.

Her "Fishbowl" Life

Their wedding, Aug. 14, 1952, was Clarissa Churchill Eden's first initiation into her future "fishbowl" life. Mounted police had to hold back the crowds that turned out to cheer the couple.

As wife of the Foreign Secretary, entertainment, social duties, appearances made her life hectic. Last year, doctors ordered her to a hospital for a month because of her "run-down" condition.

But if the past two and a half years have been strenous, Lady Eden cannot relax now. No. 10 Downing St. is even more demanding than Carlton Gardens. ■

Why don't Athletes

They could—if they trained more carefully and ate less. So says a unique research

ROGER BANNISTER RAN the mile in 3 minutes 58.8 seconds to beat John Landy at Vancouver last August. He might have run it in 3:50 flat.

Bob Feller has thrown a baseball at a speed of 98.6 miles an hour. He might have thrown it 100 mph.

Ford Konno of Ohio State swam 220 meters in 2 minutes 3.9 seconds. He might have done it in 2:00.0.

Sam Snead beat Ben Hogan 70-71 to win the 18-hole play-off of the 1954 Masters Tournament at Augusta, Ga. Both might have beaten the par of 72 by wider margins, scoring perhaps in the mid-60s.

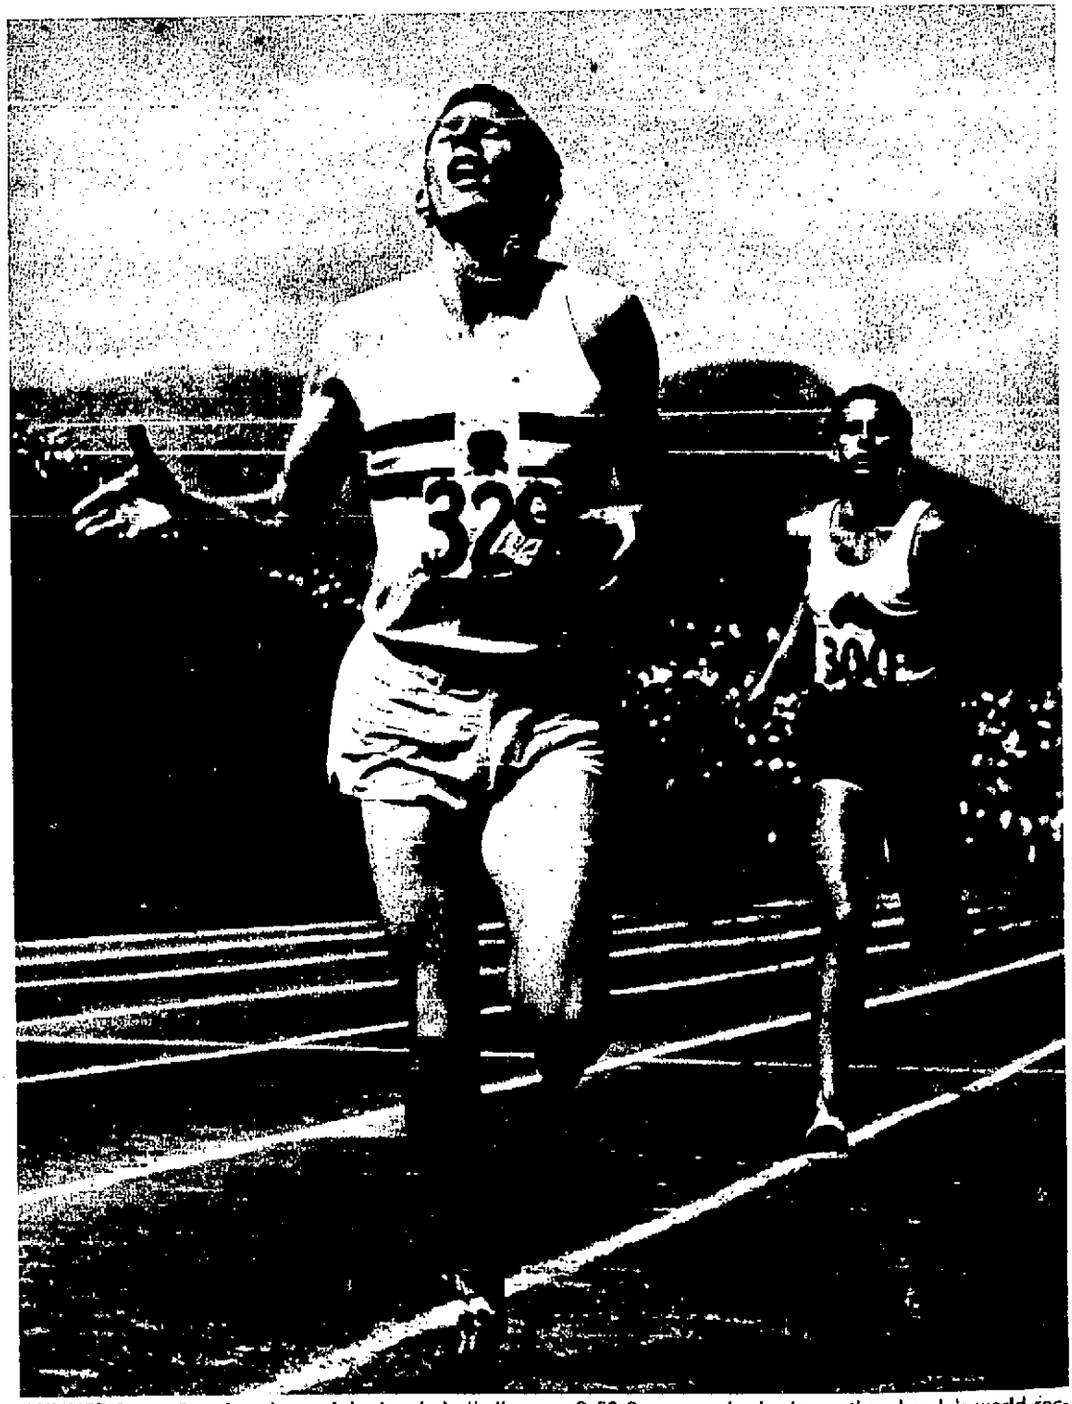

Sound impossible? Not according to a unique study of athletes now being made by a Canadian research organization called Sports College. Located in Toronto, Sports College is a nonprofit service founded in 1944 through the YMCA and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to help raise sport and physical fitness standards. It has spent nine years testing 2,700 athletes of all kinds, analyzing player performances and calculating how they could be improved.

Some of its findings are about to be released to its more than 700,000 members (including American coaches and trainers). Some striking examples:

- Practically all performances in all sports could be improved about 25 per cent with better training.
- Not a single one of the 2,700 athletes tested topped 65 per cent of his possible peak performance, as calculated by the testing experts.
- Only 12 per cent of those tested had better than 75 per cent of the physical development considered necessary for first-rate competition.
- Not a single sport, according to observers at actual games and sports events, is being played at the pace it could be played safely, with present rules.

Which is the toughest sport? To find out, Sports College staff experts first drew up a list of 17 basic attributes—including strength, agility, reaction time, coordination, speed and endurance—that all athletes have to one degree or another. Then, giving gradings of from 1 to 10 for each, they asked coaches and trainers in each sport to rate the degree to which each attribute is needed to play well in that sport as it now is played. A perfect score would be 170. The average of the experts' opinions came out like this:

Football	135 points	Track (middle distance)	104 points
Decathlon	128 points	Track (long distance)	100 points
Basketball	125 points	Swimming (sprints)	100 points
Hockey	122 points	Shot-put	99 points
Tennis	118 points	Swimming (long distance)	90 points
Pole vault	113 points	High jump	90 points
Baseball	112 points	Bowling	60-70 points
Track (sprints)	95 points
Golf	95 points
Swimming (middle distance)	94 points

RUNNER Roger Bannister beats John Landy in "mile of the century" at Vancouver last summer. His time—3:58.8—was a shade slower than Landy's world-record 3:58. Sports College says it could have been 3:50.

do BETTER?

group after exhaustive tests which also can help you

BASEBALL PLAYER Willie Mays of the Giants (shown sliding for home) wins Sports College rating of near-perfect as an all-round athlete. But it says he could be even stronger, needs muscle-building.

Sports calling for the most endurance: swimming 440 yards and running an all-out mile. Job calling for the quickest reflexes: goalie in hockey. "Baseball," points out Sports College director Lloyd Percival, "is a picnic compared to football in its demands on the player. Except for the pitcher and catcher, everybody gets plenty of rest."

Having found what the sports demanded of players, Sports College set out to measure the players themselves. Choosing 12 of the most important attributes, the experts put successful athletes in each sport through stiff grinds—including obstacle courses, weight-lifting, bar jumps, tumbling, broad jumps, sprints, arm-leg rhythm, etc.—then graded performances from 1 to 10 and totted up the averages.

They discovered that, although an ideal all-around athlete would have a theoretical rating of 120, actual athletes fell far below in the tests. Football players averaged 83; basketball players, 76; hockey players, 72; baseball and tennis players, 71. But pole vaulters topped everyone, with an average rating of 88.

Most of the athletes tested were surprisingly low in strength, considered one of the basic requisites for endurance and good play. Only one in 17 could do 25 two-hand push-ups without difficulty. Only one in 74 could do a one-arm push-up. Only one in 82 could do a one-arm pull-up on a bar.

Speed, another prime requisite of good play, was also conspicuous by its absence. Except for sprinters, middle-distance runners and basketball players, no athlete rated higher than 6 points out of 10.

After testing individual athletes, Sports College observers set out with stopwatches to clock the speeds needed for throws and runs in actual play. They learned plenty. For example, the average time a baseball player takes to run from first to second base (with a 5-foot lead) is 4 seconds. But the average time for a ball to move from pitcher to catcher and back to second (including the pitcher's wind-up) is only 3.5 seconds. So the average player, trying to steal second, is an almost sure out— unlike the great Ty Cobb, who could run it in 3 seconds flat.

Sports College claims that any baseball player can improve his speed—especially his starting speed—by .3 to .4 seconds if he practices the fundamental mechanics of running known to any track sprinter. In base running this would make a difference of 4 to 12 feet. In the field, it would mean more caught balls: a speed-up of only .1 second over 25 yards would mean an increase of 3 feet in fielding coverage.

Coaches in general scoff, "Why should I train a player to run a mile when I know he'll never have to?" Sports College has some surprises for the coaches. Clocked in actual games (with charts of playing areas marked off into squares), basketball players, in an average, wide-open game, travel about 3¾ miles, at an average speed of 10½ mph. Tennis players, in an average five-set match, move about 1¼ miles at an average speed of 12 mph. Football players (backfield) travel about 1½ miles, sometimes close to 15 mph. In a typical National Hockey League game, a hard-working player may travel 3 miles, at 9 mph. (The fastest hockey speed recorded was 26.9 mph.)

Training for greater strength would vastly improve baseball. Tests showed that exercises to develop greater strength in the wrist flexors (front of wrist just below the heel of the hand) increased the throwing speed of 19 players tested by 4.9 mph on throws of 100 feet. One player increased his throw by 9.2 mph by exercising with 5-lb. disks. Swimmers can develop powerful pectoral muscles by lying on their backs, exercising with bar bells.

Virtually all athletes were found overweight for top efficiency. "Baseball players as a class," says Percival, "eat far too much." They averaged 14 lbs. of excess fat. Other averages: swimmers, 12 lbs.; tennis players, 9 lbs.; football players, 8 lbs. Yet 10 lbs. of excess weight can slow reaction time by at least half a second.

Weight, of course, represents calories. Here are the average calories used per hour of play in various sports:

Running (all-out)	3200	Fencing	650
Running (11 mph)	1300	Skiing	600
Swimming	1800-1900	Skating (9 mph)	500
Football	1200	Baseball (pitching)	400
Tennis (singles)	1200-1400	Golf	375
		Table tennis	360
Tennis (doubles)	800-900	Bowling	350
		Horseshoes	240
Hockey	600-700	Billiards	230

By comparison, home exercising consumes 175 calories per hour; brisk walking, 350; dancing (mambo), 350. The housewife on a tough day (scrubbing floors or washing by hand) consumes 4000-4500 calories. Even on an average work day, she consumes about 800-900.

Training for endurance (by building up muscular strength and learning to relax and breathe properly) would improve all performances. It was estimated that the average basketball player loses 4 to 5 inches of height in his jumping ability during a game through muscle fatigue. The average football player, tested in mid-season, could not run 100 yards without fatigue, with a consequent loss of reaction time, power, agility, mobility and strength. One result: frequent fumbles after long runs.

Sports College evaluations of player possibilities have been uncannily accurate. Director Percival predicted in the Toronto Star that Bannister would beat Landy last summer; and stated the whole procedure of the race. He said Bannister had greater strength and will power, though Landy excelled him in tests for flexibility and heart-wind endurance. Percival still claims that Bannister could have run the mile in 3.50 if he had improved his flexibility and thus run more smoothly. Sports College also predicted that Detroit Red Wings hockey star Gordie Howe would become top scorer in his league. (He did.) The prediction was based largely on watching him skate circles and figure-eights in both directions. Most hockey players "favor" play either to the right or left. Howe plays both.

Sports College doesn't like to make predictions at random. But it has certain convictions. Basketball coaches, it feels, will have an increasingly hard time as their players get taller. Height is an asset up to a point, but usually at the sacrifice of agility and mobility. The court "giraffes" already are showing signs of needing limbering up.

Great athletes, Sports College claims, are those who use to the full the strength, speed and endurance that nature has given them. Super-athletes are those who develop what they have to higher levels.

Not all the troubles with athletes are physical. Sports College is still trying to assay the importance of the imponderables—the emotional and psychological factors. Not until these are fully understood will true super-athletes be possible. But, on what it has learned so far, Sports College thinks it can even do something about that.

How Is Your Game?

Like any athlete, claims Sports College, you can improve in whatever game you play. The secret: systematic training that goes beyond the normal demands of the game. Actual tests with 11 golfers who trained six weeks for greater strength, flexibility and relaxation while playing showed an average improvement of 6.7 strokes per game—with no other instruction.

Start by gauging your present physical condition. Check your heart rate—an excellent telltale of your ability to stand active sports. Generally speaking, the lower it is, the better your condition.

1) Lie down for 5 minutes, then take your pulse and jot it down. 2) Stand up; take your pulse; jot it down. 3) Subtract 1 from 2. 4) Jog easily in place 1 minute, then note your pulse. 5) Sit 1 minute; note your pulse. Now add the figures.

The average normally fit person has a total of about 380; if yours is much above that, you're out of condition. After hundreds of tests, Sports College found that the average well-trained athlete has a total of about 360. Roger Bannister's figure: 213. Middle-distance runners proved to have the best heart efficiency, closely followed by basketball players and swimmers. They need it. So do you. Continued on page 12

Studies of athletes show how to improve

SWIMMING champ Ford Konno weighs 147 lbs. at 6 feet, upsets old theory that swimmers need fat for buoyancy. Sports College urges 50-yard sprints to build endurance.

TENNIS ace Budge Patty sprawls after slipping at Wimbledon. Experts say shorter steps give you a better chance to change direction and anticipate opponents' shots.

BOWLING'S Tony Sparando hits top scores with only one good eye. Chief hazard here, tension, can be licked by deep breathing.

GOLF'S Cary Middlecoff shows game's prime dangers: anxiety, "noise allergy." Sports College advises: be philosophical.

your own game through developing over-all strength, learning to relax

Swimming, tennis, golf and bowling are the principal adult participation sports, but the Canadian analysts claim training for strength, flexibility and relaxation applies equally to all sports.

Strength: Not mere muscle size, but the ability to exert power without strain or fatigue was found to be a prime necessity even in "light" sports. In tennis, it means harder, faster serves. In golf, it means longer, straighter drives. In swimming, fewer, more-distance-eating strokes. In bowling, less error caused by tired hand, arm and shoulder muscles.

Sports College recommends general build-up of all your muscles through old-fashioned weight-lifting (even for ping-pong), followed by specialized exercising of the muscles used most. Weight-lifting gives tennis players the powerful abdominal muscles needed, for example, to smash downward at high lobs. In addition, players are urged to develop playing muscles by taping books to each side of the racket, or taking a ping-pong paddle in the water and swinging against pressure. Golfers are urged to build up the muscles that twist the torso to build up power at the club head. Bowlers are encouraged to handle weights heavier than the ball, and to lift the ball higher than in actual play. Swimmers build up the vital back muscles that give a "flexible chest" through fast, hard 25-to-50-yard sprints. Once you have the muscles you can go any distance. (Sports College claims fears of getting muscle-bound are baseless.)

Make Yourself Flexible—and Relax

Flexibility: This means the ability to keep your muscles useful throughout the full range of play, and to stretch them when necessary without injury. To practice: Stand with feet wide apart, reach down, grasp ankles, try to touch the floor with the top of your head. Try to do it sitting. Try it standing with feet 4 to 6 inches apart. End by bending knees, placing hands flat on the floor and trying to straighten legs. Not easy—but even the trying helps you.

Relaxation: Sports College claims tension causes most errors (even among professional athletes), much fatigue and many injuries. There are two kinds. One, "affective tension," is the conscious kind you get through anxiety (even fear of going to the dentist tomorrow), fear of losing, "stage fright" or just distraction by some annoyance. (Outside noises, for example, can set up what is called "noise allergy." One out of three golfers tested showed this.) The remedy: think about the game—not about yourself.

Then there is "co-ordination tension." This involves tightening of the muscles (usually opposing ones) when you get set for a crucial play. Even top athletes who never worry get it unconsciously. Learn to recognize it by deliberately tensing your muscles while not playing; then relax and breathe out. And carry the habit into your next game.

By regular practice on these three things, Sports College says, anyone can improve in any sport by at least 25 per cent. Worth a try, isn't it? ■

Every summer day a vintage-1890 train, groaning with tourists, chugs out of Durango, in Colorado's southwest corner, for a 45-mile, three-hour sightseeing run to Silverton, an old mining boom town. Like most of its passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Clark and the junior members of their vacation party thought the ride the high point of a week in Durango and the San Juan Basin. In one package, it wrapped up the area's top attractions: magnificent scenery, outdoor recreation, a slow-and-easy pace and a dash of history.

In Durango, and in the creaky train ride that symbolizes its brand of off-beat appeal, the Clarks also found economy. For a day's recreation, they paid a total of $9.90 in fares ($3.30 each for the parents, $1.65 each for children 5 to 12–Jackson Jr., 7, and cousin Jimmy Hatfield, 10; no fare for children under 5–Antonia, 3) and $1.28 each for a "train special" lunch at the Grand Imperial Hotel in Silverton.

For a week, the cost was just over $200–including soda pop for the kids. A double room in a motel, including extra beds for the youngsters, was $9 a night. Meals averaged about $15 a day (top grade Western steaks usually are $3 or less); $20 went for gasoline for 1,000 miles of side trips. Items like the train ride made up the balance. (Of course, gasoline from home to Durango and back is not included.)

Durango, 6,505 feet up, sits in a bowl of snow-capped (even in summer) Rocky Mountain peaks, some as lofty as 14,000 feet. As the narrow-gauge, yellow-painted train labors uphill (it climbs 3,000 feet in 45 miles), along the canyon of the River of Lost Souls, the tourist drinks in breath-taking views of rocky grandeur. Occasionally the train stops to let a camera-bug record a particularly impressive panorama.

In Silverton, the Clarks got an even better view of the Rockies, and at Telluride, a min-

Most of these towns, the Clarks found, still retain the flavor of the frontier days; the SKYLINE at Silverton—a typical Colorado view of snow-capped peaks—holds Clarks rapt.

Grand Imperial, for instance, has a "mining museum" including a 70-year-old slot machine. On the train, in the towns, or near the mines (which they were invited to visit), the family found Coloradans delighted to spin stories—real or fictitious—of the area's brawling past.

The outdoors lures most tourists (including the President) to Colorado, and the Clarks were no exception. Some of the state's best trout fishing is found near Durango, and Jackson took tackle and creel to such locally recommended spots as Pine River and Vallecito Creek. For a non-resident fishing license, he paid $3; the kids were allowed to try their luck for nothing.

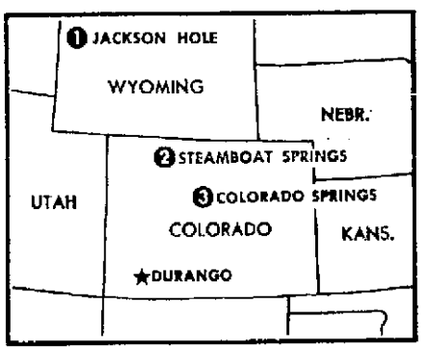

Swimming also attracted the family. Besides the sparkling—if cold—mountain waters, they found warm mineral waters at Pagosa Springs, 63 miles away, and Ouray, 70 miles. Horses were available at $7 a day, and Jackson and the boys spent one day cantering around the hillsides close to Durango.

But most of their time was spent in side trips—to the uranium mines near Nucla, down the Million Dollar Highway (so called because, according to legend, its base contains gold ore); to the headquarters of the wealthy Ute Indians at Ignacio; to Gem Village, where semiprecious mountain stones are shaped into jewelry.

Durango has been attracting more and more tourists since the war ended. (A new paved highway and Frontier Airlines service are responsible.) The Clarks found that, although the 10,000-square-mile area doesn't become crowded, its limited lodgings do fill up quickly. It's best, they learned, to make reservations, particularly during July and August. (For a list of motels and prices, write Durango Chamber of Commerce, Durango, Colo.) For best seats on the train ride, reservations are important, too. (Address: Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad, 1531 Stout St., Denver, Colo.)

And if you're driving, the main highway from the east is Route 160. Winding over 10,000-foot mountain passes, it's a rugged trip, but a spectacular one. And at the end of the road lies a vacation you—like the Clarks—should enjoy. ■

Is ours a nation of snobs?

Men are just as interested in etiquette as women. Here are some of my recent letters from male readers.

Q. With all due apologies, who, in these United States, cares "what the well-bred Englishman says or does"? In this country we breed pigs, not people. Leaving the bottom button undone on a "weskit" is a peculiarly English habit. And in the good old days we used to call galluses suspenders. Now, thanks to people like yourselves, the best Fifth Avenue haberdashers call them braces. Are we to become a nation of snobs?—H.J., Las Cruces, N. M.

A. I quote the Thorndike-Barnhart Dictionary on well-bred: "well brought up; having or showing good manners." As for the bottom button of a vest being left undone, I merely said this seems customary among well-dressed gentlemen. Suspenders? That is what I call them myself. (So does Brooks Brothers.) We'll never become a nation of snobs. We are leveling off into a vast and prosperous middle class whose taste sartorially and otherwise is constantly improving.

Q. When speaking of your wife, do you refer to her as "my wife" or "Mrs. Ward"?—E.E.W., San Francisco, Calif.

A. Socially, a man says "my wife." If his hearers have not met her and do not know her name, he refers to her as "my wife, Edith." A man in an executive position speaking with his associates, says "my wife" if they do not know her by her first name. If an executive speaks of his wife to his employees, he refers to her as "Mrs. Ward."

Q. When we have guests and I am carving, how do I serve the plates? What is the best method of getting the vegetables to them?—K.B.C., Dallas, Tex.

A. Serve the first filled plate to the lady on your right, the next to the lady on your left. Then serve alternately right and left. It is more convenient for the hostess to have the vegetables in front of her with the necessary serving utensils. Then as guests are served she asks that they pass their plates to be served by her with vegetables. Bread, wine, etc. may be passed from hand to hand.

Q. In planning a wedding reception, is it mandatory to include whisky?—A.R.T., Washington, D.C.

A. At a wedding, a punch and/or champagne is usually offered; my letters indicate that young men especially like to see whisky available too. But it is never necessary for people who have strong convictions against alcohol to offer it to their guests.

JIMMY DEAN speaking: "Actually, I'm a pretty normal guy."

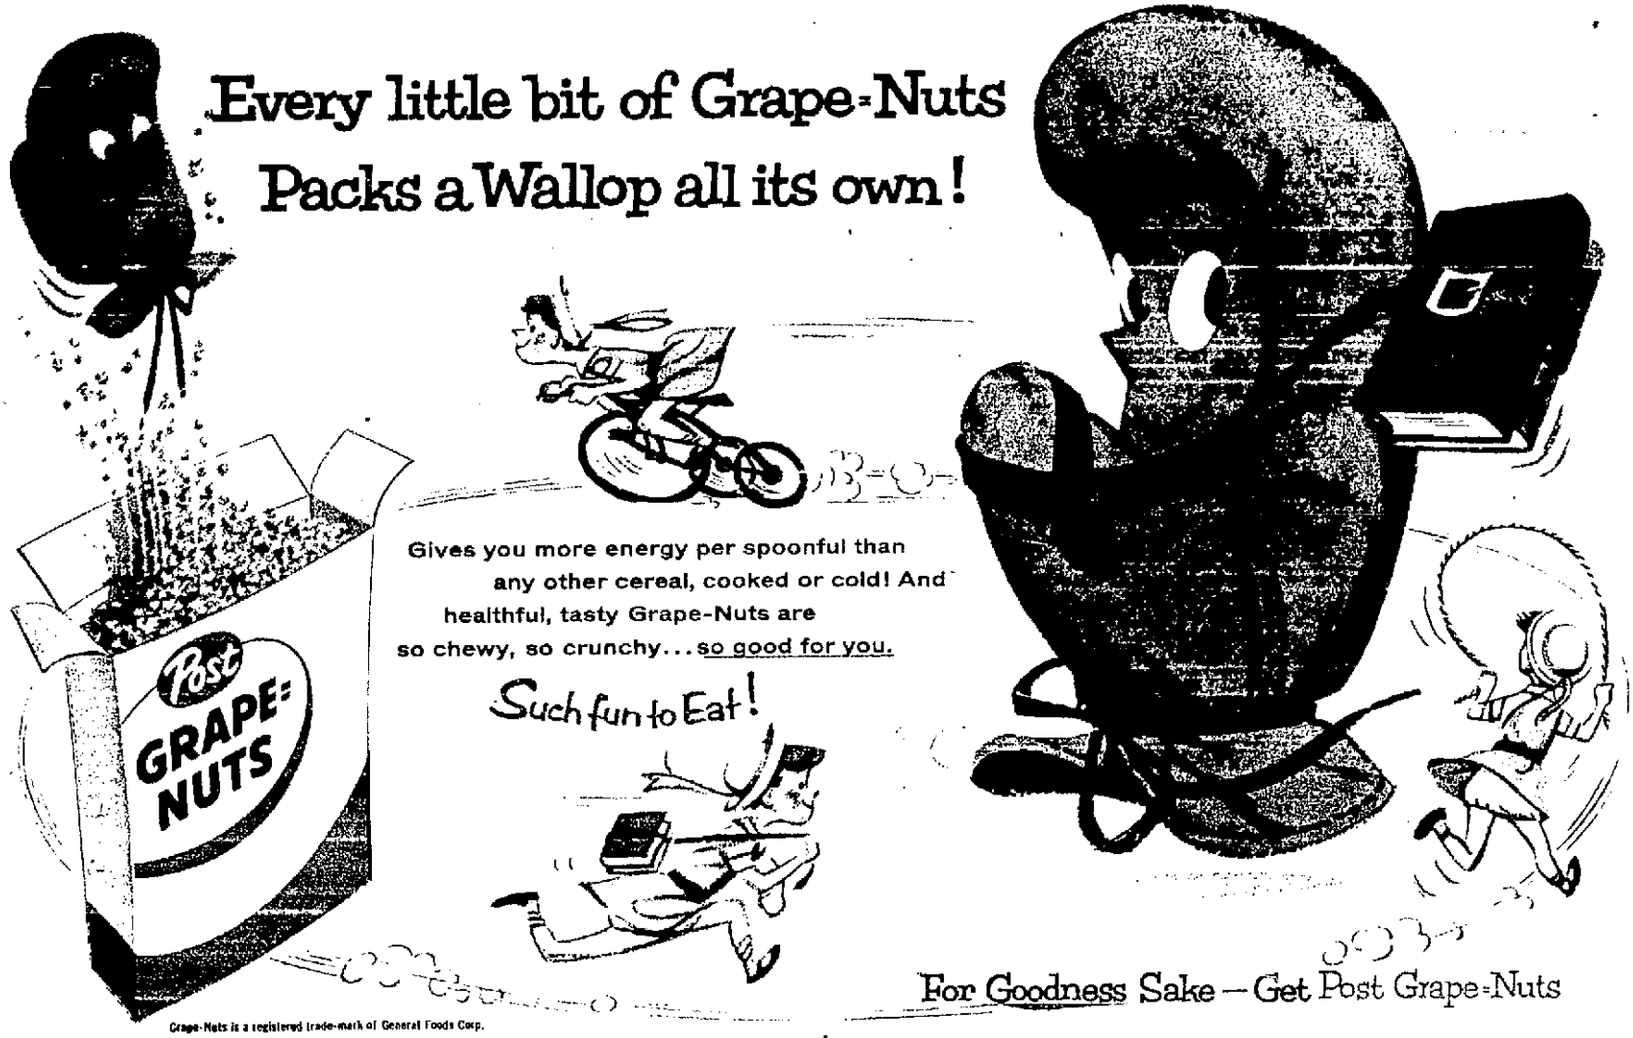

CORNERED by an interviewer, Jimmy listens to a question, shows his boredom, muses over an answer.

Dizzy? Not this Dean

Hollywood's 'hottest' newcomer has some peculiar habits and an odd sense of humor. He also has plenty of a precious gift: talent

HOLLYWOOD.

Most young movie actors cannot act. They are pleasant or interesting personalities whose charm and sex appeal are coaxed out of them by directors. Occasionally, however, a young actor appears on the movie lots who is blessed with genius. Such—by all present indications—is James Byron Dean, a quiet, moody, sandy-haired farm boy of 24 from Fairmount, Ind.

Dean is currently starring in the film version of John Steinbeck's novel, East of Eden. His performance in this money-minting production, directed by Elia Kazan, has aroused more praise—and controversy—in the movie colony than any other single performance in years.

On the strength of this one film, Jimmy has been signed to a five-year, non-exclusive contract by Warner Brothers. He already has been cast opposite Elizabeth Taylor in the upcoming film of Edna Ferber's best-selling novel, Giant. He has also been assigned the lead in Rebel Without a Cause, a drama about juvenile delinquency. Reputedly these are the studio's two most valuable properties. In addition, his $1,200-a-week salary is being hiked, and nearly every studio is begging to get him for a picture.

In film circles such a quick rise never goes unchallenged. Dean's detractors admit he can act—"only," they smile, "he acts like Marlon Brando, both on and off the screen. He's an affected, neurotic nonconformist."

As evidence they point to these facts: Jimmy dresses like an unmade bed; lives in a one-room, $30-a-month garage apartment; roars to work on a high-powered motorcycle. "You can sit with Dean all afternoon," one publicity man told me, "and he won't open his mouth. He's worse than Brando, who at least is articulate."

"A few months ago," another informant reported, "Dean went back to Indiana, where he was raised on a farm by an uncle and aunt after his mother died when he was 8. He brought a magazine photographer with him. One day Jimmy escorted the photographer to the town's mortuary; there he leaped into a casket, crossed his arms over his chest and shouted 'Shoot away!' What a weird sense of humor!"

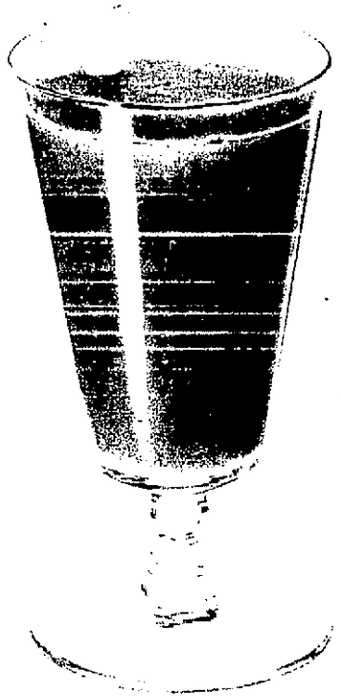

On meeting Dean, one finds many of these stories hard to believe; more than anything, he looks like a college sophomore. He stands only 5'8", weighs 155, wears glasses to correct his nearsightedness, dresses casually in slacks, sweaters and riding boots. His Hollywood apartment looks as though a hurricane had just hit it, with clothes scattered on the floor, motorcycle helmets and recording machines strewn about. "The artist's work comes first," he explains. "Everything else is bunk."

AT LEISURE, Jimmy tinkers with his sports car. Other enthusiasms: bongo drums, bullfighting, African chants.

Hollywood? 'I prefer New York'

Of publicity, he says: "Maybe it's necessary, but I just can't see it. Who cares about me?"

Of money: "I never had much and don't need much."

Of friendship: "In this business, nobody helps you. You can be grateful to somebody for opening your eyes to certain things. And in return you can open somebody else's. But you do it all yourself."

Of girls: "Pier Angeli is one of the most beautiful I've met."

Of Hollywood: "I prefer New York."

To most questions he replies simply: "Not significant."

When I asked him where he was born (430 East 4th Street, Marion, Indiana), he lowered his chin and muttered: "Not significant."

"You're nuts," I said.

His blue eyes flashed and his face broke into a warm, dimpled grin. "Everyone is trying to make me into a character," he smiled. "Actually I'm a pretty normal guy."

Back home in Indiana, people have been saying that about Jimmy for years. Says the aunt who helped rear him: "Jimmy lived a perfectly normal boyhood here. He took music lessons, was on the basketball and track teams and always took part in high-school plays."

After graduation Jimmy came out here to Los Angeles and moved in with his father, Winton Dean, a hospital dental technician. He enrolled in UCLA to study theater arts, but quit after one semester to thumb his way to New York and try his luck before the TV cameras.

Directors quickly spotted an unusual quality in Dean—an intenseness that breaks out in volatile fury under proper stimulation. It won him roles in two stage plays, See the Jaguar and The Immoralist, plus TV acting jobs at $500 a crack.

Last year his agent heard that Kazan was casting Eden in New York and sent young Dean over to read for a part. Kazan promptly cast Jimmy as Cal, a tormented, frustrated adolescent who allegorically represents Cain, the force of evil. During the filming, Kazan refused to let Dean be interviewed because—according to an assistant—"the role had become such a part of Jim's being that Kazan didn't want to chance him being upset and losing it."

Dean's performance stirred a storm. Some critics acclaimed it; a few called it a "poor aping of Marlon Brando." But over at Warner Brothers they don't care what anyone says. Eden is making money and Jimmy Dean is on his way. ■

AT WORK, Jimmy toys with the emotions of Julie Harris in East of Eden. A Dean trademark: hair combed like a mop.

Problem on the dance floor: Barbara Babbitt, in "ballerina" evening dress and flat-heeled shoes, towers over a male partner of more average height.

IN CLASS, Barbara turns to smile at boy in nearby seat.

TALL TEENAGER

At 14, Barbara Lee Babbitt of Florida is 5′ 10″—and still growing. But she makes out. Here's how

CORAL GABLES, FLA.

A fresh-faced lad, roughly 4′ tall from heels to crew-cut, passed pretty Barbara Lee Babbitt on her way home from school here the other day. "Hiya, Shorty!" he greeted her. "How's the weather up there?"

Barbara's answer was a tolerant smile. At 14, she stands 5′ 10″, weighs 135 and has learned to live with the wit of her contemporaries. Two years ago she was the shortest girl in her class. Now she has grown mentally as well as physically and, as the photos on these pages indicate, takes life very much in her free-swinging stride.

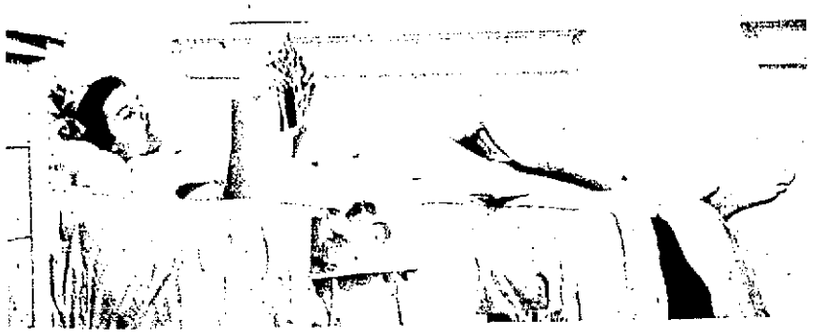

Of good-sized stock (her father, an airline pilot, stands 6′ 3″; her mother, a tennis champion, is 5′ 5½″), Barbara inherits pleasing proportions. Her "vital" measurements include a 32″ bust, 24″ waist and 34″ hips; she takes a 9½ shoe, a 12 dress. Being short-waisted is a problem, but she carefully avoids clothes with vertical stripes and too-straight skirts.

Because she is growing so fast, Barbara needs nine to 10 hours of sleep a night, and eats a big breakfast: fruit, cereal, eggs, bacon, toast, milk. Lunch is light, dinner hearty—and there are frequent icebox snacks.

Being tall is an advantage in sports, and Barbara excels in basketball, swimming and tennis. A "B" student in the ninth grade at Ponce De Leon High School, she also keeps up an active social life. She averages three parties a week, generally dates boys her height or taller (though one current beau is 5′ 6″). At home, she likes to play with her 8-year-old brother and the family dog, an energetic boxer.

"The worst thing about being tall," Barbara says, "is the kidding and the nicknames. But I don't mind too much. The short boys always seem kind of left out of things, somehow."

AT HOME, Barbara relaxes after putting up her hair and indulges in two favorite pastimes: chewing bubble gum and catching up with heroines of "romance comics."

The Fashion in Faces Has Changed

The new look is shockingly beautiful

We are just leaving the era of the heavily masked complexion that had a frankly phony color. The cake foundation that first came a long time ago had us all, for years, wearing a false Florida suntan, no matter how northern and freezing our actual life was. Suddenly these glaring, false faces seemed as old fashioned as high button shoes.

The current fashion for faces is this: first, a lighter color—paler make-up to give the skin a more fragile, sheltered look. And new make-up textures, which hide the sins of skin, but do not mask it so entirely. There is a more luminous, pearl-like look to the complexion these days—and a certain fragility that's oh! so very feminine—so completely disarming. You can get this shockingly beautiful new effect with LANOLIN PLUS Liquid Make-Up. Also, remember this is the only liquid make-up in the world to contain LANOLIN PLUS Liquid—the famous skin softener. $1, plus tax, in a choice of five head-turning shades. Wherever cosmetics are sold.

1 Drill bolt holes in supporting shelf with a bit of the proper size. (Use a larger bit first to countersink holes.)

2 Install shelf in box, then position driveshaft, mounting it on the shelf. Tighten mounting bolts with wrench.

3 Mark outline for hole in front panel. Use scrap-wood compass with nail in one end, hole for pencil in other.

WINDOW FAN

If you're handy, you can make a 20" exhaust fan like the one shown on this page in a few hours. It will fit any window whose lower sash opening is 27" square or larger. All metal parts—blade, driveshaft, collars, bearing mounts and pulleys—were purchased in kit form from a fan dealer. The 1/6 hp, two-speed electric motor enables the fan to move 1,750 cubic feet of air a minute. (A cheaper one-speed, ¼ hp motor is nearly as satisfactory.)

Lumber for the project includes 1-x-12s to make a box 27" square, 1-x-6s for center shelf and its support, ¼" plywood for the front panel and 1-x-4s for the screened door frame.

Box is nailed together and center drive shaft-support shelf nailed in. Shelf's bottom surface should be even with midpoint of box sides.

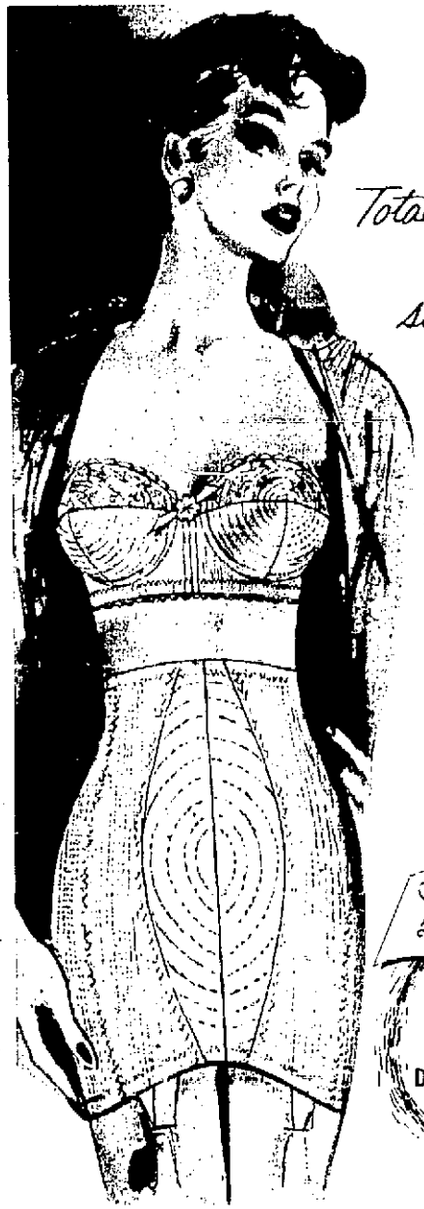

A hinged door, covered with ¼" hardware cloth stapled on, gives access for oiling. It's made to same outside dimensions as box and fastened at corners with angle irons or patent fasteners.

4 Front panel is centered on box "by eye." Tack it in place temporarily and mark overlapping edges for cutting. In finishing job, glue all joints.

5 1 x 2 board and lip on front panel form channel for window sash. Sash dropped into the channel holds fan.

Totally new slimming success!

MEDICINE: Atomic rays, beamed from a cobalt "bomb" at New York's Montefiore Hospital, frequently are proving successful against cancer.

GOOD NEWS:

Not in the future, but right now—today—atomic

The atom will produce electricity for a song, we are told—but not until tomorrow. It will propel passenger ships for months and months without refueling—but not until tomorrow. It will power airplanes, distill sea water, make deserts bloom, erase disease—but not until tomorrow.

Yet the atom is hard at work for us today. In one way or another, atomic energy has already helped every man, woman and child in the U.S.—not in the glamorous manner of the crystal-ball gazers, but in down-to-earth, practical ways. It is making the tires of your car last longer; it is improving the quality of the food you eat; it is boosting the efficiency of many of your household gadgets. Because of atomic energy, many familiar items have been improved — washing machines, cigarettes, motor oil, paints, plastics, aluminum, cosmetics—and the list grows almost daily.

Some of its performances have been breathtaking. Take spinach, for example. What the atom has found out about that green vegetable will gladden the heart of every girl and boy, hold hope for relief from pain to the thousands

They're made from selected beef and pork . . . hand-spiced with a secret seasoning blend, then slow smoked over hardwood fires. That's why they're the aristocrats of franks. Atoms at work—for YOU energy is working wonders in your life. And some of its jobs will astonish you of adults suffering from osteoarthritis and gallstones.

The vegetable got itself reappraised when researchers put radioactive materials—called radioisotopes—into a batch of spinach. (The radioisotopes send off rays which can be detected on Geiger counters; by tracking these rays, the researchers could trace the spinach as it flowed through a human body.) Watching spinach "in action" for the first time, the researchers saw that it did deposit iron in the body—as mothers have been telling children since time immemorial—but that it also tended to steal body calcium.

To the scientists, this was both good and bad. The good side: Victims of osteoarthritis and gallstones have a high —too high—amount of calcium in their bodies. Feed them spinach, figured the researchers, and you'll cut down on their excess calcium.

Reports Dr. Charles F. Geschickter of Georgetown Medical School: "We have treated a number of cases of osteoarthritis by asking them to eat spinach, whether frozen, canned or raw, at least once a day, five days a week, and to restrict the quantity of eggs, milk and cheese [all rich in calcium] in the diet. A remarkable improvement occurs in one to two weeks in many of these patients."

But what's sauce for older adults is not sauce for younger children, adds Dr. Geschickter. "It is the old people, who won't bother to eat spinach, that need it," he says. "Young people should not eat it because it competes with their bones for precious calcium."

That bit of spade work on spinach is only one small job of the hundreds that atomic energy is performing—day in and day out. These jobs fall into three broad categories: agricultural, industrial and medical.

INDUSTRY: A Westinghouse scientist watches as a delicate scale measures a radioactive component of the first full-scale reactor for generating electric power, now being built.

I—ON THE FARM

Thanks to the atom, nearly every food being grown on U.S. farms today is in the process of being made better—for the atom is unveiling the most tightly guarded secrets of plant life. Here's how: at a U.S. Department of Agriculture plant in Beltsville, Md., a dozen workers are turning out radioactive fertilizer. Though not harmful to humans, the fertilizer, when fed to plants, sends back rays that trace its course through the plants. From this the experts are learning how to use fertilizer with the least amount of waste to get the biggest and best crop yields.

The atom also is bucking up the strength of some plants, making them more resistant to disease. This is done by spraying the plants with atomic rays, causing mutations (changes in the plant's hereditary makeup). Out of these mutations come plants with one or more traits differing from those of their parents. For example, a new strain of oats has been produced that resists murderous "oat rust." And a new kind of peanut is more than 30 per cent more productive than its parents.

II—IN THE FACTORY

The atom is doing big things off the farm, too. Of the 2,400 U.S. organizations and institutions now employing it, more than half are industrial concerns. And they're all getting their money's worth. Said an Atomic Energy Commissioner recently: "I believe the present savings—and I emphasize present savings—through the use of radioisotopes . . . are in the order of $100 million a year."

About one-third of that sum is being saved because the atom is the sharpest-eyed inspector in industrial history. It can measure the thickness and density of materials to a degree never before known. Yet it does the job simply and quickly. A source of radioactivity—a "beta gauge"—is put on one side of the material and a Geiger counter on the other; the strength of the rays coming through the material gives an exact measure of its thickness.

A "difficult" problem solved by Tampax

Disposal no longer worries you when you adopt this modern internal sanitary protection

Many women think the disposal problem is one of the greatest nuisances of external pads. Why let yourself in for it when Tampax is so easy? Applicator and all, it simply flushes away, even when the plumbing is lazy! Then, too, Tampax is far more fastidious . . . why, your hands needn't even touch the Tampax during insertion or removal. A Tampax user need never go through the ordeal of "borrowing" . . . your purse can conceal a whole month's supply. And because Tampax is invisible when in place, there's no fear of telltale "edge" lines to "show." In fact your secret is completely safe with Tampax . . . it even prevents odor from forming. car because of the atom's eagle eye. Previously, tire makers never could make the fabric underneath the rubber treads exactly even in thickness. Now the atom makes this fabric even, producing a better-balanced tire that wears evenly all the way around, thus lasts longer.

The atom is checking on your cigarettes, insuring that every one is fully and evenly packed with tobacco. It's inspecting the engine blocks of many 1955 cars, functioning like an X ray to peer into the metal and discover any inner flaws. (The atom gets the call over X rays for this job because X-ray machines are bulky; the A-ray device is less ponderous, sometimes is small enough to be carried in one hand.)

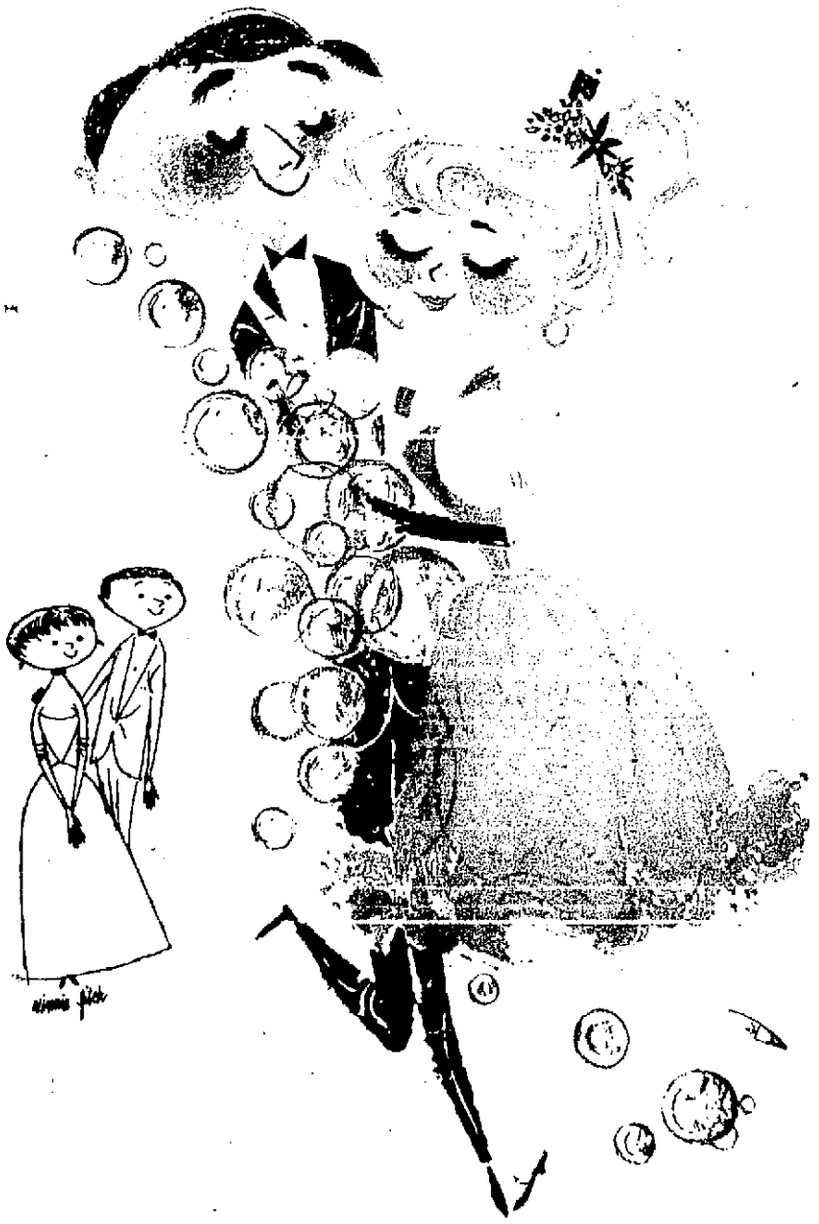

Your new car will be running up more miles without a "ring job" because new engine oils have been developed by radioactive "tracer" tests. Example: after cylinder piston rings were made radioactive, different kinds of motor oils were put in the cylinders. The oils that stayed free from radioactivity the longest – and thus were keeping the piston rings whole – were tagged the best and put on the market.

Petroleum and atoms mix in other ways. In the Big Inch and other large pipelines used to ship oil across the country underground, radioisotopes now ride with the oil. Previously, when a shipment of crude oil was being sent through the pipe and a batch of refined oil was following after, the men at the end of the pipe would have to sample the oil constantly to make sure it was being channeled into separate storage tanks. Now, the radioisotopes riding

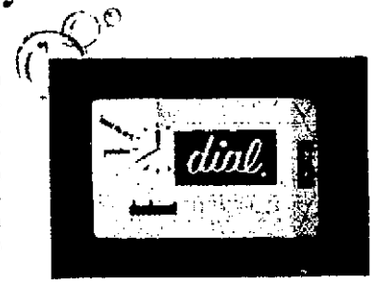

THE AUTHOR

Oliver Townsend, former assistant to the chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, is now secretary and assistant executive manager of the Atomic Industrial Forum, a group of 200 research, labor and industrial organizations working for development of atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

It's that DIAL feeling – you never worry about odor!

More than a feeling, it's a fact: with Dial you never worry about odor. You see, normal perspiration has no odor until skin bacteria attack it. Ordinary soaps can't remove bacteria effectively. But Dial does! It's the one leading soap with AT-7 (Hexachlorophene). This remarkable ingredient clings to your skin, so it protects you all day—and for several days if need be. That's why Dial stops odor before it starts!

Aren't you glad you use Dial Soap?

with the oil send off rays that ring a bell as they enter the pipe's terminal, warning the men that a different grade of oil is coming in. The men promptly switch it to another tank, thus saving time and wasted oil.

For the ladies, the atom has helped make better washing machines. Dirt has been made radioactive, run through the machines; by tracking the dirt, the experts are able to tighten up the machines, make them more efficient. And cosmetic makers have made lipstick radioactive in tests to be sure it's kiss-and smear-proof.

III—IN THE HOSPITALS

But the atom has scored its biggest headlines – except for its menacing mushrooms at Hiroshima and Yucca Flat – in the field of medicine. Its special target has been cancer. Radioactive isotopes are used today as a matter of common practice to burn out cancerous tissue. In some cases an "isotope gun" shoots radioactive "bullets" into the tissue; in others the radioisotope is mixed with a substance and either injected into the patient or given by mouth (the famed radioactive "cocktail").

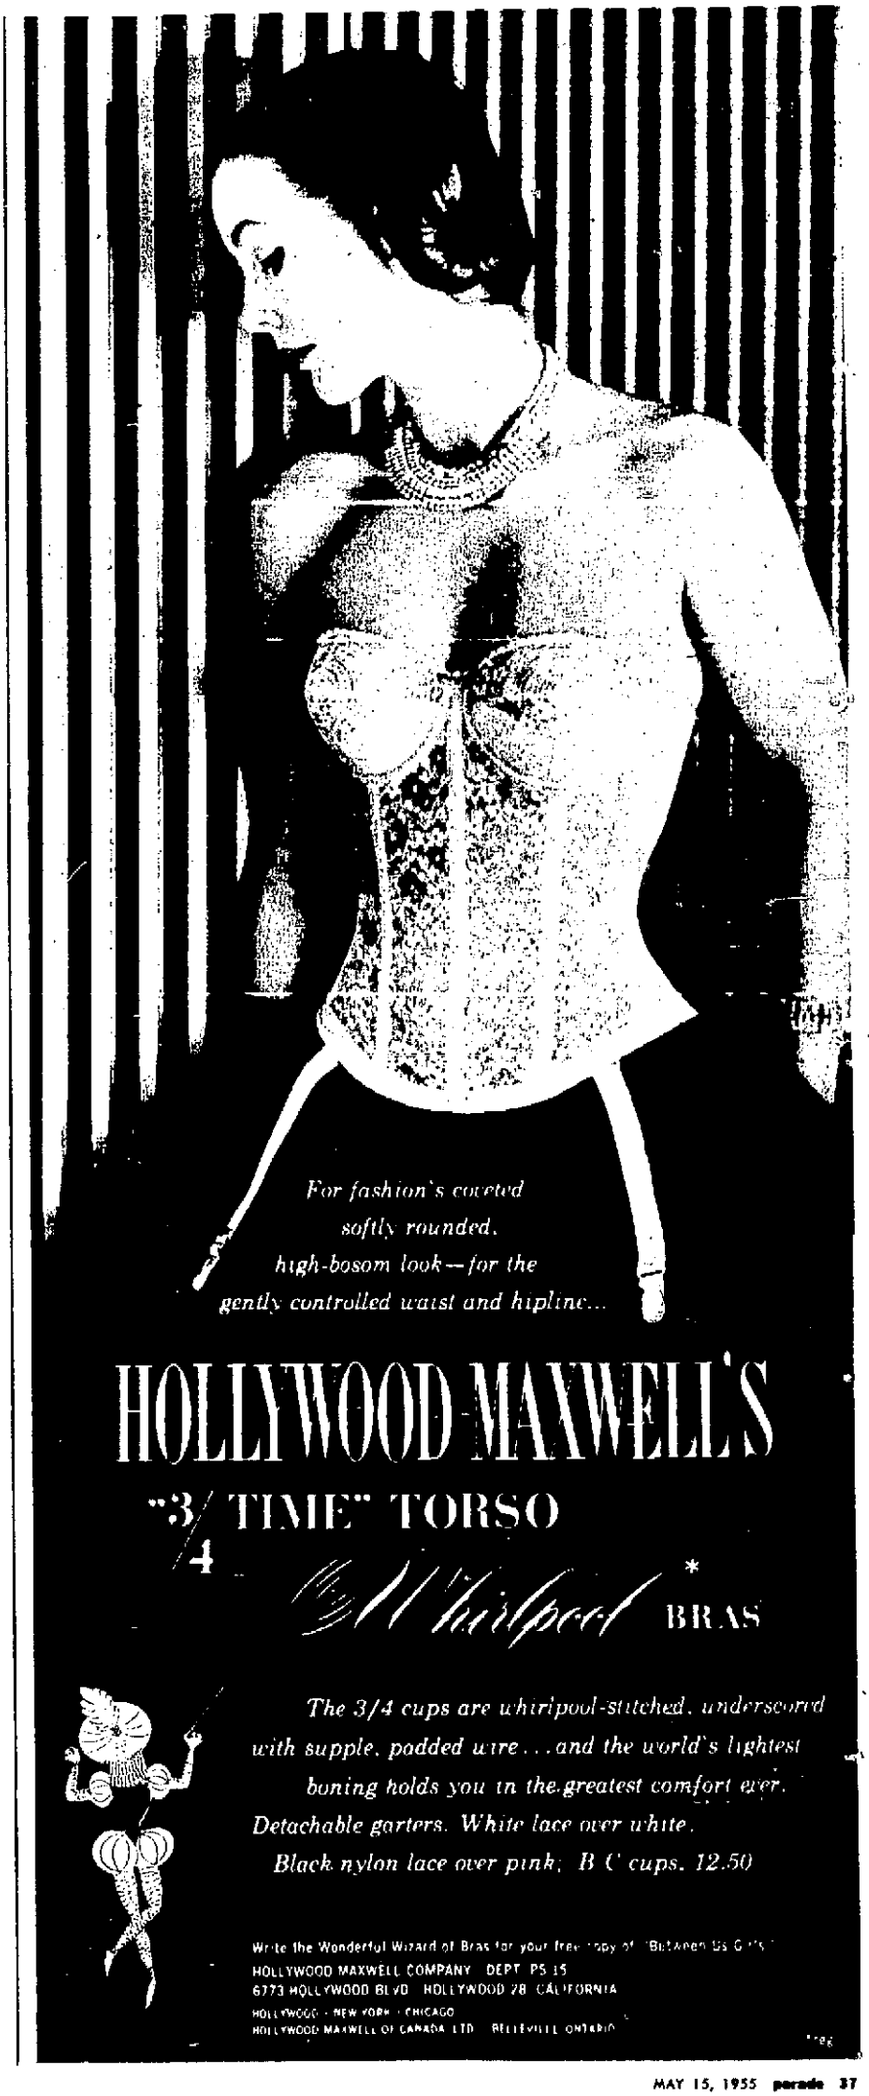

Besides such full-time jobs, the atom also has been called on in emergencies. Last winter it was on guard on the highest Rocky Mountain peaks, sending out signals from unmanned stations to tell the depth of winter snows; these figures gave engineers the data to predict accurately the spring run-offs, prevent floods.

And two days before last Christmas, a church in Oak Ridge, Tenn., sprang a leak in its heating system. The leak was somewhere underneath the cement floor of the basement. It had to be located and repaired in 36 hours, or Christmas Eve services would have to be canceled.

Normally it takes two weeks just to locate such a leak, but this was Oak Ridge—the first "atomic town." Radioisotopes, rushed from nearby labs, were put into the heating system and tracked through the pipes under the floor with Geiger counters. "Where the isotopes stop flowing," the scientists told the workmen, "is where you start digging."

The Christmas Eve services went on as scheduled.

Atomic wonders? They're coming your way every day—and they'll keep on coming. ■

All you need to do is look

WHEN it comes to looks—our General Motors designers have certainly come through for you this year. Lower, smoother—with their wide sweep of better-vision windshields—our 1955 Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Oldsmobiles, Buicks and Cadillacs are in a class by themselves.

And their colors and color combinations are the glory of the highways.

But that is only partly why they are so popular—especially with those who've had a chance to work them long and hard. For beneath the smartly styled hood is a high-compression V8 engine which — when teamed with one of GM's silken smooth automatic transmissions—delivers the tops in power and performance in its price class.

No question about it. All you need to do is look—to know which are the 1955 style leaders. And all you need to do is visit your dealer to know precisely why the key to a General Motors car is your key to greater value.

LOVE That Thirteenager!

By Stella George

WHEN your thirteenager comes in from school does he (or she) leave a trail of lunch boxes, sweaters, purses, books, shoes and sometimes socks from the front door to his room? Does he greet you with, "I'm-hungry-what's-there-to-eat?" as he walks in the door? Does he (or she) tie up the telephone for 40 to 50 minutes on end, and think you're unreasonable when you ask to use the phone for a business call? Good! If you have answered yes to these questions, it's likely that you have a very happy, well-adjusted thirteenager in the house.

A thirteenager is a person who can be delightful, perplexing, paradoxical, aggravating, lovable and fascinating at the same time. They are sophisticated and grown-up one minute and small boys and girls the next. They need and want love and outward signs of affection just as much as their small brothers and sisters.

Perhaps one of the most significant similarities between 13-year-old boys and girls is the fact that they are always hungry. From a thirteenagers' point of view it would be a good idea to keep a larder stocked with crackers, cookies, cake, ice cream, peanut butter, candy, popcorn, apples and ginger ale to meet all emergencies.

THERE ARE TIMES when a thirteenage girl will forget entirely about home bathing in any form. Showers after gym serve the purpose. But there are other times when taking a bath becomes a ritual seldom seen outside the movies. A supply of deodorants, powders, creams, eyelash curlers, hair removers, bath salts and powder puffs is ceremoniously arrayed on the bathroom sink and the bathroom itself will be occupied for at least two hours while the punctilious observance takes place.

Thirteenage boys sometimes have a tendency to break out in a rash when washing ears is mentioned.

"I washed my ears last week," is offered as a logical excuse for protesting against the ordeal. Occasionally a 13-year-old boy will decide to take a bath of his own volition (two mothers substantiated this statement). A generalization can almost be established in regard to this: Usually no soap is required. A period of meditation while soaking up to the waist, alternated with wild periods of splashing, diving, beating about in the water constitutes the secrets of this rite.

A thirteenager may say goodbye to a friend at the door, then 15 minutes later, when the friend gets home, engage in an hour-long phone call with his chum.

Going steady, to thirteen-agers, often means nothing more than walking home from school together. This photo was posed by John Jakubik and Caroline Betz.

THIRTEENAGERS, boys and girls alike, seem to be allergic to unnecessary tidiness around the house, especially that which requires physical effort on their part. They don't mean to be untidy; they take the easiest course of action because it is easy. They will worry about personal and emotional problems which directly affect them. Household orderliness is not a personal problem. The gentle reprimand, "Put your things away in your room, dear," is often more effective than a running discourse on the untidy habits of young people in general.

Thirteenagers seem to feel that their parents are old-fashioned and should remember the French Revolution or at least the Civil War from first-hand experience. The fact that daddy was a popular man-about-town in the 1930s, and mother jitterbugged with the best of them at that time still makes it inconceivable that love and/or sex ever entered the lives of either parent. Therefore, viewpoints parents might have on these topics are sometimes questioned. If mothers and dads will think back a few years they might remember how they regarded their parents' opinions in these matters!

"Going steady" often implies to a parent the beginning of engagement, marriage, grandchildren and the care thereof. To a thirteenager it may be a phase in the boy-girl relationship—a mark of popularity satisfying the basic desire to be sought after. As a matter of fact, one 13-year-old girl was recently overheard to say, "Oh, I've gone steady three times this week!"

GOING STEADY does not necessarily mean going anywhere or doing anything. It often means nothing more than walking to school together, sharing desserts at lunch time and walking home from school together.

Thirteenagers want and need recognition. A 13-year-old girl said to her parents not long ago, "It seems that only bad kids get written up in the papers." She went on to say that she was afraid that some older people might look at her and think she was bad, too, because she was a teenager. Most thirteenagers want to be recognized. When a girl runs up to a crowd of girls on the school grounds, shouting, "Hey, you guys . . ." her mother might wonder if she'll ever grow up to be a lady. This behavior actually means nothing more than the fact that the girl wanted to be noticed and given attention. A baby cry for attention; an adult seeks perfection in a certain field; a thirteenager may become loud and boisterous in order to be noticed. It is really part of growing up.

Most thirteenagers uphold a cool hostility towards younger brothers and sisters. This often encourages undesirable character traits to show themselves in these younger editions. Parents often wail, "Why can't you get along? Play together—have fun together—you're brothers and sisters, remember." The point is that a thirteenager is worlds apart from pre-adolescent children. They seem to have less in common actually than a 13-year-old and his parents.

THE QUESTION was put to a group of 13-year-old girls, "What is your biggest problem?" At once, and almost in the same breath, they answered, "Being popular!" Thirteenagers are not really old enough to have outgrown all childhood fickleness. They still become mad at, and make up, with friends at a rate that astounds grown people. However, being one of the crowd is such an important problem that it explains many common incidents that often perplex and annoy mothers.

"All the girls are wearing Lanamere socks. I've just got to get some," or "All the boys are wearing those new wool slacks. I've got to get a pair," are typical statements every parent of a thirteenager has heard at one time or another. What the youngster is really saying is, "I want to look like my friends so I'll be accepted as one of the group." Thirteenagers are critical of one another and are wary of those who are different from

Hummingbird Heaven

By Harry R. Peterson

IF YOU'D LIKE to retire for a while from the harried and somewhat baffled age of atoms and jets to a peaceful, secluded world of birds—particularly hummingbirds, try a trip to the Tucker Wild Bird Sanctuary in Modjeska Canyon, 16 miles east of Orange in the Santa Ana Range. Some years ago, when owned by B. F. Tucker of Long Beach, the spot was nationally famous as the largest hummingbird headquarters in the entire country.

Because of Dorothy May Tucker's love for birds, Tucker in eight years attracted literally thousands of the darting, iridescent birdlets who stayed, nested and multiplied under ideal conditions on the beautifully wooded acres of "Oakwood."

Now, the California Audubon Society, to whom Tucker deeded the property in 1939, is restoring the rendezvous. Each year since active work was begun in 1951, more and more of the six California species have arrived. By the use of a new and ingenious bottle-type inverted feeder, attendants have brought the number of daily visitors up to several hundred. Mr. Tucker believes that in five years myriads of hummers will live at Oakwood again.

YOU MAY PHOTOGRAPH the birds if you visit the sanctuary in the middle of the week.

The birds are viewed from a screened observation porch built into a cabin. Twenty or more feeders filled with red-colored syrup bring in the zooming, oscillating feathered bombshells. They sip from bent tubes and perch or poise on the top of the bottle and the surface tension keeps it from running out.

The Anna, Costa and black-chinned hummingbirds are the species seen in summer; in the fall and spring come the migratory Rufous, Allen and tiny Calliope on their way from points north down into Mexico and back again through the mountains. The Anna is the only permanent resident of Southern California.

HUMMERS PERFORM in the main ring of the bird circus; the sideshow on a long tray with 24 compartments, below and beyond the bottles, is just as interesting. Here come the other wild birds in considerable numbers and many species. Quail, mourning doves, California thrashers, acorn woodpeckers, black-headed grosbeaks, towhees, songsparrows and scrub jays are the most common in summer. You may also see house wrens, the Bewick wren, hooded orioles, handsome western tanagers, the shy wrentit or perhaps a black phainopepla in the tops of the trees near the parking place. Two additional trays and the ground are used for more food. Each square in the long tray contains a separate kind of bird delicacy. It has been possible to study the feeding habits here by experimentation.

To reach the sanctuary, drive past El Modena and turn east on the Santiago Canyon road before reaching Irvine Park. Pass Irvine Lake and cross the Santiago Creek bridge. Then, 200 yards beyond, instead of heading into Silverado Canyon, turn right at the fork and drive to a small grocery store and cross a second bridge. The route is left into Modjeska Canyon. Follow this to the end, and stop at the Forest Service gate. There is a long parking place and a sign "Birds" near the "Oakwood" under the entrance to the sanctuary. All this route is paved, has easy highgear grades and is well signed.

Bird lovers find Tucker Wild Bird Sanctuary in Modjeska Canyon of top interest. This is the entrance to area.

Santiago Creek, that passes through the sanctuary, has its source near the twin peaks, Modjeska and Santiago; the former named for the famous Polish actress who lived just below the refuge, in her beloved "Forest of Arden."

It's an historic stream. Gaspar de Portola, heading the first party of white men, came this way in July, 1769. Father Juan Crespi of the expedition named it. In his journal of July 27 he says: "It has willows, grapevines, brambles and other bushes. It was given the name . . . of the patron of the Spains, Santiago."

NEAR THE END of the Modjeska road is a bridge and side thoroughfare, with a sign, "Cross at Your Own Risk." This is the entrance to the former home of Madame Helena Modjeska. To the north of Oakwood is a huge domed rock, Flores Peak, where a bandit involved in a murder and robbery in San Juan Capistrano jumped on horseback from the summit and dodged the hangman temporarily. Beyond is the Santiago Peak Trail, 15 miles and 5,691 feet to the top.

An extensive research program has brought much knowledge about the feeding habits of the feathered residents and migrants at the sanctuary. The path leads to the cabin, over a carpet to deaden sound; past an enormous oak stump. When it fell in 1952, the forester estimated its age as 700 years; it was the second largest in the Santa Ana Mountains and was frequented by the coastal Indians for centuries.

At the observation porch it is easy to watch the birds at close range. Above the screen is a list of the different kinds of bird feed in the compartments, each numbered.

As visitors tiptoe into the porch and sit down, the sight before them is startling indeed. One hummer after another swoops to a feeder in the long row only a few feet from the railing. First, an Anna, bright red throat glistening in the morning sun, poises before a tube, wings whirring all the time, and finally lights on the curved wire and takes a long sip. Two Costas, with lavender gorgets, dart in to eat; then a black-chinned, distinctive with its dark head and white collar—until there are a dozen of them, brilliant against the laboratory-like row of inverted bottles; red because coloring matter is added to the syrup.

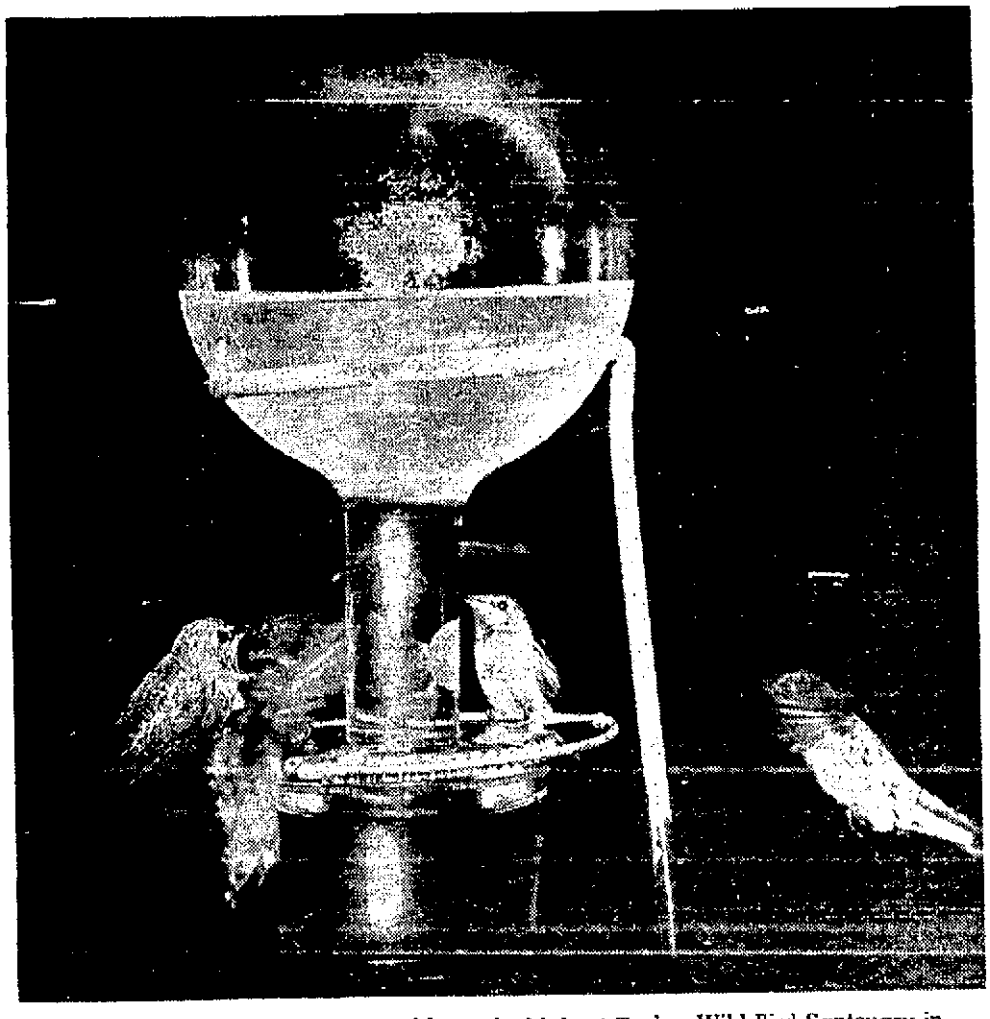

Two valley quail are busy in square No. 1 of the long tray; the hen scratch. They kick out backward, their topknots bobbing, just like a couple of future fryers in a country back yard! Other quail strut into the peanut hearts compartment until there are six. If watchers make no quick movement and do not talk too much they will stay until satisfied. Four fawn-colored mourning doves are sampling the suet. Over in the sunflower seed box a black-headed grosbeak, red and ebony, a tropical visitor, cracks the large seeds in his strong beak with ease. Dark California thrashers, with curved long bills, wander around from one square to another. An acorn woodpecker, attacker of telephone poles, examines the walnuts and may be planning to do a rat-tat-tat on the porch beams.

ON THE GROUND, such wild birds as titmice, brown and spotted towhees and songsparrows investigate bugs and stray seeds. A flicker flies among the swinging birdhouses, from one great live oak to another, showing red underneath. They all seem as tame as hens.

As one professional photographer says, "The whole place is a challenge to anyone who'd like to get some good bird shots."

Suddenly a door slams inside the house; it has swung to accidentally. With the rush of a quail covey flushed from the chaparral, the whole flock vanishes in the tree branches and then up the canyon. They're still wild birds.

They will return. And bird lovers will want to visit the Dorothy May Tucker Wild Bird Sanctuary again also.

Feeding time for a family of hummingbirds at Tucker Wild Bird Santcuary in Modjeska Canyon. Father hummingbird whirs wings patiently as family feeds.

CALIFORNIA YESTERDAYS

When White Men Scalped Indians

Drawing by the Author

Slain settler — a scene sure to bring white reprisals in pioneer California when Indian scalps brought bounties.

By Clarence Bernard Propes

CALIFORNIA once paid a bounty on Indian scalps. Ears had to be attached though.

The majordomo of Rancho Azusa, where Azusa now stands, appealed for help from Los Angeles to hold off the redskins.

In 1849, the Prefect of Los Angeles demanded arms and ammunition to combat the "depredations of Indian horse thieves and other evil disposed persons."

California's Indian past was often as bloody and desperate as anything dreamed of in Hollywood. Indians raided all the ranches in Southern California, ranches now occupied by Long Beach, Santa Barbara, San Diego and even the romance factories of Hollywood or Disney's new layout in Anaheim. At one time it was as daring to live in Southern California as it was to live anywhere on the Southwest frontier.

The Missions attracted a great many converts but there were many Indians who simply didn't like Christian ways. The latter would come down from the hills and mountains and try to kill as many non-Indians as they could. Then, too, Indian converts would change their minds about being Christians and take over the Missions after killing anyone who disagreed with them.

AFTER A TIME the Mission authorities got matters under control as far as most of the California Indians were concerned. There were other tribes from the Colorado River country who were not so agreeable. They looked at the growing herds of horses in California with a fond eye. They then started raiding.

They did not hesitate to steal every horse in sight. When they wished to avoid battle they would leave the horses that were tied to hitching rails in front of ranch houses. The horses were driven east to be sold to immigrants or the settlements around Salt Lake.

THE RAIDERS were Paiutes, Mojaves and Utes from east of the Colorado River and a scattering of California tribes from this side of the river.

The Utes were probably the most troublesome. They were proud people from the Colorado Plateau. Wakera was one of their great chiefs and an unpleasant sort of person. As an example he offered to sell several Indian slave children to a party of Mormons. When the Saints refused to buy them Wakera picked up one of the children by the heels and dashed its brains out. He then berated the Mormons for cruelty on the grounds that if the purchase had been made the child would not have died.

He appeared in the San Bernardino region in the mid-forties. He had a number of squaws and warriors with him but said his intentions were peaceful — that he wanted to trade and trap. He looked over the land and then made off with several hundred head of stock. A company of men went in pursuit and caught up with him in the desert. The Indians kept the horses and the

Offices Move Out to the Countryside

By Leif Erickson
AP Newsfeatures Writer

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE an office building going up in the block where you had bought a new suburban home?

It's not a gag question. In Menlo Park, home-owners like having Prudential Insurance, Magna Enginering, and Sunset Magazine as next-door neighbors.

Their "country style" office buildings harmonize architecturally with the neighborhood's homes. And their landscaping will match a country club's.

The companies' lawns, and their shrub and flower layouts, are a tough "keeping up with the Joneses" challenge for nearby householders. The companies can afford high priced gardeners.

The people of Menlo Park, a peninsula suburb 30 miles south of San Francisco, are impressed with the way their "garden office building zoning" is turning out.

And, says Menlo Park's mayor, Charles P. (Chuck) Burgess, the companies make important and helpful taxpayers.

Like fast growing suburban home communities anywhere, Menlo Park needed and wanted substantial business taxpayers. It wanted its cake of attractive neighborhood living with a frosting of sweet business tax money.

When Menlo Park invited businesses to locate there in "garden office zoning," seven firms built attractive layouts like Sunset Magazine's (above).

THE ZONE ORDINANCE—"An invitation to large companies to build their offices in the country"—was enacted in April 1949.

Allstate Insurance Co., a Sears Roebuck subsidiary, accepted first, moving into its quarters in December 1950. Next came the Lane Publishing Co., settling in its showplace headquarters for Sunset Magazine in August 1951.

Magna Engineering, makers of an all-in-one power tool for home craftsmen, put in their shrubs and designing desk in September 1951.

Since then have come the American Insurance Group; the U. S. Geological Survey in the first unit of an eventual Pacific Coast survey center; A. C. Nielson & Co., market analysts who measure radio and TV audiences; and Prudential Insurance, with its Northern California mortgage loan office.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION now is a regional headquarters for Hardware Mutual Insurance of Minnesota.

Four similarly zoned sites remain, with eight to 10 more potentially shaping in a tract originally plotted as a shopping center.

The zone ordinance requires that each firm provide adequate parking space for its employes. Buildings can cover no more than 40 per cent of a minimum two-acre tract. Borders of parking areas as well as front lawns must be landscaped.

Are the firms happy?

Sunset Magazine's people keep busy guiding tours of readers through their building and grounds. They look like the modern rambling manor of a mogul with the fortune and taste to afford the ultimate in western living.

The managing executives glow about personnel morale and low jet turnover.

Prudential's regional manager, Willard Hansen, said his office had virtually 100 per cent turnover annually in San Francisco's financial district.

"But not here. About the only girls we lose are those getting married and starting a family."

HOW DO the Jane Does on the payrolls like it?

Sheilah McClelland, phone operator and receptionist at Prudential, comes by car from San Francisco, where she and Janet Tarnello still like to live.

Sheilah turned down a receptionist job in another Prudential office in San Francisco.

"I guess I'm mixed up," she says. "I like living in the city and working in the country.

"When we moved in here, you know what? Jean Stasser, the receptionist girl at Magna, came right over to say 'hello' and asked me to coffee at their place.

"I guess you don't see that much in the city, do you?"

They Learn by Travel

By Jess Glawson

ALTHOUGH vacations abroad are now less expensive and less time-consuming than in years past, they remain in the realm of dreams for most of us. But not so for a group of local students and teachers. Two low-cost tours sponsored by Long Beach State College will make it possible for them to visit, this summer, the storied lands of Central Europe and the Orient.

The sights, sounds and moods of far-away places will become familiar to these groups which depart in June for overseas destinations. Dr. Frank Nelson of the English department at State College, and Dr. Wallace Moore, who heads the division of education and phychology, will conduct the tours.

Departing from New York by air June 22, Dr. Nelson and his group will visit England, The Netherlands, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and France, returning Aug. 7. They will tour famous old-world cities like London, Amsterdam, Frankfurt, Vienna and Paris. Lectures will be heard at the University of Innsbruck, and side trips will be made through the fabled lake district of Austria and the beautiful Alpine country of Switzerland.

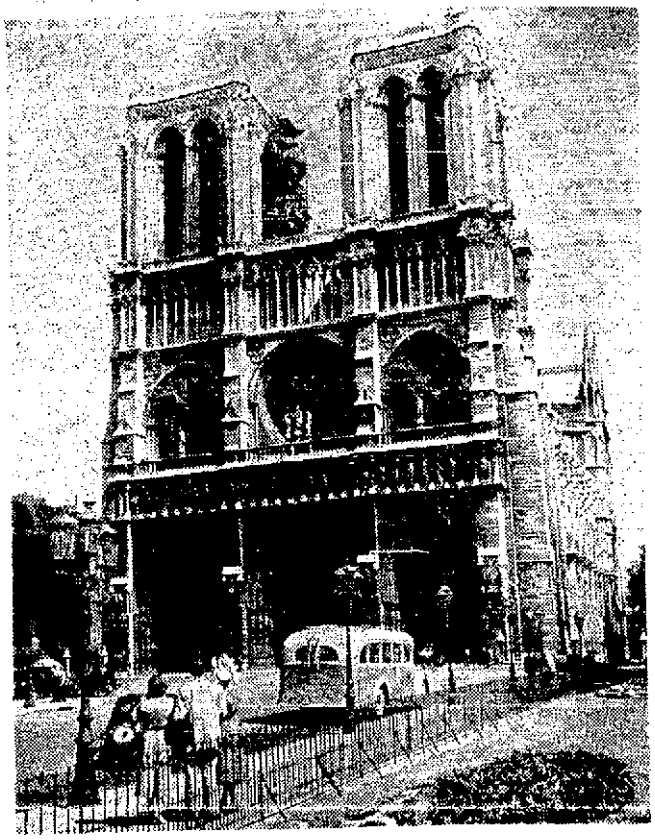

THE 45-DAY tour of the Orient will begin June 30 when Dr. Moore and his group depart from Los Angeles. After a brief stop in Honolulu, they will fly on to the fabulous cities of the Far East: Tokyo, Hong Kong, Macao, Bangkok and Singapore, to name only a few. The group will attend a lecture series at the University of Hong Kong, visit famous shrines and cultural centers, and even tour the gambling houses of Kowloon. Returning via Manila, Guam and Honolulu, they will arrive back in Los Angeles on Aug. 13.

Not only will the travelers enjoy a once-in-a-lifetime vacation abroad, each will be given six units of credit by the summer session of Long Beach State College. The trips are designed especially for students and teachers but any mature person may accompany the group by registering as an auditor. For information call the school's summer session office.

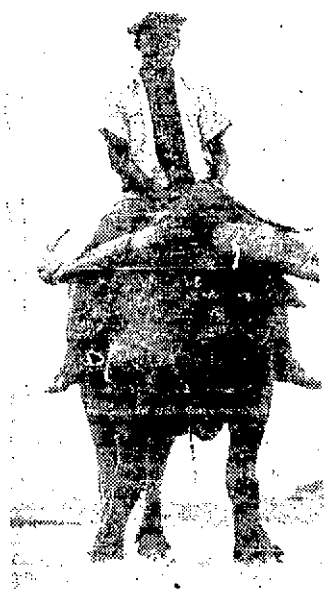

THE TOURS are liberally spiced with days of travel for pure pleasure and days of leisure for sightseeing and shopping. Each route has been chosen with the distinct purpose of offering the traveler the widest selection of scenery, familiarization with representative cities and sightseeing that goes beyond the "tourist musts."

Dr. Nelson is a graduate of Haverford College and the University of California, has studied and taught in Europe and has made three trips covering the central countries. Dr. Moore, a graduate of Harvard University and Stanford, is well known for his work as consultant for the information program of the United States in Japan.

Sponsorship of the tours by Long Beach State indicates the interest this school shows in furthering international education and understanding, for the most direct and effective way to accomplish these ends is through personal knowledge of other peoples, their way of life and their problems and attitudes. The opportunity to gain personal knowledge is presented through carefully designed itineraries. And the impact of this knowledge is heightened by especially arranged lectures, tours of schools and education centers, and more than casual contact with universities in many cities.

Paris will thrill State College tour group making the European trek. This is view of Notre Dame Cathedral.

Love That Thirteenager

themselves. They dress not to please one another, but to be like one another.

Thirteenagers need all the love and affection that parents can give them. Since they are a paradox—grown-up one minute, and small children the next—they also need understanding along with it. Their problems are real, and getting a sweater "like the rest of the crowd is wearing" is as important as a new best dress for mother to wear to the women's club.

ON THE OTHER HAND, a thirteenager does not like to hear stereotyped generalities about himself and his friends. "What are you kids coming to? You're all alike," puts a 13-year-old on the defensive.

The implication is not favorable. After all, "All you mothers are alike" would probably be resented by the most ideal mother! While a cross parent may generalize about all youngsters, actually one of the most consoling thoughts to parents as a group is the fact that thirteenagers are alike. When one mother finds out that her daughter isn't the only one who carefully hangs up dirty clothes and scatters clean ones on the floor, but all her friends' thirteenagers do likewise, she stops worrying and feels reassured. When a mother of a 13-year-old son checks with a neighbor and discovers that the neighbor's same-age son also rebels at Saturday afternoon lawn mowing, she feels better.

An untidy, perpetually-hungry and happy 13-year-old has an excellent chance of becoming a slim, immaculately-groomed leading citizen in a few years. The boy whose mother has to bribe him to take a bath might well some day be a fuss-budget dad who complains about his son's poor ear-washing habits. The girl who has to have a skirt like her friends are wearing might be a top fashion model when she's 20—known for her striking individuality in dress!

Parents of thirteenagers are lucky—they have so much to look forward to, and will one day have such a lot to look back upon.

You Can Re-Cover Furniture

By Caroline Coleman

WHEN CUSHIONS, covers and dim lights fail to hide that soiled or worn chair, it's time to build yourself a new one.

Sound formidable? It isn't.

It's easy and it's fun. If you ring the whole family in on the job, the pleasure of the adventure increases. Though it may be a little hard to convince the man of the house — even if he is a "Mr. Fixit" — that upholstering is an at-home task, a little psychology will serve to arouse his interest. You might first propose buying a new chair and then suggest the upholstering proposal.

When he begins to conceive the idea as his own, he'll be very enthusiastic and a great help. Working together, the job will go faster and more smoothly. He can do the stretching and tacking; you can do the measuring, cutting and sewing.

First step will be to obtain the proper materials and tools. The fabric you select should be firm and strong and not a loosely woven one. An unnapped fabric which does not have a slick surface will wear longer. Your wisest choice is a durable wool fabric which will mold readily to the shape of the chair, be easy to handle and give you longest service.

A word of advice to beginners: Checks, plaids or stripes are more difficult to work with than solids or flecked or nubbed fabrics.

For a boudoir chair you will need 4½ to five yards of wool fabric, about two yards of black cambric for under the seat, four to 4½ yards of muslin for the undercovering and three or 3½ yards of burlap as a covering for the springs and stuffing. For requirements for other types of furniture check with any yard goods or furniture store.

Decide on the trim you will

Admiring their choice, couple prepares to reupholster boudoir chair in black tweed for use in living room.

MAJOR STEPS IN STRIPPING, REBUILDING AND RECOVERING FURNITURE

want for your chair and purchase it with your wool fabric. Trim that has a professional air are bindings of matching fabric. Bindings called "welts" — strips of fabric sewn around a welt cord — are easy to make.

The best tools to use include an upholsterer's hammer, which has a double-faced magnetic head; a curved needle and a straight double-pointed needle; long upholsterer's shears, and skewers, or pins. You also need "No. 4" tacks, webbing, tieing twine, cotton wadding and hair stuffing. Helpful also are a tack lifter and a webbing stretcher.

Though the list seems long, when you lay out the tools and add up the cost you will find that the requirements are neither large nor expensive.

THE MAJOR STEPS in upholstering are stripping, rebuilding and recovering. As you strip the chair note carefully how the professional job was done. It will help you a great deal when you are ready to rebuild if, as you strip, you mark all pieces and use them as patterns for measuring and cutting the new covering. The order of stripping is the reverse of reupholstering: Skirt (if any), cambric from underneath seat, trim, outside back, outside arms, inside back, inside arms and seat.

Now you are ready to rebuild. First check the springs to see that they are all securely attached and that none is broken.

For a satisfactory finished product, you will want to know that the chair is in good condition from inside out. You may find that the webbing, to which springs are attached, is worn. If this is so, stretch new strips of webbing taut across the chair and tack at each end, then replace springs. The man of the house can use the webbing stretcher to pull the webbing and hold it taut while you tack the ends to the frame. Replace front-to-back strips of webbing first, then weave cross-strips in.

In recovering, you will find it easiest to work on the various parts of the chair in the following order: Seat, inside arms, inside back, outside arms, outside back, trim.

As you measure and cut the various layers of cloth, remember to use the old pieces as patterns. Each material when applied to the chair should be stretched tight and attached securely. First the coverings are baste-tacked (driving tacks only part way in) and then, after any necessary adjustments to assure evenness, permanently tacked.

Since two or more layers of cloth will be tacked to the same wood area of your chair it is important that you stagger rows of tacks so that the frame is not split.

Covers for the inside arms and back are pulled through from the inside of the chair to the out-

Don't Feed the Animals

By Harry Squires

AN AUTOPSY performed on a camel that died at the Central Park Zoo in New York revealed a rubber ball in the animal's stomach. W. H. Latham, New York park supervisor, reported that baby monkeys have died in the Central Park Zoo and in the Prospect Park Zoo in Brooklyn from peanuts sticking in their throats.

Hundreds of zoo inmates in all parts of the country—including the West Coast—will die this summer unless those visiting zoos will be content to observe the animals, rather than molest or fatally injure them by throwing food and other harmful objects into the cages.

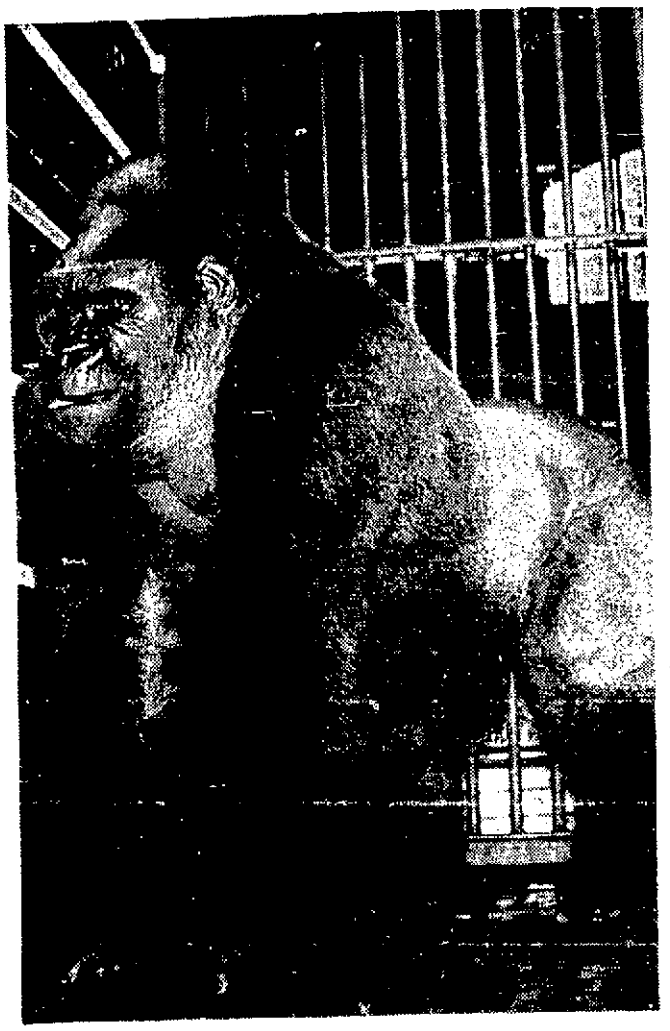

Latham said that the New York zoos have had sea-lions die from swallowing marbles, pennies, small stones and other objects that were thrown into the animals' cages.

"While this might seem a sorry state of affairs," said Latham, "we have found from experience that the general public has no intention of injuring the animals. As a matter of fact, I believe, their actions are prompted by a spirit of kindness."

Fortunately, most zoo visitors are kind to the animals; those few who threw harmful things into the cages do so out of a sadistic delight. For this reason, it has been necessary for many zoo supervisors to forbid feeding by the public.

BECAUSE of the tendency of monkeys to eat many things that are not good for them, R. Marlin

Small Mexican cafe stands on edge of Russian village. In old days, cafe could not have existed as villagers never "ate out" except with friends.

A Bit of Russia in Old Mexico

By Jack B. Kemmerer

NESTLED deep in the Guadalupe Valley lies the small Russian village of Guadalupe, an unspoiled settlement almost exactly like an 18th century Tolstoyan farming hamlet in the time of the Imperial Czar. Neither the United States nor Mexico have any qualms about this tiny, peaceful community located only 60 miles below the United States international border at Tijuana, Baja California.

The village of Guadalupe lies about 15 miles off the main highway from Tijuana to Ensenada and a dirt and gravel road leading to the valley turns off to the left from a point beyond the Half-Way House, about 50 miles below Tijuana. The road is passable for any automobile in dry weather. It was cut through by the Mexican government over the protests of the Russians who believed that a simple mule trail was sufficient for their needs in getting their crops to market. They feared interruption of their solitude by government officials and tax collectors.

In fact, government oppression by conscription and heavy tax assessments to further the Imperial Czar's aggressive schemes drove the Russians from their native land in the first place. Their first step was to withdraw from the Russian Orthodox Church, band into sects such as Mennonites, Dukhobors, Molli-cans and Malakans, to name a few. Each sect differed slightly but all had two things in common: Tax payment and army service were refused. In 1904, when the Czar's forces seized the village grain supply and the young men in a small village near the Turkish border, flogging the old men as an object lesson, the entire village, all members of the Malakan sect, packed their meager belongings and fled to the United States. They first settled near Los Angeles, but soon decided that district was "too immoral" for raising children and accepted isolated sanctuary offered by Mexico in Guadalupe Valley.

Because their religion forbade the owning of land, they secured long term leases on thousands of acres and settled down to live their lives in the Russian fashion and raise their children and crops in peace.

The young men work in the fields and camp by their ploughs far from the village in the Russian style. The old men hang around the village doing the so-called skilled labor. If a man has a couple of sons over 14 or so he never goes to the fields at all. Instead, he grinds the wheat at home, works in his blacksmith shop and putters around the place until time for afternoon tea with the other "oldsters" of the village.

On the women, the same as in the homeland, falls the burden of the work. Not only must they raise large families, but must also raise all garden produce necessary for the family table. They bake their own bread, feed and tend flocks of geese and ducks, milk the family cows and goats, make cheese, butcher the family meat supply and tan leather for the family boots.

Until a few years ago the women wove homespun cloth on hand looms after washing, combing and spinning raw wool. They also made the felt boots worn by the entire family. In recent years the men have discovered that clothing can be purchased cheaply in Ensenada and Tijuana and this frees the women for labor in the fields.

The sect is very religious and in the early days all the Russian rites were strictly adhered to. The life of the village revolved around the church; smoking, drinking (hard liquor) and dancing were forbidden. The Malakans continued to wear Russian clothing and retained the ancient costumes of their homelands.

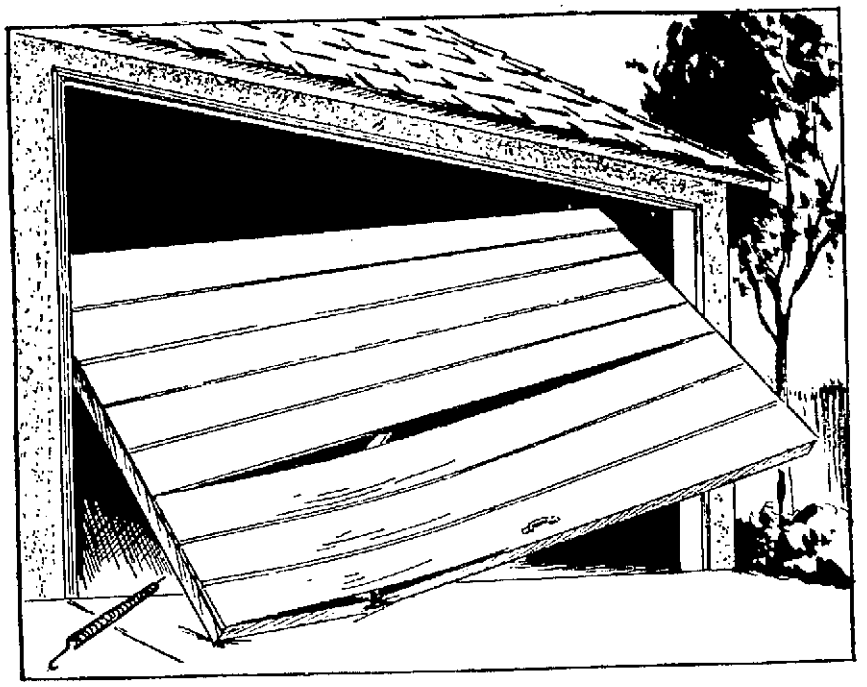

Old maids and bachelors do not exist for the families arrange early marriages for all children between the ages of 14 and 20. In accordance with a centuries-old custom, the boy and girl have to be of the same age. Inter-marriage with the Mexicans was strictly forbidden.

In 1930, Jack Dempsey built a large resort hotel and gambling casino at Ensenada and a white Russian, Daniel for short, was hired to decorate it. When Daniel heard of the Russian Colony at Guadalupe, he immediately decided that it was his duty to tell them of the important things that had happened since they left Russia.

Russian-inscribed grave marker in Guadalupe Valley: may be symbolic of colony's gradual decline.

Moices Michicolf is 20, married. His father, still living, came over with the original group in 1905.

Daniel rode to the village to tell them the great news. As he was the first Russian to visit Guadalupe since its founding in 1905, the elders were greatly impressed and called a village meeting to hear his words.

They listened in complete silence as Daniel told them his great news. When Daniel finished the village patriarch rose slowly with the "Book of Wisdom" in his hands. He declared that the Book, their Bible and the only book permitted in the village, describes the Czar as the enemy of all mankind, but did not say anything about his overthrow or death. The village immediately decided that Daniel was a tax collector sent by the Czar to spy them out, and he was lucky to escape with his life from the aroused villagers.

As the old folks died and were buried in the small village cemetery the younger generation came into its own.

Only 27 families remain in the village and their numbers grow fewer and fewer. In another half century it is doubtful if this bit of Russia in old Mexico will still exist.

Teatime for Two - - or 200

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

A FIRE DEPARTMENT expends as much energy going to a false alarm as it does to a real fire, and how very much like fire departments we humans are. We love to invite friends to our homes, then spend so much time and energy rounding up "the soup to nuts" that we're plumb tuckered out by the time they arrive.

One of the simplest forms of entertainment, and one which has the least chance of turning into just a false alarm as far as gracious hospitality goes, is a tea. You can't go wrong with a tea party, whether it be for two or 200.

Our hostess today, Mrs. Milton Katz, 1041 Tehachapi Dr., is a hostess in every sense of the word.

At her tea today, she is serving Tiny Cream Puffs, Miniature Chocolate Eclairs and Appetizers. She uses cream puff mixture as the base for all three, so that is the featured recipe of the day, to be found elsewhere on this page.

Gracious hostess is Mrs. Milton Katz, whose teas are famed for good things to eat. See cooking article.

Mrs. Katz's Cream Puff Mixture:

½ cup butter
1 cup water
1 cup bread flour
3 eggs (unbeaten)

Add butter to water in saucepan. When butter is melted add flour (all at once) and stir vigorously until mixture no longer sticks to sides of pan. Remove from stove, cool slightly, add eggs one at a time, beating after each egg is added. Drop mixture from teaspoon or squeeze through pastry tube, some distance apart, on buttered tins, in 1 to 1½-inch balls. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 325° F. and bake about 10 minutes longer. Remove from baking sheet and cool. Cut one side, fill with custard or whipped cream. Dip tops in a variety of colored and flavored frostings.

Make a plain icing, as a foundation, but use no flavor. Take a small portion at a time, flavor and color as desired with fruit, coffee, lemon, orange and chocolate. Let stand until dry.

Custard Filling

1 cup scalded milk
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 yolks of eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla

Mix cornstarch and sugar, add hot milk and pour gradually on the eggs, slightly beaten. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened. Cool and flavor with vanilla.

Whipped Cream Filling

2 tablespoons powdered sugar
1 cup heavy cream
½ teaspoon vanilla

Have cream ice cold, beat until stiff, add sugar gradually and vanilla and continue beating until firm.

Plain Icing

1 cup powdered sugar
2 tablespoons hot water (milk or cream)

Stir liquid into sifted sugar, a little at a time. The icing is of the proper consistency when it coats the spoon.

Miniature Chocolate Eclairs

Squeeze Cream Puff Mixture through pastry tube some distance apart on buttered tins in oblong shapes, 4x1½ inches. When baked and cooled, open at one side and fill with custard filling. Dip in chocolate frosting. Let stand until dry.

Chocolate Frosting

1¾ cups powdered sugar
1 ounce chocolate (shaved)
6 tablespoons boiling water
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

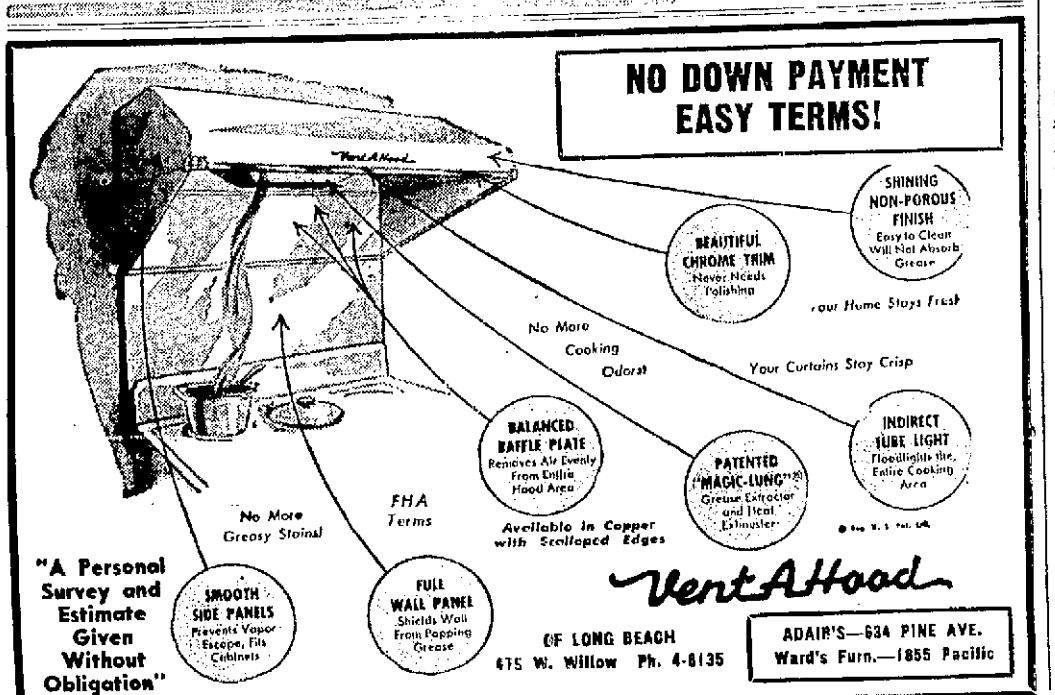

Melt chocolate over hot water, add boiling water and stir until smooth; add vanilla and stir in sifted sugar, stirring until mixture is smooth. Spread.

Appetizer

When Cream Puff Mixture has been baked and cooled, fill with chicken, seafood salad or well seasoned sandwich spread (omit frostings).

Kitchen Tip:

Mrs. Katz' Kitchen Tip: To cream sugar and butter easily, warm the sugar slightly.

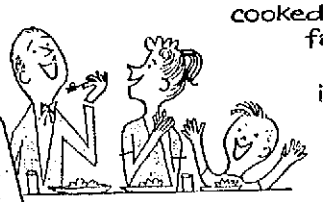

smart wives use Adolph's every time they cook meat!

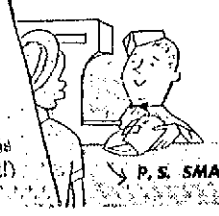

ADOLPH'S makes any meat extra tender — all kinds, all cuts, all grades!

1. With Adolph's you can serve more meat more often-cooked the way your family likes it-without increasing your food budget.

2. Adolph's reduces cooking time up to one-third and cuts meat shrinkage too. It locks in nourishing juices and healthful vitamins.

3. So easy to use - every time! Simply sprinkle Adolph's on all meat surfaces, pierce all sides generously with a fork and let stand at room temperature at least ½ hour for each ½ inch thickness of meat before cooking.

4. Adolph's is a 100% natural food product. It is available at your grocers in the condiment or spice section.

here's how smart wives serve steak often!

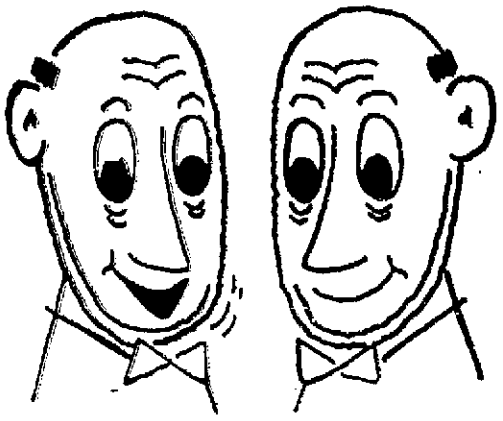

Select an inexpensive round or chuck steak 1½" thick. Slash fat edges to prevent curling. Sprinkle both sides evenly with Adolph's, using at least ½ tsp. per lb. of meat. Pierce both sides at intervals of 1 inch with fork. Leave at room temperature for 1½ hours. Place in broiler 3" from heat surface and broil 8 min. on each side for rare, 10 min. on each side for medium or 12 min. on each side for well done. Pick up Adolph's other FREE RECIPES at your favorite food store.

Giant old palms give the L. A. Mayes' home in Los Cerritos an air of permanence although the house is new.

Dining room windows, curtained in rose boucle, overlook front lawn. Walls are papered in unusual grass cloth.

By Eileen Ball

"THE SHOEMAKER'S CHILDREN always go barefoot," so the saying goes. This is to imply, also, that the baker's children go without bread and the builder's family goes without a house.

The L. A. Mayes prove that the old saying doesn't hold. Last September they moved into a new home built by Mr. Mayes at 3860 Pacific Ave.

Redwood board and batten siding painted a rich coffee tone combines with used brick and shake roofing to present a gracious exterior to the 2100-square-foot building.

A WALK lighted by a coach lamp leads to the small front porch capped with used brick. A door with tiny window panes in its topmost panels opens to callers and admits them to the entry hall.

Cocoa-rose carpet stretches from the entry into the living room, the dining room to the left and down the hallway to the right. This unbroken expanse of a single color fabric increases the feeling of restful spaciousness.

The living room fireplace of common brick is situated in a way that its sturdy masonry back turns itself to the entry. Forming a sort of free-standing wall, it provides an immediate focal point of interest.

A step to the left takes one around the fireplace side and on into the living room. Added textural interest is created in here with the use of vertical cherry paneling on one wall. Rich in color and surface finish, this deep-toned wood adds a charm that would be difficult to attain with any other material.

ALSO CRAFTED OF CHERRY are the bookshelves and cabinet unit that flank the fireplace to the left. The artistically turned cornice and the exact fashioning of the doors for the lower cupboards gives this built-in sectional all the finesse of a fine piece of case furniture. And as is true with any custom furnishing, it is possible to have one's exact desires met. The Mayes' elder son brought back with him from Europe an exquisite clock.

The entire back wall, adjoining the expansive terrace, is glass with enormous sliding panels that open for greater maneuverability of party guests. Socially active, Mrs. Mayes planned this feature to accommodate any overflow of guests as well as for the wonderful view of the back garden it affords.

Pastel rose-beige boucle draperies pull across the window wall to break glare and create a rosy overtone to the room without obliterating the view. Overdraperies are of deep chocolate cotton faille patterned with rose-to-creamy beige roses and blue iris. The same fabric was sculpture-quilted for the upholstery on the 12-foot curved sectional that spans half the width of the window wall.

Diamond-paned windows in the dining room overlook the front lawn. Draperies of rose boucle filter the west light over sedate Duncan Phyfe furnishings.

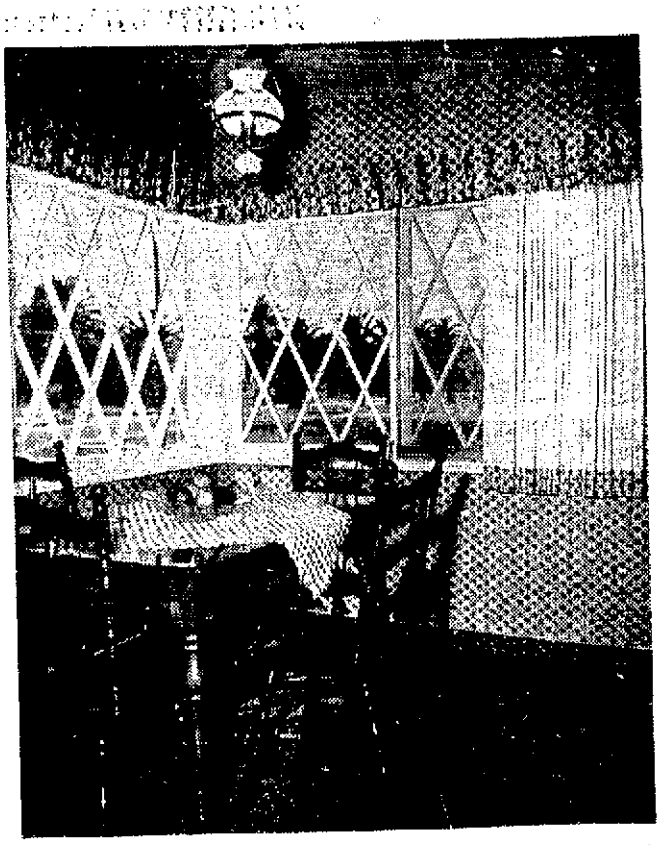

FURTHER TRADITIONAL ELEGANCE is lent by the hanging chandelier of cut crystal and the large beveled plate mirror over the buffet. The walls are papered in a contemporary fabric — peach Japanese grass cloth.

Again, in view of the amount of entertaining the house must accommodate, the dining room is made more functional with a pass-through in the butler's pantry just next to the kitchen. Here, on a level with a serving surface created by an under-counter storage unit; small sliding doors may be opened to the dining room. A hidden buffet is thereby established upon which dessert may be arranged before dinner, out of sight of guests yet ready for serving.

An abundance of exquisitely crafted red birch cabinets high light the kitchen-dinette and give the area the sort of "living room" beauty that usually comes with the inclusion of fine furniture.

The hardware of the built-ins is of hammered copper, which is reflected on a scalloped copper

TELEVISION

They Visit the 'City at Night'

By John Frederick
Press-Telegram Radio-TV Columnist

THE GREATEST mystery about KTLA's "City at Night" each Thursday night isn't "where will it originate?" but rather, "why don't they announce where it will be?" The show has a great deal to offer in education and entertainment but as long as it is not known where the program originates, not enough people tune in.

The show itself is the brain child of Klaus Landsberg, vice president and general manager of Paramount Television Productions, Inc., operators of KTLA. He put the first one on the air at the General Service movie studios where sets for "Destination Moon" were viewed and explained.

Ken Graue, a former Long Beach resident, is the host-narrator-emcee and jack-of-all-trades. He has visited and explained a different locale or situation each week ever since.

Long Beach has been a popular port of call for "City at Night" and on July 12, 1950, the show originated in our harbor as the U. S. Marines embarked for duty in Korea. Other local shows have been the landing of Marines on Dec. 6, 1950, the arrival of the SS Caronia on Jan. 10, 1951, the Globe Trotters basketball game from the Auditorium on Jan. 31, the Atomic Energy Exhibit on July 18 and Roller Derby from the Stadium on August 22, the Water Ski Festival Aug. 19, 1953; Long Beach Harbor on Jan. 28, 1954, and this year the Jan. 6 "Operation Rainbow" and on March 8 the new fire boat in L. B. Harbor.

DURING THE YEARS of "City at Night," the show has picked up two "Emmy" awards in the Public Service classification from the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences as well as honors from many P-T.A., service club and university groups.

Graue, who attended Long Beach City College from 1939 to 1941, was the male lead in the college's play opposite Barbara Britton. Miss Britton has reached the heights of moviedom

St. Catherine's Boys Win a War

By Vera Williams

ANAHEIM.

FOR 65 YEARS St. Catherine's has stood behind its wide apron of green lawn on Palm Street in Anaheim. Three generations of boys have come and gone. The great gray buildings have been silent witnesses to their trials and victories.

Now new honors are coming to St. Catherine's. The military school is the locale of "The Private War of Major Benson," Universal-International's epic in color, due to be released in two or three months. Charles Heston and Julie Adams star—but the boys of St. Catherine's march and play in it.

Today, St. Catherine's Military School, 215 N. Palm St., Anaheim, has its annual fiesta and barbecue, from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m., open to the public. Proceeds will go to the Father Maguire Memorial Chapel Fund, from which it is hoped eventually to build a chapel to the memory of Father William A. Maguire, for 30 years a Navy chaplain — the famed chaplain of Pearl Harbor Day — who after his retirement served as chaplain to boy cadets at St. Catherine's until his death in 1953.

FATHER MAGUIRE was credited with saying "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition"—although he always denied it.

Red Skelton, Jerry Colonna, the Modernaires, Bob Crosby and his orchestra, Vince Barnett and the Mulcays are slated to entertain at today's fiesta. Stage shows featuring Hollywood personalities are slated for 1, 3, 5 and 7 p. m. with Bob Crosby master of ceremonies. Crosby's son is a fifth grader at St. Catherine's.

Events of the day include: 2 p. m. concert by the U. S. Marine Corps band from El Toro; 3 p. m., fashion show; 4 p. m., talk by Col. Francis Gabreski, USAF, who holds the Congressional Medal of Honor; 5 p. m., retreat parade and drill, directed by Maj. Gen. C. H. Schilt, USMC, another Congressional Medal of Honor man; 6:30 p. m., Hollywood show, Vince Barnett, emcee. Cash and prizes totaling $2,500 will be awarded. A fiesta barbecue dinner will be served from 1 to 5 p. m.

IN 1888, Rev. Father Stoeter, rector of St. Boniface Church in Anaheim, asked Mother Pia, superior general of the Sisters of St. Dominic in Mission San Jose, to open an academy in Anaheim. A three-acre tract was bought.

With Mother Amanda as superior, Sisters Vincentia, Emilia and Catherine went to Anaheim in 1889. The academy was dedicated by the Most Rev. Francis Mora, bishop of Los Angeles. Boys and girls, boarders and day students, were accommodated.

FIVE YEARS LATER, the Most Rev. James Montgomery, bishop of Los Angeles, appealed to St. Catherine's to accept orphans. Twenty-one little waifs were accepted from the Sisters of Charity in Los Angeles. In the next 19 years, St. Catherine's expanded to cover 26 acres.

When orphans were placed in private homes, St. Catherine's again opened its doors as a boys' boarding school. In 1923, the military aspect became prominent and, in 1925, His Excellency John J. Cantwell, archbishop of Los Angeles, officially approved St. Catherine's Military School.

TO ITS CADETS, St. Catherine's flashes the words of Cardinal Gibbons: "If your character is above reproach, you will win the battle of life."

"The Private War of Major Benson," in which many of St. Catherine's lads expect to see themselves as actors, tells the heartwarming story of Maj. Bernard R. (Barney) Benson (Charlton Heston), soldier of the old school who finds himself training cadets in a military school run by nuns. Dr. Kay Lambert (Julie Adams), just out of medical school, is the resident physician. There is a love interest, of course, and after quite a few vicissitudes, military-wise and otherwise, it all ends happily. The cast includes William Demarest, Tim Considine, Sal Mineo, Nana Bryant, Milburn Stone, Mary Field, Tim Hovey, Donald Keeler, Don Haggerty, Yvonne Peattie, Mary Alan Hokanson, Edward C. Platt, Kay Stewart — and the boys of St. Catherine's.

St. Catherine's School, Anaheim, wins new fame in movie, "The Private War of Major Benson." Here, Charlton Heston huddles with the football players.

Former Long Beach resident, Ken Graue, is emcee of popular "City at Night," Thursday evening show on KTLA.

City at Night

and now TV ("Mrs. North" of the "Mr. and Mrs. North" series) but as Ken says, "I just wasn't discovered."

Ken joined the Marine Corps and went overseas during the war and came out of the service as a first lieutenant in December, 1945. He married a girl from Stockton's College of the Pacific and they headed for a honeymoon in Hawaii. This lasted for three years as Ken went to work as an announcer on KGMB and later KPOA in Honolulu. Their son, Denny, now 7, was born in the islands.

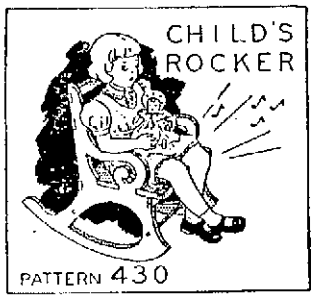

The Graues have another son, Mark, age 16 months, and they live in South Pasadena. Ken and Lucy have virtually built the entire house, including the swimming pool, from his own designs. A neighbor has aided in the project and Ken says, "We've really got a livable house designed just the way we wanted it."

This being emcee of "City at Night" isn't all it is cracked up to be. Take for instance the night he was concluding the show alongside a swimming pool where an aquashow had been staged. Just as he was ready to say his final good-bye, someone gave him a shove and, fully clothed, into the pool he went.

"Klaus Landsberg is always looking for a unique way to conclude these shows," said Ken. "This time he thought a dunking would be very funny. Well, it was to the viewers, but not to me. If I had expected it that would have been different, but I appreciate the idea and now am on guard for fear some night I'll be at a cannery and wind up as part of a sardine shipment."

Besides his regular weekly "City at Night," from which he has never had a vacation (he dashes back to do the show even during his annual leave) he has 16 shows per week . . . just about all a man can normally handle.

You Make It

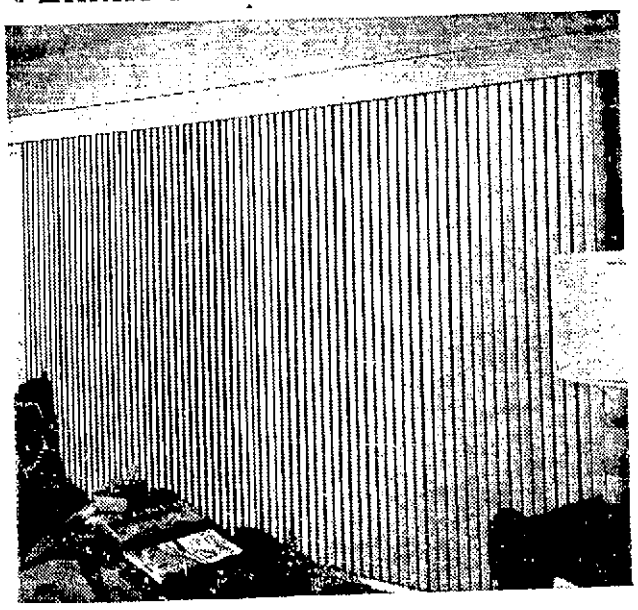

This roomy rocker will please most any little boy or girl. While the lines are rather quaint, the sides and seat are each cut out from modern plywood in a single piece. The assembly is quick and easy with cross pieces of solid stock. An attractive feature that may be added to this chair is the pendulum type musical movement that plays 18 notes of "Rock-a-bye Baby." These movements sell for about $3.50 at hobby supply stores. The saw lines are traced from the pattern to the wood. Everything is complete on pattern 430, which may be ordered from the address below for 25 cents. Send orders to: Pattern Dept., Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, Bedford Hills, N. Y.

Animals

Perkins, director of the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago, has installed glazed partitions between the public and the monkeys, and, except for those who have outside cages, this is not only adequate protection for the monkeys, but it also prevents them from contracting diseases, such as common colds.

In most instances, it is not peanuts that cause the most trouble but undigestible articles such as nails, razor blades, broken glass, paper clips, rubber balls, rocks and even lighted cigars and cigarettes. Perkins reported that all of these items were found in the cages at his zoo.

The Chicago zoo had a female elephant that would eat practically anything. When she died pieces of coal and bottle caps were found in her stomach.

C. N. BALDWIN, director of the San Francisco Zoological Gardens, said that his zoo forbids feeding of only the giraffe and chimpanzees. He has observed that the western zoos allow visitors to feed the animals, whereas eastern zoos, as a rule, prohibit this practice. Nevertheless, one to three animals die each year at the San Francisco Zoo from overfeeding by the public.

Feeding of animals requires accurate zoological and dietary knowledge which the zoo visitor does not have. Animals, like human beings, are fussy when it comes to food and how it is served.

Every animal in a well-kept zoo has a feeding chart — a record of the foods consumed by an individual animal for a given week.

So—the next time you go to the zoo, don't feed the animals!

side, stretched tight and tacked to outside surfaces of chair supports.

SO THAT TACKS will not show in the finished chair, the final cover of the outside arms and outside back are blindtacked at the top of the arms and back. To blindtack, let the material drape over the top of the arm or back with reverse side showing. Place a cardboard strip about one-half inch wide over the top edge of the fabric at the top of the arm (or back) where the fabric should be attached. Tack through the cardboard, then stretch the fabric down over the cardboard strip and tack bottom edge of fabric under the seat rails.

After each section has been covered with your wool fabric, finishing touches will be to cover seams at the front of the arms and along the sides of the back with the welts which you ordered from an upholsterer or made yourself. Black cambric is stretched across the bottom of the seat and tacked and then the skirt is attached.

Copies of a pamphlet, "How to Re-Upholster a Chair," are available without cost from The Wool Bureau, Inc., 16 W. 46th St., New York 36, N. Y. Step-by-step details are contained in this publication.)

Trouble Ripe for Violence

IN SCOTLAND, Flora MacDonald was a heroine who saved the life of Bonnie Prince Charlie when he had been hunted by British soldiers. In "The Scotswoman," by Inglis Fletcher (Bobbs-Merrill, $3.95) the removal of Flora, her family and compatriots, to America is begun. The Scots had much to do with the settlement of North Carolina, and when the MacDonalds arrived, trouble was ripe for violence with the British, the old enemies of the fighting Scots. Still, Allan MacDonald took the Tory oath and fought against the Colonial forces bent upon liberty. For a time Flora remained aloof from politics, until the choice lay between speaking up for the king, or denying her husband.

This is a rich and exciting novel, filled with characters of conflicting ideals and ideas. But it is still difficult for the mass of American readers to accept the Tory as a Revolutionary War hero, even though Mrs. Fletcher has given the best of her art to it.—G. L.

REMINISCENT of California's romantic Gold Rush days is "The Girl from Frisco," a lively novel by William Neuman (Morrow, $3). Except part of it concerns not gold but silver, which has been mined only in negligible quantities in the Golden State.

A man and a woman, the latter of dubious reputation, riding into the mining town of Kincaid on a Concord, inherit the stage line before their ride ends. How they make the line pay despite shenanigans of an unknown person out to ruin them make up the book. But no one is fooled for a minute as to the identity of the villain, except possibly the new owners of the stage line.—F. T. K.

IRIS HOLIDAY, beautiful daughter of a musical comedy star, has man trouble all the way in "The Four Fates," novel by Margaret Mackay (John Day, $4.50). After a severe case of puppy love, she has an unrequited marriage and then an extremely requited affair. This dissolves into a lusty marriage and is followed by a begatting spree in marriage No. 3. Iris just couldn't say "No," but this reviewer can.—G. C. F.

RUDYARD KIPLING once wrote, "I do not assert that it is impossible to hold intelligent conversation without the help of an atlas. But I do say that as soon as men begin to talk about anything interesting that really matters, someone has to get an atlas."

Well, Kipling would have been delighted with the beautiful new "Hammond's Ambassador World Atlas" (C. S. Hammond & Co., $12.50), one of the most comprehensive books of its kind published in recent years for office, home or school. It contains 416 pages, with 326 maps of which 241 are in full color, with a four-foot by three-foot wall map. In addition to detailed maps of every country and geographical area, state and province maps, vital distribution maps, resource-relief maps, there are also maps of human and physical geography, stratosphere maps and air age and polar maps. And, as if that were not enough, the gazeteer section contains more than 100,000 entries with pictures and 2,500 paragraphs describing the world's principal cities. Somewhere in it would have been the answers to all of Kipling's questions.—F. T. K.

BETTY BRIDGMAN'S "Lullaby For Eggs" (Macmillan, $1.75) — Dear Mrs. Bridgman: Your beautiful blue book, with Elizabeth Orton Jones' perfect pictures on every page, your immaculate phrases facing her colorful art, is before me; and I must confess that I was green with envy when I first read your "Lullaby For Eggs" in The Christian Science Monitor; and later I turned a violent green when I read that Macmillan had paid you $400 for these fourteen lines. Written for adults, your work is now claimed by children; and I thank you for shrinking me and chopping 33 years off my age, making me 10 again. Truly, "Lullaby For Eggs" is the most enchanting book of the year — for child or for adult. Yours sincerely and gratefully, JOSEPH JOEL KEITH.

AN ARTIST whose work is now exhibited in more than 30 of the nation's finest museums and has won two Guggenheim Fellowships, discusses his techniques in "Water Color, Gouache, and Casein Painting" (Studio-Crowell, $5.95). Adolf Dehn attempts to engender in the reader-artist the combination of passion and patience which, he says, every artist should possess. And he discusses for beginners his step-by-step methods in language that anyone can understand. Because Dehn is noted as a teacher, his methods should prove invigorating for advanced students, too.—F. T. K.

ALEUTIAN CHILDREN were amazed that American women were "dead chickens" on their hats; when their Christmas dolls broke, they carried in their arms "stone babies," smooth stones wrapped in blankets. And when the children prayed, "Give us this day our daily bread," they said "gingerbread," instead, because gingerbread meant a party. This insight into life much different from our own is given by Mary E. Winchell in "Where the Wind Blows Free" (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $4) about her experiences as the matron in a mission orphanage at Unalaska. The book has unobtrusive humor, pathos and great kindness. — V. W.

NEW PAPERBACKS you'll like: "Revolt in 2100," excitement in the U. S. A. of tomorrow, by Robert A. Heinlein (Signet, $.25); "What, When, Where and How to Drink," a first-time-published manual on party giving with more than 250 recipes, by Richard L. Williams and David Myers (Dell First Edition, $.25); "Too Near the Sun," a novel of passions by Gordon Forbes (Dell First Edition, $.35); "Woman of the Avalon," novel of the New Mexico territory by L. L. Foreman (Dell First Edition, $.25); "Fort Sun Dance," an outpost against the Sioux, by Manly Wade Wellman (Dell First Edition, $.25); "The Schirmer Inheritance," deadly intrigue by Eric Ambler (Bantam, $.25); "Of Mice and Men," by John Steinbeck (Bantam, $.35).

RESORTS AND TRAVEL

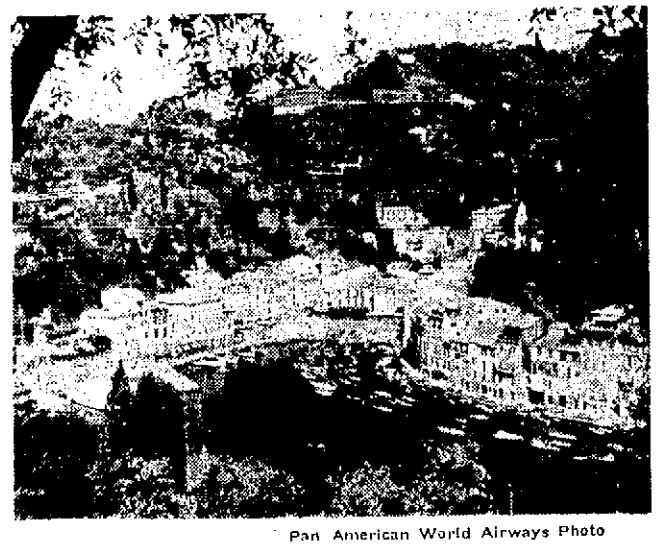

Italy Boasts of Two Rivieras

FROM Genoa, Italy's busy northern seaport as a gateway, tourists may take in the whole, wide sweep of the Italian Riviera with its fun, flowers and sunshine, at much lower prices than are current along France's better-known adjacent strip of Mediterranean real estate.

Actually, Italy boasts not one Riviera but two—the Riviera di Ponente which stretches from the French border to Genoa, and the Riviera di Levante which stretches all the way down from Genoa to La Spezia. So completely linked together are the little seaside resort towns bordering on the deep blue Mediterranean coastline that it's hard to tell where one ends and another begins.

Along the coastal highway, which the ancient Romans called the Via Aurelia, are places like Ventimiglia, Bordighera and Ospedaletti, all bathed in warm sunshine and dotted with umbrella-shaded cafes and restaurants open for business all year round, even in December. Flowers abound everywhere and perfume from the exotic flowers is shipped out in large quantities throughout the world. Good hotels are available at low rates, and private villas are readily available.

"Can you suggest what I should wear on an eight-day freighter trip to the Panama Canal Zone? Sports clothes according to the company pamphlets . . ."

WELL, make them OLD sports clothes if this is an American freighter. I think shorts, old slacks and jeans are best. The problem with American freighters is dirt. They blow the stacks every few days and you are sitting in soot.

The deck hands' union seems to have taken away certain work rights — such as inside ship painting — from other unions. This was to keep the deck hands in plenty of overtime pay. The only trouble is, the deck hands don't always want to work overtime. There, decks don't get washed down every day.

"Do we need birth certificates for Mexico? Where do we change American dollars into pesos. Should we secure a book on Spanish conversational speech?

If there is no question of your birth in the United States (by accent, for instance), you don't need the birth certificate. The border immigration officers just ask you where you were born when you come back.

You need a Mexican tourist permit from a Mexican consul. You are supposed to bring proof of citizenship.

Change your pesos in a Mexican bank when you cross the border. Those highway hotels take a big bite for themselves when they change dollars. I think a Spanish phrase book is a big help.

Try a Trick or Two!

By the Shutterbug

MAY EVENINGS SEEM to us to be the ideal time for trying something new and different, for experimenting and finding new interests. And today we've got a suggestion to pass along -- trick photography.

Don't think for a minute that trick photography's something for the experts — the box camera crowd can have their fun with it, too. As a matter of fact, much of trick picture taking is merely a matter of making mistakes on purpose.

One of the easiest and most effective varieties of trick photography is based on that familiar snapshooting gremlin, the double exposure. Most of us know all too well how to do this when we don't want to, but now we'll tell you how to do it for fun.

First of all, you have to put your camera on a tripod or other solid support, because these have to be time exposures. Camera movement would spoil the trick in this case.

To take a picture like the one we've used to illustrate today's column, set up your table where you can have a plain dark background. One way to achieve this is to put it in front of a door which is opened into a darkened room. Place your subject in the first position. Snap the picture. Then, without winding the film, move her to the next position and snap another picture, and so on, if you want her in the picture a third time. Be careful not to move the table. It has to be in the same position for each exposure.

"WESTERN AUTUMN" by Warren Nash won first place in Cinema Club's recent "Film to Fit a Record" contest. Other entries were "Autumn Leaves," Ren Fiuke; "Sandpiper Ballet," Lewis Underwood; "Ebb Tide," Bob Ferris. Kyle Holmes showed "The Great White Throne," also fitted to a record, but not in the contest. The next meeting of the Cinema Club will be at 8 p. m. May 19 in Houghton Park clubhouse.

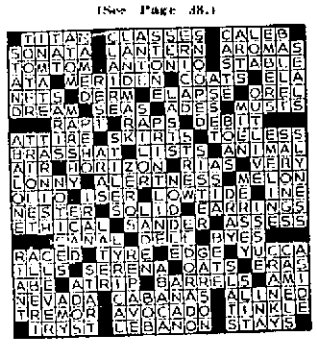

LOUELLA SHODEN, 824 Hoffman Ave. comments that last Sunday she read in the Southland a story about making a record of Long Beach with still pictures. "I am having the time of my life making a movie of Long Beach," she says.

Her suggestions: "The wide sweep of the shore with gay umbrellas, ships at their moorings, beautiful streets, flowering trees and exotic flowers all are here. . . . Use a tripod. This is the first requisite for good steady movies. Second, use an exposure meter. Discard all shots you feel are not up to the best you can do, take re-takes if necessary and then assemble your scenes in the best possible order."

CAMERA GUILD will have a color slide competition at 8 p. m. May 18 in the Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

GARDENS

Transplants Fill a Garden Bill

Soil should be firmed thoroughly about the roots of a seedling after it has been set into place in the garden.

By Bob Gilmore

MAY IS THE MONTH of rising temperatures, a time when plants grow with increased vigor, many varieties breaking into bloom almost over-night. This is an excellent month for planting established seedlings. Both annuals and perennials are available with dozens of varieties now on display at garden supply dealers.

The seedlings are usually offered in regulation nursery flats which contain 100 individual plants. If they're on display you may be sure it's the correct planting time. Those transplants may start to bloom just a short time after being planted.

The soil should be prepared before bringing the plants home from the nursery as they should be planted immediately. The roots must not dry out or the sensitive seedlings may suffer a serious set-back. It is advisable to incorporate liberal quantities of American peat with the soil. American peat is clean, easy to use and economical. Just three per cent of it mixed with the soil will increase productivity. The material is especially valuable during the summer season for it absorbs up to 600 times its own weight in water.

ASTER SEEDLINGS take hold rapidly at this time of the year. These fast growing annuals have been a popular choice in hundreds of local gardens for many years. Practically all varieties are now wilt-resistant so you need not worry about losing the mature plants to this dread disease. The Crego or ostrich feather asters are excellent for this locality.

Fill your summer garden with petunias and you'll have blooms for months at a time. Few plants are as persistent in their blooming habits as the ever-popular petunia.

The way to accomplish this garden magic is to prune the plants back rather sharply next fall. You'll be amazed at how bushy they'll become during the winter months. The Ruffled Giants and Dwarf Giants of California are exceptional. The latter perhaps being your best bet for pot culture and window boxes.

Nor should you forget the single bedding petunias which have a tremendous capacity for flower production.

MARIGOLDS are another powerful plant for summer flower production. Some varieties are tremendous in size such as marigold giguntea which grows to three feet and bears flowers from five to six inches in diameter. For the smaller garden site try the Double Dwarf Harmony hybrids, a variety that usually keeps under one foot in height and produces flowers just about two inches across.

Other varieties of seedling plants now available include: Phlox, zinnias, verbenas, delphinium, portulaca, begonia, painted daisy, vinca and carnation. These are the transplants that easily may be moved from the nursery into your own garden.

Forming a basin around a transplant holds water around roots, assures seepage into root zone.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . More and more plants are now breaking into bloom. Which means that you should start a wholesale flower cutting program. Use a sharp cutting edge and cut at an angle rather than straight across. As soon as the blooms have been cut place them in a deep container filled with cold water.

The warm weather will also prove encouraging to all sorts of garden pests. Ants especially will now be on the move. Unfortunately, they may move into your home unless the proper controls are established.

Get your watering equipment in good condition for your plants are going to do a lot more drinking during the next few months. When you water your lawn don't sprinkle it for just a few minutes. It will require a thorough soaking.

Don't Delay Rose Care

Jiminy Cricket is a pert floribunda that pays top dividends for growers who follow a few rules.

By Walter Finch

ROSE CARE is not difficult. If your spring program is carried out on a regular basis, you can expect good results.

According to All-America Rose Selections, the country's leading association of growers, most of the people who complain of trouble in the garden bring it on themselves.

"At this time of the year, garden jobs cannot be put off," says Sidney B. Hutton, AARS, president. "Delay of a week can make molehills into mountains and once behind, it's very difficult to catch up. Yet, spectacular results with today's improved roses can be achieved so easily with a simple, regular program. This is one of the few fields where a beginner can look like a professional in the first year by following a few rules."

Good plants are an important first step. Leading growers recommend the famous All-America varieties which are thoroughly tested for two years before their introduction to the market.

When growth is under way and leaves are forming — fertilizer should be worked into the soil. There are many excellent all-purpose fertilizers on the market, and a heaping tablespoon for each plant will furnish plenty of nourishment. Follow this with a thorough soaking of the ground to carry the food to the roots. The next feeding should follow the first blooming, and the third should be put down early in August.

LIGHT CULTIVATION or an effective mulch will keep weeds under control. Remember one note of caution in connection with cultivation: Do not penetrate too deeply. Roses throw out a network of hairlike roots quite near the ground surface, and these are easily damaged by the over-zealous gardener.

Damage from fungus diseases and pests can be held to a minimum by starting a regular feeding and spraying program now. Dust or spray every 10 days and after each rain. Take care to cover both sides of the foliage for complete protection.

Fuchsias, because they seem to help gardeners along, are popular with all who give them space.

Fuchsias: Happy Gardening Choice

By A. C. MacLeod

FUCHSIAS are a gardening delight to beginning and advanced gardeners both, for they literally seem to help the grower along.

The flowering shrubs are named for a 16th Century German professor, Leonard Fuchs, who was a leading herbalist and worked hard to establish a method of botanical terminology. The fuchsia is native to Central and South America, Mexico and the West Indies. These geographical areas will readily indicate the type of growing conditions the fuchsia needs: Humidity, partial shade, moisture and lots of food.

In California these conditions are best met along the coast; although, as a contradiction to this, some varieties of fuchsias do very well in the interior valleys of the state. The proper varieties must be selected for culture in the valleys and should be given protection, a lath or the overhanging branches of a large tree.

FUCHSIAS may be planted as upright shrubs, against trellises, trailing in a rock garden or over a sloping area, in hanging baskets, or climbing. For the ideal fuchsia-growing area, the coastal locales, try Blue Flame (violet, blue and rose) or Mauve Beauty (lilac, rose and red) as your bush varieties. In the interior areas of the state some good bush selections are California (orange-red and coral) and Guinevere (orchid-blue and white).

Grown against trellises Lucky Strike (blue, rose and pink) and Patty Evans (white, pink and rose) are excellent. Trailing fuchsias can be used well in rock gardens, over walls and in hilly areas. Some good choices among these are Amapola (orchid-rose and rose) and Muriel (rosy lilac and scarlet) . . . both fine for the coast. For the warmer interior valleys Falling Stars (turkey-red and scarlet) and Swingtime (white and red) satisfy.

If basket fuchsias are your delight, Dr. John Gallway (white and red) and Pan America (light pink and red) are good.

Culture-wise, fuchsias require good drainage in a soil that is rich in humus and on the acid side. Because they are fast-growing and perpetually blooming they need a constant supply of moisture for the roots and will also appreciate overhead sprinklings daily. A mulch of Tomatoes like these and other vegetables can be grown in your own garden, with resulting economy, pleasure.

Grow Your Own--Garden Fresh!

By John Ronson

THERE are few gardening experiences that rival the rewards, in self-satisfaction and actual worth, of a well cared for vegetable garden. Many such plants can be grown from seed in your own yard.

Some of the summer vegetables require a longer growing period and also more initial care than others. It is usually more economical to purchase such plants as transplants from your local garden supply centers.

The vegetable plants in this category are tomatoes, peppers, egg plant and celery. In addition are lettuce and members of the cabbage family, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage and cauliflower, which are also available in most areas.

Tomatoes should be placed deeper in the ground than the plants were in the flat. Plant two feet apart and allow three feet between rows. Irrigate the plants well in trenches between the rows. As the plants grow taller place four stakes around each plant and tie strips of cloth to these stakes to support the plant. Once the blooms appear care must be taken to water only when the plants begin to wilt or the fruit will not set.

Pepper plants should also be set deeper in the ground than they were in the flat. Irrigate in trenches and set plants 18 inches apart in rows and allow two feet between rows. Peppers are similar to tomatoes in that they should not be overwatered once the bloom sets or the fruit will not develop.

Egg plants have similar growth habits to peppers, but should be planted the same depth as they were in the flat. Space two feet apart in the row with three feet between rows.

CELERY, LETTUCE and all members of the cabbage family require continuous moisture with cultivation between irrigations in order to aerate the soil.

This group will not give the best results in an area that is too warm. Space celery 10 inches, lettuce 10 inches, cabbage 12 inches apart in rows with 18 to 24 inches between rows. Brussels sprouts and cauliflower should be spaced 18 inches apart in rows with two to three feet between rows.

The compliments you'll receive at the dinner table for having garden-fresh vegetables cannot be overstated. This reward for having luscious, homegrown vegetables more than justifies the small amount of time and effort spent.

Fuchsias Are a Happy Choice

peat or leaf mold will keep their toes cool.

IF THE SOIL is rich and there are no greedy neighbors, the fuchsia plant requires no extra food the first year. After that, apply fertilizer during the main growing and blooming season, always making sure the soil is moist beforehand and that water is given after the feeding.

Generally speaking, healthy fuchsias are relatively free of insects and diseases. If you have any trouble, the California Association of Nurserymen recommends that you use the same sprays on the fuchsias that you are using on your other garden plants. To protect against frost in the interior valleys of the state, pile a mound of coarse sand or peat against the main stems of the bushes. Or you can take up the nearly dormant plants bare-rooted and place them length-wise in a shallow trench and cover with sandy soil.

PET PARADE

Born to Be a Guardian

By Eleanor Avery Price

THE BULL-MASTIFF was evolved for the singular purpose of protecting the lives of the 19th century gamekeepers of the large estates and game preserves in England which were subject constantly to poaching. Poachers would almost inevitably try to shoot it out with the keepers in hopes of escaping rather than facing the punishment meted out by law if apprehended.

Any number of dog breeds were tried out as protectors to find one that would would remain silent yet alert, and one that was fearless and would attack on command yet not maul the intruder.

Among the dogs tried were the bulldog and the mastiff. The bulldog of that time was far different than the gentle pet bulldog of today, and he proved too ferocious and too small. The mastiff was not quite fast enough and not sufficiently aggressive. A crossing of the two breeds produced the perfect dog for the purpose for which he was wanted.

Candy Storm and faithful protector and pal, Buck.

For some time, the bull-mastiff remained a utilitarian dog, and the only steps away from the reason for his being were the contests in which a muzzled bull-mastiff was engaged against a man with a restricted size club. In no instance could a man hold his feet against a dog of proven worth.

Naturally the outstanding performers, both as protectors and as contestants, were used most frequently for breeding purposes, and this assured the survival of the fittest and produced the best conformed dogs. Eventually the breed drew the attention of dog fanciers in this country. He received AKC recognition in October 1933.

A DARK BRINDLE bull-mastiff, often called the keeper's night dog, was preferred during the early years of the breed's existence because he was not too visible. However, as the breed bounded upward in popularity, as was inevitable, a light fawn coloring with black muzzle and densely colored ears became as desirable. Today's bull-mastiff may be either brindle or fawn, with no white points on head or body.

Although born to protect, the bull-mastiff possesses a wonderfully even disposition and a great deal of affection for both children and adults. He has a good scenting ability, is sound, refined, and beautiful, and needs no mutilation to make him so. Although his coat is short, he can tolerate the harshest kind of weather. He is a healthy dog, needing only a minimum of care, and is not as expensive to keep as his size would suggest. The adult male weighs approximately 115 pounds, the female about 100 pounds.

In the picture with this article, Candy Storm, 5, poses with the family's bull-mastiff, Branch of Bullmast (Buck), age 3. Both Candy and Buck are members of the Murray Storm household, 3143 Iroquois Ave., Lakewood Plaza.

IRISH SETTERS will parade in their specialty show on June 4 at Lakewood Country Club. Some of the finest of this breed will be on hand.

BROOKSIDE PARK in Pasadena is the setting of the benched dog show and obedience trial of the Pasadena Kennel Club on Sunday, June 5. Entries must be received by Jack Bradshaw not later than midnight Monday, May 23 (telephone entries not accepted). Specialty shows at this event include shetland sheepdogs, beagles and Boston terriers.

KITTENS and most rabbits can be housebroken to a shallow pan or cookie sheet, the kittens using sand in the pan and the rabbits using newspaper. The pan for a rabbit should be slightly elevated at one end. Put pan where it is accessible and need not be moved except to be washed. Place the pet in the pan several times daily. Be especially patient with a rabbit.

THE "RUNT" of the litter will often catch up with her heartier brothers and sisters if fed a little orange juice daily and given cod liver oil mixed in the evening meal.

HOW TO Plan Built-in Storage for Every-Day Items in Home

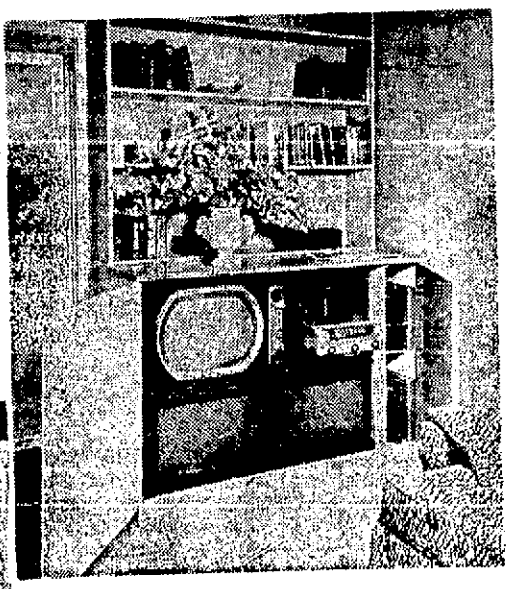

CAREFUL planning will put those things you use every day within easy reach when you want them —yet out of sight when they're not in use. Here are some examples of well-planned storage of those things you use frequently.

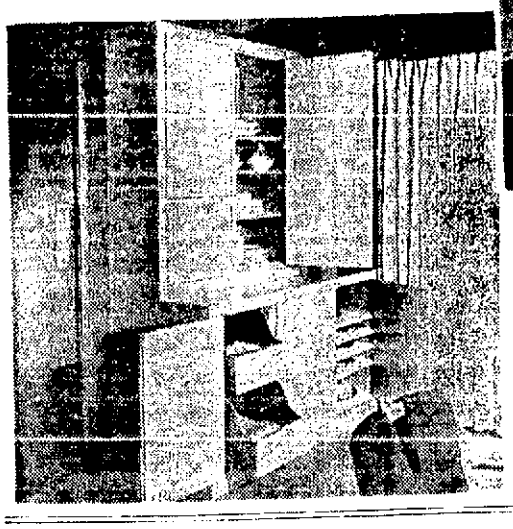

1. MANY MAJOR ITEMS can be tucked away within easy reach in a storage wall. This one, built on either side of a double door, makes it possible to use the room for televiewing, studying, or housing a guest.

2. A WRITING TABLE pulls from the left of the storage wall. Bottom shelves hold linens for guest sofa beds.

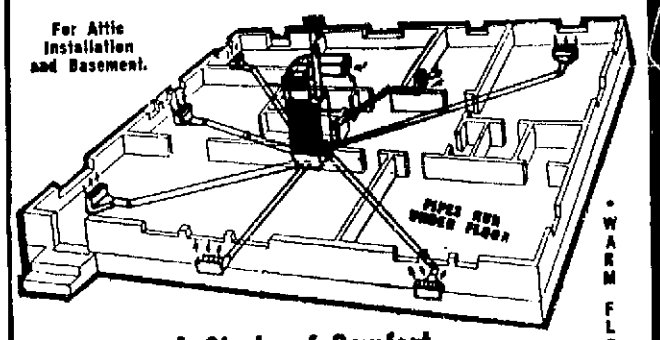

3. TELEVISION SET, radio, and record player are grouped together behind doors on right side of wall. For an evening of home entertainment, the family opens the doors and takes its choice.

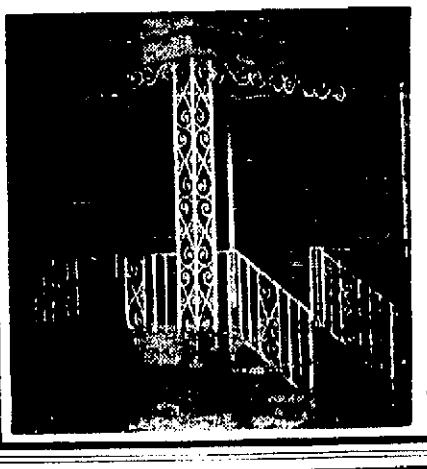

4. ANOTHER STORAGE wall near the dining area will take care of linens, "best" china, and silver. Sliding shelves (lower left) are covered with quilted plastic to protect fragile platters.

They Scalped Indians

Californians returned with their wounded and dead.

On one of his raids he left a party of 15 warriors at a spring where he knew his pursuers would stop to water their horses. Everything worked according to plan. After watering their horses, the Californians lay down for a short rest. The Utes attacked and the surviving Californians returned to San Bernardino on foot. The Utes had taken their horses.

American military forces came into the state and tried to cope with the problem. A company of the Mormon Battalion was stationed at Cajon Pass, the favorite route of the Indians into the desert. There were a number of forays and it was during one of these engagements that they learned of the California custom of paying for scalps. This law was repealed on the spot as far as these soldiers were concerned when they saw a Californian peel a scalp.

Wakera continued his raids right up to the outskirts of Los Angeles. Abel Stearns led one posse and recovered several hundred head of horses after killing ten warriors.

In 1851, the Mormons built a stockade around the city of San Bernardino. But the Indians kept up their attacks and raids.

The Ute raids tapered off in 1855 when Wakera died.

OTHER TRIBES were as active but not as fierce as the Utes. The Mojave and Paiutes got in their innings and rode off with thousands of head of stock leaving dead settlers and burning buildings behind them.

Some mining camps were closed down and no new relocations were allowed for weeks at a time. The miners had fled before the Indians.

One of the last and most sensational attacks occurred in 1866 when the owner of Rancho San Pasquale (now the site of Pasadena) was killed by arrows, together with several of his men.

In all justice to the Indians, several of these raids were led by white men. Pegleg Smith a former mountain man and a Blackfoot chief, led several parties. On one raid his leg was shattered by the bullet of a Californian. Smith amputated his own leg on the trail.

The Inidans had little reason to regard the whites with affection. They were driven from their lands, exploited and murdered. They were regarded as less than human. Fremont's attitude was typical of the day. In one of his journals he wrote that he and his men tried to shoot some game and at least one "Buck" a day.

The Indians fought and lost. But they won some skirmishes and many who know the true facts are glad they did.

TOMMY NOH
It's Demi-Dinner Time

PEOPLE are constantly amazed to learn that the Lafayette Hotel—one of Long Beach's fanciest hostelries serves complete dinners at very modest prices.

One of the most successful dinners dreamed up by Lonnie Bowles, Lafayette catering manager, and his assistant, Tommy Noh, is the hotel's Demi-Dinner. Priced at only $1.95 complete, the Demi-Dinner presents a different entree every night.

Featured entrees include Supreme de Poulet en Jabon which is breast of chicken on ham; country-fried steak, breaded veal cutlets, braised short ribs, leg of lamb, Swiss steak and baked ham. The guest also receives a large bowl of soup, choice of several varieties of appealing chilled salads, potato, another vegetable, hot rolls and blueberry muffins, choice of beverage and choice of dessert. Numerous fine desserts are offered, including strawberry tarts, parfaits, chiffon pies and cheesecake.

Nor is that all. As a finale, the guest receives a generous serving of after-dinner mints.

The Demi-Dinner is served in the hotel's large and glamorous Main Dining Room, which is always open to the public, and also in the comfortable Grill room.

Numerous Table D'Hote dinners are also on the menu. One of the most popular is prime rib—fine, juicy slices — priced at $3.50 on Sundays and $2.95 the rest of the week.

On Fridays at 12:30 p. m., Wilma Hastings presents fashion shows with the emphasis on shapely models who stroll through the Main Dining Room, Grill, Mezzanine and private dining rooms displaying the ultra-latest in clothes and coiffures.

There is no added charge for the fashion shows and no change in luncheon prices, which start at $1.10. —TEDD THOMEY.

RUSS ACCEPT BID TO BIG 4 MEET

Knowland Won't Count Self Out in '56

Hints His Decision Hangs on Whether Eisenhower Will Run

By WES PEYTON
(Of The Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican leader Knowland of California said in effect Saturday his decision about being a presidential candidate next year hinges on whether President Eisenhower decides to seek a second term.

In an exclusive interview with the Independent, Press-Telegram's Washington Bureau, Knowland came as close as he ever has publicly to announcing himself as a candidate. He also backed off considerably from his prediction of a year ago that President Eisenhower would run again.

Asked point-blank whether he would be a candidate if President Eisenhower decides to retire to his Gettysburg farm next year, Knowland replied—

"That's a pretty iffy question. I think I'd prefer to let the President make up his mind first."

Knowland also declined to take part in speculation, rife in Washington, about the President's intentions. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me) is the latest GOP voice to warn the Republican Party had better have another standard bearer ready—just in case.

"Some of the newspapermen have asked me what I think about Sen. Smith's remarks," Knowland observed, "but I just don't want to speculate. And that's all it is at this point. I don't think the President has made up his own mind yet."

Knowland added the President hasn't discussed the subject with him.

Just a year ago, Knowland was predicting President Eisenhower would find the pressure on him to run again too strong to resist. He pointed out that, historically, Presidents tend to the position that a second term is necessary to insure continuity of their programs and policies.

While Knowland sees no flagging of interest on the part of the President in his program, he isn't predicting a second term bid at this point.

About one thing Knowland was unequivocal.

If President Eisenhower is the Republican candidate in 1956, his running mate will again be Vice President Nixon.

Knowland also discounts Democratic Party claims that it has an excellent chance of winning the White House in 1956 no matter who the Republicans nominate.

"Despite their outward show of party unity," Knowland asserted, "the Democrats have a number of internal stresses and strains that will make themselves felt as convention time nears." He did not elaborate.

GOP Backers of Allen Feel L.B.'s Anger

Aroused Long Beach people are making their indignation felt in Sacramento where the fight over Long Beach's tidelands oil funds is moving into a critical stage.

Legislators are hearing from Long Beach Republican legislative leaders reportedly bore the brunt of a flurry of telegrams heatedly criticising Republicans who have sponsored or supported the bill of Assemblyman Bruce Allen (R-San Jose) to strip the city of all its tidelands funds as well as financial control over its tidelands projects.

Among those who are "getting the word" from Long Beach is Assemblyman Thomas Caldecott of Berkeley, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

Caldecott voted against Long Beach in a test on the Allen bill in the Conservation, Public Works and Planning Committee, and he is chairman of Ways and

DECISIONS FOR CHRIST

4,000 Heed Graham's Plea as London Crusade Opens

LONDON (AP)—Between 4,000 and 5,000 persons stampeded to the green playing field at Wembley Stadium Saturday night when Billy Graham called for "Decisions for Christ."

The American evangelist conducted the first of one week's revival meetings in the great football stadium which accommodates 100,000 spectators.

The night was unseasonably cold, and there were spatters of rain. There were blank patches among the tiers of seats but police estimated that between 70,000 and 75,000 persons were present.

For a moment it appeared the crowd would be thoroughly drenched by a sudden shower. Many thousands of umbrellas were raised. But as Graham began his sermon the rain ceased and the great crowd saw a spectacular sunset with two rainbows.

"This beautiful evening, after the threat of rain, is a splendid augury for the success of this work for God," Graham said.

Darkness fell as Graham—seen by most of the spectators as a tiny figure in a distant spotlight—moved from his sermon into his appeal to make decisions to lead Christian lives. At that moment floodlights were turned on and the playing field became a vivid green.

The response was one of the most spectacular ever seen at a Graham meeting.

Converts streamed down the dozens of aisles of the stadium, many with tears on their cheeks, and in a moment they made a dense mass covering an area half the size of a football gridiron.

There was no counting them, but stewards estimated there were somewhere between 4,000 and 5,000.

Councilors standing by to get the converts to sign cards to attend British churches were swamped by the throng. There was not literature enough to distribute and no time for the word of advice usually given individually at Graham meetings.

So Graham did not, as he usually does, address the converts in a separate meeting. He spoke to them as they stood on the lawn in front of him. He gave his four admonitions:

"Read your Bible every day, pray, bear witness for Christ by living cleanly, and go to church."

People filed out of the vast stadium singing hymns as they surged along the streets to buses and subway trains.

Judging by the crowds, Britain's general election—now just 12 days away—is running a bad second to Graham's crusade.

Getting a crowd of more than 1,000 to listen to a political campaigner, even one of the nation's political stars, has been a big job so far.

THEY MATURE EARLIER HERE IN CALIFORNIA!

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—A mother in California wrote her congressman to ask if the government had any advice on how to rear a four-year-old son.

Rep. Donald L. Jackson (R-Cal) replied that he would send her a copy of a government booklet, "Your Child From One to Six," if she desired it. But Jackson's typist hit the wrong key and spelled it "sex" instead of "six."

The reply came this week:

"Please send me the booklet mentioned for my son. On second thought you had better send two, as my daughter is enrolling at UCLA in the near future."

Dulles on Air Tuesday With Report to U.S.

Ike to Introduce Secretary's Talk on World Affairs

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — With President Eisenhower as his "announcer," Secretary of State Dulles will report to the nation Tuesday night on negotiations for a Big Four meeting and other historic events.

Dulles will speak in the President's office in the presence of the Chief Executive and ranking cabinet colleagues and his words will be broadcast by TV and radio. He will be introduced by the President.

The White House announced the broadcast Saturday in a manner to suggest that Eisenhower wants to give it a full blast of publicity to assure the largest possible audience, and also demonstrate his full support for his secretary of state.

Dulles will report on all aspects of his current mission to Europe, including the seat-

L.B. Man, 80, Found Dead in Burning Home

The body of an elderly man was found in the smoking ruins of a two-room home at 1481-B Warren Ave. Saturday night by firemen after they had extinguished a fire which gutted the frame structure.

The dead man was identified as Warren D. Cornish, about 80. James French, 318 E. Broadway, owner of the property, told police Cornish had rented the home Thursday.

The fire was discovered by Police Officers Vic Armitage and George Hanania, passing by in a police car.

Cornish's body was found in the kitchen of the home.

When a bruise was noted on Cornish's forehead homicide Insp. James A. Thiele was called. Thiele said the wound was superficial and all indications were Cornish had died an accidental death.

Asst. Chief William M. McGree, who directed fire operations, said the fire apparently started when gas from open jets found in the kitchen came in contact with wiring in an electrical refrigerator.

Cornish was pronounced dead on arrival at Seaside Hospital and the body was taken to Patterson & Snively Mortuary.

Fence Erected Across Roadway to 500 Homes

By BILL EDMOND

BELLFLOWER—Two thousand residents of a 500-home tract in the northern section here Saturday found themselves driving nearly three miles out of their way after an irate home owner threw a fence across a private, and well-traveled road in his front yard.

Puzzled deputies from the Norwalk sheriff's station scratched their heads when they attempted to untangle the snarled situation.

Ray Lemieux, 10253 Washington St., co-owner of the roadway said that the incident stemmed from a mistake made by the original subdividers of the area.

"The people who live in the area are understandably upset," said Lemieux, "but only because they don't understand our motives for building the fence.

"When the tract was built the contractors assumed that Washington St. was a county road, which it was not.

"I have spent in excess of $400 trying to keep the road in condition so that these people could use it. I work on it at night and on Saturdays and Sundays trying to keep it passable.

"The trucks and fast moving vehicles tear it up faster than I can repair it."

The 380-foot road is a continuation of Compton Blvd. east of Woodruff St. It joins Mapledale Ave. after passing across the front yards of three homes.

Lemieux said that an average of 50 cars an hour pass through his yard 12 hours a day going into or coming out of the tract.

He said, "We have trouble getting insurance coverage on our homes because the insurance companies say that it would be like trying to insure the middle of a freeway."

Ten days ago a small girl, on her way to school, was struck by a car in the disputed roadway. It was at this time, Lemieux said, that he decided that some drastic action had to be taken.

For nearly a year, he said, the owners have been trying to deed the roadway to the county but have been told by private sources that they must pay $4,200 for paving before the county would accept it.

County authorities Saturday night reported that they would make every effort to facilitate acceptance of the property, but Lemieux said that the fence will remain where it is until they do.

MRS. RAMONA DEITEMEYER
Church Will Share Prizes

Mrs. America Title Won by Mother of 5

ELLINOR VILLAGE, Fla. (U.P.)—Blond and blue-eyed Mrs. Ramona Deitemeyer of Lincoln, Neb., a mother of five, donned the crown of "Mrs. America" Saturday when she was judged the best homemaker among contestants from 48 states.

The 35-year-old wife of the managing editor of the Nebraska Farmer won $15,000 worth of prizes to add to a truckload of kitchen ware won in previous contests and a trip to Europe.

Mrs. Deitemeyer, who also won two of the preliminaries in the contest at this newly sprung-up tourist resort near Daytona Beach, took the jackpot when she was chosen by the seven judges as best homemaker.

Mrs. Deitemeyer is the wife of Carl Deitemeyer, 41.

Second place in the 17th annual Mrs. America contest went to Mrs. Billie Dorris, 27, Nashville, Tenn., mother of two children.

"Mrs. California," Mrs. Kathleen M. Girvan of Chino, mother of four children, placed third.

The slender new Mrs. America, a devout Lutheran, said "I only prayed each day to do my best, but I never expected to win."

She and her husband give 10 per cent of their earnings to the church.

"I don't know how we will work it out with all these different prizes, but we will tithe them so the church will get $1,500," she said.

Her husband had already planned to take her on her first trip to Washington and New York on their way home as a "consolation prize."

The new Mrs. America weighs 125 pounds, has a 34-inch bust, 26-inch waist and 35-inch hip.

Deitemeyer, overjoyed at his wife's victory, said that he had known for the last 14 years that she was Mrs. America.

Peace Talks May Be Held in Six Weeks

Allies, Soviets Sign Independence Treaty for Austria Today

VIENNA (Sunday) (U.P.)—Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov has accepted an invitation from the West for a meeting of the Big Four Chiefs of State to ease cold war tensions, it was announced today.

The meeting of President Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin, British Prime Minister Anthony Eden and French Premier Edgar Faure may begin in about six weeks, a western spokesman said.

Molotov delivered the Soviet's unofficial acceptance of the invitation issued Tuesday by the United States, Britain and France at a meeting Saturday night with the western foreign ministers.

Western spokesmen said he accepted the western idea that there would be no formal agenda or fixed objectives for the meeting "at the summit." He agreed also that the foreign ministers should meet briefly before the high-level meeting to arrange details and after it to delve into specific issues.

In asking for the meeting, long urged by former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill, the West told Russia the time has come for "a new effort to resolve the great problems which confront us."

The meeting Saturday night between Molotov, U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay was friendly, western spokesmen said.

"General agreement on the purposes and underlying concepts of the meeting of the four Chiefs of State was reached," they said.

A Soviet note formally accepting the invitation was expected

He Ran for His Hat

Some years ago a friend of ours ran for his hat—and dropped dead. For a year or more he had been having symptoms of a bad heart. His doctor had told him to take a rest and above all avoid heavy exercise. But one day his hat blew off and apparently on natural impulse he ran after it. His is much the same story of circumstances that cause the death of hundreds of thousands of people each year. Men and women with heart trouble, if taken care of, can live a long and useful life. But if they do not take care they may go at any moment.

Only very recently another good friend of ours had a rather severe attack. He was hospitalized for a week or more. Then he went home and had private nursing for a few weeks. He was getting along fine when the doctor told him he could go to the office for a short time once or twice a week. But our friend is a tense sort of person who finds it hard to give up activity. Result is he started spending longer hours at the office and getting more tired. Consequently he had another attack that just about finished him. Now he is trying to come back from the setback. He will make it—but he might just as well make up his mind to take it a great deal easier the rest of his life.

Much the same situation was presented in the true motion picture, "A Man Called Peter." The wonderful Dr. Marshall was struck down with a heart attack in the middle of what should be a normal life span. His doctors told him he must stay in bed for several months. There was nothing but rest that would heal the damage caused by clots which had plugged up important arteries. He had been a strong virile person who found it hard to believe he could have heart trouble. He got up from his bed within a few weeks—and within a few weeks he was dead.

Heart failure is the greatest known cause of death in this country. It does not only happen to old people. Many a young and promising athlete has dropped dead on the track, football field or in the boxing arena. It is a weakness that can be detected by doctors with the propert equipment. Many specialists believe diet is a major factor in thickening of the arteries. The fats are believed, by this school, to thicken the blood and thereby the artery walls. This, in turn, causes a closure which catches a clot.

It is strange that this greatest killer of men and women is probably the easiest to avoid. That will be widely debated. But that fact is most heart attacks can be traced to over indulgence in food, drink, worry or work. But when a person has any symptoms of heart trouble he is more fortunate than many others with other illnesses. The heart patient can often avoid an attack by being careful. After an attack a person can lead a reasonably active life. But unless a person with symptoms goes to a qualified heart doctor for diagnosis and electro-cardiagrams he has no real information on which to plan. Often what a person thinks is a heart problem is simply an upheaval in his nervous system. In either case your life may depend upon knowing which it is and in either case, the cure is up to you.

GOP Backers of Allen Grab Bill Feel L.B. Ire

Means, before which the bill pends for hearing.

Democratic and Republican leadership in Long Beach see eye-to-eye on the Allen grab program. Groups of both parties have spoken out vigorously against the scheme. The telegrams criticizing Republicans are largely coming from Republicans.

Four of the five official sponsors of the Allen bill are Republicans. The two top men, Allen and Assemblyman Francis Lindsay, Loomis, are Republicans.

On the other hand, the Long Beach cause is drawing its supporters from both parties in the Assembly.

For example, Assemblyman Patrick McGee, Los Angeles Republican, participated actively on Long Beach's side in committee hearings, while Assemblyman Charles Wilson, Los Angeles Democrat, issued a blast against the Allen bill as a "share the wealth" scheme. The Long Beach Republican assemblymen, W. S. Grant and Herbert Klocksiem, are fighting vigorously against the bill, as is Sen. Richard Richards, Democrat representing Los Angeles County.

A defection that has stirred considerable talk was that of William Munnell, Montebello Democrat, who voted against Long Beach in the conservation and planning committee test. There is also considerable feeling about the votes in committee against Long Beach by San Diego's three assemblymen—two Republicans and one Democrat.

Next major development in the fight comes Thursday, when Allen's bill comes up for hearing in the Ways and Means Committee. Last Thursday, Allen, finding he did not have enough votes in the room to get out a do-pass recommendation, got action postponed for a week.

No presentation has been made yet before Ways and Means. Both Allen and opponents of his bill supposedly will be heard Thursday.

There was some talk in Sacrimento Saturday of a possible compromise in the Allen bill fight. This rumo rwas attributed by one source to Allen, himself.

Long Beach spokesmen said Allen may be trying to advance his newest amendment to the bill as a "compromise" but they said it in no way alters the major purposes of the bill and is unacceptable. The amendment provided for a special $20,000,000 state fund, made up from Long Beach tidelands oil funds, out of which the Legislature would appropriate money for capital improvements of Long Beach harbor. This leaves budgetary control in the hands of the legislature. Its principal effect, it was pointed out, is to limit the amount of money that might be appropriated.

White House to Bare Polio Data Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced it will release a voluminous report Monday on the Salk polio vaccine program.

The mass inoculation of first and second grade children began picking up momentum again, after a week-long suspension for new safety checks, as government scientific inspectors moved into the second of five laboratories making the serum.

Enough vaccine for more than a million shots was released by the U. S. Public Health Service late Friday as a result of their inspection of the first plant on the list, Parke, Davis & Co. of Detroit.

The check and doublecheck team is now at the Eli Lilly & Co. laboratories in Indianapolis. Other plants to be visited, though not necessarily by the same team, are Pitman-Moore Co., Indianapolis and Sharp & Dohme, Inc. and Wyeth, Inc., both of Philadelphia.

The product of a sixth manufacturer, Cutter Laboratories of Berkeley, Calif., has been withdrawn for a special check.

Health officers in several states which have received the newly cleared Parke, Davis & Co. vaccine announced plans for resuming the voluntary inoculations at once, or at least within a few days.

The program is expected to pick up speed throughout the country again as more vaccine is turned loose from the five laboratories.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Monday's report will be delivered to President Eisenhower at 9:30 a.m. by Secretary of Welfare Oveta Culp Hobby, and will be released to the public a few hours later.

The document will include recommendations by Secretary Hobby, whose Health, Education and Welfare Department directed the study.

Mrs. Hobby, whose handling of the polio program has come under some sharp criticism on Capitol Hill, is also scheduled to appear for questioning Monday by the Senate banking committee.

Hallner Jury Still Knotted After 3 Days

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There was still no verdict in the Herbert Hallner case Saturday night as the jury was locked up for the night after more than 20 hours of deliberation.

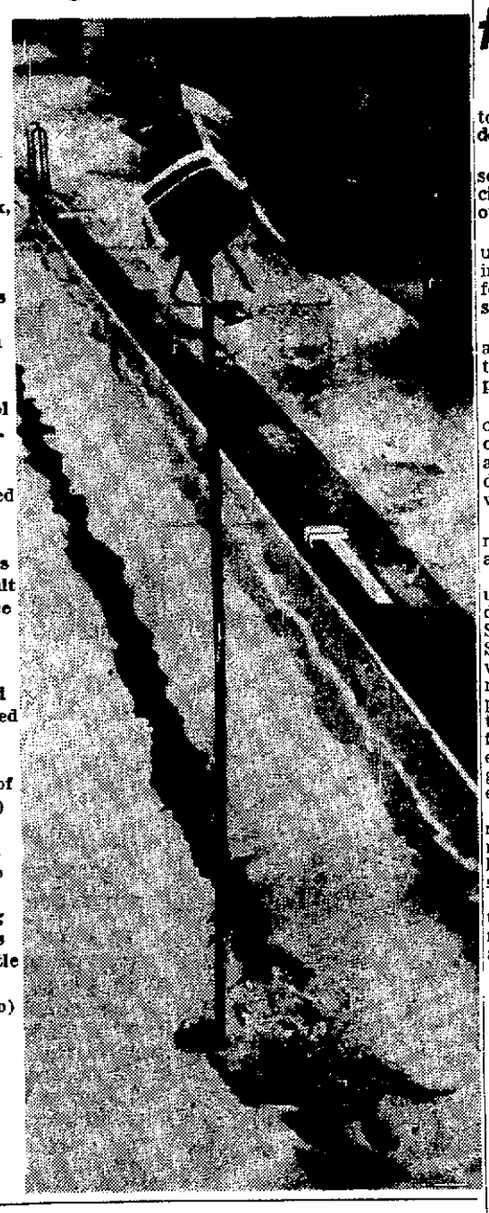

When the jury began its third day of deliberations Saturday it was reported to be divided 7-5 on a decision. When Superior Judge Allen Lynch called the panel into the jury box at the end of the day, foreman John Modglin said the division was 9-3.

Modglin did not disclose which side was favored.

The judge ordered the panel to resume deliberations today at 9 a.m.

Hallner is accused of offering bribes to three city officials in 1953 to obtain aid in legalizing bingo-type games at nearby Venice.

Keeping His Chin Up

Cpl. Marvin Fox, 28, of Los Angeles, balances a couple of chairs atop a 20-foot pole resting on his chin while he swims in a U. S. Army pool in West Berlin.

Fox, who learned the trick as a boy in an orphanage, says the most difficult thing to balance is a pencil.

The chairs and pole were handed to Fox by an assistant standing (out of camera range) at the side of the pool. Fox maintains the balance with brief paddling motions of his hands and gentle kicks.

Dulles on Air Tuesday With Report on Europe

ing of West Germany as a member of the Atlantic alliance in ceremonies at Paris, with British and French leaders on the Indochina crisis and the signing of an Austrian peace treaty in Vienna today.

But major interest focused on Russia's acceptance of the American-British-French invitation to a Big Four parley at the summit to discuss world tensions. Dulles will have had full opportunity to assess at first hand Foreign Minister Molotov's reaction to the Big Four session plans. He met with Molotov and other foreign ministers Saturday in Vienna. Thus he could gain some fresh impressions of what the Russians are up to in world affairs—with their sudden agreement to an Austrian pact and with the visit of their top leaders, Premier Bulganin and Communist boss Khushchev to Yugoslavia shortly.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty disclosed that Dulles will return to Washington Monday and broadcast to the nation from President Eisenhower's office Tuesday between 7 and 7:30 p.m., EDT (4 to 4:30 p.m. Long Beach time).

All four national TV networks will carry the report at the time. The radio networks will record it for later broadcast.

Letters Crusade Asks Reds to Free Priest

CHICAGO (U.P.)—A letter-writing crusade to obtain release of the very Rev. Harold W. Rigney, Chicago priest held by the Chinese Reds, will be switched from the State Department and directed straight to his captors.

Joseph Meegan, executive secretary of the Back-of-the-Yards Council which has spearheaded the campaign, said today the direct appeal will be made to give the Communists "a chance to put into deeds their words about freedom and justice."

to be sent to Washington, London and Paris soon.

No definite time or place was set for the conference but "precise details are being worked out," a spokesman said.

Molotov was reported to have urged that the meeting be held in Vienna, while the western foreign ministers argued for a site in Switzerland.

The foreign ministers also agreed Saturday to sign today a treaty restoring Austria's independence.

Though Molotov's acceptance of the invitation to the meeting of the Chiefs of State was not a formal Soviet reply, western diplomats said "the acceptance was there."

A western spokesman said the meeting may get under way in about six weeks.

While Molotov "strongly urged" that the meeting be conducted in Vienna, the United States said it favored Lausanne, Switzerland, because of the convenience of hotel and travel arrangements there. The U.S. opposed Geneva because that was the site of the Far Eastern conference last summer that resulted in the truce in Indochina that gave the Communists the northern half of Viet Nam.

British Foreign Secretary Macmillan suggested the meeting might be held in Scotland—"perhaps facetiously," a western spokesman said.

Dulles said he would discuss the exact time and place of the meeting with Mr. Eisenhower after he returns to Washington.

The treaty to be signed today will make Austria a free nation for the first time in 17 years. It also will clear the country of all U.S., British, Russian and French occupation troops by Dec. 31 of this year.

Austrian Chancellor Leopold Figl attended the opening Austrian treaty session Saturday at the flag-bedecked Allied Council Building, which was surrounded by a cheering throng of 10,000 jubilant Austrians.

Western authorities said Figl told the meeting the Austrian Parliament would formally enact a law pledging Austria to abstain from military alliances and to maintain strict neutrality.

Molotov was said to have raised the question of a four-power guarantee of Austria's neutrality, but all five powers agreed to leave such a guarantee until later.

It also was unanimously agreed to drop from the treaty a "war guilt" clause that accused Austria of "certain responsibility arising from participation in the war" on the side of Germany.

The streamlined treaty, hitherto secret, was hammered out in 11 days of bitter East-West bargaining that reduced it from 59 to 38 articles.

The text provides that all occupation troops "shall be withdrawn from Austria within 90 days from the coming into force of the present treaty, and in so far as possible not later than Dec. 31, 1955."

Another key clause in the new treaty binds Russia to hand back Soviet-held properties in Austria within two months after the treaty takes effect in accordance with Soviet economic promises made to Austrian Chancellor Julius Raab at Kremlin last month—the so-called "Moscow agreements."

Inclusion of the "Moscow Agreements" in the text was the most bitterly fought issue of the treaty conference and almost caused collapse of the parley this week.

The West insisted that the text include the "Moscow Agreements," scaling down Austrian debts to Russia to be paid over the next ten years, so that Russia could not disown the agreements later and march back into Austria.

It took but 80 minutes to approve the text of a treaty it had taken 10 years to negoiate.

Signing will take place in famed Belvedere Palace.

For the Austrians it means the end of more than 17 years of occupation by the Nazis and later by the four World War II Allies.

L.B. Housewife Found Dazed; Rushed Aid Fails

Mrs. Bess M. Dollarhide, 52, of 731½ E. Broadway was pronounced dead on arrival at Seaside Hospital shortly after 6 p.m. Saturday. Police said she had been rushed to the hospital in a private ambulance from her home.

Police investigation revealed that Mrs. Dollarhide's husband, Orgie M. Dollarhide, had returned home about 5:40 p.m. to find his wife sitting in a dazed condition in the living room.

A neighbor, Mrs. Mary B. Griffin, said Mrs. Dollarhide had told her of taking sleeping pills. When informed of this the husband immediately consulted the family doctor, who directed that the ambulance be called.

The body was removed to Mottell's Mortuary.

Asian Equality Statue Urged

A proposal that a statue or symbol, something like the Statue of Liberty, be placed in San Francisco Bay as an indication of American respect for equality of Orientals was made Saturday to delegates to Civitan convention at San Pedro.

Frank Lindsey, Dallas, Tex., international trustee of the service organization, made the suggestion at meeting of the California-Arizona Civitan district.

Lindsey said the idea was first voiced earlier this year by the Oakland Civitan Club and he is presenting it to other groups as a possible Civitan project.

"This statue, or symbol of some type, could be put in San Francisco Bay," he said, "but it should not be a symbol of the United States alone, or of tolerance, but a sign that we consider Asiatics and Americans as equals and we regard them with mutual respect as men."

Panty Raiders Face Ouster at Oklahoma A&M

STILLWATER, Okla. (U.P.)—An Oklahoma A&M college official indicated Saturday several students face expulsion for a "panty raid," which the school discreetly termed a "laundry tub" theft.

The official said "expulsion" was being considered for "violation of college regulations in the disturbance of the campus."

A statement by the college said:

"Final punishment for offenders who broke into the storage room of one campus resident hall to carry away clothing from laundry tubs and created a noisy demonstration around two other resident halls and three sorority houses has not been determined. Cases of several students are still under investigation by the A&M student disciplinary committee."

Youth, 18, Wins U.N. Contest

Dave Copeland, 18, Wilson high school senior, won a $100 government bond Saturday by taking top local honors in the recent United Nations essay contest.

The youth, son of Capt. and Mrs. R. G. Copeland, 3529 Vista St., received the bond at the annual meeting of the Long Beach Chapter, American Assn. for the United Nations, at the Lafayette Hotel.

Lon E. Peek, who made the presentation, said that young Copeland took first place in Wilson high school ($25 bond) and first place in the city ($75 bond), and the awards were combined in the $100 bond.

Copeland expects to become a mechanical engineer. His father is commanding officer of the USS Caliente. Young Copeland is currently raising an impressive red, Abe Lincoln-like beard "just for fun."

Melvin Jahn, 16, of 3157 Lemon Ave., received a $25 bond for taking first award at Poly high school.

Richard Elden Ashcraft, 16, of 5224 Kildee St., who won second place at Wilson, has a Saturday job in a grocery, so his $25 bond was accepted by his father, Elden L. Ashcraft, insurance agent.

City Librarian Edwin Castagna was elected president, succeeding Roy Dial. Other new officers are Mrs. Laura Barr, Mrs. Javus Fortmann, vice president;

George Johnson, Independent, Press-Telegram attorney, described "12 Days Behind the Iron Curtain." A member of an American delegation of newspaper, radio and television representatives, Johnson recently toured Europe. A friend paid $40 for a bottle of vodka in Warsaw, he said.

Three Injured in Saturday Traffic Here

A 23-year-old driver and his 16-year-old passenger were injured when their car went out of control while making a turn from Pacific Coast Hwy. onto Gardenia Ave. Saturday afternoon and hit a tree.

Forest L. McCord, 1732 E. 15th St., the driver, suffered possible head injuries and a lacerated tongue when his car knocked down a sign and then crashed into the tree. He got out of the car after the accident, then collapsed.

His passenger, Ronald E. Robinson, 3711 Fountain St., suffered an arm injury. Both were treated at Community Hospital and later transferred to Harbor General Hospital.

In another accident Saturday afternoon Motorcycle Officer Paul G. Goforth, 29, suffered a possible broken left foot and a sprained ankle when his cycle collided with a Harbor Department truck driven by Omal B. Reed, 42, of 4400 Gaviota Ave. at Artesia St. and Atlantic Ave.

He was treated at St. Mary's Hospital and later released. Reed said both vehicles were headed west on Artesia after stopping at the intersection before the accident. He was not cited by police.

Californians Option 87 Uranium Claims

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—An attorney for Circle Cliffs Uranium Co. said Saturday that a group of California business men has taken an option to buy 87 of the firm's uranium claims.

Attorney Claude T. Barnes said the claims, representing all Circle Cliffs' land assets, would be sold for $5,400,000. He said the California syndicate was represented in the option deal by Leo Higbee of Spokane, Wash., and Alden Higbee of Provo, Utah. Members of the syndicate were not announced.

MARLENE HAD A CRYSTAL BALL!

New Miss Welcome 'Picked' by Old One

By LEE CRAIG

Marlene Becker, last year's Miss Welcome to Long Beach, is probably the only winner of the contest who "chose" her own successor.

Last summer, one of Marlene's duties was selling Miss Universe event tickets in a booth at Walker's Department Store.

Judy Ware, a 17-year-old Wilson High School girl, who was working at Walker's during the summer as a salegirl, was assigned to help her.

The two became good friends and Marlene suggested:

"Why don't you enter the Miss Welcome contest next year? I think you'd have a good chance."

Judy laughed, but as time went on she gave the idea more serious consideration. She'd lose nothing by trying, she thought.

So, when contest time came this year, she entered and won, to become Miss Welcome to Long Beach for 1955.

The winner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ware, 363 Orizaba Ave., and her brother, John, 16, said they were even more amazed than she was.

"I didn't think she had a chance," John said, with brotherly frankness.

Judy is five feet, six inches tall and weighs 115 pounds, arranged in a 35-23-35 package. Her hair is honey-blonde and her eyes are green—unless she's wearing something yellow . . . "Then my eyes turn chartreuse."

She will be graduated in June from Wilson High—where she maintained close to an A average—and will enter Long Beach State College this fall.

She wants to be a teacher in elementary school, get married and "have at least six kids."

Among her high school studies were three years of Spanish, and she's looking forward to talking with Latin beauties in the Miss Universe Pageant.

Both Judy and John expect Monday to be a rough day at Wilson, with much good-natured razzing from schoolmates.

"That'll be okay," John said. "I'm proud of her."

L.B. Engineering Student Elected to Honorary Unit

Gordon Lee Bartholomew, 22, son of Juvenile Inspector and Mrs. Donald G. Batholomew, of 2774 Gale Ave., has been elected to an honorary engineering society at the University of California at Berkeley.

He will be graduated June 17 with a degree of petroleum engineer and is to be employed by the Shell Oil Co. During the past quarter, young Bartholomew studied on a $750 scholarship.

BARTHOLOMEW

While in Long Beach he attended Burnett elementary, Hamilton Junior High and Poly High schools and City College. He is married and has two children.

THINK THIS IS PROGRESS?

HUTTON GATE, England (UP) — Residents of this Yorkshire village protested to the nationalized British Railway system that the ancient gas lamps on the station platform were too old fashioned.

The gas lights were replaced Saturday—with oil lamps.

It's Great Day for Southland's Irish, May 22

Long Beach Irish folk are expected to attend the annual Los Angeles Irish Feis May 22 on the Mount Carmel High School campus, 7011 S. Hoover St., Los Angeles.

The Feis (or festival) dates to medieval times. Non-sectarian and open to all persons with talent, the Feis annually attracts an entourage from all parts of the state.

This year there will be 60 contests—Irish step dancing, school bands, church choirs, school orchestras, glee clubs, Irish and Scottish bagpipes, harp, flute, violin solos, traditional songs, poems, short stories and prayers in Gaelic, oratory, essays, etc. Trophies, cups and medals will be awarded. Among these will be a hand wrought silver trophy from Ireland given by Irish Consul Patrick Hughes in San Francisco.

Warner Death Cause

PASADENA (UP)—An autopsy held today showed millionaire playboy Thomas Warner Jr., "probably" died of a broken neck in a fall at his mother's estate, but his estranged wife insisted on an inquest to determine if there was "foul play."

Kiwanis Club B-Day Draws 5,498 Diners

It was B-Day for East Long Beach Kiwanis Club Saturday at Recreation Park.

The B stood for batter and a record crowd of 5,498 persons attested they never tasted better.

That was the number in attendance at the fifth annual Kids Pancake Breakfast in Recreation Park, according to George Cain, president of the sponsoring club.

At 50 cents per head each breakfaster was entitled to as many hot cakes as he could eat. More than 18,000 were consumed.

Throughout the morning, lines of hungry people stretched around the picnic area.

The batter, batter was prepared by Louis Scott, a member of the club with a "secret" recipe.

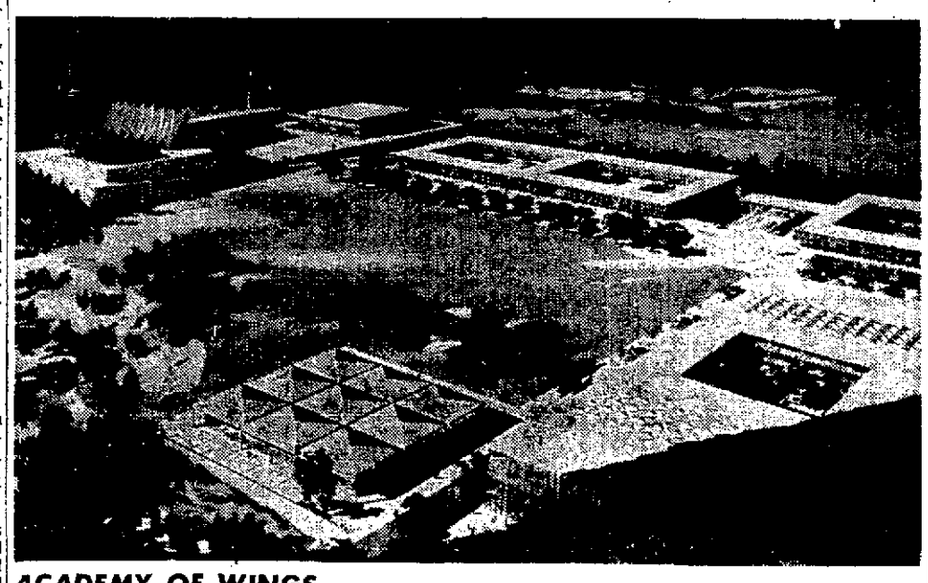

The Kiwanians flapjack flipping efforts were augmented by the services of Mayor George Vermillion and City Councilman Toby Wick.

Members of the Wilson High School Key Club kept the coffee flowing.

Entertainment was provided by Doye O'Dell, television cowboy, two accordion bands from Music Center, accordionist Myron Floren of Lawrence Welk's orchestra and the Bob Wells Dancers.

Dr. Robert Albright served as general chairman of the event.

Proceeds from the breakfast will be used in support of the Boy Scout Troop, Girl Scout Troop and Cub Scout Pack at the Tucker Orthopedic School.

Mass Meeting Slated to Protest Oil Trucks

Several hundred irate Sunset Heights property owners will meet Monday night in Ocean View School to frame protests against what they term "destructive and dangerous" methods of operation by oilmen in the area.

Orange County supervisor Willis Warner has promised to attend the meeting, according to Mrs. Herman F. Jones, 16812 Sims St., a leader of the property owners.

"Their heavy trucks tear up and down our private roads, throwing dust and dirt all over our property," Mrs. Jones said. "They leave oil sumps uncovered and don't even have fences around most of their wells and equipment.

"Our children will soon be out of school for the summer and we're afraid some may be hurt through these men's carelessness.

"Also, when a well comes in, it sprays oil all over the neighborhood. I'd just painted my house when it happened to me."

A few operators, she said, have fenced in their areas and take precautions against creating hazards or causing damage to nearby residences. These are in the minority, however, she said.

At the meeting, property owners will draw up specific recommendations to be presented to the oilmen. The latter are invited to attend a joint meeting with residents Monday, May 23, at Mrs. Jones' home.

The meeting this Monday will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Ocean View School, Huntington Beach Blvd. and Wintersburg Ave.

Two End Journey in 1915 Jalopy

LOCKPORT, Ind. (UP)—Clyde Zimmer, 53, and his son, John, 20, antique auto collectors, returned to their home here after safely negotiating their 1915 Ford from Sacramento, Calif.

Except for a burned-out valve, a broken drive shaft, and a heavy dust storm, the trip was uneventful, the elder Zimmer said.

The trip took 13 days, he said.

'I'll Retire When I Die,' Says Attorney After 50-Year Practice

Practicing law has become a complicated, many-angled procedure in the past 50 years, according to George A. Hart, Long Beach attorney.

Hart, 74, speaks with authority.

Fifty years ago Friday, he stood before the State Supreme Court to take an examination which would decide two important questions in his life:

1. Would he practice law?

2. Could he get married? For without the right to practice, he had no means of earning a living to support a wife.

He passed, however, and was soon married and had established practice here with another young lawyer, Carl Denio.

The two were partners for 48 years, until Denio's death two years ago.

"In the old days," Hart says, "you could apply to the state to form a corporation and it would be a running concern within ten days. Now, with corporation commissioners and boards of all kinds to cope with, it takes many times as much time and effort.

GEORGE A. HART
Things Are Complicated

"Also, there's the tax angle to be considered now. For instance, whether to have joint or divided tenancy of property—it makes a big difference, taxwise.

"I remember when William Jennings Bryan made his fiery speeches advocating postal savings and income tax. We Republicans laughed at him and thought he was crazy."

However complicated Hart may think the bar is now, he has no intention of leaving it.

"I'll retire when I die," he declares.

Hart, who has had an office in the Security Bldg. since the structure was built, has also been active in civic and social affairs of the city.

He served as president of the Long Beach Bar Association in 1921, the Lions' Club in '23 and the Chamber of Commerce in '38.

He and his wife, Lillian, reside at 243 Claremont Ave. Their son, George A. Hart Jr., is also an attorney here.

SIX WEEKS AND NO WINNER

Bonanzagram Award Jumps Up to $1050!

What can we say?

For the sixth consecutive week, NO WINNER!

The ante is now up to $1,050 for subscribers . . . mighty easy money, too, for anyone who has studied the puzzles carefully and has noted how the obvious answer is seldom right.

Anyway, here's how you should have figured last week:

PICTURES OF FORTS COMING BY COURIER. FORTS are logical military objectives for a spy to discuss. PORTS, therefore, aren't to the point.

BY LUCKY STROKE—STROKE means an action having a quick and pleasant effect; whereas STRIKE is a sudden success dealing mainly with winning money. HAVE FOUND TRACES OF BAND TRAINED AND READY FOR USE. This is better than TRACTS OF LAND AND READY FOR USE; the clue to the BAND appears later in the letter, where the need of a MOB is mentioned.

CONTENT TO REMAIN AROUND WAITING SIGNAL—if there had been imminent action to report here—that is. CONTEST TO REGAIN GROUND, surely the spy would have reported more fully on it.

CAN'T PROBE IT NOW means he can't take the time to explore the situation. PROVE IT NOW—obviously, a wartime spy wouldn't be expected to prove his points.

Dropping down to EAGER THAT ACTIVITIES FAN OUT—this has more meaning than WAGER THAT ACTIVITIES PAN OUT—a casual, unnecessary statement. SLOW GOING is not logical for the next phrase; everything so far has indicated speedy work.

I CAN'T SPEND TOO MUCH—clearly wrong, as from his demand for money, he's not worried about spending too much.

The sign-off is not the meaningless PENDING REWARDS and the signature is not the obvious TWENTY. It is, however, a selection of letters familiar to many people . . . the first six letters of the typewriter keyboard—QWERTY.

P.S. If you thought M. Spence in the previous puzzle should have been Millie, here's the answer. M. stands for Matilda and Tillie is an accepted nickname for Matilda.

PICTURES OF FORTS COMING BY COURIER, BY LUCKY STROKE, HAVE FOUND TRACES OF BAND TRAINED AND READY FOR USE. DUMPED ARMS BEING CULLED OVER. BORDER GUERRILLAS CONTENT TO REMAIN AROUND WAITING SIGNAL. SITUATION WITH TRIBES TOO SHAKY TO BE TRUSTED; CANT PROBE IT NOW. NEED MONEY FOR PAYOFF, SHY SIX THOUSAND. WILL DO AS TOLD. A MOB IS NECESSARY TO GAIN JOINT SUCCESS HERE. EAGER THAT ACTIVITIES FAN OUT. SHOW DOING FINE. I CANT SPEED TOO MUCH AS PER SCHEME FOR CLEARING UP ISLAND PROBLEM. HINDERED BY EFFORTS TO CRACK LEADER. SENDING REGARDS.

$25,000 Suit Filed for Boy Hurt by Car

COMPTON—A suit seeking $25,000 general damages was filed in Compton Superior Court Friday in behalf of a 8-year-old boy injured in a traffic accident April 7.

The suit, filed against Virginia Mary Delegadillo, 23, of 1210 S. Gunlock Ave., charged the victim, Charles Sondergaard, son of Mrs. Alice Sondergaard, suffered a skull fracture, concussion and other injuries when struck as he crossed the street in the 1100 block on Gunlock Ave.

The plaintiff is represented by James G. Butler.

CAPITAL CAPERS

By WESLEY PEYTON and ROBERT E. LEE
(Of the Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON—Politicians seldom are noted for excessive modesty, but some blow their own horns louder than others.

This obvious fact is emphasized anew with each edition of the Congressional Directory, to which members of Congress contribute whatever biographical material they want. The latest edition discloses that the average member thinks his life story is worth about a dozen lines.

But the dean of the Senate, Walter George, who has served since 1922, uses only six lines to identify himself. George's Georgia colleague, third senior man in the Senate, tells his story in one line: "Richard Brevard Russell, Democrat, of Winder, Ga."

Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, who has been a member of Congress longer than anybody else now serving, takes 18 lines to tell about himself. Texas Congressmen as a group turn out to be unusually bashful — one member is a one-liner; one a two-liner; another a four-liner.

This isn't true of all Southerners, however. Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.), one of the Senate freshmen, takes long-distance honors with a 60-line autobiography. Besides noting that he was Dixiecrat nominee for President in 1948, Thurmond includes a lengthy war record, with 16 lines devoted to his medals and area campaign ribbons.

Rep. Clyde Doyle (D-Calif.) has the third longest biography listed by members of the House—47 lines.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert, a Louisiana Democrat of French descent, points out that his name is pronounced "A-Bear." Rep. Jack Westland (R-Wash.) reminds readers of the directory that he was National Amateur golf champion in 1952. Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn (D-S.C.) reports he is "the only man in American history who in less than 10 years served in a state House, state Senate, 3½ years in the Army, in the U. S. Congress, and made a strong race for the U. S. Senate." He doesn't add that he lost the Senate race.

North Dakota's autobiographers are among the most colorful. Sen. Bill Langer observes that his first school teacher was a cousin of Ann Rutledge, Lincoln's sweetheart.

Langer also says he was the "only person ever to be arrested in an English-speaking country for filing an affidavit of prejudice against a judge."

Usher L. Burdick, a North Dakota House member, can't top that, but he reports that he was born near an Indian reservation and "understands the Sioux language."

No one gave a correct answer to last Sunday's puzzle. Therefore, last week's prize money is added to this week's! BE SURE TO READ THE RULES AT THE BOTTOM OF THIS PAGE. They must be followed exactly.

The solution to this 'Bonanzagram' will appear in next Sunday's Independent-Press-Telegram with 'Bonanzagram' number 11.

CLAIM CHECK

Below is a duplicate of the "Bonanzagram" entry you send in to contest headquarters. It is ESSENTIAL that you fill it in and save it until the correct solution to "Bonanzagram" No. 11 published next Sunday. Unless you do so, you will be unable to collect the prize if you should send in a winning solution. Check the rules below for further details.

BONANZAGRAM No. 11

The Explorer Scouts were in trouble. A sudden, huge rockslide had penned them in the main canyon of a range they were exploring. After some worried consultation, Scout Leader David Borden decided it was best to divide the group into two parties. He assigned one to their Indian guide and took the other himself. Using their maps and compasses, they set off in opposite directions in search of a "forked path" which, according to Indian legend, provided the second means of escape from the canyon. After two foggy and strenuous days, Borden's group found the way out, but meanwhile lost contact with the others. That night one of the boys on night watch picked up a code message from a distant flashlight. He had missed some of the letters, but Borden was able to decipher it and form a plan for reuniting the two groups. Can you, too, figure out what happened to the others?

How to Play "Bonanzagram"

Solve the "Bonanzagram" by filling in all the missing letters, as indicated by the underscores, in the message. Insert only one letter above each underscore. Many clues to the missing letters are hidden in the story, or anecdote, accompanying the message. Clues may also be found in the message itself, and, in a few cases, the contestant's general knowledge should provide the correct letter. The contestant will note that the message is unpunctuated. Proper punctuation is one of the important keys to a correct solution.

When properly filled in, the "Bonanzagram" will spell out a clear message that will conform in every way with the clues. In many cases it will seem that more than one word would be the correct one. That's part of the fun! You should weigh the clues and select the BEST possible word in each case.

How To Submit Entries

1. After solution is completed, "Bonanzagram" should be clipped and pasted to a two-cent postcard with your name and address.

2. Entries will be received at the Independent, Press-Telegram office at 6th St. and Pine Ave., until 5 p. m. on the Wednesday following publication of each new "Bonanzagram." Mail entries must be postmarked before midnight Wednesday. Address "Bonanzagram," P.O. Box 230, Long Beach.

3. Entries may be mailed in envelope but contestant's full name must be printed in upper left corner of address-side of envelope.

4. Copies of the Sunday Independent, Press-Telegram need not be purchased to enter. Facsimiles made by hand and corresponding as closely as possible to the original "Bonanzagram" printed in the newspaper will be accepted but are limited one to a family. Mimeograph, duplicator or other unofficial mechanical reproduction is forbidden.

How To Collect The Prizes

The entrant must work out and keep duplicate solution as a claim check. When the solution is published in the Independent, Press-Telegram each Sunday, he should compare his "claim check" with the published solution, and, if his claim check is identical, he should call in person with it at the newspaper office, 6th St. and Pine Ave., between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. on the Monday following publication of the solution.

If a winner cannot call at the Independent, Press-Telegram office in person Monday, he should mail his solution to "Bonanzagram," Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th St. and Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. The letter must be postmarked not later than 5 p. m. Monday. Important: this address is only for claim checks, not entries.

About Eligibility, Information, Etc.

1. Anyone is eligible for the "Bonanzagram" contest except employes of these newspapers, newspaperboys and dealers and their families, employes of other publications or their families.

2. No question as to winners will be answered by phone.

3. The Independent, Press-Telegram will award a prize of $100 to the winner of each weekly "Bonanzagram." A bonus of 50% will be paid if the contestant is a home delivered subscriber to either the Independent or Press-Telegram. If more than one winning answer is received, the prize will be divided equally among the winners. If no correct solution is received, the amount will be added to the next week's prize.

4. Only one winning entry from a family will be eligible for the prize.

5. The Independent, Press-Telegram retains the right to correct typographical errors.

6. Judge's decision will be final and contestant's submission of entries indicates acceptance of these rules.

7. No liability is accepted for entries that fail to reach us.

8. The Independent, Press-Telegram reserves the right to alter rules and/or discontinue the contest at its discretion.

Gen. Summerall, Hero of World War I, Dies

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Gen. Charles Pelot Summerall, 88, one of America's great field commanders of World War I and Army chief of staff from 1926 to 1930, died in Walter Reed Army Hospital Saturday after a long illness.

His son and daughter-in-law, retired Army Col. and Mrs. Charles P. Summerall Jr., were at the bedside. The general's wife died in 1948.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in the chapel at Ft. Myer, Va., and burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Summerall, who had been living in retirement at Aiken, S. C., was admitted to Walter Reed last August. It was reported at the time of his admission that he was suffering from leukemia.

OF OLD SCHOOL

Summerall was a soldier of the old school who believed in ramrod discipline and strict military courtesy. His military career spanned 66 years, including service in three campaigns, four years as Army chief of staff, and 22 years as president of the citadel in Charleston, S. C., one of the nation's oldest and proudest military colleges.

On his 88th birthday, March 4, he still was erect and soldierly in his bearing, precise in all his habits, and impressively dignified in his manner.

He was born in Lake City, Fla., on March 4, 1867. He won appointment to West Point, and graduated as an Army Lieutenant in 1892. He fought in the Philippines in the Spanish-American War, winning two citations for gallantry, and led the American unit that blew open the gates to imperial Peking during the Boxer Rebellion in China.

SENT TO FRANCE

He was Brigadier general when the United States entered World War I, and was sent to France to command the first American troops to take over a sector of the western front. He later commanded the famous "Fighting First" Division, and the 1st Army Corps, leading the latter in the Meuse-Argonne drive in the closing days of the war. He won a reputation as a brilliant artillery tactician, and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Honor, the Croix-de-Guerre, and numerous other medals.

After the war he held several domestic commands and was commander of the Army's Hawaiian department from 1921 to 1924.

He was appointed chief of staff, with the rank of full general, Sept. 21, 1926. During his four-year term as the Army's top officer, he reorganized infantry forces and put new emphasis on field training maneuvers; pushed the development of tanks and armored cars; and launched a drive to improve living conditions and family housing facilities at all Army bases.

Before his retirement in 1930, Congress passed a special act which permitted him to retain the rank of four-star general for life.

Parents of 2 Inoculated Tots Stricken

DENVER (AP)—Two adults, parents of children inoculated with polio vaccine manufactured by Cutter Laboratories, were in Colorado General Hospital today for treatment of what officials said was infantile paralysis.

One of the victims, Morton Solomon, 27, was placed in an iron lung. Hospital attaches described his condition as critical.

The other person is Mrs. Carolyn Gustafson, 25, a housewife who became ill May 1, developed fever and a stiff neck and was hospitalized May 8. She suffered partial paralysis but was described as "not so ill."

Mrs. Gustafson's husband, John, Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad employe, was suffering from high fever Saturday and was admitted to the hospital for tests.

Solomon, a structural engineer, was admitted four days ago. His 18-month-old daughter, Joan, was vaccinated by a private physician April 8.

The father developed paralysis of the right arm May 9.

Mrs. Gustafson's 18-month-old daughter, Judy, also was vaccinated April 18 with the California laboatory's polio vaccine.

The Cutter vaccine was recalled from distribution earlier this month when several children inoculated with that variety fell ill. Doctors emphasized there was no link established between the inoculation with Cutter vaccine and the children's illness, however.

Dr. Lloyd Florio, city manager of health and hospitals, said an analysis of the local cases "leaves us no choice but to say it is definitely possible" the Denver parents contracted polio from their children.

Uranium 'Fever' in Alaska Town

VANDEZ, Alaska (AP)—Uranium fever has gripped this port city of 1,000 people.

A uranium find was reported 55 miles up the Richardson Highway. Staking of 40 claims was reported Saturday morning, with more being added hourly. Cars were reported streaming up the highway to the site.

Thomas Harris, owner of the Valdez Hotel, described it as "a rat race."

Between 60 and 100 people were reported to be at the scene early Saturday morning, with more arriving steadily.

Kin of Persons Given Salk Shots Get Polio

ATLANTA (AP)—The State Health Department Saturday reported two cases in Georgia of persons who developed polio after association with members of their families who had been inaculated with Salk vaccine.

The persons, both inoculated with Cutter vaccine, had not contracted polio.

Mail Box Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of farmers are being asked to spruce up their RFD boxes. Postmaster General Summerfield issued the appeal in connection with the P.O.'s spring clean-up week May 15-21. The idea is to prettify postal facilities.

Automation—Boon or Threat—Is Here to Stay

By JIM PHELAN

"Patty-cake, patty-cake, a baker man
Bake us a cake just as fast as you can.
Pat it and roll it and mark it with a B
And put it in the oven for baby and me."
—obsolete nursery rhyme.

When you slit the wrapper on that loaf of bread this morning and dropped a couple of slices in the toaster, the chances are that you were the first human being to touch the loaf.

It was mixed into dough, kneaded, shaped into a loaf, put in a pan, baked, cooled, sliced and wrapped by a giant robot bigger than a football field.

The robot—called the automatic bakery—has retired the traditional white-clad, flour-smudged baker to the sidelines. It does the baker's job better, more efficiently, more hygienically, and infinitely faster.

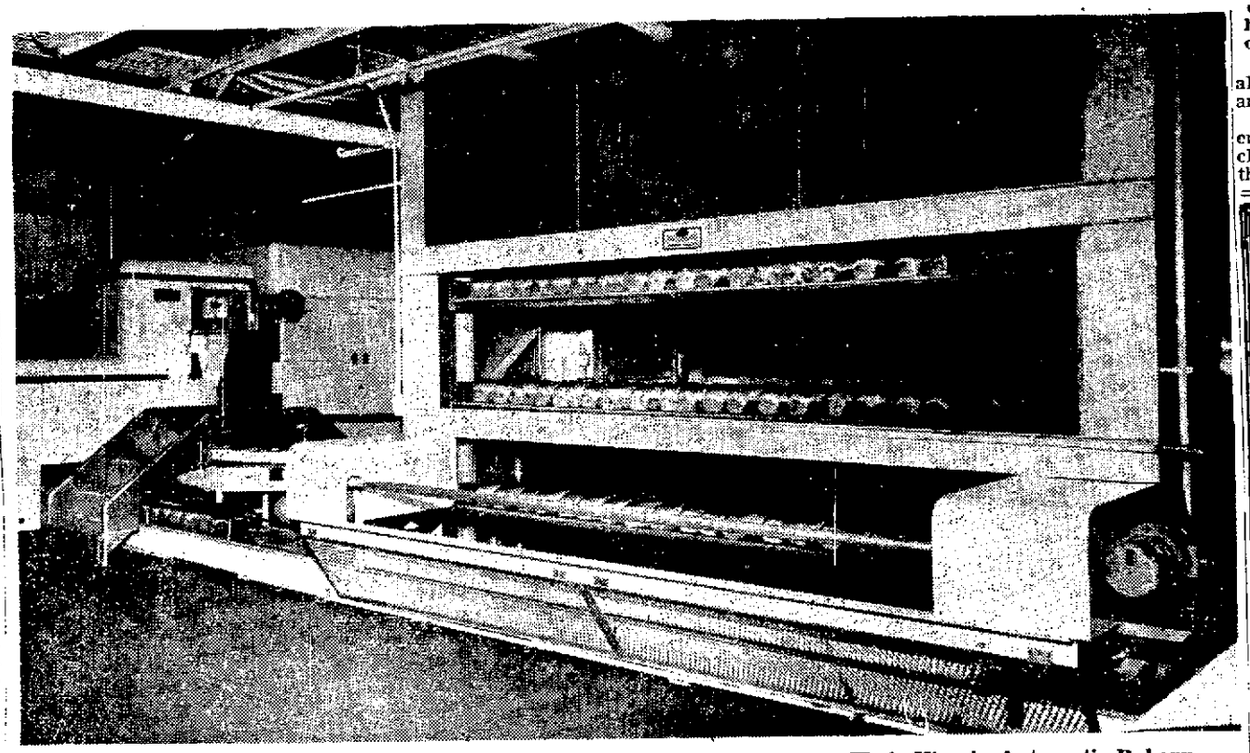

The automatic bakery is just another example of automation, a process that is much in the news these days.

Automation—the use of machines that do complex jobs formerly performed by human hands—is one of the most significant post-war industrial developments. Automation is the delight of manufacturers, a fighting word with unions, a puzzle to economists— and a cause for popeyed wonder for John Q. Public.

Automatic production basically is nothing new. Henry Ford revolutionized the automobile industry with it 40 years ago. Machines rendered the skilled glass-blower obsolete a half-century ago.

But today automatic machines are taking over an amazing variety of complex jobs that formerly required skilled hand labor.

In Harvard, Ill., a row of robots are producing television sets for Admiral Corp. At Rockford, Ill., a fully automatic factory, operated by the government, transforms steel bars into 155 mm shells without the aid of a human hand. In some industries —such as those producing gasoline, chemicals, and synthetics, automation has reached the point where the robots not only perform the job of production, but actually inspect their own products and correct their own mistakes.

CASE OF THE MISSING BAKER . . . Unattended Loaves Go Silently on Their Way in Automatic Bakery

The automatic bakery — there are several in the Long Beach area—has reached its peak of perfection in a giant plant over in the grimy southern reaches of Los Angeles.

Housed in a building that resembles a field house, the robot bakery is almost deserted even when running full blast. Only a few scattered employes man the complex production line at critical points. Most of the time they do nothing but watch; their function is to adjust the machines on the rare occasions when they develop a mechanical quirk.

Giant steel arms mix the dough in 1,500-lb. batches. Another machine cuts the dough into loaf-size pieces. A whirling merry-go-round device kneads it, sprinkles it with flour, and tosses it onto a moving conveyor. Other machines flatten the dough, roll it, shape it and dump it into a baking pan. Electric eyes keep an unwinking gaze on the conveyers, slowing them down, speeding them up to prevent any "traffic jams" on the constantly moving parade of pans. The robot can even call for help if things go wrong. Where the conveyor belt puts the pans in the oven, a warning bell sounds if the operation gets jammed up.

Automatic devices keep the temperature of the oven at precisely the same degree and each loaf stays in the oven exactly the same amount of time. Three machines take the finished loaves, slice them, and slap wrappers around them without any human help.

The robot bakery turns out 5,400 loaves an hour, or almost two loaves every second. It never tires, never sleeps, never complains, asks for a pay raise, or goes on a strike.

Automation is not limited to skilled and unskilled production jobs.

In the form of automatic computers, business machines, and electronic "brains"—like univac —it is invading the offices and taking over the jobs of white-collar workers. It is even encroaching in the field of engineering and designing.

Douglas Aircraft was able to put the big DC7 in the air six months ahead of schedule because of the efficiency of an electronic "brain" in working out complex aerodynamic problems. Before the war, these problems would have had to have been solved laboriously by engineers.

Critics of automation fear that automatic factories will be linked to automatic offices for an automatic business. What will happen, they ask, to all the workers thus displaced?

Friends of automation reply that automation makes jobs, rather than destroys them. They point to the fact that employment in the automobile industry, where automation is highly advanced—is at an all-time high. And it takes men to make and service the automatic machines.

Economists argue further that increased production and lower prices brought about by automation creates new jobs in new fields. While automation turns out more automobiles per man, the great stream of automobiles has created more jobs in highway construction, filling stations, garages, oil refineries, and so on.

Employment figures tend to refute—as of 1955—the contention that automation's robots are going to elbow man onto the relief rolls and hand him a welfare check spewed out by an IBM machine.

Employment today is near an all-time peak, and relief rolls are near an all-time low.

Over at the giant robot bakery the employment rolls give a clue to what is happening. While the automatic bakery doesn't have any flour-smudge bakers kneading the loaves, it employes 12 skilled and well-paid engineers for maintenance, repair, and emergency help to the robot baker. It gives work to a whole army of salesmen and provides jobs for auto repairmen to keep the great fleet of trucks running.

A boon for man or a threat, automation looks as if it is here to stay. You've probably never thought about it, but it already has invaded your home. It helped you to toast that bread that the robot bakery baked for you.

After all, what's a pop-up toaster but another example of automation, junior grade?

GM Prepares 'Attractive' Contract Plan

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Free Press said Saturday night there are indications General Motors is preparing to offer an "attractive" contract proposal to the CIO United Auto Workers within the next few days.

The newspaper said sources close to the current contract negotiations hinted the proposal would include a modified form of the guaranteed annual wage, which the union is seeking, and a wage increase of at least 6 cents an hour.

There was no immediate comment from either side. Contract talks will resume with General Motors on Monday.

McClellan Implies New U.S. Contract Scandals

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) announced Saturday that his Senate Investigating Subcommittee will begin public hearings Monday on alleged corruption in military uniform contracts totaling "several million dollars."

He said the charges involve "actual cash payments" between clothing manufacturers seeking defense contracts and Defense Department purchasing agents. He described it as "a fresh case" involving incidents since the Republican administration took over.

In at least one case, he said, a gift of a home freezer—reminiscent of the 1949 RFC "five percenter" scandals — was involved.

McClellan implied that the hearings would bring even more shocking disclosures than the RFC investigation, which shook the Democratic Truman administration. He said the alleged corruption "goes beyond just a deep freeze now and then."

Though he would give no details, McClellan said the investigation involves the Army, Navy and Air Force, and that at least 10 contracts for military raincoats, garrison caps and white sailor caps are involved.

Most of the contracts, he said, were let by the Armed Services Textile Procurement Agency, a consolidated purchasing unit which existed from July 1952 to October 1953.

He indicated the investigation is more concerned with the performance of the contracts than with the method of letting them.

The subcommittee already has taken closed-door testimony.

British Actress Dies Following Surgery

MANCHESTER, England (AP) —Betty Ann Davies, a leading British actress, died in a hospital here Saturday, six days after an appendix operation. She was 44.

During the London run of "A Streetcar Named Desire" she took over the part of Blanche de Bois from Vivien Leigh.

George Hints Scare Try by Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George (D-Ga) said Saturday the Pentagon may be trying to influence Senate consideration of the new military budget by stressing increases in Soviet aircraft production.

"I don't attach too much importance to it," George commented.

Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, said he had no information on a step-up in Russian production of jet bombers and fighters, as reported by the Defense Department, but said Senate committees "will want to go into the situation."

The Pentagon put out a cryptic statement Friday, with White House approval, saying that Russia was cutting into this country's lead in the production of heavy and medium jet bombers. This was followed Saturday by reports that the Soviets have increased their lead in turning out supersonic jet fighters.

George, who is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, suggested in an interview that the Pentagon data "may be intended to have some influence on the Senate's consideration of the military budget."

The House passed to 31½-billion-dollar budget Thursday night, in substantially the form requested by the administration, and the next move is up to the Senate.

George recalled that Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, NATO commander, recently testified before the Foreign Relations Committee that Russia's air fleet does not measure up to this country's. He said he didn't know if Gruenther had "changed his mind," but commented that he should be in a better position to know what the Russians have than almost anyone else.

The Pentagon announcement noted that Russia had been parading heavy and medium jet bombers and a new all-weather fighter over Moscow.

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff, told the Senate Armed Services Committee last Feb. 24 that the Russians had two new jet bombers that represent a considerable technological gain for the Soviets.

Air Academy Designs Stir Mixed Views

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Architectural designs for the Air Force academy to be built in the shadow of Pikes Peak were unwrapped Saturday amid mixed reactions from congressmen flown out from Washington.

The architects said the buildings "through their great simplicity of design are timeless in their architecture."

But some of the score of senators and representatives tabbed the designs "heavenly," "radical" or "modern and futuristic."

One, Rep. Hardy (D-Va), told a reporter he heard someone say "the academy looks like a modernistic cigarette factory. I'm not saying that's my idea but let's call it unique."

Sen. Welker (R-Idaho) described the design to a newsman as "heavenly. I have nothing but thrills in my heart for the cadets who will enjoy this academy." He said he thought the design for the buildings to cost 58 million dollars should include "more western architecture—more good red, Colorado stone."

The models were unveiled at the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center by Secretary of Air Harold E. Talbott. Nearly 100 newsmen flown from throughout the country viewed the designs after the congressional preview.

The rolling pine-covered Rocky Mountain foothills where the academy will be built seven miles north of Colorado Springs were termed by the architects as "50 per cent of the design."

The buildings for the nation's third service academy will be constructed of combinations of aluminum, stainless steel, glass and marble, travertine and native granite.

Butler Raps 'Mishandling' of Vaccine

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler charged Saturday the administration has "mishandled" the program for Salk polio vaccine. He was promptly assailed for "playing politics with a desperately serious situation."

Butler made his statement in a speech before a Democratic group in Cleveland. He coupled it with a general blast against the administration's health, welfare and other programs.

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N. J.) said Butler's speech was "disgraceful." Smith is the top Republican on the Senate labor and public welfare committee.

Butler said the administration has taken no effective action to assure a fair distribution of the vaccine. He charged that Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, secretary of health, education and welfare, had devised a "haphazard distribution of this new discovery" with doctors and drug manufacturers.

The political wrangle swirled around the program midst reports that Mrs. Hobby will soon leave the government, not because of her part in the vaccine program but because of her husband's health. He is 77 and has been ill for several years. The reports were discounted in some informed quarters.

Mrs. Hobby herself said she would have "no comment" on the resignation report.

German Vote Tests Strength of Adenauer

MAINZ, Germany (AP) — Pro-western Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and the opposition Socialists test their strength today in their first election battle since West Germany won sovereignty and joined the Atlantic alliance.

The state of Rhineland-Palatinate chooses a new parliament. The big issue is Adenauer's unswerving policy of armed alliance with the west.

He has called on this state's two million voters to endorse unqualified integration with the free world. The Socialists are plumping for a new look in Bonn's foreign policy — freedom from alliances with either east or west.

The election results could have a profound influence on rearmament. Adenauer needs to win in order to be sure of a two-thirds majority in the federal Bundesrat (upper house) for legislation approving conscription of the 500,000-man Wehrmacht he promised to his Atlantic alies.

Probe Opens Monday on A-Sub Lag

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson disclosed Saturday an atomic energy subcommittee will investigate his charge that the Navy is "dragging its feet" on shifting to atomic-powered submarines.

The Washington Democrat said in an interview that he has called Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, to appear before atomic military applications subcommittee next Tuesday. Jackson is chairman of the subcommittee.

Carney will be asked to explain, Jackson said, why the Navy wants to continue building conventional submarines in view of the success of the atomic-powered Nautilus.

Jackson said the Navy's attitude toward atomic submarines "seems to be typical of the foot-dragging within the Navy over taking full advantage of atomic power."

Aside from the Nautilus, now undergoing extensive sea trials, the Navy has one other atomic submarine—the Sea Wolf—under construction. Two more atomic submarines were authorized in last year's defense budget, and three more are requested in the new defense budget. In addition, the Navy is requesting money to build five conventional submarines.

Seek Nature's Own Cancer Foe

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP) — Within the body is an unknown force to resist cancer, and it must be harnessed, a New York surgeon told leaders in his field Saturday.

If science can find this "defensive mechanism set within our body to destroy cancer cells," great strides will be made toward curing the disease, said Dr. Alfred A. Strauss, senior attending surgeon at Mt. Reese and Mt. Sinai Hospitals in New York.

He was one of the speakers at the all-day conference of the International College of Surgeons at Jersey City.

U.S. Cultural Film Collection Planned

Sheriff Calls for Help as Women Riot

FAYETTEVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Lincoln County Sheriff Eugene S. Barnes Saturday night called for help to quell 25 rioting women strikers he had arrested earlier. The uprising subsided later when the women accepted $500 bonds posted by their husbands.

"They are about to tear our jail down," Barnes said. He reported he was unable to contact the governor, and highway patrolmen in the area refused to act without orders. He said a crowd had gathered outside the jail.

The women, who at first refused offers of bond from their husbands, had been picketing the strikebound Serbin garment factory. They were charged with violation of an injunction which prohibits unrestricted picketing within a 1,000-foot radius of the Serbin plant.

The strike began April 19. Owner Lou Serbin earlier threatened to cease operation here until labor peace is restored.

Barnes said the women went to jail voluntarily and first milled around the "bullpen" eating sandwiches provided by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union. Later, he said, they became unruly and smashed windows and soft drink bottles.

Judge Refuses to Vacate Sentences of Finn Twins

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Federal District Judge Edward P. Murphy today refused a motion to vacate the sentences of the flying Finn twins and declared bluntly he had no intention of "falling prey to the idiocy of the moment" and give in to public clamor.

The twins, George and Charles Finn, currently are on a hunger strike in the Federal Medical Center at Springfield, Mo., as a protest against the one-year sentence imposed by Murphy for handcuffing a U. S. attorney.

In their petition, submitted by mail to Judge Murphy, the brothers asked that their sentence be set aside because their offense was "no more than a technicality at most."

The judge, in brushing aside the motion, said the Finns were guilty "beyond any question of a doubt."

"Their trial was eminenetly fair," he said.

Murphy added he had no intention of modifying the sentence, pointing out that their sentence was already a lenient one in view of the fact their offense made them liable for a maximum of nine years and a $10,000 fine.

The twins case was brought to President Eisenhower's attention Saturday.

Rep. James Roosevelt (D-Calif) urged Mr. Eisenhower to exercise executive clemency. He said he was joining Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif) in the request.

British Deny Yank Skater Work Permit

LONDON (UP) — The British government has refused American ice skater Patricia Firth a work permit to appear in a forthcoming ice show here.

A spokesman for show promoter Claude Langdon said the Ministry of Labor's ruling has been sent "regretfully" to Miss Firth at her home in Seattle, Wash.

Labor Ministry officials could not be reached for comment.

The decision, however, appeared to be in line with the policy that work permits can be granted to foreigners only when comparable British talent is not available.

Miss Firth was to have appeared in the ice show, "Wildfire," scheduled to open June 16 at London's Empress Hall. The producers said they would find a replacement.

Honor Hero in Air Tragedy

A collection of special stamps, issued by Nicaragua in honor of Capt. Dean L. Ray, was presented to his widow, Mrs. Carmen Isabelle Ray of Sun Valley, Saturday afternoon at the Long Beach Air Force Base.

Capt. Ray was honored by the special stamp issue bearing his picture after he sacrificed his life by staying with his plane rather than bail out and allow it to crash into a heavily populated area of Managua, Nicaragua.

In addition to the stamp collection, Mrs. Ray received a personal letter from Anastacio Somoza, president of the Central American republic, praising her husband for his heroic act.

Capt. Ray was one of a group of Air Force pilots on a good will tour of the Latin America when his plane developed engine trouble over the capital city. He managed to maneuver it away from the populated area of the city and crashed into an open area.

The presentation was made to Mrs. Ray in the office of Col. Thomas L. Wiper, base commander, by Roberto Membreno, consulat general of Nicaragua and Ronald Molieri, vice consul of Los Angeles.

Part of West Hit by Dust, Snow Storms

By Associated Press

Snow and dust storms buffeted parts of the West Saturday while sunshine warmed the upper Great Lakes area and the Mississippi Valley.

South central Idaho was in the throes of an unseasonable cold snap which was expected to last through Sunday. Snow was reported in many Idaho communities, but continued winds prevented frosts. The temperature dipped to 30 at Twin Falls Friday night, while Gooding, Idaho, reported .44 inches of rain.

In Utah, wind-whipped dust from the Great Salt Lake Basin churned as high as 20,000 feet in the air, according to commercial plane pilots. Salt Lake City was shrouded in dust. Visibility at the Salt Lake airport was down to one mile Saturday.

At Elko, Nev., there was two inches of snow on the ground at noon, snow was still falling and the temperature was 32. Just ahead of the cool air across central Utah and western Colorado strong southerly winds blew. At Milford, Utah, gusts exceeded 70 mph.

The plai is states were partly cloudy and warm Saturday, except in the extreme North where somewhat cooler temperatures and scattered showers moved into North Dakota. Temperatures from Texas to the Carolina border mostly were in the 70s and 80s, but South Dallas, Tex., reported 91 at noon Saturday.

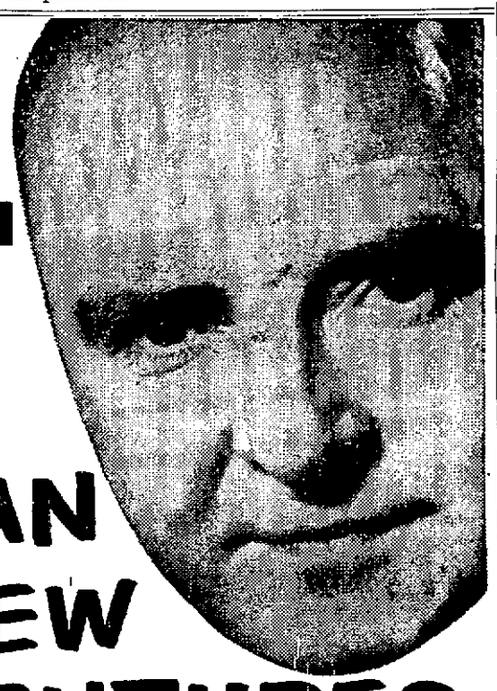

BOIN-N-N-G!

Tuned up for the Long Beach Unified District elementary school festival Tuesday at 7:45 p.m. in Municipal Auditorium is Ronnie Herlacher, 9, a Buffum School fourth grader. Nearly 600 instrumentalists and 649 glee club members will participate in the concert. The all-city school orchestra and a dance group from Gant School will perform.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Fiery Hay Tossed Off Onto Street

PARAMOUNT—Ten tons of burning hay were strewn along six blocks of Paramount Blvd. early Saturday after someone apparently threw a cigaret onto a hay truck.

The truck driver, Ken Carpenter, 36, of 8836 Vans Ave., told sheriff's deputies he had parked the truck to have coffee when a man ran up and told him his truck was on fire.

Enlisting the aid of two passersby, Carpenter drove the truck for six blocks while the men threw the hay into the street. Firemen soaked it with hoses. Carpenter said the hay was too wet to have ignited by spontaneous combustion. He assumed someone threw a cigaret into it.

Victim Critical

The condition of Ray Van Woert, who was shot in a gun duel over a divorcee's affections, still was listed as critical at Harbor General Hospital Saturday night.

The 29-year-old sailor was wounded Friday when he exchanged shots with Eddie V. Leon, 31, of Lawndale at the home of Mrs. Edith Cool in Lawndale.

Killed by Pipe

SAN PEDRO—Patrick Nieto, 43, a Compton longshoreman was killed early Saturday when he was struck by a piece of pipe in the hold of the SS Weyerhauser on Terminal Island.

Nieto died in Seaside Hospital about an hour after a 1,464-pound piece of pipe fell on him after he was pinned between two other pieces.

Sailor Seriously Beaten by Pair

A 20-year-old sailor was in serious condition at Corona Naval Hospital after he and a companion were beaten early Saturday by two men as they got into a car near Magnolia Ave. and Seaside Blvd.

Doctors said plastic surgery may be required for Joe E. Virgil who had pieces of teeth imbedded in his jawbone. His companion, Johnny Barajos, 19, suffered bruises. Both are of the U.S. St. Paul.

Two Fullerton men, Joe V. Luna, 24, of 413 E. Truslow, and Luis N. Lopex, 20, of 204½ E. Truslow St., were arrested by police on charges of assault with a deadly weapon. The sailors said the attack was unprovoked.

LOVE IS . . . .

30-Year-Old Blind Couple Wed Today

VENICE, Calif. (AP)—A blind couple who met on a bus ride to an opera performance will be married today.

Mrs. Jane E. Agele and Kenneth E. Bruce, 30-year-old Venice residents, will exchange vows at Oneonta Congregational Church in South Pasadena.

They met on the bus ride from the Braille Institute in Los Angeles to Glendale six weeks ago. Mrs. Agele, who has two children by a former marriage, told a reporter:

"We were out on the Ocean Park pier for a walk with our guide dogs when he proposed. He is the best one-armed dog driver I ever saw. He had one arm around me and the other on the leash."

Bruce's German shepherd, Andy, and Mrs. Agele's collie, Winnie, led them last Monday to the marriage license bureau in nearby Santa Monica.

EASY CO. LEARNS MARKSMANSHIP

'Maggie's Drawers' Stop Waving

(This is one of a series of articles on the basic training of the Long Beach Platoon at Fort Ord.)

By PFC DON BURNS

FORD ORD — Control tower instructions came tersely over the Public Address system:

"Ready on the right . . . ready on the left . . . ready on the firing line. The flag is up . . . the flag is waving . . . the flag is down. You have five seconds. commence firing!"

Wham! The air was shattered by the whining clatter of 150 M-1 rifles as Easy Company and the Long Beach Platoon of the 20th Infantry Regiment began the most important phase of basic Infantry training.

It was a hard week for Easy's soldiers. Every day was spent on the range, first firing for familiarization, then for official record. It was out of the sack at 4 a. m. each morning. When the breaking dawn lighted the range sufficiently to see the targets, the firing began.

Fort Ord's K. D. (known distance) range is the largest of the 18 ranges which run for more than five miles along the beach parallel to Hwy. 1. Firing lines are placed at 100, 200, 300, 400 and 500 yards from the targets. Targets are run up on pulleys from concrete pits. Behind the pits is a high sand dune to stop the slugs.

Firing in two-man teams, the trainees fire in prone, sitting, kneeling and offhand positions, first in slow fire, then rapid fire

"Squeeze that trigger, don't jerk it!" cried the instructors a thousand times. "Like a lemon, like a lemon, squeeze!"

Officers and noncoms of the 6th Infantry Division Faculty Rifle Committee ran up and down the lines relaying messages telephoned from the pit and helping the trainees with their positions and firing techniques. The committeemen were exacting but their lessons were personalized.

"These instructors do more than just help us into good firing positions," explained Pvt. Bobbie E. Thomas, 21, husband of Mrs. Phyllis Jean Thomas, 4414 Long Beach Blvd. "They know we are nervous and uneasy. They do a lot to help calm us down so we can fire and hit the target."

The red flag—"Maggie's Drawers"—waved for many men firing their first rounds of live 30-caliber ammunition. The red flag waves when a target is missed completely.

However, it didn't take long for the Long Beach soldiers to settle down with the M-1 rifle. By week's end the red flag was hardly seen on the range. In its place was the big cartwheel, signaling a bull's-eye.

Dinner was a new Army experience for Easy Co. soldiers. They ate at the field kitchen behind the range. The men who served them their meals were also students of the Sixth Army Food School.

Taking their trays through the outdoor serving line, the trainees picked out spots on the ground and sat Indian-fashion. "We had a real floor show each time we ate out there," Pvt. Robert D. McLean, 17, son of Mrs. E. L. McLean, 3940 Jay St., said. "We watched beautiful civilian cars drive down Hwy. 1."

The Long Beach men pumped lead from dawn to dusk and there wasn't much chance for recreation later. There was a cleaning chore waiting. Steel brush, bore cleaner, oil, linseed for the stock, then lay that M-1 in the rack with careful hands.

'READY ON THE RIGHT . . .'

Galveston Mayor May Back Down on 'Reform' Plan

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—There were indications Saturday that Mayor-elect George Roy Clough may have backed down on his announced plan to re-establish Galveston's red light district.

He announced he would have no more public statements until he takes office next Tuesday. Last Tuesday he announced he would order all prostitutes confined to the district which was abolished about two years ago.

Opposition came from the district attorney, Marsene Johnson; the police and fire commissioner, Walter L. Johnston, and the Galveston Ministerial Assn.

New Larceny Ring Uncovered

NEW YORK (AP) — Authorities in Queens are investigating a new kind of larceny operation—a ring of baptism certificate thieves.

The disclose came with the arrest of 16-year-old Charles Milori, who was found to possess a driver"s license listing his age as 18—the age required to obtain a license without the consent of parents.

An assistant district attorney, who questioned Milori, quoted the lad as saying:

"All the kids in Queens do it. There's a gang that steals baptism certificates. You buy one from the guy and fill it in and take it down to the motor vehicle bureau."

Tests to Determine Merits of Courses

IOWA CITY, Iowa (U.P.)—Some 2,000 University of Iowa students will be tested Monday in a study of the merits of broad, general courses compared with specialized studies.

Dean Dewey B. Stuit of the college of liberal arts and sciences said the tests will help determine which kind of courses provide the more adequate background.

Bare Plans for Biggest Atom Power Plant

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (U.P.)—An atomic specialist said Saturday that a newly designed atomic power reactor would be "a major advance toward the economic generation of electricity from atomic energy."

Francis K. McCune, vice president and general manager of General Electric Co.'s atomic products division, said that one of these new dual-cycle boiling reactors will power the proposed full-scale nuclear electric generating station GE will build for the Commonwealth Edison Co.

The Commonwealth plant, subject to Atomic Energy Commission approval, will be built near Chicago. Plans for the plant set the generating capacity at 180,000 kilowatts—"the largest all-nuclear station yet scheduled," McCune said.

The new GE power reactor design will be able to produce several times as much power in a given size as its predecessor, the direct boiling reactor, the GE official disclosed.

McCune described the GE reactor as capable of being used without heat exchangers by generating steam directly inside the reactor core, thus eliminating the need for high operating pressures and temperatures used in liquid water cooled power reactors.

Mental Patients Write, Act TV Show

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Scenes from a historical drama written, staged and acted by mental patients will be seen by the public for the first time tonight over the NBC television network.

The play, "Cry of Humanity," was put together by patients at Saint Elizabeth's Hospital here and is the first performance of its kind on TV. The program begins at 10 p.m. (Eastern Daylight Time).

The play was received so enthusiastically recently by a select hospital theater audience of 1200 persons that Dr. Winfred Overholser, hospital superintendent, decided it would be opened to the public.

"I am sure that it will lead to a much better understanding of the problems of mental illness in America," Dr. Overholser said. "Its therapeutic value to the patients who developed it and who are playing in it is beyond question. It has given many of them a new sense of purpose and hope."

The play will be presented as the feature of the March of Medicine program sponsored by the American Medical Association and the Smith, Kline and French Laboratories. The patients consented to appear after permission was granted by their relatives, guardians or physicians.

"Cry of Humanity" is based on the life and times of Dorothea Lynde Dix who was responsible for the establishment of Saint Elizabeth's and other mental hospitals. It is a story of the problems of the mentally ill from early times to the present.

The play was presented last week at an anniversary meeting of internationally known psychiatrists and other mental health authorities at Hitchcock Hall, and Dr. Overholser said "it brought down the house."

Dr. Gregory Zilboorg, professor of clinical psychiatry at New York State University college of medicine, described the performance as "the resuscitation of a spiritual drive all too rare today."

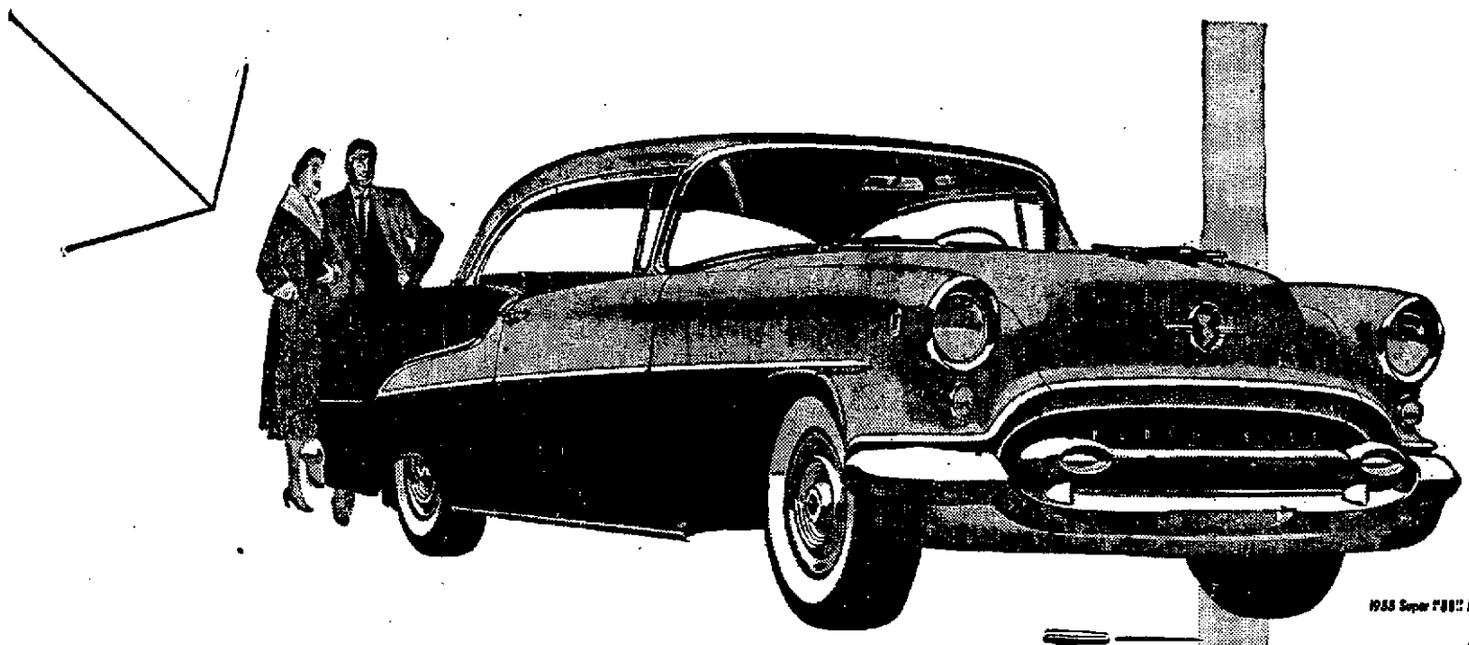

Dr. Overholser said many of the performers voiced belief that presentation of the play on TV would benefit the mentally disturbed wherever it is shown.

POETS GET TOGETHER

300 Poets, Poetesses Hold Conclave Here

Three hundred poets, men and women, this week end are attending the 16th annual convention of the California Federation of Chaparral Poets in the Lafayette Hotel.

Official hostess is Lyra LuVaile, president of LuVailian Chapter of Long Beach, author of a new book of verse, "Rhythm and Euphony."

Edythe Hope Genee of Hollywood, state president, is presiding.

Dr. Kenneth Oliver, chairman of the English department of Occidental College, Saturday afternoon addressed the group on "Peace of Soul Through Poetry."

"Man, with much too barren interests, seeks for values beyond his grasp," said Dr. Oliver, "Failing to grasp some of them, he decides they are ungraspable. He accepts things as they are, and finds that they are good after all. That is akin to the peace of soul through poetry."

Dr. Louis Mertins of Redlands, former Long Beach resident, addressed the convention last night on "Why Poetry?"

A verse play, "The Nature Poets," compiled from excerpts of 43 poems appearing in the American Bard Magazine, was presented by a group of verse writers.

How to write salable poems was discussed in a morning panel session.

Today the Chaparral Poets will have a boat trip through the harbor and lunch at Knott's Berry Farm.

Red 'NATO' Puts Satellite Armies Under Russ General

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Soviet Union and seven east European Communist states set up a unified military command Saturday to counter the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Soviet Marshal Ivan Konev was made supreme commander, with headquarters in Moscow.

The eight allies signed a 20-year mutual security and friendship treaty and a protocol grouping their military forces under a single command. Konev, the deputy Soviet defense minister, has been a Communist party member for 37 years.

The treaty ceremonies took place in a white and marble hall of Poland's parliament building. Premiers of the eight nations — the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania, Albania and East Germany—signed the documents.

Later, nearly 100,000 cheering resident of Warsaw jammed into Tzierdzinsky Square and heard top Communist leaders hail the new treaty as "a move for world peace."

Premier Nikolai Bulganin of the Soviet Union declared the Paris accords rearming West Germany sponsored "a new and dangerous militarism."

"We want peace," he cried, "but we will defend our countries by all means."

The loudest cheers and applause came when Bulganin told the crowd of Konev's appointment as supreme commander. He reminded the crowd that it was Konev who led the armies which liberated much of Poland from the Nazis.

(Western diplomats believe the Russians have been in over-all command of their satellites' armed forces for some time and that today's Warsaw action does not change the existing situation.

(But the pact gives Russians a legal framework under which Soviet troops can remain in the satellite nations through individual treaties between the Soviet Union and each country).

Tito Bid Said Russian Move in Cold War

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland Saturday viewed Russia's "peace mission" to Yugoslavia as a move to strengthen Russia's bargaining hand in Big Four talks.

Chairman Walter F. George (D-Ga.) of the Senate foreign relations committee, said he thought the move was primarily part of Russia's "intense efforts" to persuade newly-free West Germany not to rearm and to remain neutral.

In separate talks with newsmen, both agreed that one purpose of the scheduled "peace mission" is to get assurances from Tito that he will remain neutral in the east-west cold war.

"We can't lose sight of the fact," Knowland said, "that if the Soviets come to what they feel are satisfactory agreements with Austria and Yugoslavia, they will free some of their divisions to use some other place."

He said this would confront the Western allies with "greater force on a narrower front" and put Russia in a stronger bargaining position at Big Four conferences.

George warned that the United States may have to "re-evaluate" its aid program to Communist Yugoslavia if Marshal Tito resumes more friendly relations with Moscow.

"I don't think he'll change," George added. "Tito has never been much more than a neutral."

The Californian and the Georgian were commenting on the Moscow announcement that Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai A. Bulganin and Communist Party Secretary Nikita S. Khruschev will head a "peace mission" to Yugoslavia late this month.

"I doubt that the Communists would send such a high level delegation unless they had a reasonable belief that they were going to come out of it with an agreement satisfactory to the Soviet Union," Knowland said.

Salk's Findings Seen as Just Beginning

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (U.P.)—Vice-Admiral Ross T. McIntyre, former personal physician to President Roosevelt, predicted Saturday that discovery of the Salk polio vaccine will pave the way for elimination of influenza, liver disorders and even some "massive killers."

Speaking at the opening of the International College of Surgeons conference at the medical center here, McIntyre warned that "all people will have to use some tolerance" with the vaccine program until 100 per cent immunization is possible.

Segregation Quietly Ends in 500 Schools

NEW YORK (UP)—Segregation has been abolished peacefully in 500 schools across the country, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People reported Saturday.

Nearly 250,000 Negro and white children are attending classes together in schools that formerly were segregated, the NAAC said.

School desegregation has been initiated in the District of Columbia and Baltimore, in 2 towns in Arkansas, 29 counties in West Virginia, 30 communities in Missouri, 5 towns in Delaware, 6 cities in Kansas and scattered communities in Arizona and New Mexico, the organization found.

The NAACP survey was released to mark the first anniversary of the Supreme Court ruling outlawing segregation in public schools. The ruling was made last May 17.

The 250,000 children attending desegregated schools are only a minority of the 9,821,000 white and 2,397,000 Negro children enrolled in schools in segregated areas, the NAACP said. But it pointed out that the desegregation has been voluntary, because the Supreme Court decision found segregation unconstitutional but did not direct any school system to desegregate immediately.

Included in the 500 desegregated schools, the association said, are those located in four of the six communities involved in cases ruled on by the Supreme Court.

"Following the decision, Washington, D. C., initiated desegregation," the report said. "Earlier the Topeka, Kans., school board voted to 'terminate segregation in the elementary schools as rapidly as practicable.' The two school districts in the Delaware case already had admitted Negro pupils in compliance with a state Supreme Court ruling. Only Clarendon County, S. C., and Prince Edward County, Va., have refused to heed the court's decision."

The report said there had been some demonstrations of resistance that have been widely publicized — in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Milford, Del., Baltimore and Washington.

"However, for every Milford incident, there have been scores of unheralded instances of Negro children being welcomed by their new white schoolmates and teachers," the NAACP said.

"Indeed, this has been the rule; the hate demonstrations, the exception."

The survey found that parochial schools, while not subject to the court ruling, have not only complied with it but in some cases have anticipated it. This was particularly so in Catholic schools in Washington and St. Louis, the report said.

Also, in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Virginia and North Carolina, Catholic schools and occasionally Protestant schools "opened their doors to students without regard to race or color."

Indians in the southwestern states have benefited from the ruling too, the NAACP said. Indian children are now attending public schools in New Mexico whereas they previously had been confined to reservations.

AEC ORDER MEETS MILD OPPOSITION

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — In December, 1953, a town council resolution asking the end of school segregation in this federal atomic community nearly caused the ouster of the council chairman. About 70 percent of the population have grown up in the South.

Now, 16 months later, an Atomic Energy Commission order that segregation actually be ended in junior and senior high schools after the current school year has met what appears at most only mild opposition.

There is some opposition. C. A. Golden, for example, has talked of petitioning the AEC to the effect that parents won't send their children to school attended by Negroes. Golden is a P-T Association official in a school which would not be affected by the order.

And at least two Negro families have said they would move away rather than send their children to integrated schools.

At Scarboro School, Mrs. Arizona Officer—the Negro principal—expressed general optimism.

"A couple of Negro families told me they thought they would move away from Oak Ridge rather than send their children to an integrated school," she said. "But for the most part, I think the students and their parents are looking forward to it."

Latest Thing in Aircraft is a 'Barrel'

WASHINGTON (AP)—An aviation magazine Saturday described a strange Franco-German "flying barrel" said to be capable of "speed-of-sound vertical takeoff" and cruising at twice the speed of sound.

Aero Digest said the so-called circular-wing aircraft is "the biggest jolt since jets to modern aerodynamics."

It said the flying barrel has been wind-tunnel tested, but so far as is known has not yet actually been flown. It added that the craft has potential value as a transport and "immediate significance" as a fighter plane.

Aero Digest described the flying barrel in these terms:

The machine, known as a coleopter, resembles a barrel open at both ends. It stands on end for vertical takeoff like a rocket, then gradually arcs over to fly horizontally.

The pilot's compartment and power plant are inside the barrel or runnel of the coleopter.

Warn Whites About Native Ire in Saigon

SAIGON, Indochina (UP) — French troops sealed off Saigon's European sector Saturday and warned all its residents to stay indoors during anti-colonial demonstrations called for today by South Viet Nam's revolutionary junta.

Gen. Paul Ely, commander of the French expeditionary corps, ordered his 40,000 battle-tested troops to smash any attempt at anti-European violence during the demonstration. The French force will be backed by 400 tanks and armored cars.

Blaring sound trucks circulated through Saigon and the suburb of Cholon calling on the capital's 2,000 residents to converge on the market place at 9 a. m.

The sound trucks bore insignia showing they had been provided under U. S. aid funds.

Singapore Paper Blames Police in Death of UP Writer

SINGAPORE (UP)—A government report said Saturday that police at a nearby roadblock and in a passing patrol car had other emergency duties and were unable to aid United Press Correspondent Gene Symonds when he was fatally beaten by rioters Thursday.

The Chinese-owned Singapore Standard said that Symonds, UP manager for southeast Asia, met his death because Singapore police were "ordered to take kid-glove methods to deal with a bloodthirsty mob."

Armed British hussars, Royal Air Force patrolmen and Gurkha troops patrolled the city of Singapore Saturday to prevent further riots by strikers and Chinese students. The rioters have caused the deaths of four persons, including Symonds, since Thursday.

The government statement said that Symonds passed through two roadblocks on the way to a riot scene Thursday night and told police he would take "full responsibility."

The nearest roadblock to the scene of the attack on Symonds was about 330 yards, the government statement said. Police on the roadblock were ordered to maintain the position and could not leave their posts. A radio car passed Symonds after the attack on its way to another riot and called urgently for an ambulance.

However, Symonds was picked up by a police van and taken to the hospital before the ambulance arrived. The newsman died Friday morning of multiple injuries, including a fractured skull and a broken left arm and leg. The mob beat him with clubs, bottles and stones, eyewitnesses told police.

Officials of the Hock Lee bus service and the bus line workers union announced Saturday night they had reached an agreement ending the strike which started the riots.

The official statement on Symonds' death said that the newsman left the American Club shortly after 11 p.m. Thursday and went in a taxi to his apartment to pick up a camera.

Then he proceeded by taxi through two roadblocks to the scene of the riot. Shortly after leaving the police roadblock Symonds gave the taxi driver his business card and told him if anything happened to go to police.

He stopped the taxi and walked toward a large band of shouting, gesticulating rioters. When he was only a short distance from the rioters Symonds turned and ran back toward the cab, but was attacked before he could reach the vehicle.

The rioters broke the taxi's windshield and attacked the driver, who escaped to report the attack to police at the roadblock.

The Singapore Standard blamed the newly elected Singapore government for indecisiveness in handling the mobs.

"Gene Symonds was at the scene to do his job as a newspaperman and he died in the line of duty," the newspaper said. "Neither he nor Constable Teo (one of two police officers killed) would have died if the police had not been ordered to take kid-glove methods to deal with a bloodthirsty mob."

Salesmen Selling 'Short'—on Shrubs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Residents of suburban Bethesda and Silver Spring, Md., are complaining to police about a door-to-door salesman who has been selling them trees and shrubbery without roots. One red maple was found to be a neatly sawed-off tree stuck in a tin can.

A-Expert Offers Aid to Japanese

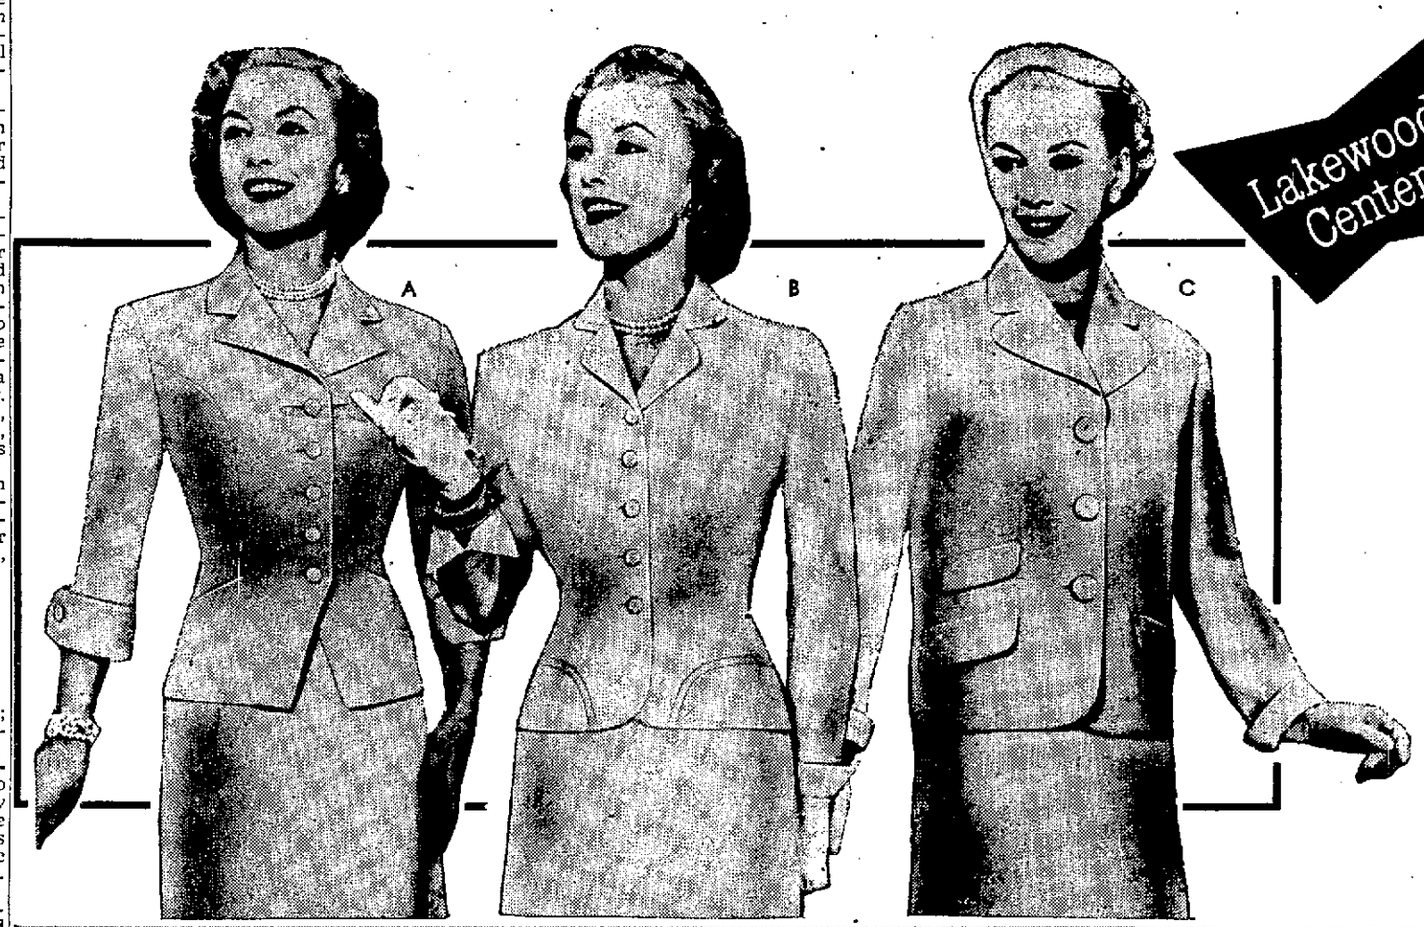

TOKYO (UP)—One of America's top atomic experts today offered to share peacetime use of atomic energy with Japanese industrialists and scientists.

John Jay Hopkins, president of the company that built the first atomic submarine, told the Japan Atoms-for-Peace Council that atomic energy can bring peace and prosperity to the Japanese people, "such as they never had before."

Hopkins and two of America's foremost nuclear scientists arrived Tuesday on an unprecedented mission to help Japan's atomic energy research program.

Ace Student Held Without Bond in Killing

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Richard Kluckhohn, 21, brilliant student and son of Harvard University teachers, was held without bond Sunday on a charge of murder. The young gun fancier was accused of firing a pistol through his downtown hotel room window and killing a woman waiting for her automobile in a parking lot Friday.

Kluckhohn, who was graduated from the University of Chicago with a degree in anthropology at the age of 18 and had been doing graduate work there, will say it was "entirely an accident" when he is given a hearing early next week, the office of his lawyer said here. A policeman also quoted him as saying a pistol discharged accidentally as he was toying with it in his hotel room.

His father, Clyde M. M. Kluckhohn, anthropologist and director of the Russian Research Center at Harvard, was in California, but intends to return east at once, a friend of the family said in Boston. His mother, Dr. Florence Rockwood Kluckhohn, a lecturer in sociology at Harvard, planned to come here.

The bizarre Friday-the-13th slaying interrupted plans of young Kluckhohn for a June wedding with a classmate.

The victim—a woman he didn't know—was Miss Bernice Seawell, 43, of Arlington, Va.

Patrolman G. R. Creel of Chapel Hill, who arrested Kluckhohn at the request of Raleigh police, quoted him as saying a pistol discharged accidentally as he was toying with it in his hotel room.

Police said, however, that when Kluckhohn was returned here, he would say nothing.

EACH GLOBEMASTER A MIRACLE

Douglas Workers Long Will Remember C-124

Officials at Douglas Aircraft Co.'s Long Beach Division announced last week that the plant had delivered its last C124 Globemaster and would begin immediate production of a newer, greater transport—the C133.

But for thousands of Douglas workers, who felt a deep, personal pride each time one of the huge, lumbering monsters lifted off the runway in its maiden flight, the Globemaster won't easily be forgotten.

The largest transport in military service, the Globemaster presented production problems that at times seemed insurmountable.

To many workers, who saw the ships' component parts—wings, tail, fuselage, engines—merge together and finally take to the air like an office building on wings, each of the 445 Globemasters built here constituted a separate miracle.

STARS IN MOVIES

The big plane was one of the stars in the motion pictures "Strategic Air Command" and "Jump into Hell." It was a favorite of the public and no air show was complete without the metal monster on display.

Douglas people recall many incidents—some tragic, others humorous — in connection with the Globemasters.

Like the time a ship was moved out to be placed over wing ramps and its landing gear collapsed on one side, sending a huge wing crashing down.

There was much excitement, but little damage.

On another occasion, 12 workers were stationed inside a ship's nose to provide ballast to keep the engineless plane level.

When the noon whistle blew, the workers unthinkingly rushed out of the plane to go to lunch. Too late, they turned and watched helplessly as the ship's nose rose majestically in the air and the tail smashed down on the work stands.

The ships even proved attractive to birds, who settled happily down in nests built in the trailing edges of the wings of planes stored on the field.

CREATED TALL TALES

They were big planes and they created some tall tales in the making.

Chuck Milner, Department 288, remembers the time he crawled inside a wing tank.

"The wing was set on edge," he said. "And then I forgot how to get out. I had to send a message to the outside world by carrier mouse."

And Bob Cadnum, Department 507, recalls:

"How about those indoor rainstorms we caused every time we functioned the windshield wipers."

Think that's windy? Just a breeze compared with what Frank Saylors, Department 586, figures.

"We've hung over 1,788 propellers," he said, "and if the planes were lined up and all the props started, they would create enough wind to blow Long Beach right off the map with hurricane velocity."

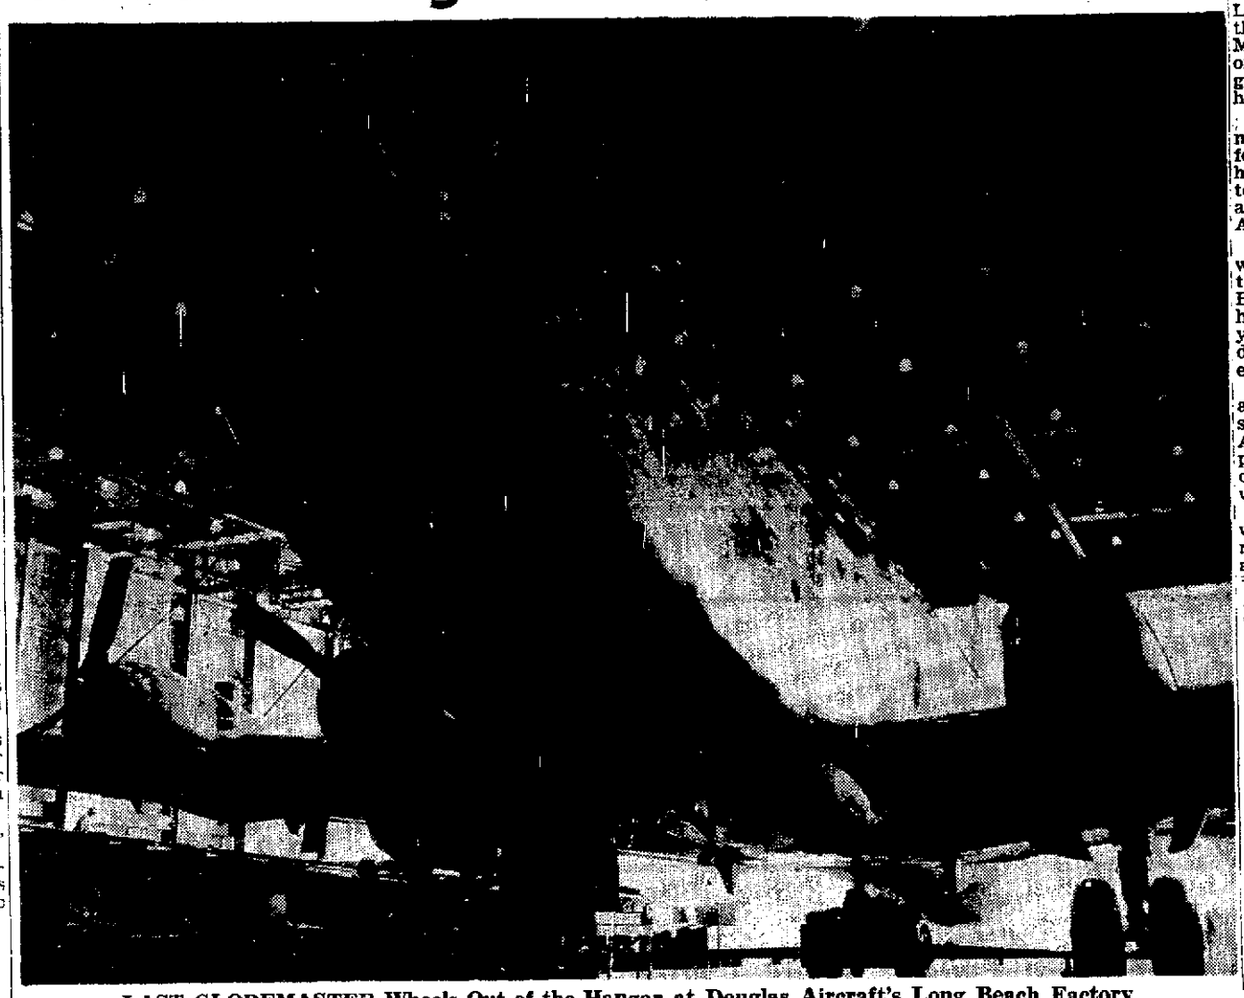

Statistics of the Globemaster indicate its impressive size.

The ship has a gross weight of 185,000 pounds and can carry a payload of 55,000 pounds. This can include 200 fully equipped troops or the equivalent in general cargo or military vehicles, which enter easily on ramps through big doors in the plane's nose.

Each C124 contains more than 156,000 feet of wiring.

Most of the details on the Globemaster's successor, the C133, cannot be told.

It will be, however, even bigger. Loading will be from the rear and the wing will be placed over the fuselage. The landing gear will descend from special streamlined pods placed alongside the fuselage to allow full use of the ship's interior for cargo purposes.

McCarthy Attacks Ike Again

APPLETON, Wis. (U.P.)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) Saturday night said that President Eisenhower has done nothing to free American servicemen held by Chinese Communists "except trying to soft-soap a Communist thug . . . General Zhukov, his Moscow 'pen-pal.'"

The Wisconsin Republican, in a speech prepared for his hometown post of the Catholic War Veterans, said "our government lacks the moral qualities of honesty and courage." He said American history does not contain "a more shameful episode than the refusal of the current administration to secure the freedom of our Korean prisoners of war."

McCarthy said the administration has attempted to create two false impressions—that only 11 or perhaps 15 American servicemen are held by the Chinese Reds, and that it first learned of this last November when Communist China announced it would try U. S. airmen as spies.

But, McCarthy said, there are "481 American uniformed men left in Communist prisons" and the administration has known about them nearly two years.

He said the Senate investigations subcommittee, of which he is a member, obtained the 481 figure from administration officials a few weeks ago.

(Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) said after the hearing that 481 represented only an "accountability" figure — the number of Americans believed to have been in Communist hands at some time during the Korean war, and whose fate is not known.)

Wolfson Wins Three Places on Nine-Man Ward's Board

CHICAGO (U.P.) — Financier Louis E. Wolfson Saturday won three seats on the nine-man Montgomery Ward & Co. board of directors in one of the biggest proxy fights in corporate history.

The final outcome was announced after both the Wolfson forces and the incumbent slate had been given an opportunity to recumulate votes cast at the annual stockholders' meeting last April 22.

Wolfson conceded then that he would fail to win outright control of the big mail order firm. But financial sources credited his campaign with forcing 82-year-old Sewell Avery to step down as chairman of the board earlier this week.

Avery, however, will remain as a director. He led the incumbent slate with 6,087,662 votes. John A. Barr, 46, former Ward vice president who took over as board chairman this week, was second with 6,083,733 votes.

Elected from the Wolfson slate were Wolfson; Alexander Rittmaster III, his chief financial advisor, and Bernice Fitz-Gibbon, merchandising expert.

Elected from the incumbent slate were Avery, Barr, Philip R. Clarke, Percy B. Eckhart, C. H. Shaver, and Solomon A. Smith.

'Build It Long, Low and Heavy,' Advises Soap Box Derby Ace

By BEN MARTIN

Build it as long, low and heavy as rules allow if you plan on being a contender for Soap Box Derby honors this year.

That's the advice of a champ.

That basic formula last year sent 15-year-old Gary Miller of Lynwood speeding to the Long Beach area championship and on to a scholarship-winning second place in the national finals at Akron, Ohio.

(This year's area championship will be decided here July 30 on the Redondo Ave. course north of Pacific Coast Hiway. Entry blanks may be obtained at your Chevrolet dealers.)

Gary learned the hard way.

It took him four years of Derby competition and six racers before he stepped up to the judges' stand at Akron last year to accept a huge trophy and a $4000 college scholarship.

His winning car incorporated all the fine points he learned during those four years and five previous construction projects, and it graphically illustrated how closely he followed his own advice about building it long, low and heavy.

GARY'S CHAMPIONSHIP racer measured just one-sixteenth of an inch under the maximum allowance of 80 inches; cleared the ground exactly three inches, as per Derby rules, and he and car together weighed in at Long Beach a half-pound under the top weight of 250 pounds.

Keep the car narrow, too, advises the champ.

Gary sat comfortably in the 15-inch wide seat of his fifth racer, strictly an experimental job begun 11 months before the 1954 races.

He shoe-spooned himself into a 12-inch seat in the final, competition model.

Lowest possible overall height is another important factor. Highest point on Gary's car was only 24 inches from the ground, leaving only his goggled-eyes and helmeted-head sticking up into the airstream.

The backrest was practically moulded to fit his back, so that driver and car fit together as one.

"That's important," says Gary, "building the car around the driver."

OTHER POINTS to consider in building a Soap Box racer are:

Make the body as smooth and sleek as possible, with nothing to slow down the wind stream;

Distribute the weight so that each wheel carries exactly the same amount;

Have wheels perfectly aligned with each other and the car;

Keep weight as low as possible — small, light drivers should use a heavy plank for floorboards.

As for lubrication, Gary thinks the official Soap Box Derby oils are as good as can be obtained—but for the actual competition races, he washed out his wheel bearings with kerosene and ran without oil!

HOW DID this knowledge pay off for Gary?

He's got a shelf-full of handsome trophies—winning at least one in each of his four years.

He's got a scrap-book full of memories, especially after the 1954 races when his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Miller, 3259 Pleasant St., went along with him to Akron as guests of the Independent-Press-Telegram.

And he's got a college education already paid for.

The champ, who'll be 16 Thursday, can't race in the Derby anymore, after once competing in the national finals, but he's graduating to adult-size cars now, anyway.

Much of the engineering and maintenance knowledge he gained in four years as a Derby competitor is going into the rebuilding of a 1934 sedan.

He'll drive it to the Long Beach races this year, where he'll be an interested spectator and willing advisor, with the hope that another Long Beach area driver will be stepping up to the winner's stand in Akron this year.

'THAT'S THE WAY'

TOKYO (UP) — An excursion bus carrying school children plunged into a river in northern Japan Saturday, killing 12 persons and injuring more than 30 others.

Dear Mr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method." Signed, Mrs. Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "Five years ago I was badly stricken with neuritis in my shoulders and extremities. My hands and knees were so badly swollen that I could hardly use them. I wasn't able to raise my arms above the shoulders. I was told by several doctors that they have done all they could for me and that I no longer will be able to work again. Finally a friend referred me to try Dr. Chan's Herbal Therapy. After the first week I felt much improved and the fourth week found me walking much easier with the pains in my shoulders disappearing; my hands returned to normal and I had use of them once more. I cannot too highly recommend Dr. Chan to anyone who is ill." Signed, E. H. Irving.

What Long Beach Has Given the State

THERE'S MORE than a touch of irony in the fact that during the coming week while California is celebrating World Trade Week, the city of Long Beach will be fighting in a state legislative committee to protect its tidelands oil revenue from a proposed state grab.

The irony is this:

Long Beach harbor has been a major factor in the development of the industrial, agricultural and commercial wealth of Southern California. The entire state has benefited.

The harbor was built on Long Beach initiative—by bonds retired from Long Beach tax money; by money from oil development carried out by this city.

Now Assemblyman Bruce Allen of San Jose is seeking not only to strip Long Beach of its tideland oil resources, but also to require Long Beach to go on bended knee to the state to get money for operation of the harbor.

The record shows that between 1908 and 1928 Long Beach voters approved bond issues totaling $8,245,000 for the purpose of buying land for and building a port.

It shows that prior to July 1, 1938 the city of Long Beach spent $6,138,838 from general property tax sources to cover bond interest and redemption costs on harbor bonds. The entire proceeds went to promote commerce, navigation and fisheries.

Since 1938 the city has spent $4,230,000 for harbor purposes from upland oil revenue—revenue not subject to limitations of the tideland trust.

The city each year has spent large sums from general fund revenues for maintenance of facilities connected with harbor operation.

Thus Long Beach has combined spending from general revenues with wise and farsighted development of tideland oil to build what has become a fine modern harbor.

The results in terms of benefit to the state of California?

The Port of Long Beach has become a key facility in the state's economic life. Last year it handled a total of 6,815,069 tons of general cargo, petroleum and lumber. Into and out of this port sail the ships of the world, bringing in the products the state needs and taking our own products into the world commercial channels.

Directly and indirectly affected by these operations are the motor truck, railway and airline industries; manufacturers, exporters, importers; wages, salaries, profits, investments throughout a wide range of industries employing many thousands of persons.

Obviously, the impact of the port of Long Beach has been great in California economic development. Yet without Long Beach tax dollars, Long Beach development of oil resources, Long Beach courage and foresight in undertaking the job, this harbor would not exist.

While Mr. Allen is talking about what the state should get from Long Beach, perhaps some thought should be turned to what Long Beach has given to the state. And World Trade Week is a good time for such thought.

'Going My Way?'

MALCOLM EPLEY

How Long Will His Luck Last?

HOW lucky can a man be?

With considerable justification, Assemblyman Bruce Allen has been winning a reputation as a "success boy" in his sponsorship of legislation to strip Long Beach of its tidelands oil money.

Until he was caught with his votes down and hastily averted a test at a committee hearing last Thursday, everything has gone his way in this fight, including the "breaks."

Supreme Court action came in perfect timing for him. After he introduced his bill, the Court found against Long Beach in the Mallon suit—the case Allen claims is legal justification for his program. "That's what I've been waiting for," Allen told newsmen.

Then, just an hour or two before a vital committee hearing, the Court denied Long Beach's petition for a rehearing. This was significantly announced in the Assembly session, and again to the committee when it gathered to ponder Allen's proposal. What more could a man ask? (The subsequent committee action, of course, was favorable to Allen.)

HIS OWN JUDGE

One of Allen's big advantages has been his membership on the two committees to which his bill has been referred—Conservation and Planning, and Ways and Means.

Let's look at the situation in Conservation and Planning.

The chairman is Assemblyman Francis Lindsay, co-author of the Allen bill and perhaps even more than Allen obsessed with the idea of seizing Long Beach's millions. Allen is a member.

When the bill was called for hearing, Allen left his place on the committee platform, came down in front and argued for his bill before his fellow committeemen.

He was still sitting "in the witness chair" when a rash of motion-making broke out in the committee. Some spectators swear they saw Lindsay, the chairman, signal to Allen. Maybe this was imagination, but at the strategic moment Allen himself made a motion—for do-pass recommendation.

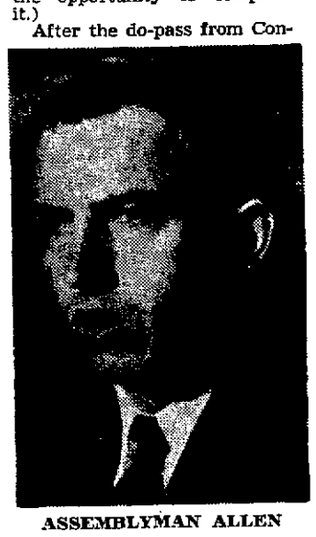

Here was Allen, the "witness" and "prosecutor," suddenly figuratively leaping into the jury box to help pass judgment on his own scheme. And it was all perfectly proper under committee procedure.

Assemblyman Patrick McGee (D-Los Angeles) exploded: "He can't do that!"

But Chairman Lindsay pointed out that Allen was a member of the committee and could do that. Lindsay put the motion, and it passed.

(When all this occurred, Long Beach had hardly started its presentation against the bill. It hasn't yet been given the opportunity to complete it.)

After the do-pass from Conservation and Planning, Allen's bill went to Ways and Means where it was set for a hearing last Thursday. A member of Ways and Means, is Assemblyman Bruce Allen.

ASSEMBLYMAN ALLEN

Over 50 bills were listed for consideration ahead of the Allen proposal in ways and means Thursday. Most of these were non-controversial and were quickly handled in routine manner.

Then Chairman Thomas Caldecott (R-Berkeley) announced that after the next batch of bills was acted upon, the committee would take up the Allen bill.

At that moment Assemblyman Lindsay (not a member of ways and means) walked across the room in front of the spectators, looking at Allen. Allen left his place on the rostrum, joined Lindsay in the hall.

LEFT ROOM

Allen then returned and, as a member of the committee, was able to bring about a week's delay in the hearing on his bill. Later he virtually admitted he did not have enough votes on hand to get favorable action, stating that a number of Assemblymen, presumably his supporters, had left the room.

As both author of the bill and a member of the committee, Allen was able to handle the situation. There is nothing unusual about this, but it does show the disadvantage under which Long Beach has been fighting the Allen bill.

Chairman Caldecott of Ways and Means, by the way, voted against Long Beach in conservation and planning, so Allen had another sympathetic chairman in Ways and Means.

So Allen has been riding high. But can such good luck go on forever attending a bad cause?

DAVID LAWRENCE

Itinerant Secretary of State Dulles Operates With Restraint, Firmness

PARIS—There is something very impressive and of incalculable value about the new-fashioned diplomacy which brings the Secretary of State of the United States to Paris for informal talks with the Foreign Ministers of France and Great Britain as well as with the top men of other countries which comprise the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Critics may say the head of the State Department should not travel around, but it is difficult to imagine how any progress could be made any other way in solving present-day problems among the Allies.

Unfortunately, lots of mischievous rumors and some distorted reports reach back home to the parliaments and to the American Congress. It is not always easy to overcome the handicaps that interference, even by American legislators, sometimes brings. But if the members of Congress who are so reckless with their comments on world affairs, especially the carping critics among the Democrats, could attend a press conference held here by the Secretary of State, they would come to realize how delicate and complicated are most of the questions tackled by the foreign ministers.

THE MODERN WAY

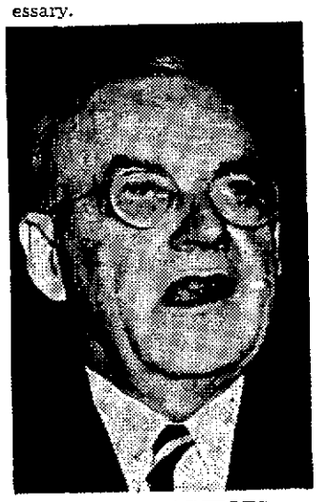

This last week has seen many important conferences, but they are not unlike several meetings held here before. They are all significant. The modern way is for the top representatives of the Allies to sit down together and thresh out their differences behind closed doors. They talk frankly and at times heatedly, but they come out of it as a rule with a clear understanding of the viewpoint of their respective countries.

Perhaps the most ticklish of all the questions this week was the problem of Indochina. Neither the French nor the American government could afford to place itself in the position of trying to settle the internal affairs of South Vietnam, as this would only intensify Communist propaganda there. But certain parallel or common policies were agreed upon which may help to bring stability to the situation in the southern part of Indochina.

For, although the desire is to see some form of democratic government chosen, it is not easy to establish at once an electoral machinery such as exists in a European parliamentary system. But out of the turbulence of these last few weeks may come a representative system for South Vietnam, and that is the objective now.

Despite the newspaper reports about a grave crisis in the relations between France and the United States over the Indochina question, it is a fact that both governments recognized all along how important it is to reach an understanding and not to allow the Indochina dipute to impair their working arrangements on many other questions of far greater importance to both.

The American people can rest assured that Secretary Dulles handled himself very creditably here. Notwithstanding some garbled impressions that came to certain Senators, there was no mistake made here by Mr. Dulles in talking firmly where firmness was necessary.

SECRETARY DULLES

Those who heard his reply, for example, in the North Atlantic Council meeting to Foreign Secretary Spaak of Belgium on the Formosa question said it was an excellent rebuttal to a statement that completely misconstrued the American position.

Nor is Mr. Dulles stampeded or pushed around by the Soviet tactics. He was clear-cut in his announcement here that he wouldn't go to Vienna until the Austrian treaty provisions had been finally set down on paper ready for signing. He is equally determined not to become involved in a protracted discussion in Vienna about the details of the forthcoming four-power conference.

There is a restraint and a forbearance about Mr. Dulles' manner in these top-level negotiations, and, at the same time such an earnest reflection by him of the truly American viewpoint in international affairs, that the American people can well be proud of their itinerant Secretary of State.

TOWN MEETING

First-Rank Artist

TO THE EDITOR:

In George Eres' Long Beach culture series Lorenzo C. Miller, head of the City College Art Department, states: "No artist of first rank lives here."

The article also says, Heavenrich is conscious of the fact that there is no nationally recognized artist in Long Beach."

Mr. Heavenrich is well aware that Ben Messick, a foremost American artist, not only nationally but internationally known and recognized, lives in Long Beach.

Mr. Messick has exhibited paintings and lithographs in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the de Young Memorial Museum, the Library of Congress, Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, the U. S. National Museum in Smithsonian Institution and practically every gallery on the coast.

He was featured in American Artist Magazine in November, 1950 and again listed in this magazine April, 1955, as one of the American artists "past and present who have made American art great."

Another Name

TO THE EDITOR:

Omitted in Mr. Eres' list of "name" people from Long Beach was the name of Fred Smith, tenor, who won a $5,000 Horace Heidt national contest conducted in all Army camps.

I think Long Beach has reason to be proud of this local boy.

MRS. MASON E. KIGHT

'U. N. Nonsense'

TO THE EDITOR:

It is significant to note that even Mr. Lodge is concerned now about the high-handedness of the U. N. On April 31 he assailed a decision by a three-member administrative tribunal in Geneva ordering UNESCO to reinstate three Americans who were dismissed because they refused to appear before a United States loyalty board.

Mr. Lodge called it a "deplorable decision" and it is just a small sample of how the United States will be pushed around if we permit a world organization consisting of numerous enemies to tell us what we are to do. Let us stop this U. N. nonsense and stand on our own feet again.

Firmness

TO THE EDITOR:

What, do you think, would have resulted to freedom in the world if our forefathers of 1776 had so feared war that they would have failed to face the British tyrant with everything they had, and stop him?

How can our people now feel much pride of nation if our government so fears war that they fail to force the release of our unlawfully imprisoned airmen, but would belittle themselves by sitting down with the dishonorable, brutal Red Chinese to discuss reducing tension in the Far East when there would be no tension there but for them?

How can the infamous Chinese Reds have anything but contempt for us when our leaders are so ready to give them the chance they propose to trick us again with their deceitful doubletalk, instead of stopping them with force, or the stern threat of it?

Thankful

TO THE EDITOR:

I have just read about the people complaining about the noise from the Douglas Aircraft plant. I work there and I'm thankful we have a big company like Douglas which furnishes us with work. It's the biggest company, employing the largest number of people in the area.

I don't even think of the noise when I hear a plane going over. It makes me proud to know that these planes are built in our city, which I love and am proud to be a resident of.

I wonder if the people who complain about the noise ever stopped to think of what it represents to Long Beach in terms of bread and butter.

Ike Would Like to Retire but Question Is, Can He?

WILL IKE RUN? There is a large body of opinion in Washington that President Eisenhower will not be a candidate for reelection.

It began forming when Ike gave Mamie the green light on fixing up the farmhouse at Gettysburg, Pa. "No man," reasoned the women, "would spend all that money if he didn't intend to use the place for something more than a week-end retreat."

Ike himself, has given weight to the one-term rumors by making occasional references to his age and the 21 months still left to serve.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith spoke up last Wednesday before 1,500 Republican women and said she has the impression that President Eisenhower "prefers to retire." It is reported that her statement brought "gasps from the dismayed audience."

KNIGHT

Later in the day, Ike said he didn't have "the slightest idea" where Mrs. Smith got that impression.

Of course Ike would prefer to retire. He likes the outdoors and chafes under the restraint of the Presidency. He has served his country faithfully for many years, and he isn't getting any younger.

The big question is: Can he retire?

Without Eisenhower, the Republicans have only a forlorn hope of winning the Presidency in 1956.

While Ike has never thought of himself as the indispenable man, he responds to the call of duty and he is hearing a lot about that little word from GOP bigwigs who are worried sick by the retirement rumors.

Will Ike run? Only if Mamie gives her approval, and right now Ike's eyes are glued on Gettysburg.

ONE FOR ALL

This column has received much criticism, for our frequently expressed belief that federated giving is the realistic way to raise funds for charitable activities and essential community services.

The main resistance against federated giving comes from several national groups such as the Polio Foundation and other local agencies who fear loss of identity.

Some state frankly they can raise more money by making their own appeals.

These agencies seem to forget that under this procedure, the better known causes get the lion's share of the money while equally important but less well known activities fail to make their quotas.

They also ignore the fact that the giver is still the master and his patience wears thin under the pressure of constant solicitation.

The Community Funds which are failing to achieve their goals year after year should get their heads out of the sand and take a good look at the world of today.

A large number of communities have achieved success with a single campaign. The givers respond generously because they know they will not be plagued throughout the year for additional contributions.

Akron and Detroit, among the first to see the merit of a "one for all" solicitation, are notable examples.

Washington, D. C. is turning to federated giving. Rochester, N. Y. is troubled by its multiplicity of campaigns. There people are getting into the habit of "just giving a dollar to everything" and losing sight of the fact that its Community Chest is soliciting in behalf of 75 agencies.

Ike Charges Demo Stall on His Highway Program

WASHINGTON.—While the Democrats were accusing Republicans of playing politics on the postal pay-raise bill last week, President Eisenhower was dittoing the Democrats. He was irked because his pride and joy—the superhighway program—has been sidetracked in Congress.

"Those fellows (the Democrats) are putting partisan politics above the best interests of the country," Ike remarked bitterly at last week's secret White House meeting with GOP congressional leaders.

PEARSON

"I hope you will redouble your efforts to get this legislation out of committee, so we can at least have a vote on it," he urged GOP chiefs after they informed him that the $27,000,000,000, 10-year highway program was being effectively stalled in both houses, particularly the Senate.

"Our entire economy is geared to the highway program," he added. "It is tied in with steel production, transportation, and other industries and, of course, employment in these industries—not to mention the employment that would be provided by the actual building of the highways."

Ike was plainly irritated by the charges of Tennessee's Sen. Albert Gore, chief Democratic foe of the road program, that it would wreck the federal budget and would still leave our highways deficient after the money was spent. Without mentioning Gore by name, the President remarked caustically:

"The best brains we could get tell us the program is needed and that it will work."

The automobile manufacturers of Detroit were "greatly concerned" about the hold-up of the superhighway legislation, Eisenhower also reported. He added that auto production would be hurt in the future unless our highway system was brought "up to date" with the increasing problems of transportation.

WILSON'S CANE

But for an unforeseen hitch at an auction by the Women's National Democratic Club, former President Harry Truman would now be the proud possessor of a gold-headed cane used by another Democratic occupant of the White House, Woodrow Wilson.

However, Truman, who swings a mean walking stick himself, is happy that the prized cane wound up in the possession of his close friend, Mrs. Leslie Biffle, though he probably won't know the inside story until he reads it here.

Without telling Truman, a group of his former aids got together and quietly raised $500 to purchase the Wilson cane when they learned that Mrs. Wilson had donated it for auction to the Democratic women. About 15 in all were in on the deal, including former Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman, John P. Steelman and Dean Acheson.

They planned to present the gold-headed cane to Truman at the ground-breaking ceremony for his Memorial Library in Missouri this month. However, when the auction began, the spokesman for the Trumanites, former White House aid Martin Friedman, suddenly found himself in active competition with a "sleeper" bidder, Cortland Silver, of St. Paul, Minn.

Silver, a house guest of the Biffles, wanted to present the Wilson walking stick as a parting gift to Mrs. Biffle, who is till recovering from an accident and needs a cane to get around. Every time Friedman made an offer, Silver blithely upped the ante, unaware that he was bidding against the Truman "syndicate."

Silver finally won out with a bid of $625.

Finally Mere Man Wins in Battle of the Sexes

WASHINGTON (AP)—In this town, women are steadily moving in. Oveta Culp Hobby is in the cabinet. Margaret Chase Smith is in the Senate. Fifteen women, a record, are in the House. Step into almost any government office, and what do you see? A lot of women.

So it's a relief today to report a stunning reversal of this trend in the nation's capital. The District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers, with a membership of 27,000 elected John Gilliland president.

He became the first male to hold this job in the Congress' 50-year history.

Gilliland won the hard way.

As the choice of the nominating committee, he normally would have no opposition. But Mrs. Samuel Hooks was nominated from the floor.

When the decisive moment came, there were 500 female and three male delegates on the floor. The three male delegates and the one male reporter held their breaths. Could Gilliland win this unequal ballot of the sexes?

He could. Of 497 votes cast, Gilliland got 420.

If the national P-T.A. has its way, this sort of thing will be going on everywhere. It has been urging men to take a more active part in P-T.A. affairs.

But this advice has not been needed for Gilliland, an energetic, balding, bespectacled man of 51 who owns real estate and foam rubber businesses.

Gilliland has been holding P-T.A. offices of one sort or another for 15 years. One year he headed his elementary school P-T.A. Twice he was president of the P-T.A. at his junior high school.

In years when Gilliland wasn't president, who was likely to turn up in the chair? Mrs. Gilliland.

MR. OR MRS.

In fact, one of the toughest jobs facing the nominating committee was this: Should it be Mr. G., or Mrs. G.?

Gilliland thinks the answer should have been: Both.

"Co-presidents," he said, talking easily above the congratulatory twittering about him, "that's the answer. More men and women should go into P-T.A. work together. That's what will happen with me. My wife will supply the beauty, inspiration, ideas and do the work. I'll be the front man."

Then, as if he feared he was being overly modest, he said: "One thing in my favor. I can talk louder."

At the average noisy P-T.A. meeting, that's a trait not to be sneezed at.

Karim in Breeders Triumph

Karim, another son of the sensational Khaled who sired Swaps, raced to an easy victory by better than two lengths Saturday at Hollywood Park in the $25,000-added Golden State Breeders Handicap.

It was the second victory in two days for sons of the English-bred Khaled, El Drag, having scored Friday in the $25,000 Premiere Handicap which opened the summer meeting here.

Karim ran like a son or Khaled in that he pushed the pace until ready to make his move coming into the stretch and then nailed the pace-setting Blue Trumpeter and pulled away as easily as did Swaps in the Kentucky Derby a week ago.

Blue Trumpeter lasted for second while the four-to-five favorite and defending champion, Golden Abbey, could only get up for third with his top impost of 122 pounds.

Karim raced the mile and a sixteenth distance of the race limited to California foals in 1.42 3/5, good time, although a second and a fraction slower than the track record of 1.41.

The winner went off at five-to-two and returned $7.10, 4.00 and 2.40 across the board. Blue Trumpeter paid $6.70 and 2.70 for place and show while Golden Abbey returned $2.20 to show.

6-10 for Dumas at Fresno

FRESNO (U.P.)—Four new meet records were set in the West Coast Relays Saturday, but Wes Santee, famous Kansas miler, failed in his bid for the four-minute mile.

Santee was clocked in a good 4:06.5 for his specialty while running in a 14 mile an hour wind, but he won by 30 yards over Len Simpson of the San Francisco Olympic Club.

A crowd of 10,000 witnessed the afternoon competition which mostly featured high school events, and another 15,000 packed the stands for the night performances in the balmy weather.

These were the features:

1. Adhemar Da Silva of Brazil, world hop, step and jump champion, bettered anything ever recorded by an American in his first attempt on U. S. soil. He leaped 51 feet, 3 inches. The best mark by an American was 50 feet, 1½ inches by Billy Brown, Louisiana State, in 1940. The U.S. record is 51 feet, 7 inches set by Chuhei Nambu of Japan in the 1932 Olympics.

2. Charles Dumas, 18-year-old Centennial High School youth, cleared the high jump bar at 6 feet, 10 inches, competing unattached in the open intercollegiate division.

3. Max Truex, SC freshman, won the 5,000-meter race in 14:57.5, beating the old relays mark of 15:02.2 set by Art Garcia of SC in 1952.

Santee's mark, of course, was a new stadium record.

The Kansan was very good—but not as fast as he had hoped. The wind, he thought, ruined his chances.

"It was the wind again," said Santee after the mile run. "I felt real good and thought this might be the day. But the wind was too tough down the backstretch."

This race was especially designed to give Santee a chance at the four-minute mile. He asked for and was given lane three. Art Dalzell, a former Kansas teammate, ran most of the first three laps in front to break the wind; and a lad named Gene Jones of the Santa Clara Youth Center ran along Santee's side shouting encouragement.

"I appreciate all the help I got, especially from Dalzell and Jones," Wes said as his wife embraced him at the finish line. "But it just wasn't the day."

Fernando Ledesma of SC finished third and Jim Hunt of San Diego State, fourth. Dalzell and Jones failed to finish.

The clockings by quarters were 59, 62, 63 and 62.5. The time for 1,500 meters, 3:48.5.

Young Dumas cleared the height on his first try while Ernie Shelton of SC needed all three of his jumps to make it. Both men failed on three jumps apiece at a measured height of 6-11¼, set at Shelton's request.

The 6-10 established a new relays' record, wiping out Shelton's 6-9½ set a year ago.

Dumas' leap was by far the best of his budding career and marked the third time he has bettered the National Interscholastic high jump record of 6-7⅛. The young Negro stands 6-2 and weighs 173 pounds.

Sam Iness of the Los Angeles Athletic Club beat teammate Parry O'Brien by more than four feet in the discus, flipping the plate 170-½ to O'Brien's 165-11. Des Koch of SC was a close third.

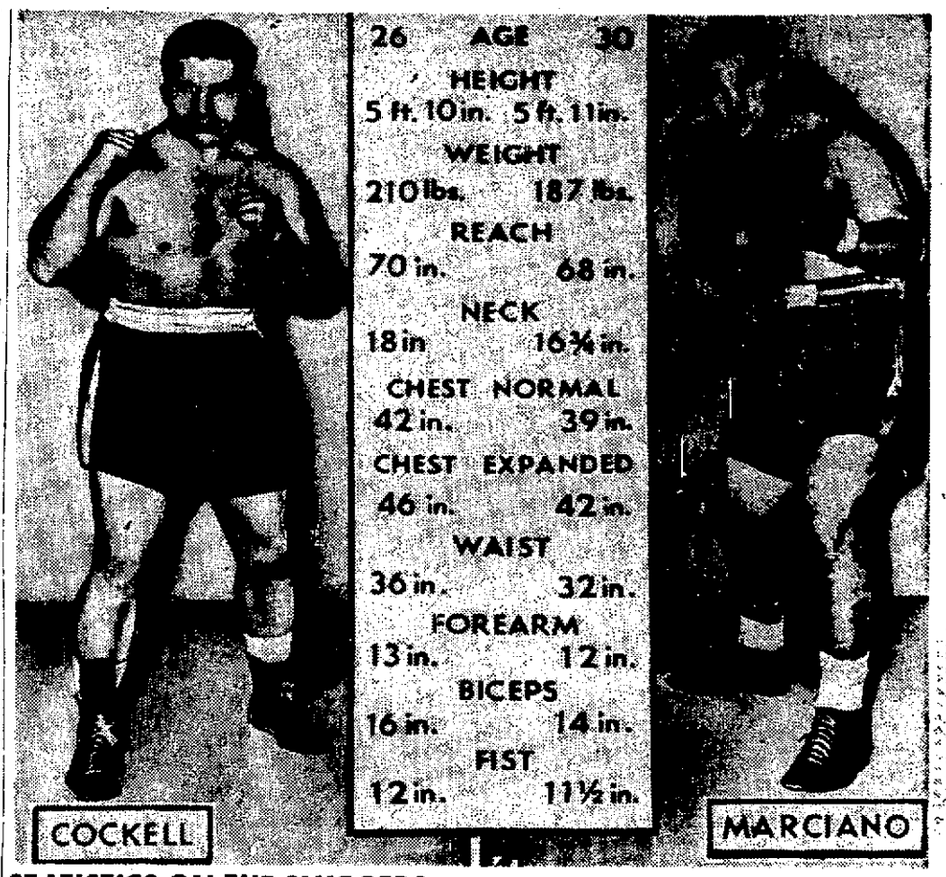

O'Brien won the shotput at 56-6, trailed by Tom Meyer, Oxy, 56-3; Ray Martin, SC, 55-7¼; Don Vick, UCLA, 55-2, and Clyde Wetter, UCLA, 52-10¼.

STATISTICS ON THE SLUGGERS

Here's how British challenger Don Cockell and heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano shape up for Monday night's scheduled 15-round title fight in San Francisco. Cockell has edge in numbers game except for height, but unbeaten Rocky is topheavy choice.—(Associated Press Wirephoto.)

S.F. EXPECTS 30,000 MONDAY

Unbeaten Champ Quoted at 8-5 to Stop Briton Within 5

By JACK HAND

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rocky Marciano is supposed to demolish Don Cockell, a broad-beamed British hog farmer, in the fifth defense of his world heavyweight title Monday night at Kezar Stadium.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Cockell Praised

SAN RAFAEL (U.P.)—Grant Butcher, who sparred 43 rounds with British heavyweight challenger Don Cockell, said Saturday the Englishman has "better than an even chance" of dethroning world heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano in their title fight Monday night.

"Cockell may give the Marciano camp quite a surprise," the former California State heavyweight champion said. "And if Marciano is planning a body attack he will find that Cockell's mid-section is like a brick wall."

Butcher said the only thing he could criticize Cockell for was a lack of aggressiveness, which seemed to straighten out as training continued.

"I caught him several times with good rights but he never really was troubled by them," Butcher said. "He takes a solid punch, knows how to roll and never seems to get confused. I think he will surprise a lot of people Monday—Marciano included."

The sturdy champ from Brockton, Mass., unbeaten in his 47-fight career with 41 knockouts, is such a topheavy favorite that there is practically no betting on the result. Even the promoters' release mentions a 5-1 price. One source lists Marciano as a 9-1 choice. They say it's about 8-5 that Cockell won't last five rounds.

Cockell, first British heavyweight to get a chance at the crown since Tommy Farr fought Joe Louis in 1937, has failed to impress in his training at suburban San Rafael. Although the 26-year-old fat boy has trimmed down from 220 pounds to 208, he has glaring defensive weaknesses and does not appear to have the punch to bother Rocky.

On the other hand, Marciano hit a peak in his closing drills at Calistoga, battering sparmates with a thumping body attack. Sharp at about 189 pounds, the 30-year-old champ seems to have only cuts to fear.

The nose cut that Ezzard Charles opened last September has leaked no blood during the long training grind. There is no guarantee, however, that it won't split again from a solid punch.

Marciano was gashed on the head and around the right eye the night he won the title from Jersey Joe Walcott in '52 and was cut around the left eye in both fights with Charles last summer.

San Francisco, which still remembers Jim Corbett and Jim Jeffries, has been slow to heat up for its first heavyweight title scrap since Charles stopped Pat Valentino Oct. 14, 1949. That bout set a California record with a gate of $167,870 at the Cow Palace.

Jimmy Murray, local promoter who is working with the International Boxing Club in staging the fight, has reported advance sales of over $150,000. Although they talk of $500,000, chances are a crowd of 30,000 and a gate of between $300,000 and $350,000 is more realistic. The stadium has 68,000 seats priced from $40 to $5.

Nobody can sit home and watch this 15-round match on his television set. There will be no home TV. The fight will be beamed, however, to 83 theaters in 59 cities on closed circuit theater television with California blacked out. It also will be heard on radio (NBC).

In order that eastern theater patrons can see the show at a decent hour, the title bout will start at 10 p. m. (e. s. t.), which is only 8 p. m., Pacific Daylight time. If it's a clear day, the sun will be setting beyond the Golden Gate about the time so the early rounds should be fought in twilight.

Marciano gets 40 per cent and Cockell 20 per cent of the gate receipts, theater-TV, radio and movie cash. If the beefy Briton should upset the champ, the movie rights in America and Britain will be worth an enormous sum. There is a 90-day rematch clause in the contracts, in case Cockell wins.

No Englishman has held the

Monday night's heavyweight title match will be broadcast locally over KFI beginning at 7:45 p.m. There will be no television.

Golliday Ties 100 Record

9.3 by Wildcat Ace in Big Ten Relays

EVANSTON, Ill. (U.P.) — Jim Golliday, a slender Negro speedster from Northwestern toughened by two years in the army, sped to a world record-equalling 9.3 time in the 100-yard dash in the second annual Big Ten Relays Saturday.

Golliday's clocking tied the world mark set in 1948 by Mel Patton of Southern California and equalled by Hector Hogan of Australia in 1954.

There was no doubt about Golliday's clocking as two of the five timers caught him at 9.2, two more at 9.3, and another at 9.4.

He virtually spread-eagled the field with a perfect start and lengthy strides which carried him to an eight-yard margin over Edgar Brabham of Michigan State at the finish.

However, Golliday was helped along by a wind, certified at 3.32 miles per hour, which blew at his back during the dash. Officials said that a wind under 4.47 miles per hour would not interfere with recognition of a time as a world record.

Golliday's best competitive time prior to Saturday was 9.5, registered in a dual meet against Minnesota last Saturday.

Willard Thomson of Illinois, who captured both the 120-yard high hurdles and the 220-yard low hurdles, was the only double winner of the meet. His times were 13.7 and 22.9.

Thomson's time in the highs established a new meet record while Michigan State's sprint medley relay team set a new meet record of 3:24.5.

Minnesota's sprint relay team tied the meet mark of 41.8 established by Illinois last year.

Michigan won the two-mile relay in 7:42.1; Michigan State captured the 880-relay in 1:26.7; Karl Johnson of Illinois won the one and one-half mile run in 6:53.9; the distance medley went to Iowa in 10.18.4, and Michigan annexed the mile relay in 3:15.9.

MAN, DIG THAT CLOCK!

Zernia's Bat Leads Suds Win

LOS ANGELES (U.P.) — First baseman Harvey Zernia rapped three hits in four trips to the plate, including a double, to lead Seattle to a 5-3 win over Los Angeles Saturday. The victory evened the series at 3-3 and dropped the Angels back into third place.

Zernia's double before 5,782 fans was the only extra-base hit the Rainiers were able to get. Los Angeles scored two of its runs on two bases-empty homers by Bob Usher and Bob Talbot.

Both hurlers went the distance and performed about equally. Vic Lombardi (4-2), who emerged the winner, gave up nine hits, struck out one and walked three. John Pyecha (0-1), the loser, gave up eight hits.

Seattle jumped off for two runs in the second frame when Bobby Balcena scored on Gene Verble's sacrifice fly. Monte Basgall then scored on a single by Lombardi.

Seattle made it 4-2 in the seventh on a single by Rocky Krsnich, an infield out and an error.

9-FLAT '100'--- BEFORE TAPE

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Track officials shattered Billy Jones' dreams of a new world 100-yard dash record Saturday with a tape.

The Louisiana State sprinter was clocked in nine seconds flat in a meet against Tulane. Then officials found the distance was only 90 yards.

Brown Gains Net Finals

SAN FRANCISCO (U.P.) — Tournament favorite Tom Brown of the San Francisco Olympic Club dropped his first set but defeated sixth seeded Bill Crosby of San Francisco 6-2, 6-3, 4-6 and 6-1, Saturday to advance to the finals of the 55th annual California State Tennis Championships.

Brown was extended by the hard hitting Crosby, whom he defeated three weeks ago in the Bay County Tennis Tournament, but was a heavy choice to defeat Jack Frost of Stanford University in the finals today.

Frost, a former junior national boys champion, set down Nick Carter of the San Francisco Olympic Club 6-2, 6-2, 9-7.

Two 16-year-old girls stroked their way to the finals of the women's singles, assuring the youngest state champion in the history of the tournament.

Nitehawks Squeeze in 12th Nets 1-0 Win

Jimmy Jones squeeze-bunted in Bill Hull with two out in the 12th inning to give the Long Beach Nitehawks a 1-0 victory over Monterey Park in their season's softball opener at Park Ave. Field Saturday night.

The game was a duplicate of a pair of pitchers' battles between the two teams last season, both of which ended 1-0 in favor of Coach Joe Rodgers' Nitehawks.

This time it was Richie Stevens for the visitors for nine innings followed by Dick Loy, who picked up the defeat. For Long Beach, newly-acquired LeRoy Zimmerman made a spectacular debut, pitching six innings of hitless ball, striking out 13 and not giving up a base on balls. Ted Carlsgaard hurled the next five frames, allowing the only two Monterey safeties and Jack Randall turned in a flawless one inning stint to get the win.

Hull led off the 12th with a clean single to right-center. Bill Bullock attempted to sacrifice but popped to the catcher. Stan White then delivered a single sending Hull to second. Randall forced White at second on a near double-play ball. Jones then laid down his perfect bunt along the first base line and beat the throw as Hull crossed the plate.

Brown Two Up on Snead in Greenbrier

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (U.P.)—Great putting gave Dutch Harrison undisputed leadership in the Greenbrier Open golf tournament Saturday with a 54-hole total of 199.

The 45-year-old Missourian sank three 30-foot putts and a 15-footer as he stroked his way over the Greenbrier course in 67—three under par. He carded 66 in each of the first two rounds.

Harrison's spectacular putting performance enabled him to move into today's final round with a two-stroke lead over Sam Snead who had a 67 Saturday. Snead muffed a chance to pull into a tie with Harrison by three-putting the 11th green for a bogie five and then missing a six-footer on the 18th green.

San Diego Rapps Up Series, 10-9

SAN DIEGO (U.P.)—Earl Rapp slammed his 11th homer of the season and drove in five runs Saturday as San Diego overcame Hollywood's early 8-2 lead and nipped the Stars, 10-9.

Rapp, who now has driven in 49 runs in the season's first 39 games, collected two singles in addition to his homer to pace San Diego's 13-hit attack against Star hurlers George Witt, George O'Donnell and Cal Hogue.

The win gave the Padres a 5-1 lead in the eight-game series and a half-game lead in the PCL standings.

Hollywood shelled Padre starter Cal McLish from the mound in the second stanza with a five-run barrage. With the bases loaded, Bill Hall doubled in Bob Prescott and Bobby Del Greco. Gail Henley romped home when Carlos Bernier swatted a two-bagger. Witt singled home Hall. A single by Lee Walls scored Witt.

FIRST LOSS SINCE 1950

Notre Dame Varsity Falls Before Old-Timers, 19-14

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Passing seldom, Notre Dame's inexperienced varsity was defeated by the Old Timers, 19-14, Saturday—the Irish's first spring football game loss since 1950 when the team went on to a lackluster 4-4-1 record the following fall.

Bulwarked by such former Irish stars as all-America Ralph Guglielmi, who pitched one touchdown pass, and Johnny Lattner of the Pittsburgh Steelers, the Old Timers gave Terry Brennan's varsity a rugged battle. They outgained the Irish in all departments.

The varsity showed some bright spots, especially in the running of seasoned fullback Don Schaefer, who scored one touchdown, and quarterback Paul Hornung, who scurried 34 yards on a keep-it play for the other.

The Old Timers had several varsity players on loan and one of them, sophomore to-be fullback Charles Lima of Cincinnati, was proved the best ball carrier on the field, gaining 91 yards in 17 tries for a 5.4 average.

Once Over Lightly

by DAVE LEWIS

Not even the British journalists over here to cover the heavyweight title fight Monday night in San Francisco have any hopes that their challenger, Don Cockell, will last much beyond the eighth round against champion Rocky Marciano.

However, they believe it will be a lively affair while it lasts and they won't be the least surprised if Cockell actually is ahead on points until he goes down for the count.

They are confident that Cockell is capable of stabbing Marciano with his left for five or six rounds while piling up points.

"But once our Don is hit solidly, the show is over," says Gerard Walter, dean of British boxing observers.

"The history of Cockell indicates he doesn't absorb a punch well. That, of course, is no reflection on his courage. He is a tenacious lad. However, Marciano takes two or three punches to get in one and, unfortunately for Don, that one will eventually floor him.

"Marciano has no defense and is vulnerable to every sort of punch while our Don can move around real good, being surprisingly agile on his feet despite his stoutness. Yes, he should be able to elude the champion for a few rounds."

The British writer declares that Marciano is the hardest puncher he has seen during his 27 years of observing boxing matches. "I am convinced his fists are more lethal than Joe Louis' ever were."

IN TRYING to build up a case for Cockell, it has been pointed out that:

(1) Knockouts by Randy Turpin and Jimmy Slade were due to Don being forced to make 175 pounds. He was weak. He'll weigh around 210 for Marciano.

(2) He has the fastest pair of hands on a heavyweight since Joe Louis and has a sharp left hand. He is a converted southpaw.

(3) He is a good boxer and is particularly adept at setting up an opponent with a left feint and then crossing with the right, and

(4) There is always the chance he can cut up Marciano, who has a medical history of tenderness in the nose. He also has scar tissue over both eyes.

The only argument presented which is considered solid enough to figure Cockell as the winner is No. 4—the possibility that Cockell might cut Rocky.

However, most boxing men laugh off any possibility of Marciano being slashed that badly by the British fighter.

"Sure Rocky suffered a bad cut on the nose against Ezzard Charles, but it wasn't as bad as Al Wells claimed," one says. "Rocky himself admitted later that he didn't even know his nose was slashed. He thought he had a slight nose bleed. It wasn't bothering him in the least."

Charley Goldman, Rocky's trainer, says that "in all of my 43 years in the fight game, I've never seen a nose sliced quite like Rocky's was. It was a freak accident that wouldn't happen again in the next 100 years."

The slash was caused by the heel of Charles' glove.

COCKELL HAS an interesting background. He was an apprentice blacksmith at 14 and at 16 he was in the Army Cadets, a pre-training unit.

While in the Cadets, he was invited to enter an Army boxing tournament. He weighed 175 at the time and liked it so well that he joined an amateur fistic club.

After leaving the Army, he fought in the "booths" for about a month . . . joining the carnival fighters who tour England's county fairs "taking on all comers."

However, these booth fighters carry their own sparring partners and one of them usually runs up from the audience and accepts the challenge before any of the local yokels has a chance. Cockell was a good partner. He always ran up very fast.

After a month of that he decided to turn professional in order to finance his marriage. Like most other kids in London hoping to become a fighter, he went to Jack Solomon's gym.

John Simpson, his present pilot, at the time was handling Vince Hawkins, who was then British middleweight champion.

As a last resort after several of England's top managers turned him down, Cockell approached Simpson and talked him into letting him work a couple of rounds with the champ.

Before the end of the second round, Simpson called a halt. Cockell, only 17, was belting Hawkins around the ring with a natural left hook. He signed. Don right then and there.

Now 26, Cockell is passing for a rich resident of England with a $15,000 farm of 40 acres in Sussex. He also has the chance of setting himself up for the rest of his life off the earnings from Monday night's bout.

Even if he loses, as expected, he still will collect upwards of $125,000. A good gate could bring him as much as $275,000. A win, of course, would be worth well over a million dollars!

STORIES OUT of San Francisco keep emphasizing that Cockell resents questions fired at him by American newspapermen, but Harry Mendel, one of the top boxing press agents in

Easy Win for Mongia

HOLLYWOOD (U.P.) — California bantamweight champion Jessy Mongia won a lopsided decision over Texas invader Alex Santoy Saturday night in the 10-round main event at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

Mongia, 122½, scored with left hooks to the head and ribs of Santoy, 116½. Santoy attempted a 10th-round rally but with some 30 seconds to go, Mongia scored with a pair of solid lefts to the head and copped the round.

Referee Dynamite Jackson scored it 58-52 for the California champ while judges Tommy Hart and Charley Randolph gave Mongia a 59-51 advantage.

PORTLAND (AP) — Portland's Pacific Coast League baseball club Saturday acquired two outfielders and released another.

Luis Marquez, who went from Portland to the National League after hitting .311 here in 1950, was purchased from Toledo of the American Assn. Carl Powis was obtained on option from Baltimore of the American League. He has been playing for San Antonio in the Texas League.

Unconditionally released was veteran Dino Restelli, who was hitting .327 but was troubled with a bad throwing arm.

Rush Tosses Second Blank at Giants, 8-0

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs' big Bob Rush tossed his second shutout at the New York Giants Saturday, blanking last year's world champions, 8-0, as he allowed them seven singles.

Rush, who shut out the Giants, 6-0, on four hits in New York, May 3, allowed just one Giant to reach third base Saturday as he ran his skein of scoreless innings against Leo Durocher's crew to 26 and one-third innings.

Johnny Antonelli, a surprise starter for the Giants, suffered his fourth loss when the Cubs got to him for three runs in the fifth. Working four perfect innings, Antonelli allowed his first hit to Hank Sauer leading off the Chicago fifth.

After contributing two walks and a throwing error, Antonelli was lifted in favor of Marv Grissom. Rookie outfielder Ted Tappe greeted Grissom with a pinch single for the last two of the Cubs' three runs.

Sharpe Sparkles in Sprints

Wilson High topped all three divisions Saturday in quarterfinal trials for the CIF track and field championships at Oxnard by landing 11 places in the varsity, eight in the Bee events and six in the Cees.

Poly tied Wilson with six qualifiers in the Cees and also placed five in the varsity division and four in the Bees.

Sprint times were outstanding, but a stiff wind of from six to 16 miles per hour discounted any top marks that might go in the record books.

Wilson's crack sprinter, Fred Sharpe, won his heat in the 220-yard dash in 21.2 and was a close second to Compton's John Magnuson in the 100, which Magnuson won in 9.8. Poly's Jim Duke snared the varsity 440 in 51.8.

Sharpe shared the spotlight with Montebello's Nick Romano in the sprints as Ramono dashed to victory in his heats with times of 10.0 and 20.9.

The only other local to win two events in varsity competition was Poly's John Calloway who took the broad jump in 23-1 and tied in the low hurdles at 19.0.

Harrison Walker stood out for Poly in the Cee division by nabbing his heat in the 100 and coming right back to take first in the broad jump.

Wally Blaylock and Bob Eldon scored double wins for the Bruin Bees — Blaylock taking first in the 100 and 660 and Eldon in the 100 and 220.

Mickey Byers, standout of the Bruin Cee division, scored in the high jump and pole vault and Leighton Hazelhurst, also of the Bruins, placed second in the high and low hurdle heats in which he competed.

The CIF semifinals will be held at Compton next Tuesday and the finals at Chaffey on Saturday.

WINDS POSTPONE MANY

Hoyt Wins '500' Pole Post With Near-Record 140 Trial

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Jerry Hoyt of Indianapolis, literally a race driver since he was a child, won the pole position for the 39th 500-mile Memorial Day auto race Saturday by bucking gusty winds in a qualifying run at 140.045 miles an hour.

Only one other car qualified on the first day of the time trials.

Hoyt's time was the second best 10-mile speed ever made on the Indianapolis motor speedway. Hoyt's car is owned by J. M. Robbins of Royal Oak, Mich.

The wind blew all day in gusts up to 36 miles an hour, and car owners were trying to reach an agreement to stay off the track when Hoyt went out 13 minutes before the official closing time.

The 26-year-old Hoyt, one-time mascot of the Lucky Teeter thrill show, won the Rex Mays Memorial trophy for the pole car with a speed second only to 141.033 record set last year by Jack McGrath of Inglewood, Calif., in the 10-mile trials.

A crowd estimated upward of 75,000 sat all day waiting for action before Hoyt broke the stalemate.

Other drivers rushed to the starting line after Hoyt took the starting flag, but only Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., veteran of eight Indianapolis races, was able to qualify before the track closed.

Bettenhausen's speed of 139.985 in the Chapman Special was the third best in the track records.

Pat O'Connor of North Vernon, Ind., in the Ansted Rotary Special, started a qualification attempt but was running too slow and didn't finish. He will have two more chances.

Ready to go at the gun were Sam Hanks of Burbank, Calif.; Walt Faulkner of Long Beach, Calif.; two-time winner Bill Vukovich of Fresno, Calif., and Bob Sweikert of Indianapolis. They'll get other chances today or in trials May 21 and 22.

RAMS ACQUIRE 'TUB THUMPER'

SEATTLE (AP) — Bert Rose, assistant director of athletics and manager of the Athletic News Service at the University of Washington, announced his resignation Saturday to become public relations director of the Los Angeles Rams professional football team.

Rose joined the Athletic News Service in 1947. Two years ago he was named assistant director of athletics.

Rose said he regrets leaving the university but he feels he cannot pass up the opportunity offered by the Rams.

Daley Hurls, Bats Solons to 7-2 Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (U.P.)—Sacramento chased over seven runs in a third inning eruption featured by pitcher Bud Daley's two singles to score a 7-2 victory over San Francisco Saturday and even the series at 3-3.

Besides sparking the Sacs at the plate, Daley set the Seals down with eight hits before a crowd of 1,930 and joined Al Gettel of Oakland as the only six-game winner in the PCL. Daley has lost three.

The 22-year-old lefthander singled off Steve Nagy early in the wild third and scored the tying run when reliefer Jim Walsh uncorked a wild pitch. Later in the frame he drove in the final two runs with a single off Maurice Fisher.

SHARP DIVISION. Based on what they observed in spring practices, Big Ten football coaches stand emphatically divided on the new liberalized substitution rule which permits a player to leave and return to a game once in each quarter.

"A step in the right direction — toward platooning," is what Woodrow (Woody) Hayes, masterminded of Ohio State's 1954 Western Conference and '55 Rose Bowl champions, claims. "I would go all the way and favor the return to unlimited substitution, but the new rule will help and we plan to take full advantage of the change."

Michigan's Bennie Oosterbann thinks another way, to wit:

"It won't make too much difference. It's not going to change the game very much. It didn't in our spring sessions."

Realisitically, Indiana's Bernie Crimmins is convinced that it will be a help, although along lines not mentioned by Hayes.

"It will be safer and better game with the new sub rule," he offered. "It will help the caliber of the game by giving the coach a chance to talk to his players and suggest plays which might help the particular situation at hand."

Iowa's Hawkeyes may throw a combination offense at their rivals this fall—the split-T and the single wing. The new rule will help his club, says Iowa coach Forest Evashevski.

"At this time it appears that we are in no position to outpersonnel anybody in the Big Ten," he said last week. "The new rule probably will help Iowa's two-offense attack. It certainly will permit us to use more kids."

And Purdue's Stu Holcomb gave out with this observation: "It will make it possible to get more effective use out of strictly offensive players as well as provide needed rest for regulars who may be momentarily exhausted or shaken up."

On one point, argument was unanimous. The new rule will enable injured players to be called to the sidelines for checkups and if they're healthy they can return. This, the Big Ten coaches believe, makes a good "safety measure" out of the new rule.

As a serious injury preventive, the new rule has their 100 per cent backing. Otherwise, their interpretations are based strictly on their own individual problems which have come to the surface in spring drills.

PARADISE. Kansas City's ball park is being called the new home run paradise of the American League. In the first 17 home games the Athletics played, 56 home runs were clouted out of the orchard.

The reason is a short leftfield fence. By measurement, it is 328 feet from home plate. It looks much shorter, however. A better description would be —more inviting.

At the rate of home runs rifled out of the park in the first 17 games, a season's effort would amount to something like 250 homers—in round figures. This would be more than a hundred more than were swatted in Fenway Park, home of the Boston Red Sox.

Fenway Park, it is said around the circuit, has been the AL's home run playground because of a reasonably short leftfield fence. Last year 139 were hit out of the park. This was tops in the league.

When KC looms on the schedules of the seven rival clubs, the sluggers with the four-ply appetites begin to drool!

NOW HEAR THIS! Call it loyalty to his paycheck source if you will, but old Chollie Ruffing, the former New York Yankee pitcher now toiling with the Cleveland Indians as a coach of pitchers, claims that Herb Score, Tribe rookie flash, throws his fast one with as much zip on it as does Bullet Bob Turley, claimed the fastest thrower in the American League.

"That boy has all he needs to be one of the great pitchers of our time," offered the old redhead, former Long Beacher, the other day. "His fast ball is as fast as Turley's, his curve is better, his control is improving and he has the youth. In other words, he has all the tools'"

A contradictory report comes from the Detroit Tigers:

"We have seen Turley and have hit against Score," said Bill Tuttle of the Tigers. "Bob throws harder than Herb."

"Turley throws harder," adds Tiger boss Bucky Harris. "Bob does NOT throw as hard as Lefty Grove, Bob Feller and Dazzy Vance did in their prime."

The jury may be out a long time on this one!

ON THE LAM. Don't tell anybody I told you, but that man with the "silver strands among the gold" seen gum-shoeing around the Southland last week was Red Strader, coach of the San Francisco 49ers. He's in the Southland on a scouting mission.

In fact, all the 49er hired hands are living out of suitcases these days. Red Hickey, who used to handle the ends for the Los Angeles Rams, is doing the Big Ten and the midwest. Phil Bengstom is thrashing through the Pacific Northwest, and Frankie Albert is operating in the bay area.

They're looking for "sleepers," some of the 1954 collegians who were overlooked in the draft!

Wonder whatever happened to the Rams?

AS THE BALLS GO WHIZZING BY . . . .

Turley Wants Right Score, Not Herbie

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Bob Turley of the Yankees cheerfully conceded the major league strikeout title Saturday to Herb Score, Cleveland's spectacular rookie southpaw.

Turley and Score, probably the two fastest pitchers in baseball, have each struck out 57 batters so far.

Many believe that Turley, who struck out 185 men last year and wound up tied with Robin Roberts of the Phillies for the major league lead, will win the title going away this year. Even though he lost his last start after five straight victories, he still fanned 11 Indians.

"As far as I'm concerned, Score can have the strikeout title," Turley says. "I notice that some of the papers are trying to build up a 'race' between him and me for the strikeout title, but I don't intend getting involved in anything like that.

"If I can just help the Yankees win the pennant, Score can have the strikeout title and any other title he wants. The only title I'm interested in is the world champion title for the club."

Turley admits that "it's only natural to want to be first in anything, even in strikeouts," but he insists they're not that important.

"What's the good of striking out 10 or 12 men if you lose the ball game?"

Some cynics may get the idea that the right-handed Yankee fast-baller acquired in a trade with Baltimore during the winter is a lot more interested in his strikeout total than he lets on. But that isn't the case at all. In the last game he pitched Wednesday against Cleveland, he took over the strikeout leadership from Score temporarily but his first question after the game ended was:

"How many did I walk?"

The answer to that question was eight and those walks contributed heavily toward his defeat.

"My control is something else that interests me much more than strikeouts," Turley says.

"I've improved it quite a bit in the last year but I still have a long way to go. I'm still working on it."

Turley's best pitch, of course, is his fast ball and perhaps the greatest tribute to it was paid by a specially-designed machine which revealed that he had thrown a ball even faster than Bob Feller did in his prime.

Howard Delivers in No. 4 Slot, Cleans Up on Tigers

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Rookie Elston Howard celebrated his installation into the cleanup spot with a dramatic ninth-inning triple that capped a three-run rally Saturday and gave the New York Yankees an uphill 7-6 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Howard's game-winning blow came off southpaw Al Aber and scored Joe Collins and Mickey Mantle. Southpaw Billy Hoeft, who nursed a 6-4 lead until the ninth, was chased in that frame when a single by pinch-hitter Eddie Robinson, a walk to Collins and Mantle's single produced the Yankees' fifth run.

The loss was charged to Hoeft, who yielded 11 of the Yankees' 12 hits, including Hank Bauer's seventh homer in the fifth inning, plus triples by Howard, Mantle and Bauer.

Jim Konstanty, the third Yankee pitcher, checked the Tigers on two hits over the last three innings to register his first victory of the season.

Detroit chased Yankee starter Bob Grim and broke a 3-all tie with three runs in the fifth on two walks, a single by Harvey Kuenn, a sacrifice fly and doubles by Al Kaline and Ray Boone.

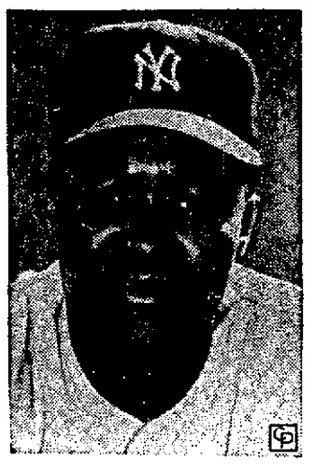

Kaline, the American League's leading hitter who raised his average to .380 with a single and double, drove in Detroit's first run in the opening inning with a single after Fred Hatfield had looped a double to left.

Yogi Berra's single and Billy Hunter's double to right-center tied the score in the second inning but the Yankees went ahead with two runs in the third on Bauer's triple, an infield out, Howard's first triple of the game and Berra's single.

Slam by Furillo Sets Pace.

CINCINNATI (U.P.) — Carl Furillo hit a grand slam home run in the midst of a seven-run seventh inning Brooklyn Dodgers uprising Saturday to ease the way for lefty Johnny Podres' seven-hit 13-2 triumph over the Cincinnati Redlegs.

Bob Hooper, the Redlegs' third pitcher, was the chief victim of the Brooklyn barrage. Hooper walked Roy Campanella, the leadoff batter in the seventh and then Sandy Amoros and Gil Hodges bunted safely down the third base line to load the bases.

Furillo, who previously had gone 14 times at bat without a hit, smashed the first pitch over the leftfield wall for his ninth home run of the season.

Don Hoak walked, moved up on Podres' sacrifice and scored on Jim Gilliam's single. After Peewee Reese struck out, Duke Snider walloped his 10th homer over the rightfield fence for two more runs. Campanella, up for the second time in the inning, singled and Amoros walked, bringing in Art Fowler. Hodges walked to load the bases again, but Furillo flied out to end the inning.

Podres, backed by a 16-hit Dodger attack, four by Snider, breezed to his fourth triumph against one loss this season. Wally Post hit a home run in the ninth inning after a walk to Ted Kluszewski to prevent a shutout. Before hitting his homer, Post had struck out three times.

In addition to their robust hitting attack, the Dodgers were aided by 10 bases on balls, as they scored their 24th victory in 28 games.

High Gun, 'Voltage Rack Up Victories

(Compiled from UP and AP)

High Gun, the 1954 three-year-old champion, successfully launched his handicap campaign at Belmont Park Saturday with a runaway victory in the $36,400 Metropolitan Handicap despite high weight of 130 pounds.

Jockey Tony DeSpirito, riding the King Ranch colt for the first time, steered High Gun around the field entering the stretch and then broke the 62nd running of the stake wide open as High Gun pulled away from the field in the straightaway. He finished the mile in a sparkling 1:35 3/5.

It was the fifth fastest clocking in the history of the Metropolitan and it carried High Gun over the finish line four and one-half length ahead of James C. Brady's Artismo.

Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Joe Jones was third in the field of 10. High Gun was the favorite and paid $5:70.

High Voltage defeated eight other leading 3-year-old fillies in winning the $20,000-added Black-Eyed Susan Stakes at Pimlico.

The Wheatley Stable star, champion of her division in 1954, scored by a length over Pin Oak Farm's Bless Pat. Louis L. Haggin's Hen Party nipped Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Sometime Thing in a photo for third.

Ridden by Eddie Arcaro, who piloted her to victory in the Acorn at Belmont last May 4, High Voltage paid $4.60, $4 and $2.80.

Willie Shoemaker, driving home a winner on the underrated Beau Busher, took the big one at Golden Gate. Beau Busher negotiated the mile and a sixteenth $50,000 Oakland Handicap in 1:42 4/5 and paid $7.90.

Bezaha, with Gordon Glisson up, was second, and Guilton Madero, ridden by I. Valenzuela, was third.

The race was the feature of Golden Gate's closing day.

Phillies Drop 12th Straight

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Philadelphia Phils had the satisfaction of smacking ace Warren Spahn out of the game Saturday, but 6 1/3 innings of fine relief hurling by Ernie Johnson and Ed Mathews' homer gave the Milwaukee Braves a 5-4 uphill victory. The loss was the 12th straight for the last place Phillies.

Mathews' 400-foot bases empty homer off starter and loser Jack Meyer in the sixth inning provided the winning run but the key blow in the Braves' win was catcher Del Crandall's three-run double in the fourth. With the bases loaded on two singles and a walk and two away, everybody took off when Crandall hit and all made it home as the ball bounced off the leftfield fence.

2nd Jensen Homer Nips A's in 13th, 3-1

BOSTON (U.P.)—Jackie Jensen's two-run homer in the bottom of the 13th inning, his second of the game, broke a 1-1 tie and gave the Boston Red Sox a 3-1 victory over the Kansas City Athletics Saturday.

The payoff blow was Jensen's seventh of the year and came off veteran Johnny Sain to spoil an excellent relief job for the former New York Yankee ace.

Sain pitched hitless ball after retiring the side in the 10th when Kansas City starter Art Ditmar loaded the bases. However, Sain gave up a single to Harry Agganis with one out in the 13th and then served the home run ball that Jensen hit barely fair down the leftfield foul-line.

Jensen gave Red Sox starter Leo Kiely a 1-0 lead in the fourth when he belted his first homer over the leftfield wall.

Kansas City tied the count in the fifth on three successive singles with two men out with Ditmar, who had three singles, driving in Joe DeMaestri.

Moon Scorns Cherished Soph Jinx

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (U.P.) —Wally Moon, the 1954 rookie of the year, refuses to take one of baseball's most cherished beliefs seriously.

"The sophomore jinx," Moon said, "is something that's entirely in a man's mind. There's no reason at all why a hitter shouldn't be just as good or better after a year's experience.

And the St. Louis Cardinals' outfielder's performance certainly upholds his opinion.

Moon, who regards the first 100 times at bat as a fair index, has all the figures on his side.

Last year he had 35 hits in the first hundred trips; this year it's 34.

But there's a good explanation for even that slight discrepancy.

He would have exactly the same number of safe blows were it not for a base-running booboo by teammate Frank Smith. In the April 14 opener with Milwaukee, pitcher Smith, on first, failed to run to second base as the potential winning run crossed the plate. The emmission converted Moon's clean single to right field into a force play, depriving Wally of the hit and the run batted in.

Moon, a devout believer in conditioning, credits his fine second-year start to a rigorous spring training schedule.

"I played winter ball before last season," Moon said. "I think that helped me to get away to a fast start and I wanted to be just as ready this year."

The 25-year old flycatcher, a native of Bay, Ark., now lives in St. Louis, which he visited as a basketball star with Texas A&M University.

The amazing parallel between his hitting in 1954 and this year is not limited to the garden variety of base hits.

He had four home runs after 100 trips last year.

This year, naturally, he again has four.

Richardson Sparks Tulane to SEC Title

NEW ORLEANS (U.P.) — Davis Cupper Hamilton Richardson led the way Saturday as Tulane's powerful tennis team swept to its 13th Southeastern Conference tennis championship in 17 attempts.

Richardson, National Collegiate Athletic Association champion and third-ranking national amateur, breezed by Florida's John Hires, 6-0, 6-0, in a short 33 minutes in the number one singles to become the first four-time winner of the SEC singles championship.

Pitch 'n Putt Wininger 3 Shots Ahead

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (U.P.)—Bo Wininger, the 33-year-old Oklahoman playing his third year as a pro, pitched and putted himself into a three-stroke lead at the three-quarter mark of the $15,000 Hot Springs Open golf tournament Saturday with a 54-hole total of 202.

The chunky former Oklahoma A&M golfer fired his third straight sub-par round, a 34-34—68, over the Hot Springs Country Club's little-used No. 3 course to stay three strokes in front of veteran Johnny Palmer of Charlotte, N. C., who moved up into second spot as some of the halfway-point leaders floundered.

Wininger had his shorts irons working to perfection and he didn't have a really long putt all day.

Doug Ford, who was tied with Wininger for the lead at the start of the round, skidded to a one-over-par 73 and wound up in third spot at 207 along with Cary Middlecoff, who had his putting troubles and finished with a 71.

The 1955 edition of the Long Beach City Championships — championship flight qualifying next Sunday—should be one of the most exciting in the 30-year history of the tournament.

Already there are 128 aspirants for the 64 championship slots and the prospective field is as marked with quality as it is with quantity.

Starting at the top, Del Walker of Virginia CC will be back to defend his title as will runner-up Craig Olson of Lakewood. Walker defeated Olson, 2 and 1, in the 36-hole finals last year.

In analyzing the field, one observation becomes paramount. Just as the young players are gaining prominence in the national scene, it appears that the 1955 City Championships will also boast an unusual amount of outstanding young talent.

Let's take a look. There are:

Dick Clover . . . the new Southern California Publinx champion.

Sandy Mosk Jr. . . . the Riviera CC youth who was runner-up to Dr. Bud Taylor in the 1954 Southern California Golf Association championships.

Lolo Saldana . . . the former Catalina Island Bobby Jones tournament victory, recently discharged from the Army.

Johnny Tate . . . the ex-Wilson High ace who was runner-up to Irv Cooper in the 1952 City Championships. Tate is in the Navy stationed at San Diego.

Johnny Lucas . . . the City Junior champion who last Sunday set the unofficial Recreation Park course record with a nine-under par 63.

Al Chandler . . . the former National Caddy champion who last Monday won the Southern California Junior College tournament representing El Camino JC.

Bob Darnell . . . the Recreation Park sub-par shooter who two weeks ago played the back nine at the Park in six-under par 30.

Dick McBride . . . the Loyola University ace who reached the quarter-finals in last year's championships.

Bobby Lewis, Dan Talbot and Dick Smith . . . Long Beach City College standouts. Lewis was the gallery favorite of last year's play, reaching the semi-finals and nearly catching Olson in a stirring stretch rally.

Keith Lopp and Mike Fedderly . . . Poly High stars. Fedderly was medalist in the recent L. A. City Championships and co-medalist in the Inglewood So. Cal. prep tournament.

Pinky Stevenson . . . Wilson High's team leader, who was a quarter-finalist in the 1954 National Junior Championships.

Ray Echols and Jim Kardas . . . Santa Ana CC and Hacienda CC junior aces, respectively.

So if youth must be served, there's certainly every indication that this could be its tournament.

But now comes the grizzled,

JOHNNY TATE
City Runnerup in '52

throaty dissensions of the "old-timers"—many who have watched the youths crumble under the championship competition in previous years.

Walker will be shooting for victory No. 5, and although hampered by a lame back most of the year, must be considered the one to beat.

The only other former champion in the field is Wally Taft, the veteran Orange County sports scribe, who probably has held more club championships than any other man in history. Taft won the city title in 1949. Medalist last year with a 66, he was upset in the very first round only to bounce back and capture the Mayor's Flight.

Two past semi-finalists back for another try are Stan Schulte of Hacienda CC and Chuck Brinkus of Los Angeles. Doug McKay, a veteran of many years of competition, is another returnee.

Leading representatives from area clubs (not previously mentioned) include former State amateur champion Neil White and Rex Wall of Virginia CC; club champion Larry Griggs, John McMonegal and Don Montgomery of Recreation Park; club champion Tony Tinkham, John Richardson and Andy Holmes of Lakewood; Jack Augsberger, Rollie Sims, Ray Henderson and Buck Andreasen of Meadowlark; Joe Hendry of the South Course; Howard Estep and Cecil Wheat of Huntington Beach, and Orange County champion Fred Valenzano, Frank Donaldson and Hal Gregg of Willowick.

Another top entry is Neil Burgess of Western Ave.

It's quite a lineup—but only ONE will remain comes late afternoon, Sunday, June 5!

ENTRY DEADLINE for the National Public Links Championships to be held July 11-16 at Indianapolis, Ind., is June 3. Sectional qualifying is scheduled for June 19 at Griffith Park. Entries can be obtained at all public course golf shops.

GLEN ORGAN, 78-12, won the Virginia Men's Club Saturday Sweepstakes with a 66.

Tied for second at 68 were T. W. Buchholz, 88-20; Roy Brown, 80-12, and Jess Shakelton, 79-11. A stroke behind in third place were C. F. Van de Water, 86-17, and John Cone, 84-15.

Blind bogey (71) victors were Art Jones, Norman Lucas, Fred Kerns, Adm. Gillilan, Paul McBride, L. M. Foto, Delbert Walker, Charles Whitchurch and Dr. Charles Foulks.

Husky Crew Outrows Cal

SEATTLE (U.P.)—The University of Washington's smooth stroking crew outrowed California's varsity on Lake Washington Saturday to win the 2¾-mile rowing duel by six lengths.

Washington's victory in the varsity race came after a near tragedy was averted in the previous race when a Washington oarsman "caught a crab" and was flipped overboard. Bowman Doug Wetter's oar hit the water on the back stroke and tossed him into the drink a half-mile from the finish line.

The exhausted rower was having a hard time keeping his head above water and Ivar (Buzz) Birkeland, Washington's lightweight crew coach, dove to the rescue and kept Wetter afloat until he was picked up. The accident cost Washington's junior varsity any chance of winning that race, and the Bears finished four and a half lengths in front.

Washington's freshmen defeated the California frosh by eight and three-quarters lengths in their two-mile go.

Washington won the varsity event in 14:29, far off the course record set by Cal in 1949. California's time was 14:54.6.

WILLOWICK PROS

Boggs, Willis to Sepulveda

Dick Boggs, head professional at Willowick golf course in Santa Ana, has accepted a similar position at the new Los Angeles County Sepulveda Dam courses in the San Fernando Valley. Don Willis, his assistant at Willowick, will accompany him to the new location.

Boggs served as assistant pro at Lakewood from 1950 through 1952 and has been at Willowick since 1953. He is presently the SC-PGA tournament chairman. Willis, a Long Beach City College graduate, was assistant at Virginia CC before moving to Willowick in 1953.

The Sepulveda post was considered the most desirable in the Southland and it is a major boost for both Boggs and Willis. There has been no announcement of their replacements at Willowick.

Field of 5 in Miracle Mile at Coliseum

Wes Santee, the United States threat to the four-minute mile, and Denmark's Gunnar Nielsen, who has beaten Santee three times in indoor competition, will clash in a field of five in the third running of the "Miracle Mile" race Friday night in the Coliseum Relays.

This will mark the first time Santee and Nielsen have met outdoors. In one of Nielsen's three wins over the lanky Kansan he set an indoor mark of 4:03.6. Santee had held the record of 4:03.8.

Darkhorse among the five entrees in the mile is Billy Tidwell of Emporia State Teachers' College in Kansas. The speedy Tidwell turned in a 47.0 and 1:48.6 in the 440 and 880 in the Kansas and Drake Relays, respectively. He also has beaten Santee twice in the mile run.

Sid Wing of SC and Phil Coleman from Champaign, Ill. round out the field. Wing's best clocking is 4:11.7 while Coleman has run around 4:10 several times. Wing has plenty of early speed and is expected to pace the field for the first three laps.

Another feature "grudge" match pits the world record holder, the Olympic champ, Olympic runner-up and the national collegiate champ in the javelin throw.

World record holder Bud Held of the San Francisco Olympic Club will attempt to hit the 270-foot mark. Held's world mark currently stands at 263-10.

Nielsen, the Copenhagen newspaper man, arrives in Los Angeles this afternoon at 2:30 after a trans-polar flight from Copenhagen on Scandinavian Airlines.

JUDO TOURNEY

L.B. Entries at Olympic

Four local boys will enter the third annual AAU National Judo tournament to be held in Los Angeles May 28-29. Entries from the Long Beach Judo School will be Al Quast, Ron Saragin, Dave Cox and Leo Buckman. John Ogden is coach.

All contestants must be amateurs as defined by the AAU. A "round-robin" elimination will be held between the champions of each weight classification to determine the tournament's grand champion.

A touring Black Belt team from Japan will put on an exhibition to highlight the opening night's festivities at Olympic Auditorium.

The HOT CORNER

by VERN STEPHENS

CHICAGO—The best rules change in recent years, in my estimation, has been the narrowing of the catcher's box. It has added more skill and excitement to the game.

It has made a difference in at least four games that I know of. The offensive team won three of the games, lost the other.

The one I remember best is the time Baltimore's Don Ferrarese tried to intentionally walk Chico Carrasquel of the White Sox.

Farrarese threw the first one right over the plate for a strike, but then threw the next three wide. However, Chico tried to slap at one of them, but missed as the count leveled out to 2-2. Farrarese tossed another intentional ball to make it 3-2, but then got real cute and came in with a wide curve that Chico watched go by.

VERN STEPHENS

Nellie Fox, the next batter, walked (but not intentionally) to load the bases with two out . . . but Minoso popped up to end the inning.

As there were two men on, the bases would have been loaded had Carrasquel walked and the base on balls to Fox would have forced across the winning run for the Sox, who lost the game in the next inning.

That's one time Chico should have accepted an intentional walk without trying to slap at a wide pitch.

The other three games, though, have gone the other way with the batters reaching out when one got a little too close and slapping the ball into the opposite field for a base hit to score the winning runs.

We all think the smaller catcher's box has added a lot of color to the game. The intentional walk is no longer "automatic."

PAUL RICHARDS HAS SOME DANDY "PETS" on his Baltimore club.

For instance, one of them—a pitcher—is the "sleepingest" player in the major leagues. His "hobby" has also caused him much embarrassment at times, but this hasn't cut a minute off his sleeping time.

One of the pitcher's favorite tricks is to get a pair of sun glasses the outfielders use, put them on while sitting on the bench . . . and then doze off.

Twice that I know of before leaving the club and moving on to the White Sox the rest of the Orioles have gone to the clubhouse and left him sound asleep on the bench.

One time during spring training, we got dressed at our own clubhouse, boarded a bus for a short trip to a neighboring city for a game and then came back by bus to shower in our own clubhouse before returning to our hotel.

This player slept all the way over to the game, during the contest . . . and all the way back.

He was still sleeping soundly when the rest of the team got off to shower. The bus returned to the garage with him still stretched out in a back seat. He didn't wake up for a couple of hours and you can imagine his amazement to find himself in the bus barn.

He had to walk practically all the way across town in his uniform to the clubhouse to get his clothes and billfold so he would have cab fare back to the hotel.

But this did stop his siestas? Nope, the very next day he slept through a full 10 innings of play!

PAY AS YOU SEE

Subscription TV Near

NEW YORK (A.P.)—If the Federal Communications Commission decides to approve subscription television this year, it is entirely possible stay-at-homes will have to pay to watch baseball games next season.

All three metropolitan clubs—the New York Giants, New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers—have expressed interest in this new source of income, according to Arthur Levey, head of one of the three firms manufacturing pay-as-you-see equipment. If clearance comes this year, Levey added, his outfit, Skiatron, Inc., will be ready to service baseball games by next spring. Hearings on the subject will begin June 9 in Washington but Levey does not expect a final decision until the fall.

"We've discussed the matter with Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers, Horace Stoneham of the Giants and Dan Topping of the Yankees," said Levey, "and they all expressed a keen interest."

If subscription television is adopted, Levey said he envisioned a 25-cent charge for every set tuned into a baseball or football game, a $1.00 charge for such special features as a heavyweight champion fight. No programs would be sponsored. At this rate, he estimated a baseball club would clear as much as $40,000 to $50,000 a game.

Penn, Cornell Top Rowers

WASHINGTON (A.P.)—Pennsylvania and Cornell, bitter football rivals, rowed off Saturday with top honors in the hotly contested 10th running of the Eastern Collegiate Sprint Rowing Championships.

The big victory went to Coach Joe Burk's Penn Crew, which trounced all opposition in a one-sided triumph in the varsity championships. Its time was only a tenth of a second over the course record.

Less spectacularly Cornell won the $30,000 Rowe Cup by collecting the most points in the three-event Potomac Regatta rowed partly in the rain.

Cornell, which had been given a fair chance to sweep the river in the varsity, junior varsity, and freshman races, won only the Jayvee event. That victory came only after a thrilling stretch duel with lightly regarded Yale. But by finishing second in both the varsity and frosh races, Cornell earned a total of 18 points. Penn, which finished last in the finals of both the Jayvee and frosh races, wound up with a total of 10 points. Harvard, winner of the frosh race, had 8.

Navy, regatta champion for the last three years failed to collect a point, finishing dead last in the varsity finals.

Jack Kramer Admits Illegal Amateur Pay

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Jack Kramer, now a professional tennis promoter, disclosed Saturday in an article written for This Week Magazine that he took money for playing tennis when he was the amateur tennis champion of the U. S. in 1946 and 1947.

Kramer said that in view of the fact that tennis was a 52-week a year business for anyone playing at the top tournament level, and that inasmuch as he had "a wife and a family on the way," he couldn't live on the $10 a day and travel expenses, the going rate at the time.

"So I became a professional without mentioning the fact," he said. "This will be news to the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, whose governing body, had it known I was being paid by tournament sponsors, would have thrown me out of the game."

Kramer suggested that "the feasible method to take hypocrisy out of amateur tennis is the open tournament with the professionals and amateurs competing for the prize money."

Investigate Big Money Bet on Mederos

PHILADELPHIA (A.P.)—Philadelphia police continued their investigation of the Harold Johnson-Julio Mederos fight along the lines that big money was bet on Mederos, the 4-1 underdog in the scheduled 10-round bout at the Arena last May 6.

Inspector John F. Driscoll said Saturday he had learned that an out-of-town gambler arrived in Philadelphia about noon the day of the fight and proclaimed he had a bundle of cash to bet on Mederos. Driscoll said he learned that local gamblers, fearing a "fix," steered clear of the visitor and would not cover his bets.

Johnson collapsed at the end of the second round. Tests made by physicians and chemists disclosed the fighter had traces of a barbiturate in his system.

Mederos was given a technical knockout victory.

Driscoll said he was seeking the visiting gambler.

Promoter Herman Taylor, who staged the bout in cooperation with the International Boxing Club of New York, Referee Dave Beloff and Judges Nat Lopinson and Jim Mina are to be questioned by police.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

By BERT RESNIK

(Fishin' for Donnell Culpepper).

Seventeen years is a long time for a man to stay away from fishing.

And it's the duty of every self-respecting father to introduce his son to the singular fascinating relaxation that accompanies the sport.

It was our day off so 7-year-old Davey and I hopped into "Old Hoss" (our car) and took off for Irvine Lake.

The evening before had been one of eager anticipation. We examined and reexamined the two poles the conductor of this column, Don Culpepper, had provided us.

We put hooks on one, figuring we'd let the other go until we go into the boat. That way there would be less chance of tangling the poles in the car—we thought.

We left the house a little after 8 a. m. and I did most of the talking. The thing I liked most, I told Davey, was that we are going to be fishing with worms.

Seventeen years ago worms were the principal entree for the sunfish in Lake Zurich, Ill.

While still in the car, I had Davey put a life preserver on and repeated my warnings about standing in the boat or rocking it.

We boarded the rowboat at 9 a.m. and a few mimnutes later dropped anchor about 50 feet off the pier. I baited Davey's hooks, then started searching my pockets for the other hooks.

They were in a safe place atop the televisison set about 30 miles away.

We rowed back to shore and I bought some more hooks.

We got back in the boat at 9:45 a.m. Fishing was wonderful—for everybody else.

At 12:11 a.m. Davey had a nibble. The nibble got away. Davey was very excited. And you know what excitement will do.

So before it did too much, we headed for the little wooden house across the way where "MEN" was scrawled. I cautioned Davey again not to stand up in the boat.

Near the shore, I stood up in the boat prepared to jump out and beach our launch.

I didn't get a chance. My heels chased my head and I went spilling into the lake. I did not, however, tip the boat.

I emereged and got aboard.

"You sure got wet, Dad," said Davey. "How come you didn't take a life preserver?"

Sometimes kids ask the darndest questions. Just no answering them.

At 2:45 p.m. Davey caught a fish, the first in his young life.

I could have kissed that croppie. Seemed to me it had literally jumped into our boat just to make a small boy happy.

Still soaked, I was ready to call it a day. But Davey didn't think it was a good idea. We had to stay out until I caught one, too. Mom would sure kid me if I didn't.

So, ok, we stayed.

The fish didn't like my worms nor did they show any more preference for Davey's. I remembered that Don had told me to buy something else but all I could think of was lice. I was sure that was wrong. (Later I found out it was li-cut.)

At 5:45 p.m., the wind whipping my soaked skin like a December snow, I finally caught a fish. It was a real small one and I'm not sure it was recognized by any piscatorial species.

But it was a fish and they couldn't take that away from it.

So we headed home.

Mom (Annette) was tremendously admiring, between sporadic fits of choked laughter. Our 3-year-old daughter, Eve, touched one of the fishes tails.

As I washed them off, the croppie opened and shut its mouth. It was—believe it or don't—still alive. Davey's eyes widened, but he didn't say anything—then.

We put the fish in the refrigerator and that was that.

The next morning I was at work — another singular fascinating relaxation with much less strain—when I received a call from home.

Mom put Davey on the phone. He was sobful.

The fishes were still alive, he said. Why should we kill them. He hadn't meant to hurt them. Couldn't I come home so we could take them to the bay and throw them back in.

Seventeen years is a long time for a man to stay away from fishing. It's going to be longer next time.

FISHING ROUNDUP

Night fishing at Catalina Island remains red hot! Sixty-four anglers on three Pierpoint Landing boats landed 29 big white sea bass and 39 yellowtail Thursday night and early Friday. The fishermen reported they lost at least 80 white sea bass hookups.

Daylight catches of white sea bass at Catalina have slowed considerably, but yellowtail are on the upgrade. San Clemente Island continues to produce yellowtail. Halibut have moved into the Horseshoe Kelp area.

Fish-off for the first qualifying period in the San Diego Yellowtail Derby is Wednesday. The second qualifying period got under way today. Top qualifier for the first period is Dick Fleming of San Diego with a 50-pound 3-ounce yellow taken at the Point Loma kelp beds.

Trout plants were made by the Department of Fish and Game during the past few days in Big Rock Creek, Crystal Lake, Jackson Lake, East, North and West Forks of the San Gabriel River, Los Angeles County; Holy Jim, San Juan and Trabuco Creeks, Orange County; Big Bear Lake, Deep Creek (at Bowen Ranch), Falls, Forsee, Grass Valley, Diversion, Mill, Miller Canyon and Mountain Home Creeks, San Bernardino County; and Boulder Creek, Doane Lake, Pine Valley Creek, San Luis Rey River and Sweetwater River (Green Valley Camp area), San Diego County.

Privately-operated Irvine Lake will be stocked Monday with 1,000 large trout. Plantings will be made each Monday.

12 Rivals Out to Cool 'Ice'

By BOB RUSKAUFF

The guy who tried to talk his way out of trouble saying "I didn't know it was loaded" is no relative of Carl Maginn, the Glendale speedboat ace who defends his National Cracker Box runabout championship May 30 on Marine Stadium.

Nationals for the rough-shod and colorful fleet will feature running of the seventh all-Western Memorial Day inboard sweepstakes.

Cracker Box entry list, as revealed Saturday, bids to be an "unlucky 13" boats. And every rival in the field will be loaded. The target: Maginn and co-pilot Don Oakley aboard Hot Ice.

For the speedboater-contractor it's a case of double trouble. Hot Ice not only defends national honors but won out in the class last Memorial Day.

To date the Hot Ice combo has had it rough in western circuit meets leading to the classic here. At Bakersfield the boat flipped and sunk. At Parker, Ariz. she was rammed in starting maneuvers and forced from action.

All real threats to the Hot Ice combo are Southlanders and unquestionably most dangerous are the Van Nuys brothers, Bob and Tom Patterson with Hot Cinders.

Almost as rough will be the Bakersfield father-son combination of Earl Johns and son Ronald with It'l Do, and the No Go of Pico with Paul Pierce and Robert Rice aboard.

Other top goers include Monkey Motion (not the one involved in the recent Marine Stadium accident), Princess Lynn, Hot Toddy, Shiftless, Zitz Kid, Stir Crazy, Chatterbox and Vaya Con Dioz.

INBOARDS WILL boom it for May 30 here next Sunday at Modesto. Stock outboards race today at Bakersfield. Racing outboards, to clash here June 19 in the Coral Sea regatta for Navy relief, do battle next Sunday at Palmdale, on a brand-new course.

SPRING SERIES sailing races are on tap on two fronts this afternoon. Third and final round of races for some 10 classes is slated by Cabrillo Beach YC which has the "welcome sign to all boats bringing three or more entries" according to Rear Commdr. Bill Evans.

Second round Newport Harbor YC races (of three) will be held, starting 1 p.m. First CBYC action starts 11 a.m. off the clubhouse at the foot of Miner St., San Pedro.

TITLE GO---

title in modern days since Bob Fitzsimmons knocked out James J. Corbett at Carson City, Nev., in 1897. Although "Ready Robert" was born in Cornwall, England, his family moved to New Zealand when he was 9 and most of his fighting was done in America.

The new Ring ratings, soon to be released, list Cockell as the No. 3 challenger, behind Archie Moore and Bob Baker. Unbeaten since he ate his way into the heavy class in '52, Cockell has a spotty lifetime record of 61-10-1. He has been knocked out five times. In '51 Jimmy Slade dropped him five times on the way to a 4th round TKO and in June, 1952, Randy Turpin, former middleweight champ, had him down three times before the referee stopped it in the 11th.

Cockell claims weight-making 181 for Slade and 174¼ for Turpin) weakened him in both instances. Since becoming a 200-pounder he has won the British Empire title from Johnny Williams, beaten American Harry Matthews three times and outpointed Roland LaStarza, a Marciano victim.

A stinging left jab and hook are his best weapons while Marciano throws about everything in the book in combinations. Cockell hasn't fought in 10 months and Rocky has been idle for eight months.

Under California rules, an unusual divided 11-point system will be used for scoring by the referee and two judges. An even round is scored 5½-5½ and others on a 6-5, 7-4 or similar basis. Total points determine the vote of each official with a majority vote needed for a decision.

For the underdog supporters it should be pointed out that Walcott was a 10-1 shot in his first match with Joe Louis and Jersey Joe was a 6-1 short ender the night he flattened Charles to win the title.

Shuffleboard Victor

Ray Cooper won the semi-annual City Association Shuffleboard tournament at Lincoln Park this week by winning two out of three 100-point games. Karl Erickson was second.

EX-UTAH STATE STAR

Gordon Succeeds Cure as Jordan Bee Football Coach

Vaughn W. Gordon, who served as assistant coach the past season, has been named head coach of the Jordan High Class B football team, it was announced Saturday by Athletic Director Rocky Kemp.

Gordon succeeds "Doc" Cure, who recently was appointed varsity football coach at Poly High.

Gordon was an all-state prep quarterback at Tooele, Utah, in the late 1930s and starred for the Utah State Frosh in 1939. However, a promising varsity career was wiped out by a serious injury. After serving 4½ years in the Air Force as a captain during World War II, he returned to Utah State to get his degree. From 1948 through 1953 he served on the school's physical education staff. He has been at Jordan since 1954.

Meanwhile, the post of varsity line coach is still unfilled. Kemp revealed that Dick Brown, who served in that capacity the past season, is giving up coaching to accept the post of "director of activities" at Jordan.

Poly Shotput Star 'Athlete of Month'

Ernie Gordon, Poly High's record-shattering shotputter, has been named Long Beach's "athlete of the month" for April by the Sports Boosters, president Don Otto revealed Saturday.

The big Jackrabbit athlete edged out Wilson High pitcher-outfielder Bob Campbell and Jerry LaBonte, local swimming sensation, in the balloting.

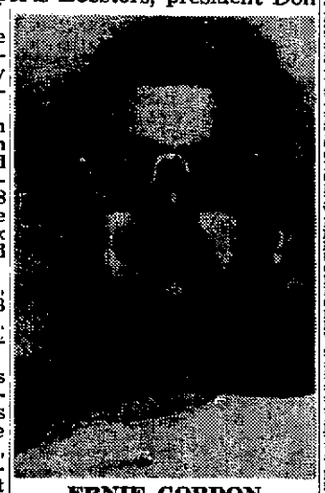

Gordon earned top honors with one big effort in the Poly-Wilson dual meet when he cracked Norm Standlee's 18-year-old record with a put of 52 feet, 8 inches. The great toss was the climax to months of hard work by the 6-foot, 2-inch, 220-pound youngster.

Last year, as a sophomore, Gordon could do no better an 43 feet with the 12-pound weight. However, a long winter of practice bore its fruit this spring.

One of the 16-year-old's Christmas presents was a 16-pound shot. Ernie spent hours practicing in the backyard of the Gordon home. James Gordon, Sr., the boy's father who set swimming records in his years at Poly, revealed that about one-third of the Gordon lawn now resembles a sunken garden as a result of Ernie's practice sessions.

Campbell also had himself quite a month. He slashed six hits in 20 trips to the plate for an even .300 average, and pitched a two-hit, 5-3 victory over Compton in his first mound try. Included in his six hits were two homers, one a 350-foot poke which provided the margin of victory over Poly.

LaBonte set a new National YMCA record in the recent championships at Tucson, Ariz., swimming the 200-breaststroke in 2:29.4. A sophomore at Whittier, the 21-year-old swimmer has already cracked six records this spring.

JALOPY MEET

Local Pair in Limelight

A pair of stretch-running experts, Rex Schendley of Lakewood and Fred Russell, Long Beach, figure to hold the limelight today during the CJA jalopy races at Gardena Stadium as they've become the fans' favorites due to their brilliant come-from-behind driving.

Trials open at 1, racing at 2;30 p. m. on the 139th St. and Western Ave. quarter-mile clay oval. Ed Van Eyk, Termite Snyder, Paul and Jasper Lopiccolo, Ted Rosepberger, Frank Kephart, Bill Mitchell, Bob Ross, Rip Erikson, Andy Anderson, Dave James and Fuzzy Anderson are other threats.

A 30-lap main, 15-lap semi-main and two 15-lap "hooligans" top the jalopy speedfest today.

Rockets Go After Third Win Today

After an enforced two weeks vacation because of rain and wet grounds, the Long Beach Rockets finally get an opportunity to notch their third straight victory today. The locals will tangle with 20th Century-Fox in a 2:15 engagement at Recreation Park.

Since dropping their first four games the Rockets have improved greatly. They scored 20 runs and collected 23 hits in their last two outings against the Long Beach All-Stars and Mary Star.

Manager Walt Carson has found a set lineup since the last loss to the Glendale Dons on March 20 and will probably use the same crew again today.

Outfielder Ev Pearson, who leads the Rocket regulars in batting with a healthy .357 average, again will bat in the cleanup spot. With the loss of Don Taylor to organized ball, Pearson is the only Rocket hitting above .300. Next is shortstop Red Meairs with a .294 mark.

Probable Rocket batting order with averages:

George Selfridge, cf	.000
Chuck Winslow, 2b	.261
Jay Cooke, 1b	.235
Ev Pearson, lf	.357
Red Meairs, ss	.294

Once Over Lightly—

the game, thinks Don is one of the easiest and most cooperative fighters he has ever worked with.

"The only reason I can give for his clamming up on the American press is that he was treated pretty rough by the newspaper crowd in New York. Then, too, some of the boys have been asking such ridiculous questions that it would be silly for him to even try and answer them.

"The boys who have been kicking about Cockell's interviews should have been around when Tommy Farr fought Louis. Farr wouldn't talk to anybody—not even his own manager. And when Randy Turpin was over here a few months ago he was awfully hard to handle.

"When you come to comparing fighters I've worked with, Joey Maxim stands out in a class by himself in disposition. He was twice as good in interviews than he ever was in the ring.

"Buddy Baer was another wonderful guy to work with. He was never too busy to answer questions. Joe Louis was another great fellow. The Bomber was one of the most thoughtful guys in the business. He couldn't do enough for you.

"Tony Galento was the worst buzzard of them all. He was downright mean. In one training session, he deliberately butted three sparring partners—cutting them badly. He also was the most foul-mouthed man I've ever worked with.

"Archie Moore and Ray Robinson are a couple of more who are tough to handle.

"I'd put Cockell on a par with Ezzard Charles as a guy to write about . . . not too easy, yet not too hard.

"I think the writers would have far more success with Cockell if they gave him a little credit for being intelligent and also took into consideration the British think and act a bit differently than we do.

"In America, Cockell would be known as a roughneck from the wrong side of the tracks, which makes it all the more important to handle him right. He's sarcastic to those who don't know him, but once you get him in a group of people he knows, he lets his hair down and is the life of the party!"

Morey Shoots 73 in Walker Cup Drill

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UP)—Dale Morey of Indianapolis shot a 73 on the St. Andrews course Saturday for the best score of eight U. S. Walker Cup golfers who tried out the ancient links where the international matches against Britain will be played next week end.

Following the practice rounds, each of the Americans praised the course, especially the condition of the turf. Of the nine-man U. S. team, only Captain Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. V., ever had played St. Andrews before.

Bruce Cudd of Portland, Ore., youngest player on the team at 21, was suffering from a stomach disorder and was the only American who did not work out. He was expected to be in shape for a practice round today, however.

Dick Yost of Portland, Ore., had the next best practice round with a 74, while Campbell and Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N. C., each shot a 75. Lt. Joe Conrad of San Antonio, Tex., went around in 77; Harvie Ward of San Francisco and Jim Jackson of Glendale, Mo., in 78 each, and Don Cherry of Wichita Falls, Tex., in 79.

British observers who watched the Americans play the course were impressed by their performances, especially when it was considered that the Yanks went almost directly to the course from their overnight train ride from London. Par for the layout is 73.

The Walker cup matches will be played next Friday and Saturday. Four doubles matches, in which partners hit alternate strokes, will be played on the first day. Eight singles are scheduled for Saturday.

America has won 13 of the 14 biennial matches that have been played.

Stella Walsh Wins Four SPAAAU Events

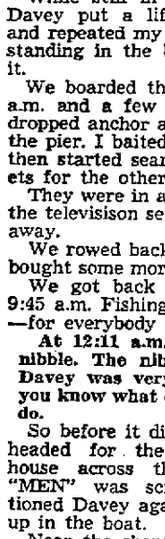

Immortal Stella Walsh won four events for individual honors in the women's SPAAAU track and field meet at Bellflower High Saturday.

She won the 220 in 27.6, shotput at 35-3, discus at 97-2½ and javelin at 104-6. Diane Saunders of Bellflower was another high-point winner with seconds in the 100, 220 and broad jump.

No records were set but Camilla Mascolo of North Hollywood equalled the meet 50-yard dash standard of 6.4.

Probasco Nabs Golf

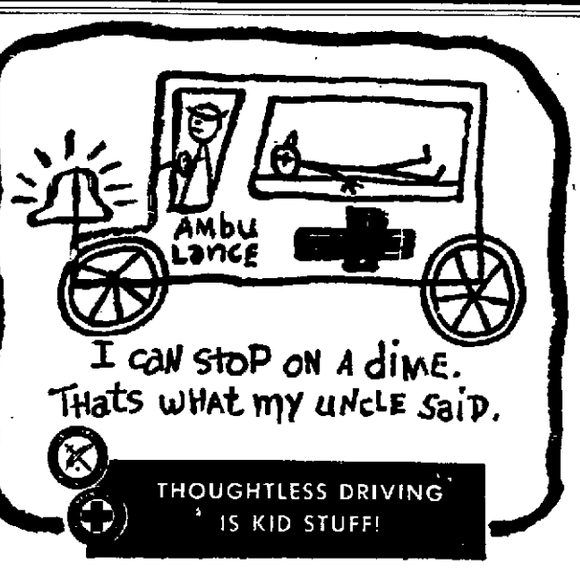

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—Mrs. Scott Probasco of Chattanooga, Tenn., took an early lead Saturday to win the 40th annual Womens Southern Amateur Golf Tournament by downing Mary Pat Janssen of Charlottesville, Va., 5 and 4.

Model Kitchen Attracts Parisians

PARIS (U.P.)—U. S. Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks today opened the American Pavilion at the 44th annual Paris Fair to give Parisians a glimpse of a modern middle-class American home, its comforts and gadgets.

Weeks opened the pavillion at where three typical model American rooms were shown with two girls from the American Embassy demonstrating kitchen gadets.

The display included a living room decorated in pastels with modernistic chairs and lamps.

The exhibition which drew the most interest was the gleaming kitchen with lemon yellow electrical appliances and slate grey furniture.

Yul Brynner Gives Men With Bald Pate a Boost

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—To all men who comb their hair with a towel, this is dedicated.

For, in Hollywood, the male star who is flurrying more feminine hearts than Gable or Brando is a broadway actor with a head so bald that even a clue ball looks fuzzy by comparison.

A bald-headed publicity man introduced Yul Brynner to me with a reverence seldom seen outside of church.

"Yul," said the publicist, "has done more for us than Max Factor ever did."

Factor, of course, makes toupees.

One female columnist, seldom enthusiastic, wrote of Brynner: "He has more sex appeal than any star in Hollywood or the theater."

A mile columnist tabbed him: "Mr. Personality."

The secretaries on the Paramount lot, a true testing ground for any star's appeal with women, sigh when he enters the commissary. A veteran cop, in charge of studio tours, comments: "Haven't seen anything like it since Valentino."

Brynner, himself, comments: "I never could see where hair—or the lack of it—had anything to do with a man's appeal to women."

Oddly, Brynner wouldn't have to be bald if he didn't want to be. He's been that way by choice for the last five years.

"I have a good head of hair but I keep it shaved—every three days as a matter of fact."

Actually, his work has had something to do with it. He played the bald-headed king for four years in "The King and I."

Then Cecil B. DeMille signed him for the role of the pharoah, Rameses II, in "The Ten Commandments."

"I learned that the Egyptian kings shaved their heads every three days just like I do. I am all for it. It's so comfortable."

DeMille didn't require him to shave his head. Even a director as overwhelming as DeMille knows its virtually impossible to get a big star to shave his head—even for such a big movie as "The Ten Commandments."

Brynner, half gypsy and half Mongol, looks upon his association with DeMille as an education. Before his starring days, Brynner was one of television's first directors — dating from 1942.

"In my time, I have directed everything from the United Nations to Studio One to the Giants-Dodgers games — even wrestling.

"DeMille is the master of epic direction — mass movements — and I'm learning something new every day."

He hopes to become a director after "the Ten Commandments" and a movie version of "the King and I."

Will he let his hair grow out then?

"I doubt it," he answers. "Baldness can be a great asset."

PEGGY MAKES BIG TIME

NEW YORK—Peggy King and her mother flew in from Hollywood and Peggy promptly got a hansom cab and showed her mother Central Park.

I've covered a couple hansom cab rides before, but never with Peggy King. So I went along.

"Mother left Daddy alone back in Ohio for the first time in 27 years and came to Hollywood to visit me," said the Judy Garland-looking little gal on the George Gobel show. "We phoned him we'd take 3 days more to see New York and he said, 'Oh, NO'."

We were riding up around 72nd St. where it sure does look purty this time of year.

"I think I'm going to learn to sing louder so I can come to New York and do a show!" enthused Peggy. Her mother said she liked this place more than anywhere she'd been.

"Tell him some of the movie stars you met in Hollywood," Peggy told her mother.

Her mother, Mrs. Margaret King—Peggy's also Margaret—a small, quiet woman with glasses, mentioned Walter Brennan, Fred Astaire, Gale Storm, Charles Farrell, and others.

"Johnny Mercer took her to dinner," Peggy said. "And Dinah Shore—well, she took 5 minutes saying 'Aren't you proud of Peggy?'"

And I met George Gobel," Mrs. King spoke up.

"George is very shy," Peggy said when we stopped to take some pictures around the lake. "Mother has a parakeet that says 'I'll be a dirty bird' and George laughed about that.

"We're going to 'Pajama Game'," Peggy went on. "Mother's never seen a show."

Peggy took her mother to the Warwick—swanky surroundings compared with the little West Side apartment about as big as a maid's room that she had 3 years go when she was singing at the Blue Angel and just getting known.

She was just 18 then, but already a well-informed young lady, having sung with the Charles Spivak and Ralph Flanagan bands touring Air Force bases. Then she'd been on the Mel Torme color TV show—all this now seems long ago.

Peggy—deluged with night club and summer stock offers since her success on the Gobel show—and also with a picture deal on at Paramount—was only sure of one plan.

She was going back to Ravenna Township High School for 3 days and sing at a carnival to raise money for the school from which she was graduated in '47.

"You see, I started in school in Pennsylvania when I was 5," Peggy said. "I was born in Greensburg, Pa., 30 miles south of Pittsburgh, and grew up in Ravenna, 30 miles south of Cleveland. I'm always 30 miles south of somewhere . . ."

THE WEEK-END WINDUP

"DON'T PRINT THAT!" When Garry Moore was starting on radio in Chicago, a kid of 16 asked him for a job as a writer. The kid was Steve Allen, whose wife Jayne Meadows is now on Moore's "I've Got a Secret" panel . . . Bart Crum denies dropping a big client: "A wise lawyer never gets out of litigation while he still has a child in college."

Stan Kenton's coming back with a big band . . . Mary Pickford's biography, "Sunshine and Shadow," is due May 19.

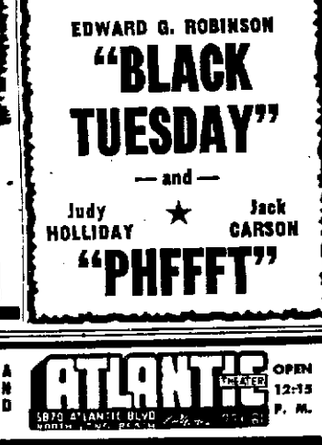

Someone fluffed a line at a Godfrey rehearsal and a bystander whispered, "There goes the next guest star of the Ed Sullivan show."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Frank Cerutti described a mean Broadwayite: "Why, that guy even hates people he don't owe money to!"

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A comic noted for stealing jokes complained to Phil Foster: "How come I get $250 a week while you get $5,000—and I use the same act you do!"

Jimmy Komack claims a western hero today is a hombre who totes two Geiger counters. That's earl, brother.

Singer Lili Monnet to Open Chandelier

Ernie Glaser's new Chandelier Room, 4205 Atlantic Ave., which will open about June 7, will feature a granddaughter of Field Marshal Foch as the French torch singer. This was announced Saturday when Glaser returned from a trip to Chicago, where he arranged the booking.

Lili Monnet, whose ancestor was the famed French leader in the first World War, is a former concert singer who now is appearing in top supper clubs and doing TV work and recordings.

A personality that pleases because of the combination of a continental sophistication and glamour, the Fabulous Lili, as she is billed, will perform in the Chandelier Room as a soloist bringing songs of old France as well as exotic songs of the continent.

LILI MONNET
Granddaughter of Foch

The Chandelier Room itself will be one of the most exotic dining places in the Southland, Glaser explains. Special French buffet luncheons are planned each noon while during the evening hours the menu will feature foreign specialties as well as steaks and prime ribs. Some of the foods will be served on flaming swords. It will have a private dining room for parties. Highlighting the decor of the place is a big chandelier obtained from an old castle.

L.B. Boy Bitten by Snake, Treated

Charles E. McInnish, 8, was bitten by a snake in the back yard of his home, 1420 Walnut Ave., Saturday, and was given emergency treatment at Community Hospital.

The body's mother, Mrs. Louise McInnish, told police that he was hunting for a baseball, lost in the tall grass, when the snake bit him on the right ring finger.

She said the snake was black with white spots, about 16 inches long and one inch in diameter.

U.S. Guards Against A-Shelter 'Rackets'

Mason gave no indication that any such cases have developed.

OPENED FOR DINERS

Gallagher's Galley, formerly at Ocean and Pico St., has moved to the Pacific Sportfishing Landing on Pier A in the harbor. With all new equipment and furnishings, the restaurant is operating 24 hours a day. Art Morgan and John J. Turner are the owners.

Gallagher's Galley Now on Waterfront

A new dining room on the waterfront with a vista extending across the shoreline to the mountains, has been opened on Pier A in the harbor.

It is the new Gallagher's Galley, occupying a large section of the new site of Pacific Sportfishing Dock. Both moved to the location to make way for improvements in the harbor and everything is entirely new for Pacific Landing and Gallagher's.

Art Morgan, well known Long Beach cafeman, who with John J. Turner operates Gallahgher's, said more than $25,000 was spent on new furnishings for the restaurant.

The entire north wall of the restaurant is a vast window which gives a full view across the placid waters of a bay formed at the mouth of the Los Angeles River, toward downtown Long Beach.

Pacific Landing is reached by driving out Pier A, at the foot of Pico Ave., nearly a mile. Signs indicate a left turn toward the landing.

With the opening, Morgan announced that Gallagher's will operate 24 hours a day. "We will feature a fishermen's breakfast, buffet lunch and outstanding fish dinners," he added.

"Long Beach waterfront dinners should be as well known as Fishermen's Wharf in San Francisco and we hope to help make this possible."

The restaurant will seat 115 persons. The same chefs who were in the old location of Gallagher's Galley at Pico and Ocean Blvd., will be in the new restaurant, Morgan said.

Why Waste Lights Just to Make Laws?

COLUMBIA, S. C. (U.P.)—Darkness crept into the South Carolina House of Representatives while the legislators debated the pros and cons of a deficiency tax measure.

Perturbed by the lack of light, Rep. Matthew Poliakoff of Spartansburg rose and asked if "the state deficit is so great we can't afford to turn on a few lights?"

"Yes, sir," replied House Speaker Sol Blatt of Barnwell, "the Senate has us completely in the dark."

Elbe River Vets Tell 'Wonderful Time' in Russia

PARIS (U.P.) — Nine American veterans arrived from Moscow by plane Saturday after "a wonderful" reunion with Russian veterans they met in the Elbe River link-up 10 years ago.

"It was deeply moving to see again the Soviet soldiers we met at Torgau at noon April 26, 1945, in the ruins of Hitler's Reich," said spokesman Joseph Polowsky of Chicago.

"We all think it was a wonderful, tremendous experience.

"We hope our reunion will help create better feeling between our two nations," he added.

The group landed here from Prague via Amsterdam aboard a Dutch KLM plane. They left by air for New York Saturday night.

Polowsky said he and his eight comrades were "very, very grateful" for the State Department's aid in making the trip possible.

Big Clamshell Taxes Dockers

NEW YORK (AP) — Two husky longshoremen strained and heaved to unload a clamshell from the freighter Pioneer Isle.

The two halves of the shell each are three feet long and weigh more than 200 pounds. The giant shell, of a clam called Tridacna Gigas, was sent to importer James S. Dolan by a friend in Sydney, Australia.

Dolan admitted he didn't quite know what he would do with the thing.

Davies Sells Mansion

HOLLYWOOD (U.P.)—One-time actress Marion Davies has sold her palatial estate in near-by Bel-Air to Joseph Nicolosi, New York and Los Angeles sculptor, it was disclosed Saturday. The estate includes a 25-room mansion. It was built in 1931 at a cost of more than $100,000.

Talent-Short Vegas Tries Full Broadway Musical

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (U.P.) — A plan that would have the dual purpose of giving further life to Broadway musicals and solving some of the entertainment problems of the big casino-hotels in Las Vegas will be tried out in the Nevada resort this summer.

Sid Kuller, primarily a writer but also part owner of the new Royal Nevada in Las Vegas and producer of its shows, has just returned west after wrapping up details to present "Guys and Dolls" on the stage of his hotel in August.

He has signed Vivian Blaine, Sam Levene, Robert Alda, B. S. Pully, Tom Pedi, Stubby Kaye and others of the original Broadway cast for the production, which is quite an accomplishment in itself.

"The only difference will be that the show will have to be cut by about 34 minutes," Kuller said. "We'll have a 90-minute production and perform twice nightly seven days a week."

The show, which had a run of almost three years on Broadway and is one of the most highly regarded of modern musicals, is booked into the Royal Nevada for six firm weeks, with three two-week option periods.

Kuller explained that the propect was prompted largely by the increasing problem of getting fresh entertainment at reasonable cost into "the strip" at Las Vegas where 10 plush hotels and their gambling rooms vie for trade.

"Everyone knows about the astronomical sums that these hotels pay for talent," he said. "The price has gone up steadily in recent years until this year we find performers like Mario Lanza and Liberace being booked for $50,000 a week. The $15,000 or $25,000 weekly salaries have been common for some time.

"Granted that the hotels never expect to make money on their shows—they're window-dressing for the casinos—that's just more red ink than even a prosperous gambling place should have to absorb.

"There's another angle. There are only a comparatively few really big names who have a sure-fire box-office draw. Most of them have played Vegas spots over and over again. It seems to me that the time has come to rely on the draw of productions rather than on individuals.

"I figure that 'Guys and Dolls' will represent a weekly running cost to us of around $55,000. In this case we have to create a new production, but the cost of sets, costumes, rehearsals and so forth can be amortized over a six- or eight-week run.

"I hope that later on we won't have to create our own productions, except in the matter of cutting them down," said Kuller. "What I'd like to do is to get touring companies put out by the regular Broadway producers to play the Royal Nevada just as though it were a regular theater date."

SHE CHECKED CHECK ARTIST

NEW ORLEANS (U.P.)—Austin G. Ready of Winter Haven, Fla., had a ready reference when he asked to have a check cashed at a hotel here, police reported.

Why didn't she just call Police Chief C. E. Collins at Dundee, Fla.?, Ready asked Cashier Kathleen Stennett when he presented his personal check for $35.

Miss Stennett did. Sure, Collins knew Ready. He was wanted in Florida for passing bad checks and leaving the state with a mortgaged automobile without authority. And, said New Orleans police who jailed Ready, it looks like Florida will get him.

Whoops! Almost Slipped on Sam!

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House customarily speak of each other in tones of Chesterfieldian elegance.

Sen. Francis Case (R-SD) almost slipped a notch, but caught himself in time.

In a prepared speech, he referred to "smart old Sam Rayburn." But in delivering it he changed it to call Rayburn a "very shrewd statesman who is now Speaker of the House."

Aircraft Club Aids Hospitals

Hospitals of the Long Beach area have shared in recent distribution of funds by North American's Donate Once Club, fund raising organization of employes of North American Aviation, it was announced Saturday night.

Presbyterian Community Hospital in Whittier received $15,000 for its building program; Torrance Memorial Hospital received $3,000 for equipment; St. Francis Hospital, Lynwood, received $3,000 for beds in the recovery room.

City of Hope received $5,000 for research equipment.

Cadillac

One of the Great Steps of His Life!

When a man takes possession of his first Cadillac, many wonderful things happen.

First of all, of course, is the great "lift" he gets from the car itself. When he settles down behind the wheel, turns the ignition key and starts for home—well, it's a great life, and no fooling!

There's a wholly new feeling of security. Weight and size and strength are all about him. There's a new sense of mastery over the car. The response of the engine—the action of the brakes—the easy feel of the steering wheel . . . everything gives him a feeling of confidence he never knew in a motor car before.

And, of course, he can't help noting the quick glances of approval he gets from other motorists. Quite a change from yesterday, when he himself was stealing glances at the people in Cadillacs!

And so it goes on that first wonderful ride—with a new thrill every minute—until the nose of the car turns into the driveway. And then comes the greatest thrill of all—the wild and enthusiastic approval of that little group whose welfare is his constant inspiration.

Don't worry about dinner tonight—let's go for a ride!

This is only the beginning, of course. Every day and month and year adds to the satisfaction. There's the joy of the first cross-country trip; the pride from that first matching of gasoline and mileage; and the constant proof that the dream he dreamed is in almost everybody's heart.

Yes, when a man steps into his first Cadillac, he takes one of life's great steps.

And it's a much, much easier step to take than most people realize. The cost of a Cadillac is remarkably low. And once you own it . . . well, many contend that it is as economical, over the years, as any car you could buy.

Better come in and see us soon. We'll give you a ride that will thrill you—and some facts and figures that may amaze you. Why not make it today?

Guided Missile Showing Set

ONE of the minor anxieties of life in our community is remembering to put out the rubbish.

The collector comes on a certain morning—and if yours isn't on the curb, you've got it to cope with for another week. It not only is in the way and looks bad, but that ugly pile is a reminder for a whole week that you weren't on your toes—you forgot something.

If you've got it covered up in receptacles, you've got to find some others to handle the extra week's accumulation.

Forgetting to put out the rubbish isn't exactly calamitous, but it's awkward, disturbing, and humiliating.

THIS brings us to the story related by a Lakewood resident who was sleeping happily the other morning when he was awakened by his wife.

She was standing beside the bed in her night clothes, a look of frightened anxiety on her face.

He sat up like a jack-in-the box, thoughts of any number of possible family crises racing through his head.

"Wake up! Wake up!" she shouted. "We forgot to put out the rubbish!"

NOW it was his turn to be excited. He leaped from the bed, glancing through the window and noting that dawn—and garbage collection time—had arrived.

Without waiting to put on a robe, he rushed out the back door, picked up a big box full of rubbish, and staggered with it to the front parking.

He made a second trip, and stood, breathless and relieved, there in the cool dawn.

Suddenly he was aware of strange, clattering noises up down the street. Glancing both ways, he saw his neighbors, industriously carrying rubbish receptacles to their parkings.

All were wearing various styles of night garb, and glancing furtively around to see if anybody was observing them in such attire.

By that time his thoughts were collected, and he realized the why of this seeming mass forgetfulness. A couple of weeks before the day for rubbish collection had been changed. As it happened with him, the others hadn't yet gotten into the new routine, and had awakened in the morning to the alarming realization.

WELL, he got himself a cup of coffee and was sitting by the window when the rubbish collection truck came by.

A medium-sized fellow got off the truck and, with some difficulty, dumped the stuff from the heavy receptacle into the truck.

While this was under way, the driver, for some reason, got out of the cab and watched the struggle.

He was a huge, muscular individual.

AN INTERNATIONAL incident was narrowly avoided the other day when Oscar Meinhardt, the Miss Universe boss, corrected a slight to the Republic of Korea.

Last year, after the first Miss Korea participated in our pageant, Meinhardt was told by the publicity representative for Korea that sending a girl here was just too costly, and they didn't plan to do it again.

So Meinhardt didn't send any official invitation to Korea for this year's pageant.

He had dismissed the matter entirely from his mind when his 'phone rang the other day and he was informed Korea was on the line.

In very broken English, a severe voice on the other end of the radio-telephone call informed him that it represented the foreign minister's department of the Republic of Korea, and it wanted to know where was Korea's invitation to send a girl to Long Beach.

It took 20 minutes—at Korea's expense—for the Miss Universe man and the Korea fellow to come to an understanding. Oscar was profuse in his apologies and explanations and Chung Ang, the Korean, finally said he understood.

Meinhardt rushed the invitation and franchise material to Korea, it came back right away. They're planning a big contest over there to select the beauty, and she'll be here for our international pageantry of female pulchritude and personality next summer.

Word Champion Carol Crosswhite Goes to Washington for a Spell

Fullerton Whiz Calmly Awaits Nationwide Bee

Carol Crosswhite, 13-year-old Fullerton girl, spelling champion of the Long Beach area, and her mother, Mrs. Ralph Crosswhite, will leave by plane this morning for Washington, D. C., where Carol will compete in the 1955 National Spelling Bee.

Carol, eighth grade pupil in the Wilshire school, Fullerton, who defeated champions of 45 other schools in the Long Beach Area Championship Spelling Bee April 16, sponsored by the Independent, Press-Telegram, will compete with 57 city, state and area winners in the National Spelling Bee Thursday in the Department of Commerce auditorium.

Is Carol frightened at all this competition?

"No, not really," she says, "I'm thrilled to pieces. It will be fun."

Carol has some new sweaters and skirts for the trip, including an orange and brown outfit that she especially likes. And she has a new turquoise dinner dress.

The entire week will be Bee Week in Washington. Contestants will have a get-acquainted banquet Monday night in Hotel Willard.

The next day they will start six sightseeing tours, which will include a boat ride on the Potomac River. Tours are planned to give the pupils a view of the city and an educational close-up of the national government at work. They will see the Washington Monument, Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials, White House and Capitol. They will visit the FBI, the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Mount Vernon, the Congressional Library and the Smithsonian Institution.

The boy or girl who wins the national championship will be awarded $500 in cash, a bonus prize of $100 for a three-day sightseeing trip to New York with a suite in Hotel New Yorker, an engraved trophy cup and a championship plaque for his or her school.

Second prize will be $300 and third prize $100. The next 20 finalists, in the order of their standings in the contest, will receive $50 each, and all remaining contestants $40 each.

Awards will be presented at the annual Bee banquet for finalists Friday night in the Crystal Room of Hotel Willard. That is when Carol—win or lose—will wear her new turquoise dress.

'CIVILLY DEAD'

Judge Tells 'Lifer' Can't Grant Wedding

By FRED SCHOTT

Sentenced to a life term in prison as a "habitual criminal," William R. Hagan, 31, had only one request to make of the judge who imposed the term.

Hagan stood up and asked Superior Judge Fred Miller of Long Beach to marry him to the mother of his two-year-old child.

"You mean me personally?" asked the surprised judge

Hagan nodded. He went on to say that his parole officer had prevented the marriage earlier.

Judge Miller replied he needed time to see if he had authority to perform the marriage. He said Hagan would know before his 30-day stay of execution for appeal purposes had expired.

By now, Hagan, a Los Angeles truck driver, should know the judge's answer. The judge wrote him a letter Thursday and sent it to the county jail.

In the letter, Judge Miller said he had no authority to marry Hagan because, in the the eyes of the law, the ex-convict is "civilly dead."

The judge arrived at this conclusion after searching through the California Civil Code. There was no previous case to be found on this point, according to the jurist.

The judge first looked up Section 55 of the code, which defines marriage as follows: "A personal relation arising out of a civil contract, to which the consent of the parties capable of making that contract is necessary."

Hagan said the girl was willing.

Roger M. Coar, chief photographer for the Independent, Press-Telegram, has won third place honors in Graflex, Inc., national photo contest, sponsors reported Saturday.

The entry, entitled "The Shower Is That-away!" shows Bobby Bragan, manager of the Hollywood Stars, lying on his back while Umpire Al Mutart is waving him to the showers.

Coar's picture was entered in the wire, syndicate, magazine photographers and press photographers for daily newspapers (cities over 200,000 population) category. He will receive a medallion and a check for $200.

The same photograph was "Picture of the Week" in Life Magazine in April last year. It also is included in a traveling exhibit circulated by the Encyclopedia Brittanica in conjunction with the National Press Photographers Assn.

In addition to the Graflex contest this year, Coar won three other awards in the Associated Press regional contest with other pictures.

S. Lakewood Unit Ballots on Annexing

It will be election day Thursday in a portion of South Lakewood, for the second time within two weeks.

This time voters in a 105-acre area identified as Increment 137 will ballot on whether or not to join Long Beach.

A polling place at 3823 North Hackett Ave. will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Eligible for ballots are 507 registered voters in the triangular section bounded by Heartwell Park on the north, Palo Verde Ave. on the west and Los Coyotes Diagonal on the southeast. The City Planning Commission's latest population estimate is 1,746.

Residents in the area predicted a vigorous contest. The petition for an election, filed Feb. 23, was signed by 145 of the 496 electors on record at that time.

It will be the fourth annexation election of this year. Two areas voted to annex in March. A third—the largest of the South Lakewood increments, No. 141—cast an affirmative majority on May 5. A fifth poll has been scheduled for June 2 in Increment 147, Lakewood Plaza Units 1 and 2.

4 TICKETS!

Aw, Shucks, Officer! I Gotta Hurry

BUENA PARK—U. S. Marine Sgt. James Richard Benge, 32, really was in a hurry to get back to Camp Pendleton Saturday morning.

He collected four tickets before he got through Orange County, and finally San Clemente police turned him over to the military to take him to his base safely.

Buena Park police began chasing Sgt. Benge at 5:33 a.m. on Santa Ana Freeway. Before he was stopped at Magnolia Rd., the officers hit 100 miles per hour. They ticketed Benge for doing 85 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone.

He was cited to appear in Anaheim Municipal Court May 26.

Anaheim police, alerted by radio, missed Sgt. Benge, but Santa Ana police caught him at 5:55 a.m. on the freeway and ticketed him for doing 75 in a 55-mile zone.

He was ordered to appear in Santa Ana Municipal Court May 20.

Tustin police said that Benge was doing only 45 when he reached their city, so they decided not to ticket him for speeding. However, he was warned and was cited for failure to have proper registration in his car.

By the time Benge reached San Clemente, he was hitting 60 in a 45-mile zone and officers ticketed him for that. They also charged he drove over the double line.

He will answer to these charges May 23 in Laguna Beach Judicial District Court.

Police in San Clemente decided against letting Sgt. Benge drive any more. They called in the shore patrol and the military took over, transporting the Marine safely to his base.

Sgt. Benge was due to answer roll call at 7 a.m., he explained.

WRONG GUY ON RIGHT BUS?

Traffic Zoo Tests Driver

By GEORGE EBES

Got on the wrong bus the other day.

Figured I was about to take a tour through a zoo, but it was a come-on.

Fellow was standing outside the bus, passing out brochures called Highway Zoo. Looked interesting so I bit. Turned out, the fellow was making a pitch for the Long Beach Safety Council.

Actually, the bus didn't go anywhere.

And this Highway Zoo come-on by Paul Jones (illustrations by Ralph Moses) was the bait. Highway Zoo characters: The Wildcat ("the snarler who hates everything on the road"); Kangaroo (" . . . jumpy jerk who drives by leaps and bounds—from one stop to another"); Wolf (" . . . the prowler, the rogue of the road, the cruising Casanova. He may be middle-aged, bald and a little winded. But he's giving every babe the eye, regardless . . ."); Octopus (" . . . the busy boy who is always reaching for something while he drives—the car roof, a cigarette, the lighter, the road map, the coat on the back seat . . .").

Culinary Workers Shape Plans for New Contract

More than 4,000 culinary workers and bartenders of Long Beach and surrounding communities will convene Monday in meetings to discuss wage increases and other benefits to be sought in new five-year labor contracts.

The sessions will be held at 10 a. m., 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. at the Culinary Bldg., 324 E. 4th St.

The call for the mass labor parley was issued jointly by Jack Arnold, secretary and business manager of the Long Beach and Orange County Culinary and Hotel Workers Local Union No. 681, and M. R. Callahan, secretary and business manager of Long Beach Bartenders Union Local No. 686. Presiding at the tri-session conferences will be C. T. McDonough, international vice president.

Members are expected to certify requests for new five-year contracts calling for fringe benefits, pensions, additional health and welfare benefits and wage increases, Arnold indicated.

The 1955 program of proposed wage increases and other changes is recommended by the Long Beach and Orange County joint executive board of the two locals, he added.

'Lifer' Learns Marriage Ruled Out by L.B. Jurist

Section 1556 to find out who can make a marriage contract.

"All persons are capable of contracting, except minors, persons of unsound mind, and persons deprived of civil rights."

Is Hagan deprived of his civil rights? The judge next looked up Setcion 2600 of the code.

"A sentence of imprisonment in a state prison for any term less than life suspends all the civil rights of the person so sentenced."

Hagan, who knows enough law to have persuaded the District Court of Appeal to reverse one of his previous convictions, would have been the first to point out he had been given a life term. Section 2600 says "less than life."

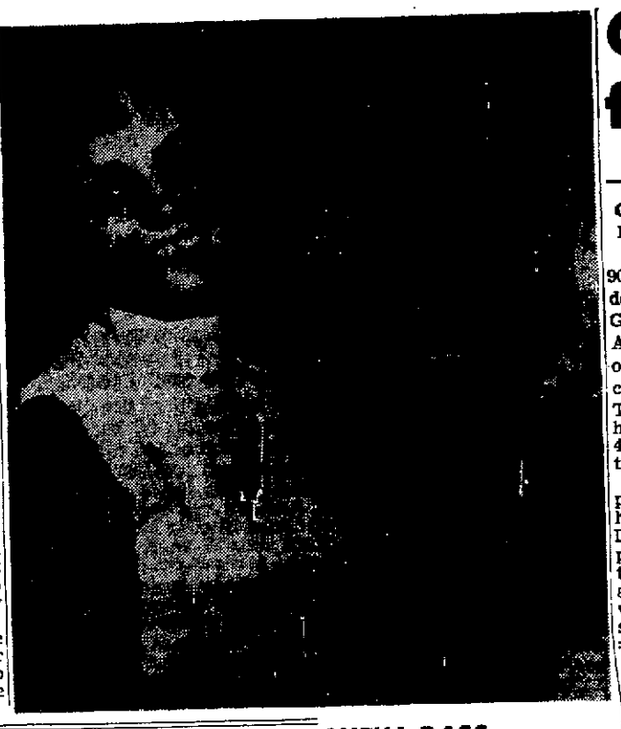

But the judge found one more section that applied—Section 601. It reads: "A person sentenced to imprisonment in the state prison for life is thereafter deemed civilly dead."

Judge Miller sealed his letter to Hagan and remarked: "Maybe's he's smart enough to find a loophole, but I can't."

Hagan was convicted by a jury here May 4 on two counts of armed robbery. He had admitted four prior felony convictions, one a kidnaping in San Francisco in 1952.

The judge did give Hagan one slight ray of hope. He informed the soft-spoken bandit he might persuade the Adult Authority to give him permission to marry some day.

However, as Hagan told the court, it was a parole officer under the Adult Authority who prevented the marriage in the first place.

MARINES OPEN CAMP PENDLETON

CAMP PENDLETON — The most elaborate Armed Forces Day celebration planned here in several years takes place Saturday when Marines of the 1st Marine Division and units of Force Troops, Marine Corps Base, and the Naval Ammunition Depot at Fallbrook combine in this base's demonstration of "Power for Peace."

Open House will be held here from 10 a. m. until 4 p. m. Visitors will be directed to the display and demonstration area at the 11 Area parade ground upon entering any of Camp Pendleton's five gates (Main Gate, Las Pulgas Gate and San Onofre Gate from U. Troops from Marine Corps Test Unit No. 1, the unit designed to explore the problems proposed by nuclear warfare, will provide the highlight of the day-long activities with a helicopter assault.

Sixteen helicopters from the Marine Corps Air Station at El Toro will transport the combat-clad Marines as they descend on the assault area.

Offers Free Traffic Zoo Driver Test

with the Naval Shipyard, New Car Dealers, Used Car Dealers and the Association of Garage Owners. It's part of the preliminaries for the big safety check on automobiles set for May 23-28.

But back inside this innocent looking bus . . .

You're surrounded by an assortment of gimmicks for testing: your eyesight, your reaction time, distance judgment, field of vision.

The equipment's used by the Navy to test applicants for driving jobs, but the man who runs the tests, Lester R. Kellogg, 1120 E. 71st St., says the scores required for average, above average, etc., have been lowered for the demonstrations.

Men, confided Kellogg, generally score higher than women on these tests.

There's no instrument for measuring degree of back-seat-drivingness of the women who take the tests.

"None of them have tried to tell me how to operate the tests," Kellogg said.

THE PURPOSE of the whole business, according to Dr. Charles Fabish of the Long Beach Safety Council, is to make people conscious of their weaknesses and be careful while driving. Know who the safest drivers are? Handicapped people. Why? Cause they're the most careful.

Nobody picks up your driver license if you flunk the test hands down. Nobody even tells you if you flunk. You just look up your own score on conveniently posted cards that tell you if your score is average, above average or below average, etc.

Starting at 10 a.m. Monday, the bus will be parked all week near Sears' at Fifth and American. The ride's free. And you can learn something about your driving.

My score?

Oh, it's like I always figured. I've got a pretty fair chance of staying out of accidents if the other guy will only cooperate and stay out of the way.

Photos Will Attend College Reunion Representing Alumni Who Can't Go

LYNWOOD — Seven pictorial reports, in company with written resumes of what's been going on the past 40 years, will "attend" a 40th class reunion at Springfield College in Mass. next month.

The reports will represent seven Californians unable to be with their classmates of the Class of '15.

They represent an idea, and considerable work, launched by Herb Halliday, secretary-manager of the Lynwood Chamber of Commerce, one of the class members.

A list of the 50 members of the class showed that seven lived in California—a larger number than in any other state besides the college's home state. Halliday contacted each of his six classmates and found that none were planning to attend.

So, being an ardent camera fan and still imbued with college spirit, he set out to compile the pictorial report.

In Long Beach, Halliday got together with Walter W. Bell, long-time physical education director at Poly High School, and W. Scott Ryan, connected with the state employment service. They took colored pictures of themselves, their families.

Remaining true to his profession, Halliday made sure the colored photos showed off California's sea coast and floral scenery.

A weekend at San Diego took the Hallidays to see two more classmates — Victor Welton and Elmer E. Heidt—and the picture file grew.

At Ontario, retired Chaffey High School teacher Fred W. Clapp added his face to the growing collection.

Halliday will complete the layout by mail, the remaining member being Ralph Mitchell, of San Jose.

Each of the seven will submit a written report on his activities and accomplishments during the past 40 years.

OPEN MONDAY AND FRIDAY EVENINGS

This year's "Chemical Progress Family" are the Robert W. Conners of High Point, North Carolina.

The Age of Chemical Plenty

Today's modern family enjoys better health, a higher standard of living, more leisure time, as a result of new advances by America's chemical manufacturers.

The American Saturday afternoon dramatizes our "Age of Chemical Plenty." Chemical achievement has contributed to practically everything we use, for pleasure or profit.

BETTER HEALTH, NUTRITION, CLOTHING—Medicinal chemicals have helped increase our lifespan, cut diseases and infant mortality. Chemicals have helped supply America with more and better food. Fertilizers have jumped our nation's crop yield by as much as 20%. Further, chemical fibers and dyes have helped make Americans the most comfortably dressed people on earth.

CONSERVING THE NATION'S WEALTH—Chemical advances help conserve our natural resources, make us less dependent upon other countries. Rubber, all of which once was imported, now is also produced synthetically from chemical products. Thus the chemical industry is a main source of our strength for national defense.

In addition, chemicals continue to play a major role in developing many of the benefits arising from our atomic energy program. With the magnitude of its research program (average annual research cost: $300,000,000) the chemical industry is your assurance of a brighter, more prosperous future.

FOR THE GARDEN—Wonderful new agricultural chemicals help increase America's food production. For example, a test spraying of apple trees in Pennsylvania increased the yield from two to eleven bushels per tree.

FOR THE CHILDREN—Plastic play products are typical of the many thousands of items for leisure time made available by the chemical industry. Parents approve of plastic toys because of their relative low cost and safety.

FOR THE BACKYARD COOK—Chemicals help preserve the taste and quality of food. Example: chemically developed wrapping in which frozen meats are packed. Other chemical products are plastic cups and plates, and cellophane.

FOR THE MOTORIST—There are more than 256 chemical products in today's automobiles, ranging from long-wearing seat covers to batteries. And upkeep is easier with safe, effective detergents, polishes and waxes.

A Better America through Chemical Progress

Ominous Sound Snoozing Hound

TEANECK, N. J. (UP)—A telephone operator called the police this week and told them one of the phones on her line was off the hook and she could hear heavy breathing.

The police rushed to the address where the phone was listed and found a friendly dog which had knocked the receiver off the hook and gone to sleep to the hum of the dial tone.

TV Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

Mental patients in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Washington, D. C., have written and will act in tonight's "March of Medicine" at 10 p. m. (4), which replaces the "Loretta Young Show" one-time-only.

"We, the Mentally Ill," will have no professional actors, announcers or commentators, but will feature the mental patients themselves in their own treatment stories. You'll see them and hear them as they explain their own cases, the aid given by their doctors, and the results of the treatment.

The patients will not be masked but their names will not be made public. In addition to the St. Elizabeth's group there will also be remote pickups from the New Jersey State Hospital and the Manhattan State Hospital.

DALE EVANS
Visits Mary McAdoo

THE SAINT—Gian Carlo Menotti's opera, "The Saint of Bleeker Street," will be brought from Broadway to the NBC Opera Theater at 12:30 p. m. (4). Davis Cunningham, Virginia Copeland, Rosemary Kuhlman and Leon Lishner have starring roles. It is a tragic tale of a brother and his unwell sister living in the all-Italian district of New York. The ill sister has visions and is regarded in the neighborhood as a saint. The brother kills the girl he loves and is forced to flee, and the story goes on from there.

8 P. M.—Last week, as usual, Martin and Lewis copped the lion's share of the TV audience at 8 p. m. However, tonight probably will be a different story. Abbott and Costello bring their tired comedy to the "Comedy Hour" (4) supported by Rhonda Fleming and Gordon MacRae. Show will originate at March Air Force Base, Riverside. . . Ed Sullivan (2) throws the team of Gary Crosby and Louis Armstrong against A&C and then adds Sammy Davis Jr., England's "Mr. Pastry"—Richard Hearne—and Senor Wences, the ventriloquist.

GUESTING—Dale Evans and children visit "Mary McAdoo at Home" (4) at 4:30 along with Bob Cobb, owner of the Brown Derby, who brings along the artist who does pictures for his Record Room—Nicholas Volpe. Monday Mary and her hubby, Bob Hussey, board the Lurline for a trip to Hawaii to celebrate their 18th wedding anniversary. . . A soon-to-be released inmate of San Quentin and a man who has been paroled for some time will discuss "the outside" during "You Asked for It" (7) at 7 p. m. . . Arlene Francis is back on "What's My Line" after a visit to Europe and Dorothy Kilgallen heads for the continent. Show (2) at 7:30 p. m. . . Marlon Brando is interviewed by Sidney Skolsky (7) at 9:15 p. m. . . Gov. Averell Harriman of New York will discuss the Russian situation with Drew Pearson (7) at 12 noon. . . Bill Bridgeman, famed test pilot for Douglas Aircraft, will visit "Cavalcade of Books" (2) at 3:30 p. m.

DRAMA—Jackie Cooper stars in "Pardon-Me Boy" on the Television Playhouse at 9 p. m. (4). Scene is a jury room where the boys holds out for acquittal of a man charged with murder. He thus asserts himself for the first time. . . Barry Sullivan stars as a ruthless film director on the G. E. Theater at 9 p. m. (2). Play by Rod Serling—"Patterns"—has the diirector getting revenge on everybody who has ever stood in his way. He picks a has-been star for the final and crowning indignity and proceeds to tear to shreds what is left of the star's self-respect. . . There's more revenge when Stage 7 presents Jan Sterling as a girlfriend to a condemned man who receives word that she will die on the same day as his execution. The psychological thriller is on (2) at 9:30 p. m. . . The story of Damon and Pythias is told on "Hall of Fame" at 5 p. m. (4) with Ray Danton and Marshall Thompson starred. . . "Lou Gehrig's Greatest Day," July 4, 1939, in Yankee Stadium is reported by "You Are There" (2) at 6 p. m. This was the day 60,000 fans paid tribute to the famed "Iron Man of Baseball" who was slowly wasting away from an incurable disease. . . Romance and intrigue in post-war Central Europe is on tap for "Appointment With Adventure" (2) at 10 p. m., starring Elaine Stritch, James Daly and George Voskovec. . . Tom Drake portrays a modern-day "Man Without a Country" during the Playhouse (7) at 7:30 p. m. This man is aboard a ship but no country will permit him to land due to his past reputation.

TELETIPS—Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D.-N. M.) will answer the questions on "Youth Wants to Know" at 2:30 p. m. (4) via quick kinescope. Show used to be a delayed kine but the new sponsor wants things timely, thank heavens!

Words and Music

By JOHN B. CALLAGHAN

Antiquated and low budget British movies often dominate the "Late Movie" programs on television . . . and a spokesman for National Telefilm Associates used this fact to persuade the biggest British film producer, J. Arthur Rank, to sell some of his bigger and better movies to American TV.

His argument: some of these "oldies" on TV hurt the prestige of British movies. But some of Rank's top drawer films would enhance the box office pull of new pictures. Rank was convinced . . . and sold 26 of his recent quality movies. They'll be making the late show rounds soon. Negotiations are still under way with Rank for release of a collection of the popular Alec Guinness comedies. Good news for late movie fans!

Good news for the many fans of popular songstress Patti Page is her new TV show. Scheduled for twice-a-week viewing beginning this July, 15 minutes per segment, Miss Page will be seen 52 weeks a year on more than 150 stations.

Bishop Fulton J. Sheen's "Life Is Worth Living" series moves from the DuMont network to ABC in October and will reach a bigger national audience . . . You'll enjoy being in the TV audience a lot more with a magnificent CBS TV set giving you the picture. CBS matches superb performance with unmatched beauty of styling. Stop in and see the many models on display, at PENNYOWSLEY MUSIC CO. OF LONG BEACH, 4334 Atlantic Blvd. Phone L.B. 40-7406.

DESIGNED BY CLIFF MAY

Patio areas, full floor-to-ceiling windows and smart redwood exteriors are shown in this typical Cliff May designed home now offered in Anaheim and Tustin. Living area and master bedroom both open into patio area. Homes offer free draperies, built-in range and oven, fireplace, forced-air heat and many other features in most models.

Newest May Homes on Three Locations

A choice of 3 select locations and a wide variety of floor plans, offered in the famed Cliff May features, and financing is now "Magazine Cover Homes" in Orange County the area's developer, George M. Holstein & Sons, announced.

The May homes as featured in a score of national publications are designed for inside-outside patio living and bring the modern home owner styling that is slanted to the young Californian, Holstein said.

Sales head Gene Mahaffey stressed that features included the built-in Western-Holly range and oven in choice of color, natural cabinets, forced air heat, massive stone fireplaces, full floor to ceiling windows, custom draperies throughout, big double garages, interior planters and many other advantages.

"Financing too is versatile," Mahaffey explained. At the Ball Rd. site just off Lincoln (Carson) and the Santa Ana Freeway vets can move in for only $50. "This is the total cost without impounds or extras," Mahaffey assured.

At the other May site in Anaheim on East Vermont St. (just off South Los Angeles St.), vets can move in immediately without one cent of impounds, costs or down payment, the sales chief explained.

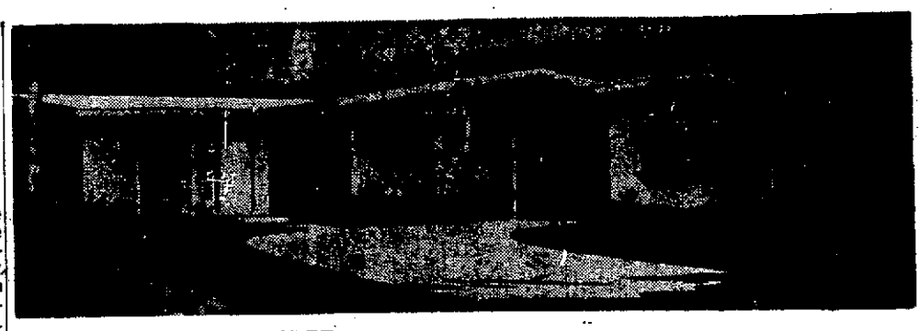

The Tustin location brings the luxury estate buyer a May home in the $13,000 to $16,000 bracket. Here big lots and many other advantages are offered and vets can purchase for no down payment except costs and impounds.

The Tustin site can be reached by driving out Seventh St. in Long Beach or Garden Grove Blvd. to Santa Ana then south to First St. Stay on First St. through Tustin and turn on Red Hill Ave.—the first street past Tustin High School.

All three sites offeer immediate occupancy and a good choice of models although buyers are urged to act quickly for best selection.

Banker Will Speak Before Appraisers

John Ryan, officer of the Bank of America, Los Angeles; a member of the Home Builders Institute, will speak on "Real Estate Loans, All Types," at the Society of Residential Appraisers dinner meeting Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. Hotel Lafayette, according to Walt Block, president. James Edmonds Jr. chairman of nominations, will bring in the recommendations for the 1955-56 officers of the chapter.

LOW TERMS FEATURED

Dale Park homes are priced from $9,688 and offer monthly terms as low as $49.96 for GI buyers. This is one of the models of the Murray-Sanders project.

Dale Park Homes Priced From $9,680

Most popular feature of Murray-Sanders' second unit of Dale Park residences, themed as "Achievement Home" series, and located in the close-in Garden Grove area of Orange County, has proved to be their exceptionally easy financing arrangements, report officials of Walker and Lee, Inc., sales directors.

"Priced from only $9,688 for the large three bedroom, one full bath models, many GI buyers tell us that monthly payments schedule, ranging from $49.96 to 56.65 for the specious 3-bedroom-and-a-den homes with 2 full baths, has resulted in substantial savings since they took possession, as original VA loan arrangements requiring nothing down of qualifying veterans except usual costs and impounds, are still in effect," sales officials said.

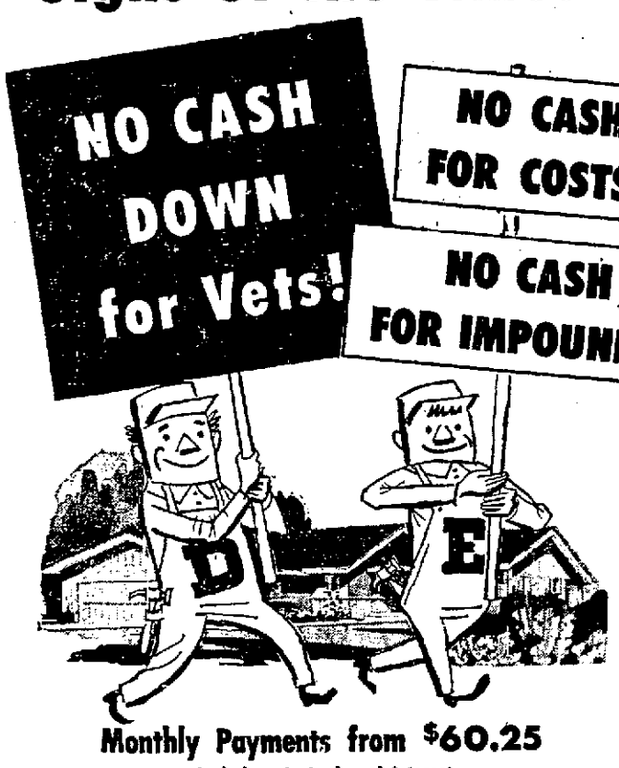

With all payments including principal and interest, and unusually easy financing also available for the FHA buyer, large 3-bedroom-and-a-den homes are fully priced at only $10,971, it was pointed out.

Luxury features offered include natural beechwood kitchen cabinets; ventilator fans; semi-automatic dishwashers; birch-paneled walls in living room; disposers; large workshop and storage area off garage; concrete garden patio for outdoor living; colored bathroom fixtures; rock wool insulation; TV aerial lead-in plug; and tub and shower in each bath.

Model homes will be open from 10 o'clock this morning, and will remain open until 9 o'clock tonight and during the week from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. for the convenience of home-seekers employed during the day.

Development may be quickly and easily reached from Long Beach by driving east on Seventh St. to Huntington Beach Blvd. (Highway 39); turn left (north) and go to Chapman; then right about 200 yards to model homes and Dale Park.

REALTOR OF WEEK

'Fisherman' Fabe Blackman Been Too Busy to Fish

A fellow who for five consecutive years sold over $1 million of property a year, then quit the selling field to look after leasing, and now has given up some of that work to enjoy life is the Realtor of the Week honored by the Long Beach Board.

Fabe C. Blackman, the honored Realtor, had a large hand in the development of Long Beach from the small city to the metropolitan rank it holds today. For nine years he served on the City Planning Commission, two years of that as chairman, and this was during the 1942-51 development of the city.

FABE C. BLACKMAN
"Million -a-Year" Man

Fabe came to Long Beach from Paris, Ill., in 1924. He had been engaged in real estate business 15 years in Illinois. In 1924 he became affiliated with the Deeble-Chapman Corp., which built the Times Building here. He became treasurer of the corporation in 1928 and served 3 years. Then Fabe decided to go into business for himself and in the following 5 years sold over $1 million per year.

Blackman joined the Long Beach Board of Realtors in 1928 and has been on the board of directors several times. He was president of the board in 1941. He was president of the Los Angeles Planning Congress in 1945.

Fabe's biggest sale was the Times Bldg. He entered into the property management field in 1947 and since 1950 has handled the W. B. Stewart Estates property. After selling the Times Bldg., Blackman took over the job of managing the big structure for the Diamond-California Realty, Inc. His success was noteworthy in reducing vacancies to less than 2 per cent.

Only last week he gave up management of this big structure and recommended his successor, George Ditson Jones, who has taken over.

While he said it was the "pressure of outside business" which cused him to resign, Fabe's intimates say that outside business undoubtedly is the call of the sea. Fabe has owned a small cabin cruiser for several years but for the last two has been too busy to get out fishing.

"Oh I'll still handle retail store leases and the sale of retail business properties," says Fabe. "But did you say the yellow tail are hitting? Man, that's for me."

Jimmy Phelan, the Salesman of the Week, says he served his Realty apprenticeship in 20 years in the restaurant business. This gave him the training in meeting and serving the public.

Reared and educated in Wichita, Phelan began his business career as a traveling salesman for a hotel and restaurant supply firm. In 1924 he married his school days sweetheart.

When the depression hit he found business slumping. A friend had opened several restaurants and sold them and several came back to him.

"He practically gave me one with a sales talk equal to some used in the real estate field today," says Phelan. "If I took in $50 a day, $25 would be mine. It sounded good. But the business was closed at the end of the first day. He had forgotten to tell me that out of my half I had to pay the lights, gas, help, rent, etc."

In 1936 the Phelans came to Long Beach on a vacation for two weeks and remained 3 months. When they returned home they kept thinking about

Long Beach, sold out and came here. For 7 years he was a supervisor with Thrifty Drug.

In 1946 he opened and operated Ivan's Dinner House in Lynwood. In 1949 he sold his interest and became interested in buying and selling fountain leases. Included in his deals was the Finer Fountain Grill, 255 American Ave., which he decided to keep and his wife still operates it.

HOMES SELLING FAST

Blue Bell Manor, Orange County development by Monogram Builders, is half sold, officials report. Vets still can buy a home such as this model for no down except costs and impounds.

Quality Is Stressed in Blue Bell Manor

Over 50 per cent of the Blue Bell Manor homes in Garden Grove are sold, according to Ben Wisnow, of Monogram Home Builders, developers. This represents some $650,000 in sales.

Wishnow urged vets and non-vets alike to visit the tract where vets can purchase on a no-down payment except for the usual impounds and non-vets can buy on liberal FHA terms.

"Prospective home owners have to see the quality of these homes in order to appreciate them," Wishnow commented.

He further explained each floor plan and model is entirely different and incorporates every desirable feature wanted in a new home. The custom homes have such variance in exterior finish and design, many of the prospective home owners find it hard to believe this is a tract project.

Monogram Home Builders have many years of building experience to their credit, having erected housing tracts in San Fernando Valley as well as commercial buildings throughout Los Angeles County.

Moderate payments can be arranged for either veterans or non-veterans on these luxurious 3- and 4-bedroom homes with two baths. Four basic floor plans and three exterior designs, all in choice locations on estate-size lots for individual selection, provide ample choice for the prospective buyer.

Conveniently located near grammar schools and a shopping center, street improvements are in and paid in the development. Another feature of Blue Bell Manor is its accessibility to the beaches.

Outstanding features include log-burning fireplaces, thermostatically controlled forced-air heating, acoustical ceilings and ceramic tile in both kitchens and baths. There are oak floors, large kitchen cabinets with natural wood finish door, aluminum sliding glass patio doors and an oversize kitchen dining area.

Blue Bell Manor is reached by way of the Santa Ana Freeway east to Euclid, south on Euclid to Chapman, east to West St. and then north to the tract.

Dudley Steel Adds 400-Ton Press Brake

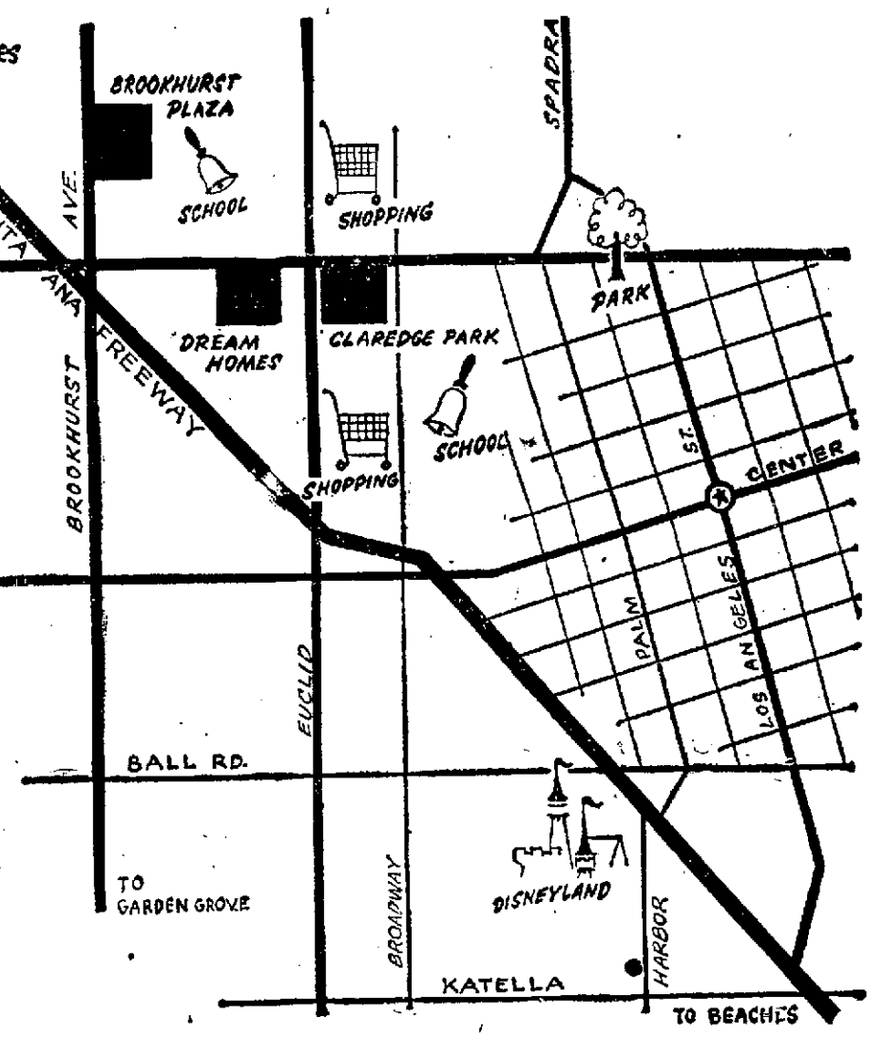

What is believed to be the largest privately owned press brake on the Pacific Coast was completed recently by the Dudley Steel Corp. in South Gate, according to Dudley D. DeZonia, president.

Climaxing the current expansion and modernization program underway at Dudley, the press brake was designed, fabricated, and installed under the supervision of Jack Spencer, chief engineer. The press brake will be used in forming certain structural members of steel buildings, and has a 400-ton capacity. It can handle materials up to 26 feet in length and three-sixteenths of an inch in thickness.

Also added to Dudley's steel-building facilities are new multiple punching, automatic welding, and automatic painting equipment and modern innovations in material-handling fixtures.

FAMED PARK NEAR HOME

Giant palm trees frame Anaheim's famed LaPalma Park where lucky Anaheim youngsters enjoy Legion baseball, sandlot games, football, picnics and other youth activities. The famous park that includes training quarters for Coast League baseball teams is just a short distance away from the popular new home area of Brookhurst and LaPalma Aves. in smog-free Anaheim. Three home builders are now offering a wide selection of homes in the close-to-Long Beach sites. Area is very near Broadway Shopping Center and can be reached by Carson (Lincoln) Blvd. and left at the Santa Ana Freeway.

Wide Selection of Models in Brookhurst-La Palma Homes

Anaheim's newest home developments in the Brookhurst-La Palma section of the city offer variety in style, price and features and combine with a location that is the "nearest yet" to Long Beach, the builders declare.

More than 200 homes and 20 different models will be on display this week-end at the West section of the Orange County city that can be easily reached via Carson (Lincoln) Blvd. to the Santa Ana Freeway. A left turn brings the shopper to Euclid, Brookhurst and LaPalma where the three sites are located.

Selected as very favorable by three Southern California builders—the R & W Construction Co., George D. Buccola, and Dream Homes, Inc.—the area is described as offering advantages such as proximity to the extensive Broadway-Hale Shopping Center at Euclid and the freeway, Disneyland, schools, local shopping areas, playgrounds and parks. The area is also at convenient distance from Los Angeles and Long Beach via the Santa Ana Freeway and Lincoln (Carson) Blvd.

R & W's Brookhurst Plaza on Brookhurst just off the freeway, offers "Futura Homes" in three and four-bedroom plans and veteran financing at no down payment. Nonvets can also purchase for only $1900 down on 30-year FHA terms. The home style combines the features Contemporary and Conventional styling, the builders pointed out.

A choice of 15 designs and five floor plans in Contemporary design is offered at George D. Buccola's Claredge Park where veterans can also purchase without a down payment and only closing and escrow costs. The homes feature three and four-bedroom plans with large fireplaces, floor-to-ceiling windows, builtin range and oven and other features.

LOCATION GIVEN

Just off the Santa Ana Freeway on La Palma Ave. Dream Homes will preview their newest La Palma Villa this week end with three and four-bedroom homes offered to veterans for no down payment. Variety is the keynote, with choice of both Contemporary and Provincial stylings. Fireplaces, sliding glass doors and choice of rock, shingle or rock roofs are stressed by the builders. Homes have hardwood floors and painted plaster walls.

The three developments can be reached by turning off the Santa Ana Freeway on LaPalma or Brookhurst and they will show furnisned and unfurnished model homes.

Planning New Community Just West of Santa Ana

Plans for Orange County's first complete community, a small city of nearly 1,000 new homes, a centrally located school and shopping center, have been announced by Don Coleman, sales agent for Excelsior Village.

Carefully planned with curved streets and the school situated in the center of the homes, the over-all plan includes sidewalks, curbs and streetlights. The community will bring the new home buyer every advantage for raising a family, Coleman pointed out.

The homes, too, are planned for the family, the sales chief stressed. Over 1,500 square feet under roof and with double garage, built-in range and oven, built-in washer and dryer, and located on large 7,200-square-foot lots, every home will be a 4-bedroom, 2-bath model.

Excelsior Village is located just west of Santa Ana on 17th St. and Brookhurst. From Los Angeles, visitors should turn off the Santa Ana Freeway at Brookhurst and drive straight to the community approximately four miles. From Long Beach, the community is straight out Westminster Blvd.

One Aldon Unit Near Sellout; Will Open Another on June 3

Most consistently high sales level in the 9-year history of the Aldon Construction Co. yesterday brought report of a 95 per cent sell out of the 521 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in the "Masterpiece Series" at Buena Plaza, Miller St. and La Palma Ave., just off the Santa Ana Freeway, in Buena Park.

"Though nearly sold out, the 'Masterpiece unit' still offers a good choice of stylings, floor plans and color schemes," a key Aldon official commented. "And, of course, there is also a tremendous sales activity in the new 'Triumph Series' of 3-bedroom, 2-bath homes, for which grand opening is scheduled June 3, with five model dwellings to be furnished by Aaron Schultz."

General sales agent E. "Billy" Hamburg reported thousands of visitors attending the present popular Buena Plaza home show, featuring eight "Masterpiece" model dwellings, all furnished in varying motifs by Aaron Schultz and on view seven days a week, early and late.

Hamburg said much of the buyers' attention focused upon Buena Plaza may be credited to the availability of both the 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in the "Masterpiece Series" and the 3-bedroom, 2-bath models in the "Triumph Series." Vets' terms on both series are no cash down, not even for costs and impounds, Hamburg explained.

The homes are priced at $12,750 and $13,725, with no cash down terms for vets, not even for costs and impounds and monthly payments of $66.16 for the three-bedroom homes and $71.49 for the four-bedroom models, for both principal and interest.

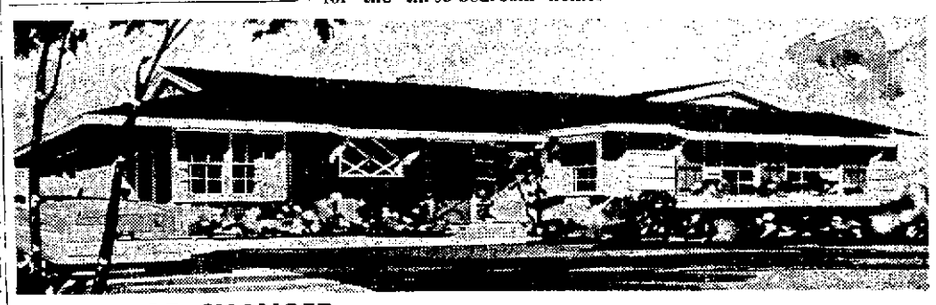

It was noted that the monthly payment on the three-bedroom homes includes the built-in Western Holly gas range and eye-level oven, available in choice of five pastels, stainless steel or copper finish. In the 4-bedroom series, there is an additional monthly payment of $1.94 for buyers who wish the built-in range and oven.

The new planned community of Buena Plaza, which eventually will have 2,000 custom-built homes and its own giant shopping center, is located near two famed tourist attractions—Knotts' Berry Farm and "Disneyland," now under construction.

Features of the homes include floor-to-ceiling forced-air heating, 1,350 square feet of living space on the average, sliding glass walls and functional New Freedom gas kitchens with big double sinks, Waste-King garbage pulverators, lustrous self-edged and coved work decks and splashes, natural finish birch or knotty pine cabinets. Dish-Whiz semi-automatic dishwashers, copper-finih range hoods and ventilating fans.

Will Attend

M. J. Long, 4344 Linden Ave., will attend the May 18-21 homecoming meeting of the President's Club of Kansas City Life Insurance Co., at Kansas City, Mo. Only approximately 10 per cent of the company's top-ranking producers qualify for membership in the President's Club.

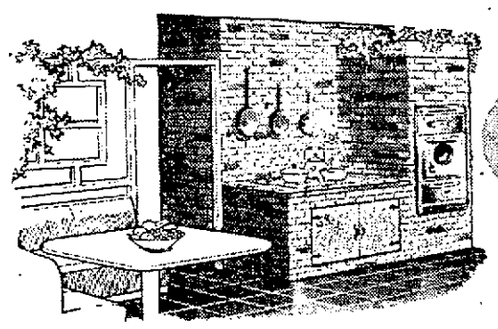

TERMS NOT CHANGED

The new Aldon community of Buena Plaza, typified above, offers both three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes to vets at "no cash down." Location off Santa Ana Freeway is Miller St. and La Palma Ave., Buena Park.

IN MIRADA PARK

This is one of the models offered in the new Mirada Park section. The homes may be reached by driving east on the Santa Ana Freeway to Valley View Ave., turn left to the models on Foster Blvd. "No-cash move-in" is offered veterans.

Mirada Park Homes Attracting Throngs

Mirada Park's three model "interpretation" homes that dramatically display, in furnishings, appointments and decor, three of today's most popular home stylings—Modern, Early American and Contemporary—played the starring role in last weekend's "rain check" preview showing of this series of Larwin Co. 3-bedroom-and-a-den, 2-bath, 2-car garage homes located in the La Mirada Hills residential section of Los Angeles County, it was reported. Showing drew throngs of prospective buyers, most of whom were GI's desiring to take advantage of the "no cash to move in" VA financing plan still in effect, it was explained.

Leading in popularity during the preview was the Early American home furnished by Barker Bros. with its built-in range and oven and massive interior chimney set in an effective background of natural color used brick, it was pointed out. Reservations taken on this model through the week outnumbered by nearly 2-to-1 those received on the other 2 stylings.

Second was the home done in the modern manner by W. & J. Sloane. Especially effective is its unusual selection of rugs, bright, modern colors and coordinates.

Contemporary home delighted many of the young marrieds who seemed particularly interested in the sleek, uncluttered lines of the smartly-designed lamps and distinctive wall features, as well as the matching and contrasting furnishings.

Featuring a 5x20-foot "launderoom"—an exclusive Mirada Park development—and choice of 3 distinctive floor-to-ceiling fireplaces, each authentically styled to the design of the home, Mirada Park homes are fully priced from $13,550, with low monthly payments from $70.78 that include principal and interest, builders say.

Launderoom, according to Larwin officials, provides more than ample space for all modern appliances, freezer and workbench, a 220-volt power circuit already installed for an electric clothes dryer, plus storage room for garden tools and supplies.

A wide variety of custom architectural stylings which give the homes an individual appearance, plus the recognized rugged durability of genuine lath and plaster construction, complete weather-stripping and insulation that eliminates drafts, make Mirada Park homes outstanding from the value viewpoint, builders state.

Other popular features include Slidemaster glass doors up to 24 feet wide, aluminum sliding windows, 4x12 exposed beam ceilings in contemporary design, mahogany interior and exterior slab doors, a mahogany paneled wall in every bedroom, specious wardrobes with mahogany sliding doors; built-in clothes hamper, mahogany kitchen cabinets, breakfast nook, double sink with disposer, TV jack, asphalt tile floors, a 200-square foot concrete terrace, 75,000 BTU forced air heating system with thermostatic control and switch for summer cooling and louvered folding doors that separate the living room from the den.

Also included at no extra cost are built-in Western Holly high oven and range top, and Westinghouse colored refrigerator, washer or dryer are also available at option, builders point out.

Complete landscaping with front, side and rear lawns planted and growing, shrubs and a parkway tree are also included, it was explained.

Available to veterans who qualify for no cash down, no costs and no impounds, Mirada Park Homes also offer easy terms for non-veterans, Larwin officials say.

Situated within 15 minutes of Los Angeles, Mirada Park is close to many conveniences, including a nearby grade school, parochial school now under construction, and a new college planned. Churches of all denominations and Norwalk's multi-million dollar shopping center are only a few minutes away.

Homeseekers are advised to drive east on the Santa Ana Freeway to Valley View Ave. (first stoplight on the Freeway); left on Valley View, and then straight ahead to model homes at Foster Blvd.

Chemical Industry Means Much to Area

Recognition for the dynamic growth of chemical industries in the coastal region of Southern California was initiated by Long Beach's Mayor George M. Vermillion in a proclamation inviting observance of Chemical Progress Week during May 16-21.

In making the announcement, Mayor Vermillion pointed out that more than 30 chemical plants in the vicinity of Long Beach produce a wide variety of raw materials and finished products. Most of the plans have been built during the past decade, and their contributions to the community and to the local economy are of increasing importance.

Assisting the mayor in issuing the Chemical Progress Week announcement, O. Morgan Williams, manager of Shell Chemical Corporation's Dominguez plant, acted as an industry representative.

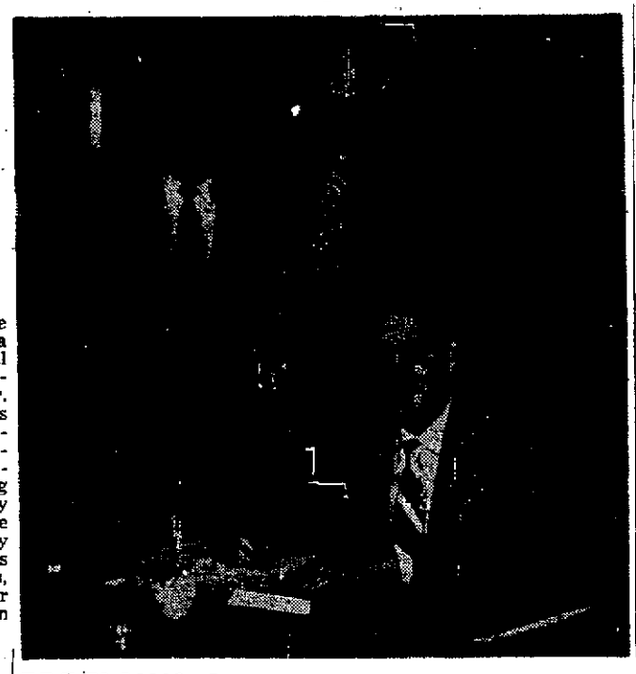

"Hardly a manufactured article is made today without the aid of chemistry," Williams commented. "The week is being observed nationally for the purpose of bringing this fact to the public's attention. Chemistry is involved in thousands of daily-used products: synthetic fabrics for clothing, life-savings drugs, hundreds of household appliances, synthetic rubber for transportations, plastics, detergents, fertilizers and insecticides to produce more food, and thousands of other items that reach practically every industry as well as every home."

In Southern California, the chemical industry represents a $500-million segment of the total economy and has a payroll totaling more than $80-million a year.

Chemical Progress Week is also an appropriate time to remind young students of the importance of their education, according to Williams. Growing industries need technically trained personnel. With the chemical industry conservatively estimated as growing four times larger during the next 20 years, there will be many fine career opportunities for the young men and women now in school."

Mrs. N. H. Studley, chairman, and Mrs. Kathleen Wachel, secretary-treasurer, of the Long Beach chapter of the California Motel Assn. attended a board of directors meeting at Barstow this week.

Cox Previewing His Refrigerated Homes

CLIMATE CONDITIONED
Ultra-modern for the next 20 years is the way builder Henry C. Cox describes his unique "climate conditioned" Lifetime Modern Refrigerated Homes, previewed today at Chapman and Brookhurst, Garden Grove. Note glass gable above floor-to-ceiling sliding glass wall, affording dramatic daytime lighting.

"Climate conditioning" is the unique feature of Lifetime Modern Refrigerated Homes which homeseekers who demand the ultimate are previewing today at Chapman and Brookhurst, Garden Grove.

Marking a significant advance in the homebuilding industry, "climate-conditioned" Lifetime Modern Homes are another "first" introduced in this area by Henry C. Cox, Garden Grove's pioneer builder with a reputation for innovations in the home building field. Cox describes "climate conditioning" by Weathersphere as a feature that will mark a Lifetime Modern Home as ultramodern for the next 20 years.

In Lifetime Modern Refrigerated Homes, the flip of the switch gives thermostatic control for both heating and cooling requirements, providing economical year 'round air conditioning for health and comfort. Forced air heating is supplied through the same ducts, located at strategic points in the home, thus providing a complete "climate conditioned" interior for all areas of a Lifetime Modern Home.

As beautiful in design as they are ultramodern in facilities, Lifetime Modern Homes are built on what Cox describes as "ground hugging" lines. Gables are glass, affording dramatic daytime lighting.

Lavishly spacious, Lifetime Modern Homes offer 3 or 4 bedrooms, plus a den, a dining room and breakfast nook, a roomy pantry, and two lavishly tiled baths.

Other features that mark Lifetime Modern as homes with a future include four foot overhangs, shading sliding glass walls and aluminum-framed sliding windows. Lighting is ultramodern Touch-Plate. Only the finest of automatic electric equipment has been built into the scientifically designed kitchens.

Sales Continuing Strong in Harmony Manor Tract

An appreciable increase in weekly sales at Harmony Manor was interpreted yesterday by sponsors of the new residential community in Garden Grove as a mark of special interest in the fact that it is one of the last deals in which vets may buy homes on no cash down, even for costs and impounds.

"Both the number of visitors in our model homes and the total sales for the week were appreciably above the preceding seven-day period," a spokesman for Heftler Construction Co. reported. "Buyers exhibited great interest in our no-cash-down terms, with no hidden charges of any kind."

It was pointed out further that monthly payments for vets are only $61.35, for both principal and interest, in the new development at Magnolia Ave. and Ball Road, just off the fast Santa Ana Freeway.

"Another big sales factor," an official said, "is size of our homes—3 bedrooms and 2 baths, featuring a special 'Jack and Jill' room with play and sleeping quarters for two children and an outside entrance to save the youngsters running through the rest of the house."

The model homes, furnished by C. Tony Fereira, noted decorator, reflect the many stylings available, together with diversified floor plans and varied color schemes, it was noted.

The many luxury features include built-in Western-Holly range and eye-level oven, built-in serving bar with formica top, aluminum louvered windows, wall of glass with sliding door, covered breezeway, electric garbage disposers, spacious two-car garages, Bel-Aire hardwood natural finish kitchen cabinets and other decorative and functional accessories.

Harmony Manor, close to a wealth of community facilities, including schools and churches, shopping and recreation, may be reached via the Santa Ana Freeway to Magnolia Ave. The new homes are rising south of the Freeway on Magnolia Ave. at Ball Rd.

IN GLEN DELL PARK

Veterans are offered no-down terms on Glen Dell Park homes such as this model with monthly payments ranging from $60.25 for principal and interest. Colors used in the homes are attracting great attention.

Second Magnolia Estates Unit Sales Soar to Near $2 Million

Popularity of Magnolia Estates' second unit of 217 large 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes on Magnolia Ave., just south of the Santa Ana Freeway, between La Palma and Crescent Aves., in Anaheim, is reflected in total sales of more than $1,750,000 in less than a month.

Sales figures for the new residential community were released by Louis A. Towne, president, and Richard H. Doremus, vice president in charge of planning, of Exhibit Homes, Inc., builders and developers.

Sales have been boosted, it was stated, by terms to vets of nothing down with no cash needed for costs and impounds and monthly payments from $63, including principal and interest.

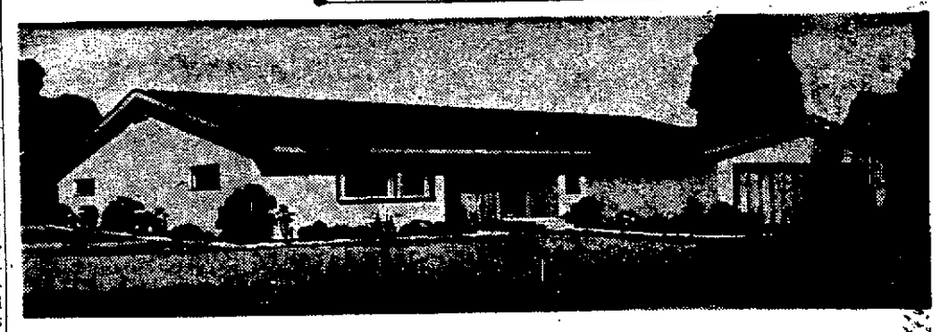

"We continue to offer 'no cash needed' terms since these homes were cleared for such terms before April 28," it was explained by a spokesman for the developers.

"Since such terms have now been ruled out by the Veterans' Administration, veterans have been rushing to buy at Magnolia Estates," it was stated.

The new residences, which are priced from $12,300, are typified at the development by a display of four model homes, each furnished and decorated by C. Tony Pereira. The models are open daily and Sundays.

Features attracting attention, it was noted, include thermostat-controlled forced-air heating, all metal sliding glass doors for indoor-outdoor living, steel sash windows, decorator planned color schemes, lath and plaster construction, custom lighting fixtures, picture windows, stall showers with ceramic tile floors and all chrome bath accessories.

Also features include extra large kitchens, natural finish cabinets, ceramic tile counters, large dining nooks, spacious service areas, pantry closets in some models, 40 to 50-gallon gas water heaters, rockwool insulation and front and rear door chimes.

IN MAGNOLIA ESTATES

The above attractive exterior is representative of a choice selection of stylings in three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes in Magnolia Estates on west side of Magnolia Ave. between La Palma and Crescent Aves., south of Santa Ana Freeway, in Anaheim.

Color Co-ordination for Glen Dell Park Drawing Attention

Exterior color coordination of homes in Glen Dell Park in Garden Grove which was developed exclusively for this latest D. & E. Corporation home development by Mel Grau, noted southland color coordinator, has attracted attention from several national publications interested in use of California color since it presents a new and unusual handling of redwood with bright, interesting California tonals, William P. Bowman, vice president in charge of sales, explained.

As a result, plans have been set in motion to register these color formulae to reserve their exclusive use for D. & E. Corporation homes in this area, Bowman said.

Bowman also announced that Glen Dell Park homes are still being sold to qualified veterans for nothing down, and on monthly payments that range from $60.25, including principal and interest, with the VA loan program requiring vets to have a gross income of only $86 per week after contractural payments.

Also greatly influencing heavy sales of these conventionally constructed 2-bedroom-and-a-den or 3-bedroom homes is the mortgage-payment insurance protection, with premiums paid for one year, issued each GI buyer by Weiner and Crocker Insurance of Bexerly Hills, according to Norman Crocker, president. Plan provides enough money to take care of mortgage payment for at least one year in the event the GI home-buyer is unable to work because of a disability to the insured, he explained.

Featuring such conventional construction as typified by solid hardwood floors over sub-floors raised 18 inches from the ground, and genuine lath and plaster walls designed for solidity and permanence, other attractive appointments are sliding glass doors; extra-large service porches; builtin storage racks in unusually wide two-car garages, and covered terraces that overlook tree-shaded lots.

Offered in 23 exterior designs and a wide choice of varied functional floor plans, other refinements are the central-hall plan; forced-air furnaces; birch kitchen cabinets; hammered copperized range hood and matching hardware; exhaust fan; garbage disposer and builtin combination dining nook, breakfast bar, buffet and organizer desk all in one.

Model homes, furnished by Aaron Schultz of Long Beach, and entire development of 137 homes, can be reached from Los Angeles by driving out the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor; right on Harbor to Chapman; right on Chapman to West Street, and right on West to Glen Dell Park.

UNIT OPENS SOON

Chapman-Magnolia Park invites homeseekers to a pre-opening showing today at the new unit of 338 homes which is opening soon. This is one of the models.

Chapman-Magnolia Park Previews Big Unit Today

Predicting the last of the "no cash needed" financing arrangement for veterans moving into a Chapman-Magnolia Park home in Garden Grove, officials of Ajax Construction Company, builders, issued an open invitation to all prospective home purchasers to visit the new 338-home development this week-end and attend pre-opening of the final unit.

In commenting on the favorable financing still being offered that requires no cash impounds or cash closing costs of qualified vets, executives of the Robert McCutchin Co. explained this may be the last time this offer can be made, and urged all home-seeking veterans interested in it to visit the new community today without fail. Homes are fully priced from $11,600 to $13,900, it was explained.

All during the week-end visitors will be invited to inspect the wealth of closet space and spacious bathrooms, sales officials said, especially in the four bedroom models that offer a choice of either two or three bathrooms. Three-bedroom-and-a-den residences have 2 large baths, as have the 3-bedroom units, it explained.

Pointing up the "country life" features of these luxurious homes themed as "distinctive rustic," this final unit of Chapman - Magnolia Park dwellings features distinctive interiors where wall space, windows and generous use of floor space make effective and restful decoration and furnishing simple and inexpensive, if desired.

Among other features cited, are built-in gas ovens and range tops in a virtual rainbow of colors, complete with automatic timing devices and controls, spacious built-in breakfast nooks, and large "newview" picture windows especially engineered for maximum light and controlled, draft-free ventilation, it was explained.

Prime location of the development, only minutes from opportunities within a radius of six miles of Garden Grove, were also cited as important to prospective home-buyers.

Two model homes will be on display from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Home seekers from Los Angeles interested in selecting choice locations in this final unit of Chapman-Magnolia Park, are advised to drive out the Santa Ana Freeway to Highway 30 (Grand Ave. in Buena Park); turn right and drive south to Chapman; left on Chapman to model homes. From Long Beach, drive east on 7th Street, past the Veterans Hospital to Highway 39; north one-half mile to Chapman, east one-half mile to model homes.

Near Sellout in Shamrock Village Unit

"So many people have taken advantage of the rent-with-option-to-buy plan featured in Shamrock Village that only a few dwellings remain in this Garden Grove development," reports Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker and Lee, sales agents. "This plan has proven particularly popular to servicemen who have not yet qualified for veterans' financing," Hart added.

Ranges, automatic washers and refrigerators, all consumer's choice, are available to buyers in the development, Hart said. Dwellings have three or four bedrooms and one or two baths, with many features, including king-size lots, with landscaped front and side yards.

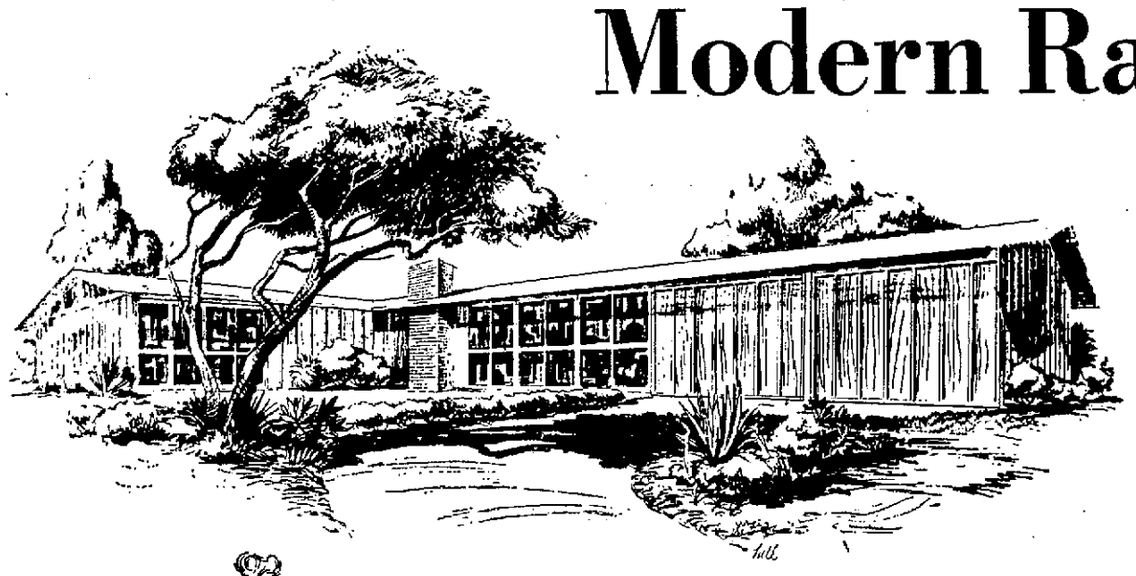

Thermostat-controlled heat, rockwool insulation, television jacks and outlets, weatherstripping, decorator-planned color harmony on both interiors and exteriors and oak hardwood or cork floors are more features.

Kitchens are equipped with garbage disposals and work surfaces are of ceramic tile. Bathrooms, with pullman-type lavatories, have colored fixtures, Marlite over tubs, stall showers and some models have electric bath heaters. Mahogany slab doors, 40 or 50-gallon water heaters are more attractions.

Priced from $10,400 to $11,700, Shamrock Village homes are being sold to veterans for no down payment. Churches and schools are within walking distance and transportation, shopping, recreation and industrial areas are near by.

Models of the homes are open daily. Visitors from Long Beach drive out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn north on Harbor to Shamrock Village.

TIETZ TO BUILD FOR DOCTORS

Opening of an 11½-acre Orange County Medical Arts Center at Chapman Ave. and Euclid St. is announced by the Tietz Construction Co. Under the rental plan, the doctors get clear title to their suites after 15 years of rental.

Plans Completed for Medical Arts Center in Orange County

A unique rental plan, which will give each doctor in Garden Grove's new Orange County Medical Arts Center clear title to his offices after 15 years of occupancy at the regular rental figure, has been announced by Tietz Construction Co., builders and developers.

All offices in the 11½-acre Center will be designed and built for the medical tenants either in individual buildings or in groups of two or three structures with a common wall division. Each doctor will be privileged to plan the size, number, location and decoration of rooms, in consultation with the Tietz Company's architectural and rental departments, according to Bill Tietz, president.

"Occupancy of all offices in the Orange County Medical Arts Center will be limited to doctors of medicine or dentistry in good standing with their local county professional groups," Tietz announced. "Our plan is that the doctor will occupy offices designed specifically for him at a standard rental figure comparable to rents in Type A medical space. At the end of 10 years of occupancy, at no additional cost beyond the monthly rental figure, the doctor will be entitled to purchase the building and adjacent grounds over a period of five years."

Exclusively reserved for medical and dental practice, the Orange County Medical Arts Center will have facilities for referred practice, such as radiology, pathology, medical and dental laboratories, centrally located. Commercial stores will be limited to prescription pharmacy, prescription optical store, brace shop, gown shop, and surgical and dental supply.

Individually controlled heating plants and air conditioning systems, sound-proofed walls and ceilings, built-in laboratory cabinets, and adequate parking space adjacent to each office are among the leading features.

Orange County Medical Arts Center is on Chapman Ave. near Euclid St. in Garden Grove. It is in the approximate geographic and population center of the Orange County trading area and is centrally located in relation to all nearby hospitals.

Tietz Construction Co., one of Southern California's leading residential development firms, has been building better class homes in the Garden Grove area for the past three years.

May Co. to Build Cleveland Unit

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—The May Department Stores Co. will construct a large suburban branch store in the University Heights section of Cleveland.

N. L. Dauby, president of the May Co. store in downtown Cleveland, said the branch unit will be a four-floor store of contemporary design built on a 17-acre site that is now occupied by a golf course.

It will contain more than 300,000 square feet of space. Parking space for 2,000 cars will be provided. The structure and fixtures would cost in excess of $5,000,000.

The May Co. in Cleveland is a part of the May Department Stores Co., which operates 10 downtown department stores, 17 branch stores and a shopping center, located in nine metropolitan areas—from Baltimore to Los Angeles.

It has under construction branch stores in Los Angeles, St. Louis and Denver and a 10-story addition to Kaufman's, its downtown store in Pittsburgh.

CHAPMAN LUXURY ESTATES
The above is one of 142 three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes offered on both GI and FHA terms in the new community of Chapman Luxury Estates at Commonwealth Blvd. and Cypress Ave., in Fullerton.

Chapman Luxury Estates Continues Veterans Terms

Brisker than usual sales at Chapman Luxury Estates were credited yesterday by the developers to increasing interest in the many special features of the 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in particular, their spaciousness, with each home averaging 1400 square feet.

This report was given by a spokesman for the Pioneer Land Co., sales agent for the property at Commonwealth Blvd. and Cypress Ave., Fullerton, just off the Santa Ana Freeway.

"Another big attraction at Chapman Luxury Estates," the spokesman added, "is the continuation for veterans of terms featuring nothing down and only $95 to move in, with monthly payments from $72.40 for principal and interest.

It was noted that non-veterans, who may buy on FHA terms, constitute a fourth of the buyers of new homes in Chapman Luxury Estates. Immediate occupancy is being offered to both veterans and non-veterans, and there remains a wide selection of stylings and floor plans, typified by three fully furnished model homes, open daily and Sunday.

Officials of the Pioneer Land Co. said the terms are proving especially attractive because of the quality construction and many special features.

These include brick or slumpstone fireplaces, sliding walls of glass, 75,000 BTU forced-air heat, Western Holly built-in ranges, Philippine mahogany kitchen cabnets, large living area, mosaic tile stall showers, garbage disposers, rear patios and other appointments and accessories.

Improvements af the planned community of Chapman Luxury Estates include ornamental street lights, sidewalks, paved streets, sewers and all utilities.

The property, which is near to all community conveniences, may be reached by way of the Santa Ana Freeway to Commonwealth boulevard, then continuing east on Commonwealth to Cypress Ave., where a left turn leads to the homes.

Special guests were Miss Martindell's mother, Mrs. Henry Martindell, her grandmother, Mrs. Fay Marsh and her aunt, Mrs. Yorke Quimby.

Lilacs and snapdragons were used for the floral decor by the hostess and she served attractive desserts and coffee to her guests at the conclusion of the afternoon.

While on the continent they will tour the majority of the countries of Europe. Seniors Bid Farewell to High School Days at First Nighters Formal Party

The Wild Waves Are Saying

People Around Us in Champagne Mood

By IOLA MASTERSON

Some weeks are pretty dull affairs and then all of a sudden, like spring, things "bust out all over" and that's the way we like it! This week's notes are full of a variety of things to put the people around us in a champagne mood. So peek over our shoulder while we spin a story or so.

The pleased murmuring that broke out in certain sections the past few days indicated cherished invitations had been received from Ettie (Mrs. Gordon) Brown, Gladys (Mrs. Walter) Furie and Winifred (Mrs. Harold) Morris for the first in a series of parties the three hostesses are planning for their many friends. The first, per se, will be a coffee next Friday in the Brown manse at 5027 Vista St. Other equally festive coffee hours and luncheons will follow in June and July.

Having looked into the future lets take a look at the past, just to prove we're impartial! Last Saturday night John and Lynn Arkush discovered that when Peninsula folk say you're welcome they really mean it. Lynn and John moved to that spit of land where informality reigns supreme and before their packing crates had been picked up by the trash man they were guests at a sparkly welcome cocktail party given for them by Nada and John Richards in their home at 6424 E. Ocean Blvd. The Arkush address is 6525 E. Ocean. Nada used big, spicy roses and other friendly spring flowers to lend a party-air to her home. Another sort of lending was done by Harry Schumaker and Dr. Walter Gilkey, who loaned their energies to become merriest of potion mixers, seeing that the 50 or so guests were never long without a filled glass!

The sounds of merriment hovered in the air around Pat Van de Water's home, 3939 Pacific Ave. Wednesday and it would have taken a very sober sided type person, indeed, not to enter into the mirthful mood of the annual party given by sustaining members of the Junior League as they welcomed the years "newest" to the fold. A poolside luncheon highlighted the informal affair and bubbling with laughter over the decorations were the 55 women present. The decor was arranged by Carlene Burrell and her committee including Marge Conley, Gertrude Guertin, Ola Murphy, Helen Fielding and Ruth Hubbell. It was Ruth, we understand, who did the "art" work. As to the tongue-in-cheek decorations—really we wouldn't dare!

The thermometer is probably soaring down in Palm Springs this weekend but no matter how high it goes it will have trouble going any "upper" than the spirits of sun-tanning guests at the El Mirador. This marks the annual weekend when the San Bernardino Assistance League takes over the resort hotel for a close-of-the-season affair. Ethel and Pete Long (we never have forgiven San Berdoo for taking them away from us) asked Ellie and Frank Person and Marge and Roy McCullough to join them for the two fun-filled days. And with coolest clothes and brightest spirits they accepted.

On the theory that all work and no play makes a pretty sorry kettle of fish, Florence and Orville Cole invited the directors of the Long Beach Community Players to their home for buffet supper preceding the regularly scheduled business meet tonight. Not only that, they asked said directors to bring their wives or husbands as the case may be. One of the most interested and interesting women present will be Orville's mother, here from Norman, Okla., to visit. In her 80's, the sprightly lady can out-maneuver (mentally and physically) most people half her age!

Land of manana, down Baja California way, sounded just right for a few days to Dell Berry so, with friends from San Diego, she motored down to the Hamilton Ranch last Wednesday for a few sunny Mexican days. She'll be home Wednesday to tell Don all about it.

Off into the porpoise lanes went Carrie and Al Vignolo and Artelle and Pascal Dilday last weekend aboard the Dilday's cruiser for a sea jaunt to Ensenada.

All the haole (white) wahines (women) and kanes (men) of the Symphony Juniors banded together last night at Meadowlark Country Club for a genuine luau and dance; roast pig, poi, pineapple and all. Naturally, this called for some okolehau, too! Shirley and Jim Herley were hosts at their table to Les and Darrell Callahan, Beverly and John Henderson, Ed and Miriam Strickler and Vivian Crist and Dr. Bob Harris. Where the Turners, Loralee and Tom, sat there also were their guests Frances and Ray Parker, Garnette and George Hedley, Margaret and Jim Pino and Veda and Don Wells. A glance toward Jackie and Bob Campbell's table netted a pleasant glimpse of their guests, Joanne and Dick Barry. Many another tableful, too, gay with joyful people.

Our cool and misty atmosphere feels heavenly to at least two travelers just back from a wonderful trip (even if starchy hot) and they are Fred McDowell and his gracious mother, Mrs. Theresa McDowell, who landed at International Wednesday after several weeks plane hopping and relative visiting in the deep south.

Off to Arizona's dry and high mesa land went Ann and Guy Barton for a rest-up weekend. They'll be home tonight with memories of the sounds and sights of Yuma and Tucson.

Chic Wilma Hastings and her big, debonair husband, Glenn, would hardly be recognized this weekend by their friends about town for they turned into typical and doting grandparents. Wilma's platinum grey hair has been rumpled repeatedly by the baby hands of her grandsons, Robbie and Bill, and Glenn, we'll betcha, is wearing a pair of wrinkled trousers where youngsters have ridden hobby horse across his shins! They've been in Tranquility, Calif., (near Fresno) for a relaxed and lovely long weekend with their son and wife, Glenn Jr. and Fay, and the little boys. They'll be home tonight, hair back in place and trousers pressed, but hearts forever bent the way babies want them. Glenn Jr., incidentally, plans to come here this summer to finish studies for his master's degree at Long Beach State—a school he thinks is tops. Glenn is a phiz ed coach at Tranquility High School.

A rendezvous in Paris took place a few days ago between Bea Park, her niece, Donna Bradfield, and Mauvais Park. Bea and Donna sailed aboard the S. S. United States end of April and Mauvais followed by air a few days later. They were guests in Paris of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Louis E. Cunliffe (Mrs. C. is the former Barbara Anne Bradfield) and together they are now on a motoring tour which will take them across 2500 miles of the continent.

Most children would have trouble understanding how grown ups could have so much fun "gettin' educated." But fun they're having and we refer to those women gaily involved in the "Know Your Community" series of field trips and talks sponsored by the Community Volunteer Office. Thursday the gang saw what makes City College's Business and Technology Division tick and, during the luncheon hour at the school, heard Dr. George Dodson. Among those attending the fourth of the series (two more to go) were Bess Olson, the chairman; Patty Landis, Nina Trutanich, Jody Alpers, Pat Brennan, "Bert" Swanson, Mildred Wing, Berta Fast and Betty Ann Kirkpatrick, to name a few.

After tour, talk and luncheon they visited the new Tucker School for more inside information on things educational in Long Beach.

Silver Wing Girls Celebrate Silver Anniversary

Airline Stewardess Styles, Duties Change With Years

By JEAN MOORE

A salute to young women who pursue a career in the skies is being paid this month as the airline stewardess profession marks its 25th birthday.

Three Clipped Wings, former hostesses for United Air Lines, first company to initiate the idea of airborne stewardesses, live in Long Beach.

Vicy Zelsdorf, Bette Lou King and Roseanne DeGraw got together this week with Betty Kolodge of Torrance to compare hostessing in the "good old days" with today.

Actually the good old days in the experience of the vivacious trio goes back only a scant 10 years. Their meeting with a currently employed hostess revealed that changes have taken place.

Bette Kolodge has rarely cared for an airsick passenger. She works in pressurized cabins.

Grimacing, her predecessors recall caring for dozens of airsick passengers at once. They remember stewardess friends who developed anemia over a period of time by being so busy with airsick persons that they didn't have time to take oxygen themselves.

Bette Lou, a hostess from 1948 to 1950, and Vicy, who served from 1946 to '49, remember serving meals brought to the plane in boxes wrapped in asbestos paper. They weren't warm long.

Roseanne, who became a Clipped Wing in January when she married passenger Fred DeGraw, and Bette, with a June wedding ahead with a passenger, are accustomed to electric ovens where entrees are kept piping hot in casseroles.

Reaching and stretching for pillows and blankets on racks over passengers' heads actually increases the height of a hostess, they assert, adding that the maximum 5'5" requirement has been increased to 5'7" because today's planes are higher within.

During the stocking scarcity of World War II, girls aloft were allowed to wear leg makeup. They asked to continue the custom during summer months, but the company refused the request when nylons became plentiful.

Nail polish worn by Vicy and Bette Lou had to be pale or colorless, but gradually deeper shades are being accepted by officials. Heels at least two inches high were regulation several years ago. The shoes could be dolled up with bows, a surprise to Bette and Roseanne whose pumps must remain unadorned. News to the "veterans" was the wearing of flats while working long flights. In fact, regulation flats are now being worn, although their wearers don't care much for the style.

Hostesses today have it soft. Not so many years ago each stewardess was responsible for a 20-pound medical kit. Often they had to lug it for blocks. Now the kits are driven to the plane by a medical supply house.

Whereas hostesses used to receive instruction in delivering a baby, giving insulin and hypodermic shots, emphasis nowadays is on emergency procedure. All are still required to pass the Red Cross first aid course.

The first girls who took to the airways a quarter century ago were all registered nurses. Late requirements were two years of college and a year's business experience. While the coed is still given preference, a girl with three years in an office can now wear silver wings too.

It costs United $1,200 to train a stewardess. In the beginning a girl would serve an average of six months and succumb to Dan Cupid. Gradually her average service extended to a year, until hostesses today are sky charmers for about 25 months before matrimony overtakes them. Whether the company's offerings became more attractive, men less plentiful or hostesses more choosy is not determined.

Dior's New Look ruined the morale of hostesses flying in the 40's. His notoriously long hemlines were impractical in air line work. Besides, the company had spent thousands of dollars providing trim uniforms with skirts at calf length and wasn't about to order longer versions at a Frenchman's whim.

The hostess' collective fashion sense may have been piqued, but the male public loved the air line for its decision. In New York, especially, whistles shrilled and eyes focused on the shorter skirts of the stewardesses as they stepped from taxi to their hotel.

Through the years their uniforms have progressed from awkward capes over lint-catching green flannel to slick navy winter gabardines and brighter blue summer linen. English manufacturers of the summer fabric call it "crash linen," but for obvious psychological reasons the air line avoids the term.

In addition to caring for three small children, Bette Lou King now helps her husband run private swimming schools in four cities in the Los Angeles area. Wife of a United captain, Vicy Zelsdorf is a homemaker with several children. Do they ever miss their old jobs? Yes, they admit. Looking down on white clouds is something they shall never forget.

All four agree on two things. Babies are the best passengers and there is a wonderful, indescribable something about working afloat in the wild blue yonder.

FASHION IN FLIGHT

Skimpy skirts and a cape were standard garb when United Air Lines initiated the stewardess profession 25 years ago this month. Former hostess Mrs. Robert Zelsdorf, 122 Granada Ave., models it here. Alongside is Mrs. Stuart King, 6731 Stearns Ave., attired in her uniform of the 1940's. Betty Kolodge, 5500 Torrance Blvd., Torrance, wears the trim summer uniform designed in the 40's and still popular. Newest outfit, winter weight and navy, is shown by Mrs. Fred DeGraw, 265 Glendora Ave. Mmes. Zelsdorf, King and DeGraw were settled down to earth in Long Beach by marriage. Still flying, Miss Kolodge will be grounded by matimony next month.—(Staff photo.)

Donna Organ Lovely Bride

Three gold coins representing the purest of metals and symbols of happiness and fortune in Holland were presented to the bridegroom by Dr. George McDonald after the wedding of Miss Donna Marie Organ and Harry Charles Donkers of Washington, D. C. Dr. McDonald officiated at the early evening double ring ceremony in Virginia Country Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Organ of 520 Mesa Way are the parents of the popular bride, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Johanna M. Donkers of Lima, Peru.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional gown of Chantilly and bridal satin with a chapel train, a cap of Chantilly, pearls and illusion tulle. She carried a Bible with a white orchid and white ribbon.

Sally Anderson, maid of honor, wore light blue turquoise, full length, with a tight bodice, and silk organza picture hat. The bridesmaids, Susan Organ, Joan Hunter, Susan Lemon, Vicky Uecker and Barbara Berntsen wore hyacinth blue, pale yellow, sky blue, soft coral and deeper yellow ballerina-length gowns of silk organza and picture hats. Julie Organ, flower girl, wore pink tulle and taffeta. Baskets carried by maid of honor and bridesmaids contained tulips and orchids.

James Dudley was best man. Ushers were Bill Organ, Bruce Koupe, Vance Thurston, Tom Uecker and Kelly Clement.

A champagne reception for the guests followed at the club. Barney Sorkins Orchestra provided music for dancing. Assisting as hostesses during the evening were Mrs. Stuart Lemon and Mrs. John Hunter.

The bride, who was graduated from high school in St. Louis, Mo., attended University of Oregon two years where she was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. The bridegroom, who was born in Peru and reared in Holland and Belgium, was graduated last June from the University of Oregon with a bachelor of science degree. He is now serving in the Air Force and later plans to enter the diplomatic service.

After a honeymoon in Palm Springs, the couple will live in Washington, D. C.

Democracy's early art — an exhibition for the citizen as much as the art lover—comes to the Municipal Art Center, in "Little Masters of 17th Century Holland," from May 22 to June 26.

American democracy of today—despite a three-century, 3,000-mile gap — was forecast in the republic of the 17th century Dutch. The Netherlands cast out European feudalism and monarchy to become a modern nation, a constitutional federation of states, when it wrenched its independence from Spain in 1609.

Like Americans now, Dutch painters of the 17th Century possessed a democratic spirit. The Little Masters were the first artists in modern history to find inspiration in the everyday stuff of life. Their genius transformed everyd reality into art: studies of a merchant's or a housewife's face, pictures of middle class home life or peasants merrymaking, scenes of land and sea.

Painting by van Goyen, Everdingen, van der Neer, van der Heyden, Fyt, Netscher, de Vries, Duyen, Jongh, Huysmans, Klomp, Lingelbach and Naiven will be on view.

"Little Masters of 17th Century Holland" was prepared by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, and is circulated under the auspices of the American Federation of Arts. Supplementing the exhibition will be Dutch prints lent by the Palace of the Legion of Honor, San Francisco.

Today is the last day of the Municipal Art Center's current exhibition, The Architecture of Japan.

Ben Messick's water color, "A Prayer for Peace," in the Grumbacher Traveloan exhibition of water color techniques, is getting around. It was in the Grand Central Art Galleries in New York during March; now it is in the Coliseum in Austin, Tex., and next it will go to the Centennial Art Museum in Corpus Christi, Tex., for two weeks.

Spectrum Club members will sketch today at Henry's Yacht Anchorage on Terminal Island.

All artists living in California are invited to exhibit in the "All California Exhibition" at the Laguna Beach Festival of Arts July 16-Aug. 14. Cash prizes totalling $2,000 will be awarded oil paintings and water colors in both conservative and modern categories. Prospective exhibitors may obtain entry forms by writing to the Festival of Arts, Laguna Beach.

NEW RESIDENTS

Two months ago Mr. and Mrs. Gene L. Lentzner arrived from St. Louis, Mo., to join other young couples living in the Los Altos area. Their sons are Alan Neil, 6 months, and Jay Robert, 2½. The Missourians now live at 2611 Marber Ave.

We Welcome -- -- --

From St. Louis to Sun Come the Lentzners

By JEAN MOORE

A honeymoon to California and several subsequent vacations finally brought Mr. and Mrs. Gene L. Lentzner to uproot themselves from St. Louis and head for Long Beach. Among the city's newer residents, they arrived March 1 and are now living at 2611 Marber Ave. in Los Altos.

More than 50 years in the ready-to-wear business is the heritage of Gene Lentzner, so it was only natural that when he finished school he should become an assistant buyer for Stix, Baer and Fuller in St. Louis, one of the country's largest department stores.

Again, it naturally followed that he should work through the ranks to become, in five years, one of the seven divisional merchandise managers of the store.

But a person can become lost in a store of 4,000 employees. California not only offered climate, but opportunity to run his own shop. Gene Lentzner now owns Gene's in downtown Long Beach. He considers the name coincidence a good omen.

Born in St. Louis, Gene received his BS degree from Washington University in that city, then went on to Harvard to receive his master of arts degree in business administration. He earned the Phi Beta Kappa key at Washington U., and was a Baker's Scholar, a comparable honor, at Harvard.

Extra curricular activities occupied him on both campuses with the result that he became a member of Beta Gamma Sigma, business honorary; Delta Sigma Rho, economics honorary, and the national forensic honorary society.

Current active affiliations are the Associated Retailers and the Chamber of Commerce in Long Beach. As a member of the teacher's staff of the St. Louis Associated Retailers organization, he taught merchandising and buying techniques.

Music has played an important role in his life. At seven he studied piano and has never stopped. There was a time when he was ambitious to become a concert pianist, but the ready-to-wear strain was stronger.

For his own enjoyment and his family's, he often fills the air at home with classical or semi-classical music after shop hours. World War II sent him to North Africa and Europe for three years with the infantry.

He's as handy with a tennis racquet as a piano keyboard—or accessorizing a feminine ensemble. He admits his wife is a "tough customer." A size 9, tiny Mrs. Lentzner has her own ideas of fashion, too. It may take some conferring, but with the two of them pooling their ideas, she emerges fashionably attired to suit both their tastes.

Seizing an obvious opportunity, the reporter slyly asked which feminine fashion through the years Mr. Lentzner thought most flattering to most women. "The bouffant skirt and the nipped-in waist, like today's styles" was the immediate answer.

Collinsville, Ill., is Mrs. Lentzner's home town. She attended the University of Illinois before taking over the credit office of her family's furniture business in Collinsville.

Her own little credits take most of her time these days. They are Jay Robert, 2½, and Alan Neil, six months. The two little charmers bear out another tradition in the Lentzner family. Never yet has a little girl enriched the family clan. If and when she does she'll hear from men on all sides of the family telling her how to dress.

Social Meeting

Verba Buell will be chairman of the social meeting of Degree of Honor 108 at 8 p. m. Thursday at 728 Elm Ave. President Gene Graham will preside.

Crosby's cake was decorated in true hill billy style with "Take To the Hills, Tim" written on it. Allred's cake was enscribed with "Welcome Home." Over 25 guests attended the party and enjoyed talking over their old times at Excelsior where most of the young fellows graduated in 1951. Dancing and games were also on the agenda.

The home of Miss Pat Robeson, 6118 Adenmore was the scene of a bridal shower Thursday to honor Rachael Wall who will become the bride of Lynn Reineke on June 19. Assisting hostess was Janice Reineke.

To the Ralph Gillispie family at 5907 Pennswood a son was born in a Hollywood hospital. Both families had two children previous to their Mother's Day blessed event. Long Beach Women Elected to Highest State Posts at Dental Assistants Parley

By ANNE GILCHRIST

The singular honor of having a president and vice president of a state organization elected from a local chapter has come to Long Beach with the election this week of Mary Joyce Peters to the state presidency of California State Dental Assistants and Rose McIlvaine as vice president. Both are past presidents of the Harbor Dental Assistants. Mrs. Peters is an assistant in the offices of Dr. Edwin R. Harvey and Mrs. McIlvaine is employed by Dr. Marcia Sneden.

The election of the two career women occurred at the state conclave in session at the Statler Hotel, Los Angeles, May 8-10, with their installation taking place Tuesday. Dr. Leslie Wingfield of Los Angeles conducted the impressive ceremonies.

As if the election of the two top officers wasn't sufficient glory to bring to one chapter at the annual meet, still other honors were won decisively when clinic awards were made. The first three trophies were won by three members of the Harbor District Society with first place being taken by Thora Dowling; second place by Evelyn Parsons; and third place by Jeanne Kasten. First place for the student award trophy also was taken by Long Beach student members Peni Katzoff, Ann Schwartz and Marilyn Sprague. These students are members of the Dental Assistants class taught by Mrs. Alpha Cook at the City College Business and Technology Division, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

President Mary Joyce Peters called a directors' meeting and introduced her statewide board to her counsellor, Mrs. Cay Rammel, of this city. Plans were discussed for national convention to take place in San Francisco this October.

Long Beach delegates in attendance at convention, which had a registration of 831 people, were Viola Engel, Rosemary Leedom, Harriet Beadle, Dorothy Allen, Jacqueline Van Sickle, Jean Hatch and Joan Travis. Alternates were Martha Stegen, Katherine Van Etten, Theresa Hansen, Katherine Stephens, Mildred Dunken, Alpha Cook and Eva Miner.

Exchange Teacher

After nine months spent observing schools for exceptional children in England, Scotland and various countries on the continent, Miss Harriett Knoblock, 839 Grand Ave., special training teacher at Long Beach Polytechnic High School, will embark for home tomorrow from Rotterdam on the M/S Arendskerk. She will return via the Suez Canal, Bangkok, Singapore, Hong Kong and Yokohama. Her return to Long Beach will thus complete a trip around the world for the attractive educator who began her travels with a Ford Foundation scholarship which she received last year.

For three months, Miss Knoblock visited schools for exceptional children in England. She has written home that she has been received with the utmost courtesy and kindness by the heads of various schools.

For her future work with exceptional children, she writes that she has found much of value in studies in Scotland, Sweden, Denmark and Belgium. Miss Knoblock's trip has been the culmination of many years of work with exceptional children. She was one of the first teachers in this field at Poly High and received her master's degree in special education at San Francisco State College.

Insurance Women

Votes were cast and results tabulated at the last meeting of Insurance Women of Long Beach, a dinner affair at the Victor Hugo, and new officers elected were Marie Eckles, president; Constance Winkler, vice president; Doris Dean, recording secretary; Clara Moore, corresponding secretary; Audrey Hood, treasurer, and Pauline Kincaid, auditor.

Those named to the board of directors were Leatrice Skarpa, Sandra Smith, Esther Trujillo, Joanne Roest, Reva Stewart and Jane Ann Campbell. National convention in San Francisco this June will be attended by delegates Marie Eckles, the president, and Doris Dean. Alternates will be Marguerite Otto and Leatrice Skarpa.

Jane Ann Campbell presided at election meeting with education chairman Doris Dean presenting the program. She introduced Keith James, coordinator of LBCC B&TD, and Robert Krogfoss, instructor at the college, who told of the new insurance assistant's course to be given this fall.

Two new members were initiated, Adah James and Dorothy Gillelen and out-of-town guests, Patty Pierce of San Gabriel Valley Insurance Women and Carolee Corey of the Omaha, Neb., club were welcomed.

Manuela Nieto

With the coming of summer, elections continue to be the big news in club circles of town. Manuela Nieto Business and Professional Women's Club is another group to announce election results and installation plans. Miss Pat Freeman will accept the president's gavel at ceremonies Tuesday evening to be conducted in Woodruff Community Church.

Taking office with her will be Mrs. Yola Brazil, Mary Pierson, Sadie Michnnick, Margaret Nagel and Opal McIntosh. Outgoing president, Elizabeth Derry, will be in charge and officiating at installation will be Kathleen Head, vice chairman of Sierra Mar District.

Theme for the evening will be "Good Neighborliness" and a program in the spirit of a fiesta has been arranged.

National Secretaries

The third annual three-day state convention of National Secretaries, which ends today in Santa Monica, has 17 members of the local Queen Beach chapter in attendance including official delegate, Jeanne Hissner, president of the Long Beach group. Those at the sessions have been Verla Wilson, Madaline Ferguson, Edna Ley, Marie Wells, Marilyn Hart, Cal Holmes, Jo Knoerr, Elma Braid, Charlene Tritten, Phyllis Trepinski, Margaret Ericson, Betty Mahoney, Wilma Conde, Felda Wilson, Luella Darnell and Jean Taylor.

Quota Club Begins Year

Quota Club's first meeting of the new year was called to order at Victor Hugo's last Monday evening by Connie Brown. A gala note was added to the evening by the presentation of a beautifully decorated birthday cake to the new president.

Ways and means fund activities of the evening were participated in by Genevieve Parker, Marguerite Wood and Kathryn Wiand.

Virginia Youngquist announced plans for a hospital party to be given in Ward C of Long Beach General Hospital next Thursday. At this time birthdays of the patients will be observed.

It was announced that president Connie and vice president Rita Stanfield would be in attendance this weekend at a president's council meeting taking place at Mission Inn in Riverside. Mrs. Brown was named delegate by Quotians to attend the international conference of Quota in Banff next June. Rita Stanfield will be alternate. Other major plans under way are for the district conference to convene in October here at the Lafayette Hotel with Marguerite Wood serving as chairman.

Monday Event

Mrs. Walter C. Williams will preside at the meeting of the executive board of the Democratic Women's Study Club at 10 a. m. Monday at Linden Hall. Roberts, director of finance of the City of Long Beach. Roberts will show a film, "Municipal Dividends," based on municipal activities and produced by the city.

Pilots will be personally interested in the film beyond their interest in city because member Margie Cate, juvenile inspector, appears in some of the scenes and Nina Boyle, another Pilot, assisted with the movie's preparation.

Ruth Tay, new president of the downtown club, will preside. She wielded the gavel for the first time at the club's recent business meeting in their clubrooms at the Lafayette which was followed by informal dinner in the Ballerina Room. It was at this meeting that reports and plans for the new club year were presented by each chairman.

does your face magnify your age?
if your mirror tells heartbreaking truths, you need
Jacqueline Cochran's
FLOWING VELVET
the only beauty formula containing hydrolin

This modern flowing formula has already given new hope to countless women who looked too old, too soon! Women like you . . . who'd almost despaired of a dry, lifeless skin . . . those aging lines creeping up around your mouth, throat, under your eyes.

What to do? Jacqueline Cochran wondered, too. Long before she won fame as a flyer, she was a recognized beauty authority. She saw how most women "buttered" their faces with heavy creams and spent small fortunes on stopgap treatments. But all in vain.

Something entirely new was needed. Jacqueline Cochran was first to detect why these methods failed. They only treated superficial dryness, not the real cause; merciless dehydration of sub-surface tissues. Then, in her own laboratories, after years of research, she discovered Hydrolin, a new and unique ingredient which she owns and controls. For the first time, Hydrolin can . . . and does transfer beneficial moisture into the deep tissues of the skin.

Exclusive Hydrolin makes Flowing Velvet unique. It cannot be duplicated or imitated successfully. Thanks to Hydrolin . . . and other rich components, only Flowing Velvet acts in these 3 ways:

1. It furnishes moisture that actually sinks into the skin.
2. It provides necessary oils for essential lubrication.
3. It maintains the normal balance of oils and moisture.

Your mirror can tell you. What just one touch of Flowing Velvet does! Your face feels cool, refreshed . . . tiny lines smooth out . . . there's a luminous glow. Your skin actually grows lovelier by the day.

Make Flowing Velvet your 24-hour beauty care. It contains no hormones! Flowing Velvet is greaseless, too . . . so you can wear it all day under make-up, all night without smudging your pillow. Why not start today!

May Motif at Nautical Club

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

A May Day motif was used at the monthly luncheon party of the Nautical Club Thursday at the Officers Club, Allen Center. Mrs. H. E. Anderson and Mrs. Robert Craig were hostesses for the afternoon.

Mrs. Philip Ruth, newly elected president, conducted the business session.

Just recently returned from the east are those very nice folks, Rear Adm. George J. McMillian and Mrs. MacMillian, who had a wonderful five weeks vacation. Most important was seeing their beautiful new granddaughter Megan Mack, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. William Mack of Washington, D. C., and also seeing their 12-year-old grandson Bill. Many, many parties were the order of the day both in Alexandria, Va., and Washington, D. C. for the popular pair. Among those entertaining were the admiral's cousins, Adm. and Mrs. Preston V. Mercer and Capt. and Mrs. W. A. Saunders.

Probably the most exciting and a time of really old friends getting together was the surprise "Guam Party" given for them by friends, Col. and Mrs. Charles Todd. Invited were shipmates and friends who were on Guam together at the outbreak of World War II. Among the well known Navy personnel was Capt. L. Jackson, NC, now chief nurse for the Navy Nurse Corps.

House guests of Comdr. and Mrs. Robert Slach from Tucson, Ariz., are Mrs. Slach's sister, Mrs. Ted Weitz and daughter Susan.

Visiting with Col. and Mrs. Frank Lowery recently were Mr. and Mrs. David Lowery of Torrance and Frank Lowery, Jr., from UCLA.

Entertaining their many friends at a beautiful luncheon and card party last week were Mmes. George J. McMillin, D. C. Laizure, Arthur Moen, and S. D. Truesdell.

Capt. and Mrs. Barry James entertained at a dinner party last Monday night and guests of honor were Col. and Mrs. T. L. Wiper.

Thursday was an exciting day for Mrs. William W. Davis and pretty little daughters who drove to San Diego to meet ChPCL Davis who arrived from the Far East on the USS Kearsarge. Now at home on leave with his family the navy warrant officer and his family are beginning to think about packing as they will leave in the early summer for new duty and residence at the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard. They now are at home in Lakewood to their many friends in this area.

The nominating committee of the Long Beach Air Force Officers Wives Club with Mrs. T. L. Wiper presiding met for luncheon and a business meeting last Tuesday at the Officers Club at the Air Base.

Mrs. Nancy Creed is leaving for New York shortly and from there will go to Europe for a vacation.

Delighted to learn that Rear Adm. and Mrs. Arthur T. Moen now have three fine grandsons, the latest being Gregory Moen Goethals, who resides with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Goethals in Glendale. His two little brothers are Ricky and Tommy.

Mrs. Ted Timbers and children recently enjoyed a few days in Taft with Mrs. Timber's folks.

Major and Mrs. Leon Foreman and Mrs. T. Ray recently visited with Mrs. Foreman's mother, Mrs. Eugene Williams in San Diego.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. T. E. Hawkins, president of the Coast Guard Officers Wives Club entertained her board members at a luncheon at the Officers Club, Allen Center.

Shortly Lt. and Mrs. Hawkins and small daughter, Gwen Lynn will enjoy a cross country vacation with destination being Cleveland, Ohio, where they will visit relatives.

Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. C. A. Murray have gone to Denver, Colo., for a two weeks vacation.

And down to Mexico for the weekend "Kentucky Derby" races went Comdr. and Mrs. M. Steltenkamp, who made it very southern, though south of the border, with mint julips and all.

Mrs. Rose Gartner, national president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Fleet Reserve Association will be honored at a luncheon party on May 23 at the Towne Club. Given by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Fleet Reserve Association, Branch 43, the chairman is Elsie Richter assisted by Frances Pugh, Rena Arlt, Mary D'Andrea and Rose Davis.

Reunion parties to take place in the future are the shipmates and friends of the USS Nashville on June 3, and USS Nevada shipmates on Aug. 6.

Hear that there's to be a ship's party at the Wilton Hotel port, and starboard on May 19, and 20 for the personnel of the Long Beach Group, Pacific Reserve Fleet and their wives and guests.

Lt. (jg) Ann Dixon over at the Naval Station has just returned from a wonderful vacation in Hawaii.

Paul Haverlock from the VA in San Pedro was speaker at the Service Wives Coordinating Committee luncheon recently.

Twyman R. Brammer, supervising freight traffic officer at the Naval Supply Depot, will speak to Navy Wives on "Shipment of Household Goods" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Savannah Housing Clubroom. A potluck dinner will be served at 6 p.m. All Marine, Navy and Coast Guard wives are invited.

new safe All-in-One capsule discovery for easy reducing science now helps you take off your fat while you eat the foods you choose

Do you like sweets, candy, cake, butter, gravy, potatoes? Have you tried one thing after another to reduce, spent dollar after dollar for pills and tablets and in spite of everything you've tried you're still too fat? Well, be as skeptical as you like, but NOW, right NOW, there's a wonderful new kind of capsule that helps you take off pounds and inches of ugly fat safely, quickly and so much easier you hardly know what's happening. You don't suffer starvation dieting hunger, you take no drugs, you don't exercise. In fact, you don't even diet one bit more than you want to, because you automatically eat less and here's why . . .

counteracts hunger

Just recently a well known scientist perfected a new tiny capsule that combines not one but ALL THE RECOGNIZED proven aids to reducing. It combines the vitamins and minerals often lost when cutting off fattening foods containing these needed vitamins and minerals. It combines the vegetable cellulose that has no calories, yet expands when it absorbs water, thereby helping give the feeling of a full contented stomach. In fact, these tiny capsules are so packed with vitamins and minerals, protein and non-caloric filling food, they actually equal and exceed many a meal.

fat goes fast

You'll be surprised at the fat you lose the first week, the inches that disappear the first month. No hunger, no strict dieting, no drugs, no exercise. And the cost is absolutely nothing unless you grow slim, more youthful looking, more active and enjoy better health.

something to talk about...

Our prediction: Lemon Ice will be a basic fashion fact by the end of summer. Lemon Ice, the clear, cool, light-to-bright color range of yellows that mean freshness and flattery to your summer wardrobe. And in this season of tone-on-tone colors, Lemon Ice accessories complement Lemon Ice costumes (this means you in yellow from brim top to toes).

So be sure to see our high fashion accessories in Lemon Ice . . . see the longer, slimmer gloves that hug the arm all the way from wrist to almost-elbow, or the very, very short ones that barely reach your wrist . . . see the smaller, more compact handbags that keep in balance with the lean, simplified silhouette and almost always come in soft, luxurious calfskin . . . see matching earrings, bracelets and necklaces by Coro in a gilded chain, linked together with gilded circles and altogether a striking masterpiece of intricate design . . . see the new stockings "filmed in color." The color you wear on your legs can be as effective as the color of any of your other accessories, so choose them carefully—and let Phoenix and Walker's hosiery experts help you with the hosiery color shades for your Lemon Ice costume.

All in all we're sure you'll be fashion-right and color-bright in Lemon Ice for summer!

WOMAN STARTS NEW LIFE
6 DRESS SIZES, 56 POUNDS SLIMMER

Mrs. Barbara Maddock (case history #42) is shown in the picture on the right, at the start of a new life. It is hard to believe that she was once the woman in the left hand photograph. Only similar facial features prove that this is true.

Several months ago, Barbara Maddock weighed 178 pounds, wore a size 44 dress. She felt she could never be normal and attractive again. She was self-conscious, unhappy, hated to leave the house. She was finally driven to seek my help because of severe headaches and backaches.

BEFORE: Barbara Maddock weighed 178 pounds, wore a size 44 dress.

One of my figure consultants guided her in a personalized, "tailored" reducing program. In three months, she slimmed down 56 pounds, 6 dress sizes. She lost 11 inches from her waist, 12 inches from her hips, and 18 inches from her thighs. These results were guaranteed her.

Now she says: "I feel young again, I wear smart clothes, have lots of friends, and go anywhere."

When a woman begins to look and feel better she takes greater pride in her clothes and appearance, takes on a certain grace and poise that immediately make her more popular, accepted. This can happen to you. You can look youthful, attractive . . . wear smart clothes . . . enjoy life. I will guarantee you the results Barbara Maddock achieved, no matter how difficult your problem. You'll start seeing these results within two weeks. Try it . . . phone one of my salons now.

—20 Years in Long Beach—

Until today you might as well have been putting your expensive creams on glass!

MAX FACTOR'S new discovery, the SECRET KEY, throws open the barrier in your skin that's been holding back your creams and lotions!

For several years, we at Max Factor have been searching for the answers to certain questions:

"Why do women with dry skin problems never seem to get the help they long for, even from the most expensive creams?"

"Why do so many women keep switching from one 'oily skin' treatment preparation to another?"

"Why do blackheads and blemishes still persist—even when a woman follows the strictest corrective beauty routine?"

A PERSONAL REPORT FROM MAX FACTOR on the Secret Key, the discovery that opens up a whole new approach to a naturally lovely skin.

We spent thousands of hours in the Max Factor Laboratories searching for the answers to these puzzling questions. This search uncovered a startling fact: there is a chemical barrier in the skin that keeps creams and lotions from getting in and going to work. This barrier develops because the skin does not have correct pH* balance (It is either too acid or too alkaline). No wonder women were creaming their skins faithfully night after night, peering into their mirrors hopefully day after day—and finding disappointment. For few women have that proper skin balance.

We unlock one of Nature's closely-guarded secrets! A way had to be discovered to break through this stubborn barrier, so that creams and lotions could bring relief to the parched or oil-clogged skin cells underneath. A way had to be found to return a woman's skin to its proper pH* balance. I can now reveal that our scientists have found a way to do this successfully—through the use of a remarkable liquid preparation we call the Secret Key.

The Secret Key returns the skin to the acidity-alkalinity balance characteristic of a young, healthy skin. It brings back a natural freshness and radiance that you cannot get from a surface cosmetic. And, by returning your skin to the correct acidity-alkalinity balance, Secret Key opens the way for treatment creams and lotions to do their beautifying work.

The discovery of the Secret Key, we realized, opened up completely new possibilities for a woman to bring out all the natural loveliness of her skin.

We proceeded to develop four new groups of corrective creams and lotions — treatments for the dry skin, the oily skin, the disturbed skin and the normal skin that could follow right behind the Secret Key and help the skin to help itself. We believe these products are the finest to come out of any laboratory.

Suddenly, you will begin to notice a real improvement! Laboratory tests have proved that the use of Secret Key before these new corrective creams and lotions made them completely effective, because there was no longer a barrier of abnormal chemical composition through which they had to fight. Secret Key then, was the key we had been searching for for years.

Today, I am happy to be able to place these new products in your hands—and to bring you the Secret Key that can open the way to the skin beauty you have longed for.

This is the Secret Key to a lovely skin

What is "Secret Key"? The Secret Key is a remarkable new liquid preparation that opens up your skin to accept needed correction from the outside. A skin that would not respond to treatment last week may suddenly begin to bloom when the Secret Key is used.

How does it work? By applying the Secret Key you actually return your skin to the acidity-alkalinity balance of young, healthy skin. This removes the natural barrier that has been keeping creams and lotions from their beneficial work.

6-oz. bottle of Secret Key
$1.50 plus tax

How is it used?

To restore the natural radiance to your skin, Secret Key may be used alone after cleansing.

To correct a dry skin, use Secret Key with its related dry skin creams: Double-Depth Cleansing Cream, Enriched Hormone Cream, Active Moisturizer (a new-type moisturizer that remains active all day under make-up.)

To correct an oily skin, use Secret Key with its related oily skin creams: Gentle Foam Cleanser, Facial Pack, Vita-Night Cream (uses Vitamins A and D to absorb and gradually correct excess oiliness).

To correct a disturbed skin, use Secret Key with its related formulations for disturbed skin: Gentle Foam Cleanser and Clear-Up (skin-tinted antiseptic lotion that conceals and helps correct unsightly blemishes.)

To soften and smooth a normal skin, use Secret Key with its related skin creams: Double-Depth Cleansing Cream and Velvety Night Cream.

Emotions Affect Good Health

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

A letter from a reader asks "Will you please write something about anxiety and family conflicts affecting the glands and blood pressure? Perhaps a lot of people would be in better health if they understood this and would be nicer persons to live with."

It is a well known fact today that our emotions can change the chemistry of our bodies, can affect every organ we have, and cause a whole flock of miserable physical symptoms when there is actually nothing wrong organically.

People just do not yet believe what tremendous repercussions our moods and thoughts have on our physical vitality and appearance! They read about it and accept it to a degree. But they do not truly believe it or they could not do what they do to themselves, unless they wish to commit suicide.

They go right ahead all tensed up, bickering with their family and friends, defending their little rights, hurrying and worrying, in short, wasting their time and causing ill will.

Gumline cavaties have been correlated with times of strain and it is possible to break out in a rash because of worry. Just the nervousness many persons feel when going to a doctor can raise blood pressure. We can damage our health or shorten the youthful portion of life by tense and dreary attitudes.

When I think of the dinner hour when the family gathers about the family board it is a wonder to me that there are not many more people with indigestion and ulcers than there are.

This should be a time of charm, with exchanges concerning the day's experiences. It should be a time for laughter, for relaxation, rather than a battleground on which family problems are fought out. This latter will happen even in the happiest homes unless you make a few rules and abide by them.

At the evening meal never discuss problems or anything that will create tension. Set aside a problem hour twice a week and talk difficulties all over then. Usually you can do this. Of course, sometimes there is a crucial decision which cannot wait, but more often you have just fallen into a habit of mulling problems over all of the time. Surely you can save just the dinner hour for shared laughter and fun.

It's tricky, I know, to avoid fireworks at the dinner table because this is one time when you are all together. But if you and your family will really make an effort to shelve controversial topics at this time you will see how delightful your family can be.

Anticipation Is Keynote of Successful Living

By ANGELO PATRI

Teachers report, and the mail confirms, that there is fear in the minds of our adolescent boys and girls that their lives are to be cut short by war so the thing to do is to enjoy whatever they desire while they can and never mind such things as lessons, preparation for the future that may never come.

That is an unhealthy and a constricting idea. A very wrong idea. The future is a sealed secret and if we believe what we say we do then this world of ours is not coming to an end. Life is going on and will continue to go on and we along with it and in it. Nobody, during the known history of this world, ever yet owned it and used it as his garden though many have tried. "The earth is the Lord's," remember.

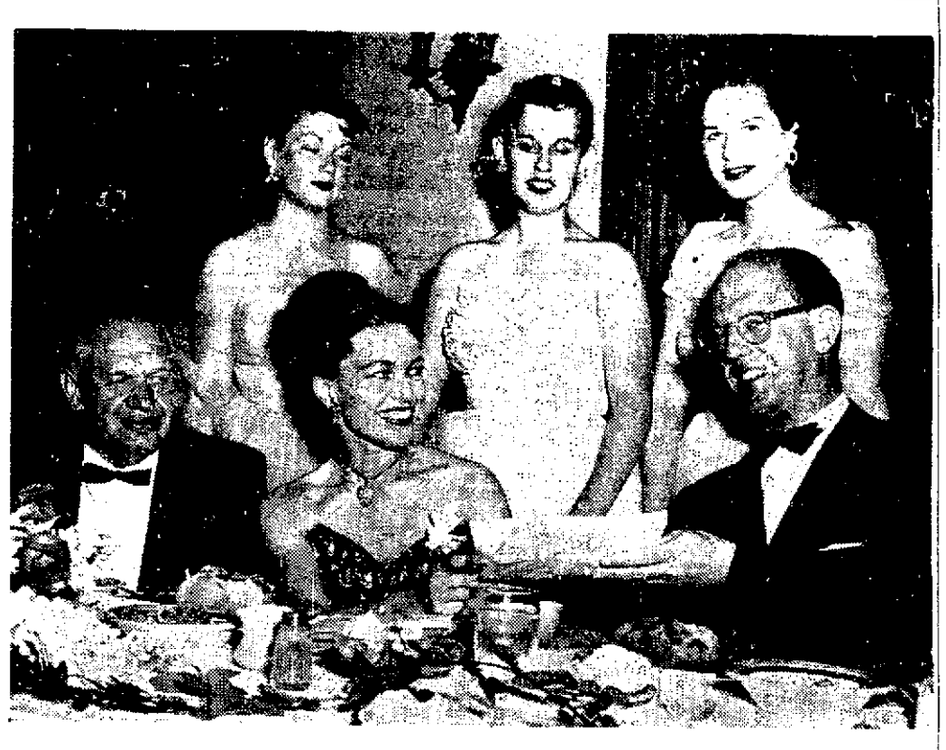

Suppose the worst comes to the worst and there is war. We have had wars before and many of us lived through them, even those who fought on the battlefields. Are we to be less courageous, less dedicated to our ideals? Impossible. We have a generation of youth that are more intelligent, more able, more stable and more dedicated to righteousness than any on earth. Who is afraid?

Experience teaches us that nothing is as bad as it looked at a distance. We all know that most of the things we worry about never do happen, but suppose the worst does happen? Wouldn't it be better to be in good shape to meet it rather than be in a confused and weakened state? Truly.

Then, my boy, and my girl, consider. What will give you the most strength, physical and spiritual power? A healthy body and a steady mind; a sure faith in oneself, one's country. That faith is essential to the whole matter. When doubt and fear and despair fill the mind the body fails. There is no altruism in life where that sort of thinking can be helpful.

Then isn't the best thing to do to build strength and courage and power to believe you can do it and act on that belief? Wouldn't staying in school to learn as much as possible and acquire as much skill as possible be sensible? Wouldn't trying to make each day a high day in achievements of one kind or another be more effective toward happiness than letting go and dropping below your own standard of a good life?

Let's not take the easy way of letting down. That way is the coward's way. Let's keep on the job trying to make it better every day and let's keep faith with those who died to give us the wonderful land we live in.

This Play Asks Major Suit

NORTH'S response of two clubs in today's hand was part of the Stayman Convention. Such a response does not necessarily show a real club suit but asks the opening bidder to show a major suit if he happens to have one.

South obediently bid two hearts. This not only showed a four-card (or better) holding in hearts but also denied a four-card spade holding. With four cards in both of the majors, South would have shown his spades first; and South's failure to bid the spades indicated that he didn't have as many as four cards in the suit.

North immediately realized that game in spades was out of the question. He therefore went at once to game in no-trump.

West's rather normal opening lead of a low diamond gave declarer a free finesse at once. South didn't know exactly where his nine tricks were coming from, but he led the jack of spades and hoped for the best.

West covered with the queen of spades, and dummy won with the king. Declarer now led a heart from dummy and put up the king from his hand. When the jack of hearts dropped, South led a low heart to dummy's nine.

East refused the second heart trick, so South got to his hand with the king of diamonds and led the queen of hearts. West had already parted with a diamond and now discarded a low club. Dummy released a club, and East took his ace of hearts.

East returned a spade, and South took the ace. Declarer now led the ten of hearts, and West felt the pinch in three suits! West unwisely decided to discard the ten of clubs, and now declarer made the rest of the tricks. A small club to the ace picked up West's king, and declarer had a finesse through the jack of clubs, making four club tricks!

Wants to Break Engagement

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am a foreigner. I am 25 years old, single, and have been in this country for almost two years.

This is my problem. I left my sweetheart in my country to seek my fortune here in the United States. Before I left we had a sacred vow to be engaged to each other. I promised to return after three years and we would be married.

We have been exchanging letters two times a week until four days ago when I received a letter from her which is a very sudden and great disappointment to me. She was requesting me to set her free because of the following rasons: (1) She is very sick, having heart trouble as well as a peptic ulcer. (2) She doesn't want me to suffer by marrying her and having to take care of her if she becomes seriously ill. (3) Her doctor has told her she must stop worrying all the time, and she can only obey this order if she is freed from our engagement and can have peace of mind.

She promises though that she will stay single until my return in one year's time, and if I am still willing to marry her she will consent then.

You can see how badly I feel, and how torn I am. Won't you please advise me?—ALMOST BROKEN HEARTED.

DEAR ALMOST:

I think you should feel very proud that your girl friend is so honest with you—and so considerate. I think, too, that you ought to write to her and tell her that you have no wish to break off the engagement, but, that if her doctor feels you ought to, you will. But, you can tell her you want to hear this from him. You can ask her for the doctor's address, as you most assuredly want to check with him about her health, don't you?

Since she says she will stay single until you come back, and that she will marry you then if you want her too, I can't really see that the engagement is broken, can you?—M. M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I would appreciate your kind readers sending my mother cards. She has just turned eighty. For the past three years she has been a shut-in, sitting in a chair with her leg up. She has lost two toes from gangrene caused by diabetes. The doctors say it is a miracle she has survived.

She is lonesome and loves to receive cards. She is Mrs. S. Bannister, 2504 Alma St., San Pedro, Calif.—DAUGHTER.

Alonzo Baker to Analyze GOP Prospects for Council

At 1 p. m. Dr. Alonzo Baker, professor of political science and international relations at College of the Pacific, Stockton, will speak on "Republican Prospects for 1956." Dr. Baker is a member of the California Republican State Central Committee and is a frequent visitor to Washington, D. C. Next month he leaves for the Orient and Middle East to study the impact of America's foreign policy from Tokyo to Istanbul.

Remember Special Dates With Cards

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case O-330: Ruth G., 64, is a widow with eight grown children. "Cora, when you don't have anything else to do, please drop me a line," she recently wrote to my wife, who is her niece. I certainly like to get mail. It makes me feel blue and lonely whenever I see the mail carrier go past the house without leaving something for me. Besides, I think I feel more alone because I used to have the house full of children."

The motto of the Boy Scouts is to do one good turn every day. Most of us are far too negligent as regards sending a postcard or letter or appropriate greeting to our relatives and friends.

"What can I do to help my church?" is often the eager query of new members who are imbued with great zeal to make this ... a better place. Well, you can always begin in your own home or even your single rented room if you are a young person living in a dormitory or boarding house.

First of all, tack a calendar on the wall above your writing desk. Then go through it and mark the dates of all birthdays, anniversaries and other occasions on which you should remember your relatives and friends. Second, lay in a supply of 2c postal cards or 3c stamps. Or, if you see some unusually clever greeting cards, don't buy just one. Get a dozen or more so you will have a reserve supply on your desk. Then resolutely watch your calendar and send off the cards or greetings, with a scribbled note attached.

Sunshine Circle

Dr. Margaret Clark Sunshine Circle will meet Tuesday noon for a coffee hour and business meeting in Colonial Hall. New officers will be installed. Cards will conclude the day's activities.

Cake Topping

A sumptuous frosting for a just-out-of-the-oven cake—that's what folks love. And it's a praline topping made this way: Mix together ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar, two tablespoons cake flour, ¼ cup melted butter, two tablespoons water and ½ cup finely chopped nuts. Spread carefully, a little at a time, over your cake. Return to the oven of your range and bake five minutes more.

SUDDENLY WE OWNED AN IMPERIAL!

We never expected to change. The new car we had planned to buy was to be the same kind; it was almost traditional

Then, before we knew it, we were driving a new Imperial. It happened like this.

Some friends had just bought one and were so enthusiastic that one evening we decided to have a look ourselves.

Did I say we took a look? The whole town did! We drove out to my brother's home and back. When we stopped for a light, we could see faces turning our way. They couldn't help it. And we could see and hear their excited comments.

The same thing happened every time we passed another car. It was fun, and flattering, because I had nearly forgotten the sensation.

So we decided . . . and later that evening we were sure our decision was right when the youngsters came racing down the lawn. Their approval was as sincere as it was instantaneous. "Gee, Dad's got a new Imperial. What a car!"

And their enthusiasm is being reflected everywhere we go. The country club . . . shopping . . . driving to the office.

It's catching, too. Even our "Chairman of the Board" has a gleam in her eye. "What if our Imperial did cost more than most other cars," she says. "It's worth it."

Wayne Stewart Reveals Old Griddle Cake Recipe

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

He is the strong, silent type—a great corner cutter who doesn't spend life putting in comas and semicolons—is a terrific organizer, modest, and with kindliness and generosity very much in evidence. Chef of the Week Wayne Stewart is a natural for president and general manager of the Community Chest.

Stewart has had two distinct lives — one in these United States—another on the Island of Hawaii.

Born in Indian Territory, Stewart's parents homesteaded on the Cherokee strip in Oklahoma. All the adventures of life among the pioneers were his, until the advent of World War I. Then the scene changed to France, where he spent 18 months with a corps of engineers.

At the close of the war, Seattle, Wash., became his home port, and he was head of the Automobile Club for a period of nine years; but in 1927 the islands beckoned him. Once there, he organized and managed the Royal Hawaiian Transport Co. with offices in the then newly built Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

Civicly he was busy, too, as proxy of the Rotary Club, head of the Community Chest, and the guiding light of the YMCA for three consecutive years. He also helped organize, and became the 1st District Governor of Rotary's District 100. He has been a Rotarian for 28 years.

After 15 "enchanted" years on the Islands, he returned to Long Beach in 1941 to become manager of the old Lang Bus Co. He stayed with that company until 1948, when he took his present position with the Community Chest.

Stewart is an excellent shot! He shoots in the low 70s on the golf course, and has bagged many a deer on the Island of Molokai. Keen at any kind of competitive sport, he's a worthy foe at a game of crib-bage.

When it comes to cooking, he is completely immune to dirty dishes. After his creation has been prepared, he partakes of it with gusto and then retreats in the direction of a comfort-able chair.

Today he's taking us way back to the Indian Territory days and is preparing his Great Grandmother's Griddle Cakes. He recommends a soapstone griddle, uses no grease and guarantees no smoke.

GREAT GRANDMOTHER'S GRIDDLE CAKES

Next morning add the beaten yolks of 2 eggs
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking soda dissolved in
1 tbl. hot water and
1 tbl. maple syrup

Lastly add the stiffy beaten whites of 2 eggs. Bake on hot soapstone griddle. Do not grease griddle.

Child Care

Atmosphere at Mealtime Is Important

By MILTON I. LEVINE, M. D.
and
JEAN H. SEGILMANN

Q.—My little girl, who is 3½ years old, has no appetite whatsoever. I've tried bribing her, but nothing helps. The doctor says that she's perfectly healthy and not to worry. But I worry anyhow.—Mrs. J. T.

A.—One fact may be of great consolation to you and to the thousands of other parents whose children are so-called "feeding problems." No child of this age ever starved himself to death. Many children have picky appetites and their own ideas of how much and what to eat. Parents naturally worry when they see their youngsters picking at a little food, and never eating a complete meal.

The best way to handle a "feeding problem" is first to try to relieve yourself of your anxieties about it. Your concern and worry every time your youngster sits down to eat, and the anxious expression on your face, are sure to have an effect on her. Do not bribe her or try to force her to eat. This makes mealtime a tense affair, whereas it should be pleasant and relaxed. Do not discuss food or eating at all. There are far more interesting topics of conversation.

Children, unlike adults, do not seem to need variety in their foods. If your little girl likes any particular food, it is perfectly all right to keep on giving it to her day after day.

At first, place only very tiny portions of food in front of her. Sometimes children are overwhelmed by seeing too much on their plates and cannot eat at all. If she finishes everything, then gradually increase the amounts. Don't leave the food in front of her any longer than thirty or forty minutes. At this time, just calmly take it away, saying "I guess you've eaten all you can."

The important thing is to make mealtime pleasant and serene even if your daughter eats only a few spoonfuls. In this kind of atmosphere she ought to start eating again soon.

U. N. POLLS NATIONS

Reform of Calendar Target Set for '61

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—World calendar reformers have scrapped their old target date of Jan. 1, 1956. They now hope, with United Nations help, to change the civil calendar once and for all on Jan. 1, 1961.

Elizabeth Achelis, president of the World Calendar Assn., Inc., says that's the next New Year's Day after 1956 on which the proposed world calendar will coincide with the Gregorian calendar, which has been in general use for the past 373 years.

The world can't shift from the one to the other sooner, she says, because at least two years' preparation will be needed beforehand. She's sure the change, eventually, will be made.

"It's coming — definitely coming," she declares.

A lot depends on the U. N. Economic and Social Council. It will debate world calendar reform in a session here starting Monday and decide whether to inaugurate it, consider it further or drop it.

ELIZABETH ACHELIS . . . "It's Definitely Coming"

At the 18-nation council's request, Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold has asked 84 governments, in and out of the U.N., what they think about the idea.

Only Thailand so far has said it favors changing the calendar. Sixteen countries, including the United States, say they are against it. Nine put themselves down as undecided. The rest have yet to reply.

The association has headquarters in New York City. It claims 55,000 members and has 39 national affiliates.

It holds the calendar introduced by Pope Gregory XIII is faulty because quarter and half years are unequal and each year starts a day or two later in the week than the last.

It would substitute the so-called world calendar.

This would put one month of 31 days and two months of 30 days each in every quarter, equalizing both the quarters and halves.

It would stick a blank day, not part of any week, at the end of every year, a holiday called "Worldsday," and another blank day midway of every leap year, a holiday called "Leapyear Day."

This would make the calendar perpetual. New Year's Day would always come on Sunday, Christmas always on Monday.

India argues that the present calendar is inexact and makes it (1) impossible to arrive at exact quarterly and semi-annual statistical comparisons and (2) necessary for authorities to fix court and legislative sessions, and so on, anew each year.

The United States, Great Britain, Burma and others object to the blank days. These would break up the cycle of sabbaths every seventh day. Israel says this "would bring confusion into the religious and social life of Jews all over the world." Pakistan says "the dislocation of Fridays would be unacceptable to Moslems."

Australia and the Philippines call the present calendar satisfactory. Portugal, Norway, Sweden and Finland say a change would be inconvenient or untimely. France sees no "wide support from public opinion."

Yugoslavia asks continued U. N. study. Canada says reform might prove useful. Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Iceland, Monaco and Paraguay want to know how the Vatican stands.

The U. N. has asked the Vatican, but has no answer yet. In 1912, the papal secretary of state told the international chamber of commerce the Holy See would not oppose calendar reform if fixing feasts was left to the church. Last June 28, the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano reaffirmed this view.

Miss Achelis is encouraged by such things. She is not discouraged by the adverse replies of governments. The returns, she points out, aren't all in yet.

400 Dogs of Beagleville Help Radio-Activity Test

By HOWARD S. BENEDICT

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—In a unique village on the University of Utah campus more than 400 dogs are helping humans find out what radio-active elements are potentially harmful.

They are beagles and their village, naturally, is called Beagleville.

The dogs, Dr. Robert Bay, and seven technicians are under an Atomic Energy Commission contract—the only one of its type in the country. The experiments are important because of the great number of people who might be exposed to radioactivity at various AEC installations.

They might take on even greater importance some day if this country ever found itself a target in a shooting war.

Beagleville was founded in 1950 because the results of radioactive experiments with mice and rats could not be related accurately to humans. What was needed was a larger animal that lived longer. The beagle was selected because of its easy disposition, its short hair, its ideal size for lab work and because it is one of the oldest pure breeds in the United States—giving better control of experiments.

The AEC invested an initial half million dollars in the lab and has spent about $200,000 a year since.

The beagles are injected with graduated doses of radium, mesothorium, plutonium and radiothorium—all highly radioactive—and then observed closely.

The four substances used at Beagleville lodge in the bones and attack cells with damagaing alpha particles. Some of the particles go after the bone marrow, which manufactures blood cells; others attack the membrane covering the bones and others the bone cells. If the marrow is damaged, it shows in the blood count.

Dr. Bay, a veterinarian, explains that a change in the blood count is the most reliable indicator of the effect of radioactivity.

After five years of experimenting, Dr. Bay and his assistants are able to predict how much radioactive material will be discharged by the dog at a given time, when tumors will develop, and the long range toxic effects of certain types of radioactivity.

The 400 dogs get better care than many children. Their diets are regulated from a well-equipped kitchen. Their kennels have long outside runways with radiant heat for melting snow. They are bathed regularly. Their kennels are disinfected three times a day.

They are treated with antibiotics whenever infection threatens.

Personal holidays

Each member of this Virginia family enjoys his own

by EVELYN HUFFMAN VIEHMAN

ARLINGTON, VA.

Veterans' organizations may observe Poppy Day, but our family has a special holiday we call "Be-Kind-to-the-Poppy" Day. We also celebrate "Be-Kind-to-the-Mommy" and "Be-Kind-to-the-Michael" Days. (Poppy—my husband Bob—is a salesman; Michael, 11, is our son; our daughters, Jan, 2, and Lisa, 8 months old, are such babies we consider every day "their day.")

All of us in these busy, complicated times occasionally reach a point where we feel we've "had it." We've called on too many clients, changed too many diapers or attended too many classes. In our house, when Bob feels thus depleted, he has only to say the magic phrase, "This is Be-Kind-to-the-Poppy Day." From then on, he's freed of all his regular responsibilities and may "goof off" to his heart's content. He doesn't have to answer the telephone or even get out of his pajamas if he doesn't feel like it. Ditto for Mike and me on our "days."

Each of us has a favorite way of spending his home holiday. Bob usually starts off by taking a stack of reading into the bathroom and relaxing in a warm tub for three or four hours to "unwind." Then he may watch his favorite TV sports program or just putter around the house, while Mike and I divide up his usual domestic chores.

Mike likes poring over comic books, working out moves on his chess board or playing favorite pieces—instead of scales and exercises—on the piano. He particularly enjoys providing the accompaniment for a family song fest, so on his "days" Bob and I try to arrange a time when we can join in, no matter how little we may feel like vocalizing.

I spend about half my "day" in bed, catching up on back issues of favorite magazines that have been lying temptingly on the coffee table for weeks. Later I may cut my hair in a new style I've been longing to try, or even give myself a manicure. I don't go near the kitchen!

As you can see, nothing very spectacular happens on our one-day holidays. But what we actually do isn't half so important as the fact that we're doing exactly what we want, in a leisurely way, with no outside pressure.

Our "days" have done more than just provide us with a chance for relaxation when we need it most. They have strengthened a feeling of family togetherness by giving us a fuller understanding of our individual problems and a wonderful opportunity to do something for one another. I am convinced that if everyone took these one-day vacations from all responsibility, half the hospital beds in the country would not be filled with mental patients. ■

THE COVER

• Today's striking portrait of Sir Anthony and Lady Eden is a bit of a feather in PARADE's cap—for Britain's new Prime Minister has been photographed rarely in color, and his wife even less. Months ago, PARADE managed to get photographer Dave Preston cleared to visit 1 Carlton Gardens, London residence of British Foreign Secretaries. So busy was the then Mr. Eden that Preston got exactly 12 minutes to pose, light and snap the couple. He succeeded brilliantly—and the result, held in readiness until now, makes a noteworthy starting point for the intimate family story of the Edens on page 6.

BODY BY FISHER

And that means by the world's best known builder of automobile bodies! The fine craftsmanship of Body by Fisher is found in many of America's costliest and most luxurious cars. And you get it only in Chevrolet in the low-price field.

DOUBLE-ARCH COWL CONSTRUCTION

The ventilation system air chamber is actually a double arch of steel that is an integral part of the body. This sturdy structure acts as a girder, adding the strength of an extra cross-member to the frame. It contributes to Chevrolet's solid feel on the road.

12-VOLT ELECTRICAL SYSTEM

Delivers twice the punch of electrical systems in other low-priced cars! This means quicker starting in all weather, with up to 30 per cent faster cranking speed, better ignition for finer performance, and a greater reserve of electrical power.

ANTI-DIVE BRAKING

Chevrolet's the only car in the industry that stops with its head up! Anti-Dive braking control is an exclusive Chevrolet development that greatly reduces the tendency to nose down under sudden stops. You stop on the level—without lurching!

OUTRIGGER REAR SPRINGS

They're spaced wide apart, like outriggers on a canoe, to give you sure-footed stability on curves. The new Chevrolet corners like a sports car! And the rear springs are longer and wider to smother bumps and soak up road shocks.

BALL-RACE STEERING

Special ball bearings in the steering system roll with the turn of the wheel to reduce friction. Nothing makes steering and parking easier except Power Steering itself. And only Chevrolet and higher priced cars give you ball-race steering.

SIX ENGINE-DRIVE CHOICES

New "Turbo-Fire V8"—the hottest, shortest-stroke V8 in the industry. Two new "Blue-Flame" 6's—most powerful in the low-price field. New Synchro-Mesh transmission, or as extra-cost options, new Overdrive or improved Powerglide.

HIGH-LEVEL VENTILATION

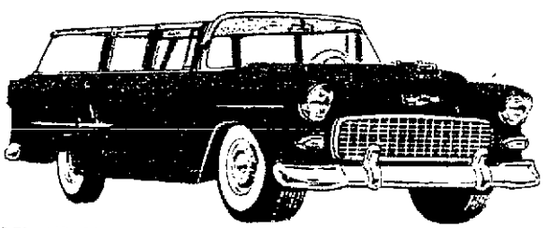

Takes in air at hood-high level, away from road heat, fumes and dust. A special air chamber beneath the ventilation louvers prevents rain from entering the car and supplies a more even flow of air. You enjoy the best of ventilation.

Money can't buy these Chevrolet features in other low-priced cars!

That's why Chevrolet's stealing

the thunder from the high-priced cars!

BLACK & WHITE

It Tells a New Summer Fashion Story

Ask a man what color he likes on a woman, and he'll usually say blue or pink. He thinks they're romantic. But he'll be surprised—and delighted—at how fresh and charming the new black-and-white cottons will look this summer. On warm days, a white dress seems wiltless; printed with black, it looks even whiter.

The black-on-white prints most favored in the new collections are polka dots in all sizes, paintbrush daubs, stripes, zigzags, Greek-key motifs. And there are touches of black velvet and black patent leather everywhere. Many designers frost cottons with ruchings and pleatings.

Black and white lends itself to bright color accents in jewelry, hat or shoes. With fair or suntanned skins, it's summer's prettiest coloring scheme.

Above is one of the most feminine of the new cottons—clear fresh white printed with tiny bubbling dots. The curvy top is crisped with a fine band of pleating and black piping. The skirt is full and borne along on its own petticoat. For extra shine—a black patent belt and little shoe buttons. From Parade Dress, around $23. ■

LADY EDEN looks proudly at her husband before they dined with the Queen the night Sir Winston announced his retirement.

Sir Anthony's Lady

In three short years, Clarissa Eden has gone from working girl to prime minister's wife

LONDON.

Several years ago, two house painters were hauled into court here, charged with having stolen $1,800 worth of jewelry from the apartment of Clarissa Churchill, niece of the great Sir Winston, then Great Britain's Prime Minister.

To the amused judge and press corps, the painters explained that the jewelry was in a margarine container, covered by a tomato box and stored under the kitchen sink. They thought it was junk and had given it away to various relatives. The case was dismissed.

Since then, as all the world knows, Sir Winston has stepped down from his high post, and his forgetful niece is now Lady Eden, wife of the new Prime Minister and hostess of 10 Downing St.

Little has been written about Lady Eden, but that "jewel theft" discloses an important side of her character. Clarissa, former working girl, writer, editor, who studied painting, philosophy and once delivered political speeches, is what might be described as an "arty" girl—in a nice way.

She loves to discuss politics or ballet, hates cooking. In 10 years as a career girl before marrying Sir Anthony in 1952, her five-room apartment contained no radio, television or phonograph. She preferred to read. Once, asked to serve as interior decorator for a 32-room mansion, she did all the rooms in "broken white"—white with varying gray touches.

To Lady Eden, an elegant, tall (5'7") ash blonde, who at 34 is 23 years younger than her husband, life has a definite structure. Books, the arts, politics, her devotion to Sir Anthony are important. Jewelry stored under the sink, domestic chores and acting the role of a demure, retiring wife are not important.

She's a Real Churchill

For, as her friends point out, Clarissa is "a Churchill through and through." She has a good deal of her uncle's wit and charm; she also has traces of his forcefulness, strong will and stubbornness. When Clarissa decides to do something, she does it.

Shortly after the Edens had moved into 1 Carlton Gardens, official London residence of British Foreign Secretaries, Clarissa ordered new curtains. The Ministry of Works, responsible for furnishings of government residences, had the curtains put up while the Edens were away. When they returned, Clarissa immediately sent for the official responsible. He had selected the wrong material, she said. It would have to be changed.

The official argued and argued, but to no avail. She was adamant. The curtains were changed the next day.

Clarissa is not without her little whims. Late last month, when the Edens moved into 10 Downing Street, a problem arose. Her bed has a huge canopy with drapings of Chinese brocade suspended from the ceiling. It was a tight squeeze in Carlton Gardens—and at No. 10, the ceilings are even lower.

There was another complication. Clarissa likes to lie with her feet lower than her head. So her bed is propped up at a 40-degree angle. That factor also caused the movers to sweat a little.

The Edens see little of each other during the day—which is why Lady Eden prefers to accompany her husband on diplomatic

A debutante's life was not for Clarissa—gay, young London blades simply bored her trips. Sir Anthony usually gets up at about 8, spends 45 minutes poring over the London Times at breakfast and then is off to work.

Lady Eden, on the other hand, rarely gets up before 11. After breakfasting either in bed or off a table in her room, she spends the rest of the morning with her secretary arranging appointments or answering correspondence.

Because of the pressure of time, Sir Anthony rarely lunches with his wife. Clarissa usually eats alone or with friends. Often it's the same with dinner, but when, once or twice a week, they do dine together, they adjourn to a lounge to read or discuss what each has been doing that day.

Clarissa, deeply interested in her husband's work, often shoots questions at him about domestic and international affairs, proffers advice here and there and lets him in on the political gossip she picks up.

Neither of the Edens retires early, though Sir Anthony occasionally slips on a dressing gown and lies across his bed for hours reading official reports brought to him in flame-colored boxes by official messengers.

Today, deeply aware of the role she has to assume in public life, Lady Eden is considered one of the most clever, interesting hostesses in London. Her luncheons and dinners have been a big success. At lunch, she likes to serve rice dishes and end the meal with coffee served in black cups—perhaps a carry-over from "bachelor girl" days when she held small parties which were attended mostly by artists and writers.

Although Clarissa is a Churchill, she was never a rich girl. She was born the third child of Maj. John Strange Spencer-Churchill, Sir Winston's brother, and Lady Gwendeline, beautiful daughter of the Earl of Abington. Major "Jack" stayed out of politics and, despite his heroism in the Boer War, he was tagged "the Churchill nobody knew." He died in 1947 leaving his daughter an annuity of only 200 pounds ($560). Educated in England and at a French finishing school, Clarissa was presented at court in 1938, where she was hailed as "the most beautiful debutante of the year."

But she refused to be bound by the customary round of parties and dances which kill time in a deb's life. Men-about-town bored her. So she continued her education at Oxford and the University of London.

When the war broke, Clarissa went to work in the Foreign Office—close to her future husband's office—decoding telegrams. Transferred to the Ministry of Information, she wrote propaganda for British publications which appeared in Russia. After the war, she wrote and edited magazine articles on books, ballet, art and travel.

Sir Anthony's romantic interest in her took London by surprise. No one had thought that "Britain's most eligible bachelor," who had been divorced in 1950, carried on more than a casual friendship with Clarissa.

Her "Fishbowl" Life

Their wedding, Aug. 14, 1952, was Clarissa Churchill Eden's first initiation into her future "fishbowl" life. Mounted police had to hold back the crowds that turned out to cheer the couple.

As wife of the Foreign Secretary, entertainment, social duties, appearances made her life hectic. Last year, doctors ordered her to a hospital for a month because of her "run-down" condition.

But if the past two and a half years have been strenous, Lady Eden cannot relax now. No. 10 Downing St. is even more demanding than Carlton Gardens. ■

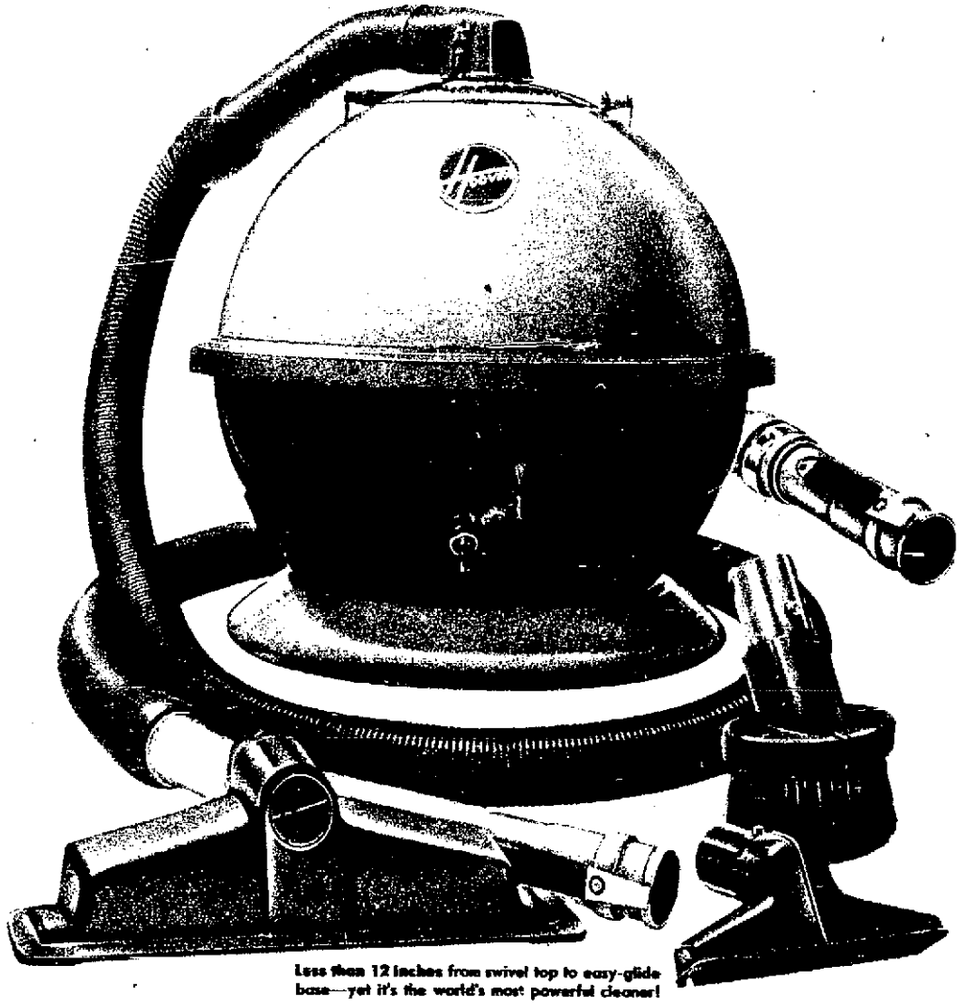

NEWLYWED EDENS: Because of his divorce they were married in registrar's office, not church.

Why don't Athletes

They could—if they trained more carefully and ate less. So says a unique research

ROGER BANNISTER RAN the mile in 3 minutes 58.8 seconds to beat John Landy at Vancouver last August. He might have run it in 3:50 flat.

Bob Feller has thrown a baseball at a speed of 98.6 miles an hour. He might have thrown it 100 mph.

Ford Konno of Ohio State swam 220 meters in 2 minutes 3.9 seconds. He might have done it in 2:00.0.

Sam Snead beat Ben Hogan 70-71 to win the 18-hole play-off of the 1954 Masters Tournament at Augusta, Ga. Both might have beaten the par of 72 by wider margins, scoring perhaps in the mid-60s.

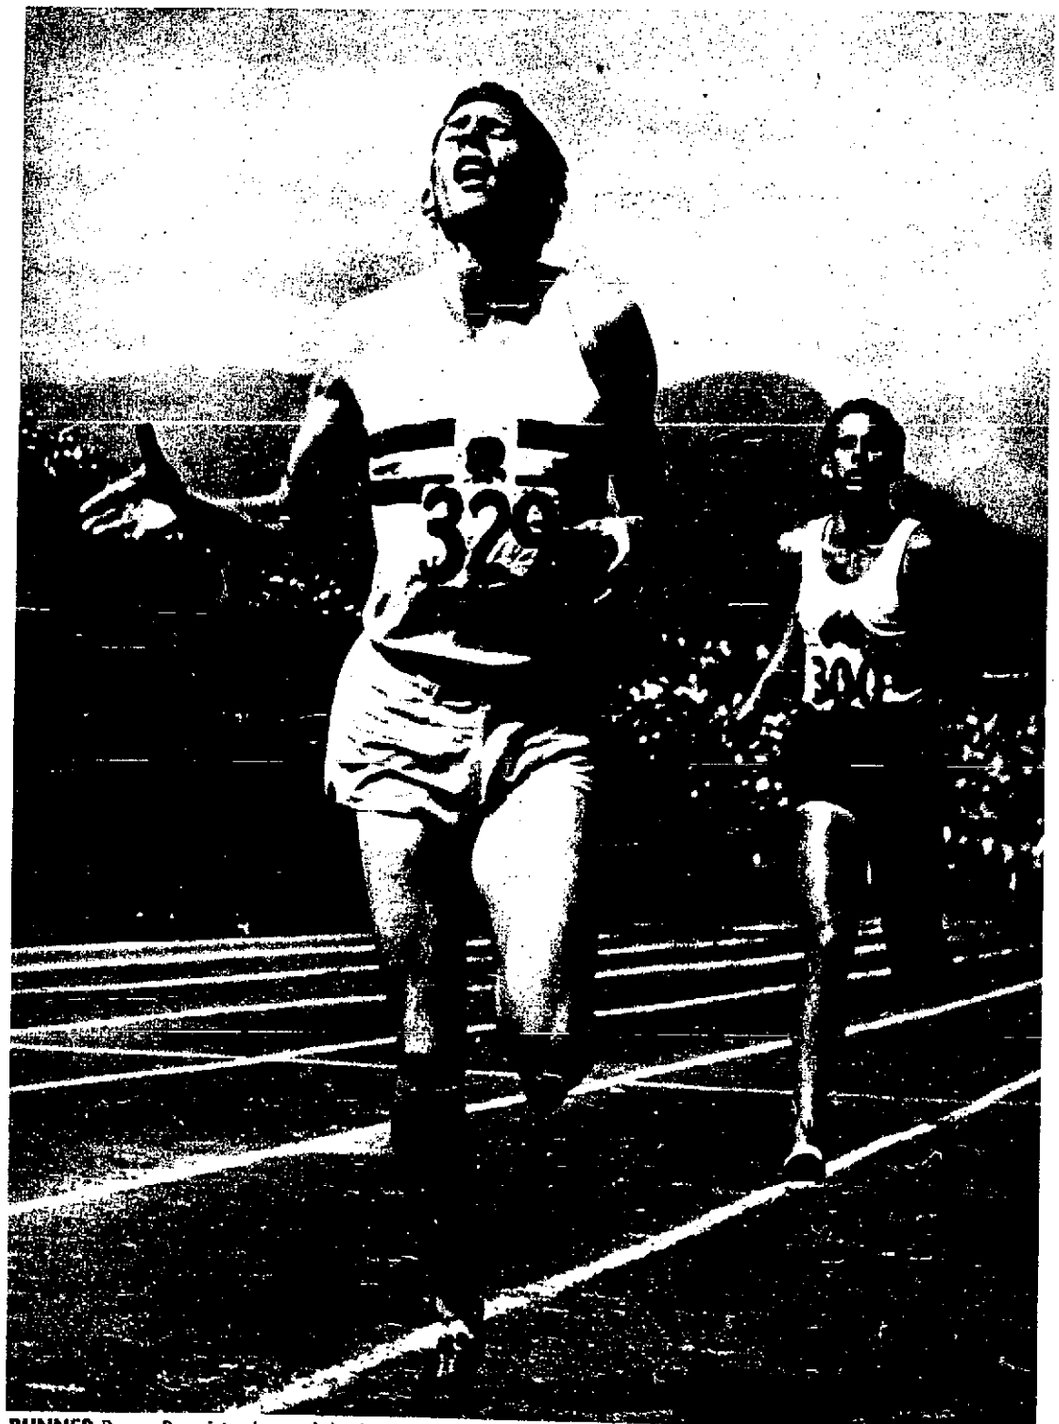

Sound impossible? Not according to a unique study of athletes now being made by a Canadian research organization called Sports College. Located in Toronto, Sports College is a nonprofit service founded in 1944 through the YMCA and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to help raise sport and physical fitness standards. It has spent nine years testing 2,700 athletes of all kinds, analyzing player performances and calculating how they could be improved.

Some of its findings are about to be released to its more than 700,000 members (including American coaches and trainers). Some striking examples:

- Practically all performances in all sports could be improved about 25 per cent with better training.
- Not a single one of the 2,700 athletes tested topped 65 per cent of his possible peak performance, as calculated by the testing experts.
- Only 12 per cent of those tested had better than 75 per cent of the physical development considered necessary for first-rate competition.
- Not a single sport, according to observers at actual games and sports events, is being played at the pace it could be played safely, with present rules.

Which is the toughest sport? To find out, Sports College staff experts first drew up a list of 17 basic attributes—including strength, agility, reaction time, coordination, speed and endurance—that all athletes have to one degree or another. Then, giving gradings of from 1 to 10 for each, they asked coaches and trainers in each sport to rate the degree to which each attribute is needed to play well in that sport as it now is played. A perfect score would be 170. The average of the experts' opinions came out like this:

Football	135 points	Track (middle distance)	104 points
Decathlon	128 points	Track (long distance)	100 points
Basketball	125 points	Swimming (sprints)	100 points
Hockey	122 points	Shot-put	99 points
Tennis	118 points	Swimming (long distance)	90 points
Pole vault	113 points	High jump	90 points
Baseball	112 points	Bowling	60-70 points
Track (sprints)	95 points
Golf	95 points
Swimming (middle distance)	94 points

RUNNER Roger Bannister beats John Landy in "mile of the century" at Vancouver last summer. His time—3:58.8—was a shade slower than Landy's world-record 3:58. Sports College says it could have been 3:50.

do BETTER?

group after exhaustive tests which also can help you

BASEBALL PLAYER Willie Mays of the Giants (shown sliding for home) wins Sports College rating of near-perfect as an all-round athlete. But it says he could be even stronger, needs muscle-building.

Sports calling for the most endurance: swimming 440 yards and running an all-out mile. Job calling for the quickest reflexes: goalie in hockey. "Baseball," points out Sports College director Lloyd Percival, "is a picnic compared to football in its demands on the player. Except for the pitcher and catcher, everybody gets plenty of rest."

Having found what the sports demanded of players, Sports College set out to measure the players themselves. Choosing 12 of the most important attributes, the experts put successful athletes in each sport through stiff grinds—including obstacle courses, weight-lifting, bar jumps, tumbling, broad jumps, sprints, arm-leg rhythm, etc.—then graded performances from 1 to 10 and totted up the averages.

They discovered that, although an ideal all-around athlete would have a theoretical rating of 120, actual athletes fell far below in the tests. Football players averaged 83; basketball players, 76; hockey players, 72; baseball and tennis players, 71. But pole vaulters topped everyone, with an average rating of 88.

Most of the athletes tested were surprisingly low in strength, considered one of the basic requisites for endurance and good play. Only one in 17 could do 25 two-hand push-ups without difficulty. Only one in 74 could do a one-arm push-up. Only one in 82 could do a one-arm pull-up on a bar.

Speed, another prime requisite of good play, was also conspicuous by its absence. Except for sprinters, middle-distance runners and basketball players, no athlete rated higher than 6 points out of 10.

After testing individual athletes, Sports College observers set out with stopwatches to clock the speeds needed for throws and runs in actual play. They learned plenty. For example, the average time a baseball player takes to run from first to second base (with a 5-foot lead) is 4 seconds. But the average time for a ball to move from pitcher to catcher and back to second (including the pitcher's wind-up) is only 3.5 seconds. So the average player, trying to steal second, is an almost sure out—unlike the great Ty Cobb, who could run it in 3 seconds flat.

Sports College claims that any baseball player can improve his speed—especially his starting speed—by .3 to .4 seconds if he practices the fundamental mechanics of running known to any track sprinter. In base running this would make a difference of 4 to 12 feet. In the field, it would mean more caught balls: a speed-up of only .1 second over 25 yards would mean an increase of 3 feet in fielding coverage.

Coaches in general scoff, "Why should I train a player to run a mile when I know he'll never have to?" Sports College has some surprises for the coaches. Clocked in actual games (with charts of playing areas marked off into squares), basketball players, in an average, wide-open game, travel about 3¾ miles, at an average speed of 10½ mph. Tennis players, in an average five-set match, move about 1¼ miles at an average speed of 12 mph. Football players (backfield) travel about 1½ miles, sometimes close to 15 mph. In a typical National Hockey League game, a hard-working player may travel 3 miles, at 9 mph. (The fastest hockey speed recorded was 26.9 mph.)

Training for greater strength would vastly improve baseball. Tests showed that exercises to develop greater strength in the wrist flexors (front of wrist just below the heel of the hand) increased the throwing speed of 19 players tested by 4.9 mph on throws of 100 feet. One player increased his throw by 9.2 mph by exercising with 5-lb. disks. Swimmers can develop powerful pectoral muscles by lying on their backs, exercising with bar bells.

Virtually all athletes were found overweight for top efficiency. "Baseball players as a class," says Percival, "eat far too much." They averaged 14 lbs. of excess fat. Other averages: swimmers, 12 lbs.; tennis players, 9 lbs.; football players, 8 lbs. Yet 10 lbs. of excess weight can slow reaction time by at least half a second.

Weight, of course, represents calories. Here are the average calories used per hour of play in various sports:

Running (all-out)	3200	Fencing	650
Running (11 mph)	1300	Skiing	600
Swimming	1800-1900	Skating (9 mph)	500
Football	1200	Baseball (pitching)	400
Tennis		Golf	375
(singles)	1200-1400	Table tennis	360
Tennis		Bowling	350
(doubles)	800-900	Horseshoes	240
Hockey	600-700	Billiards	230

By comparison, home exercising consumes 175 calories per hour; brisk walking, 350; dancing (mambo), 350. The housewife on a tough day (scrubbing floors or washing by hand) consumes 4000-4500 calories. Even on an average work day, she consumes about 800-900.

Training for endurance (by building up muscular strength and learning to relax and breathe properly) would improve all performances. It was estimated that the average basketball player loses 4 to 5 inches of height in his jumping ability during a game through muscle fatigue. The average football player, tested in mid-season, could not run 100 yards without fatigue, with a consequent loss of reaction time, power, agility, mobility and strength. One result: frequent fumbles after long runs.

Sports College evaluations of player possibilities have been uncannily accurate. Director Percival predicted in the Toronto Star that Bannister would beat Landy last summer; and stated the whole procedure of the race. He said Bannister had greater strength and will power, though Landy excelled him in tests for flexibility and heart-wind endurance. Percival still claims that Bannister could have run the mile in 3.50 if he had improved his flexibility and thus run more smoothly. Sports College also predicted that Detroit Red Wings hockey star Gordie Howe would become top scorer in his league. (He did.) The prediction was based largely on watching him skate circles and figure-eights in both directions. Most hockey players "favor" play either to the right or left. Howe plays both.

Sports College doesn't like to make predictions at random. But it has certain convictions. Basketball coaches, it feels, will have an increasingly hard time as their players get taller. Height is an asset up to a point, but usually at the sacrifice of agility and mobility. The court "giraffes" already are showing signs of needing limbering up.

Great athletes, Sports College claims, are those who use to the full the strength, speed and endurance that nature has given them. Super-athletes are those who develop what they have to higher levels.

Not all the troubles with athletes are physical. Sports College is still trying to assay the importance of the imponderables—the emotional and psychological factors. Not until these are fully understood will true super-athletes be possible. But, on what it has learned so far, Sports College thinks it can even do something about that.

How Is Your Game?

Like any athlete, claims Sports College, you can improve in whatever game you play. The secret: systematic training that goes beyond the normal demands of the game. Actual tests with 11 golfers who trained six weeks for greater strength, flexibility and relaxation while playing showed an average improvement of 6.7 strokes per game—with no other instruction.

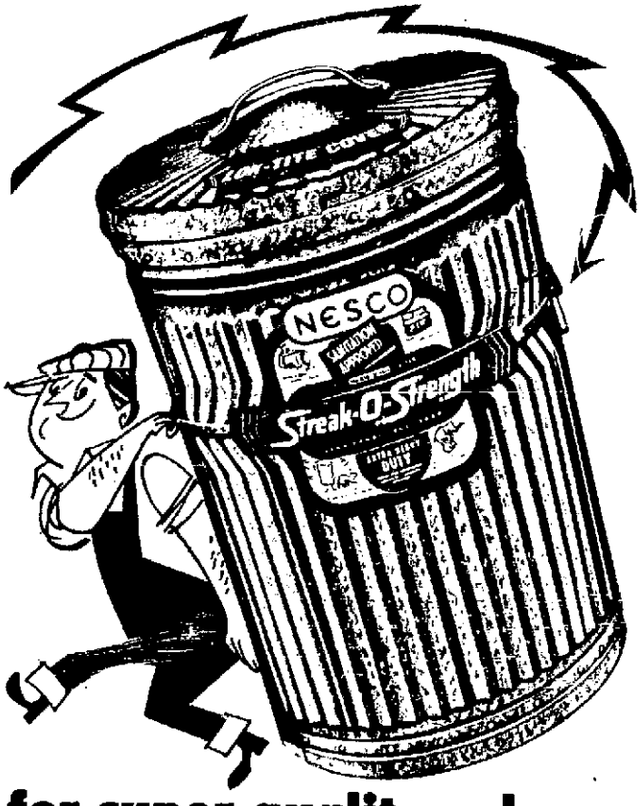

Start by gauging your present physical condition. Check your heart rate—an excellent telltale of your ability to stand active sports. Generally speaking, the lower it is, the better your condition.

1) Lie down for 5 minutes, then take your pulse and jot it down. 2) Stand up; take your pulse; jot it down. 3) Subtract 1 from 2. 4) Jog easily in place 1 minute, then note your pulse. 5) Sit 1 minute; note your pulse. Now add the figures.

The average normally fit person has a total of about 380; if yours is much above that, you're out of condition. After hundreds of tests, Sports College found that the average well-trained athlete has a total of about 360. Roger Bannister's figure: 213. Middle-distance runners proved to have the best heart efficiency, closely followed by basketball players and swimmers. They need it. So do you. Continued on page 12

Studies of athletes show how to improve

SWIMMING champ Ford Konno weighs 147 lbs. at 6 feet, upsets old theory that swimmers need fat for buoyancy. Sports College urges 50-yard sprints to build endurance.

TENNIS ace Budge Patty sprawls after slipping at Wimbledon. Experts say shorter steps give you a better chance to change direction and anticipate opponents' shots.

BOWLING'S Tony Sparando hits top scores with only one good eye. Chief hazard here, tension, can be licked by deep breathing.

GOLF'S Cary Middlecoff shows game's prime dangers: anxiety, "noise allergy." Sports College advises: be philosophical.

your own game through developing over-all strength, learning to relax

Swimming, tennis, golf and bowling are the principal adult participation sports, but the Canadian analysts claim training for strength, flexibility and relaxation applies equally to all sports.

Strength: Not mere muscle size, but the ability to exert power without strain or fatigue was found to be a prime necessity even in "light" sports. In tennis, it means harder, faster serves. In golf, it means longer, straighter drives. In swimming, fewer, more-distance-eating strokes. In bowling, less error caused by tired hand, arm and shoulder muscles.

Sports College recommends general build-up of all your muscles through old-fashioned weight-lifting (even for ping-pong), followed by specialized exercising of the muscles used most. Weight-lifting gives tennis players the powerful abdominal muscles needed, for example, to smash downward at high lobs. In addition, players are urged to develop playing muscles by taping books to each side of the racket, or taking a ping-pong paddle in the water and swinging against pressure. Golfers are urged to build up the muscles that twist the torso to build up power at the club head. Bowlers are encouraged to handle weights heavier than the ball, and to lift the ball higher than in actual play. Swimmers build up the vital back muscles that give a "flexible chest" through fast, hard 25-to-50-yard sprints. Once you have the muscles you can go any distance. (Sports College claims fears of getting muscle-bound are baseless.)

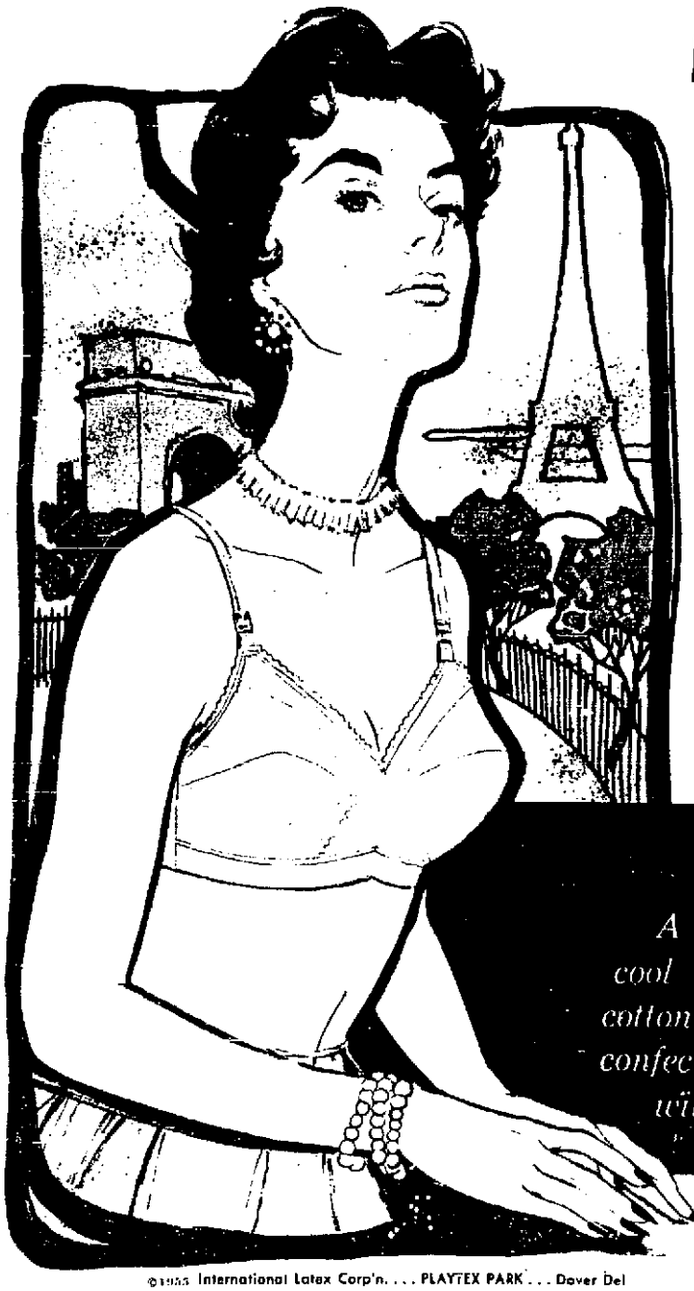

Make Yourself Flexible—and Relax

Flexibility: This means the ability to keep your muscles useful throughout the full range of play, and to stretch them when necessary without injury. To practice: Stand with feet wide apart, reach down, grasp ankles, try to touch the floor with the top of your head. Try to do it sitting. Try it standing with feet 4 to 6 inches apart. End by bending knees, placing hands flat on the floor and trying to straighten legs. Not easy—but even the trying helps you.

Relaxation: Sports College claims tension causes most errors (even among professional athletes), much fatigue and many injuries. There are two kinds. One, "affective tension," is the conscious kind you get through anxiety (even fear of going to the dentist tomorrow), fear of losing, "stage fright" or just distraction by some annoyance. (Outside noises, for example, can set up what is called "noise allergy." One out of three golfers tested showed this.) The remedy: think about the game—not about yourself.

Then there is "co-ordination tension." This involves tightening of the muscles (usually opposing ones) when you get set for a crucial play. Even top athletes who never worry get it unconsciously. Learn to recognize it by deliberately tensing your muscles while not playing; then relax and breathe out. And carry the habit into your next game.

By regular practice on these three things, Sports College says, anyone can improve in any sport by at least 25 per cent. Worth a try, isn't it? ■

Every summer day a vintage-1890 train, groaning with tourists, chugs out of Durango, in Colorado's southwest corner, for a 45-mile, three-hour sightseeing run to Silverton, an old mining boom town. Like most of its passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Clark and the junior members of their vacation party thought the ride the high point of a week in Durango and the San Juan Basin. In one package, it wrapped up the area's top attractions: magnificent scenery, outdoor recreation, a slow-and-easy pace and a dash of history.

In Durango, and in the creaky train ride that symbolizes its brand of off-beat appeal, the Clarks also found economy. For a day's recreation, they paid a total of $9.90 in fares ($3.30 each for the parents, $1.65 each for children 5 to 12—Jackson Jr., 7, and cousin Jimmy Hatfield, 10; no fare for children under 5—Antonia, 3) and $1.28 each for a "train special" lunch at the Grand Imperial Hotel in Silverton.

For a week, the cost was just over $200—including soda pop for the kids. A double room in a motel, including extra beds for the youngsters, was $9 a night. Meals averaged about $15 a day (top grade Western steaks usually are $3 or less); $20 went for gasoline for 1,000 miles of side trips. Items like the train ride made up the balance. (Of course, gasoline from home to Durango and back is not included.)

Durango, 6,505 feet up, sits in a bowl of snow-capped (even in summer) Rocky Mountain peaks, some as lofty as 14,000 feet. As the narrow-gauge, yellow-painted train labors uphill (it climbs 3,000 feet in 45 miles), along the canyon of the River of Lost Souls, the tourist drinks in breath-taking views of rocky grandeur. Occasionally the train stops to let a camera-bug record a particularly impressive panorama.

In Silverton, the Clarks got an even better view of the Rockies, and at Telluride, a min-

Telluride, a roaring mine camp in the 1880s, was one of the family's stops on an auto tour through "ghost towns" and "movie country"--where many Westerns have been filmed. Most of these towns, the Clarks found, still retain the flavor of the frontier days; the SKYLINE at Silverton—a typical Colorado view of snow-capped peaks—holds Clarks rapt.

Grand Imperial, for instance, has a "mining museum" including a 70-year-old slot machine. On the train, in the towns, or near the mines (which they were invited to visit), the family found Coloradans delighted to spin stories—real or fictitious—of the area's brawling past.

The outdoors lures most tourists (including the President) to Colorado, and the Clarks were no exception. Some of the state's best trout fishing is found near Durango, and Jackson took tackle and creel to such locally recommended spots as Pine River and Vallecito Creek. For a non-resident fishing license, he paid $3; the kids were allowed to try their luck for nothing.

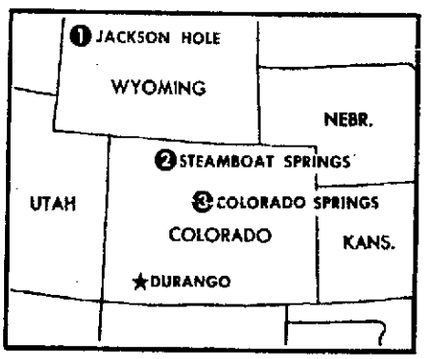

Swimming also attracted the family. Besides the sparkling—if cold—mountain waters, they found warm mineral waters at Pagosa Springs, 63 miles away, and Ouray, 70 miles. Horses were available at $7 a day, and Jackson and the boys spent one day cantering around the hillsides close to Durango.

But most of their time was spent in side trips—to the uranium mines near Nucla, down the Million Dollar Highway (so called because, according to legend, its base contains gold ore); to the headquarters of the wealthy Ute Indians at Ignacio; to Gem Village, where semiprecious mountain stones are shaped into jewelry.

Durango has been attracting more and more tourists since the war ended. (A new paved highway and Frontier Airlines service are responsible.) The Clarks found that, although the 10,000-square-mile area doesn't become crowded, its limited lodgings do fill up quickly. It's best, they learned, to make reservations, particularly during July and August. (For a list of motels and prices, write Durango Chamber of Commerce, Durango, Colo.) For best seats on the train ride, reservations are important, too. (Address: Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad, 1531 Stout St., Denver, Colo.)

And if you're driving, the main highway from the east is Route 160. Winding over 10,000-foot mountain passes, it's a rugged trip, but a spectacular one. And at the end of the road lies a vacation you—like the Clarks—should enjoy. ■

New Rinso Blue washes whiter —because it blues as it washes

Guess which girl had her shirt washed with RINSO BLUE? (The one on the right.)

New sky-blue detergent washes shirts whiter — because it blues as it washes! Unless your present detergent does that — it's doing only half the job.

RINSO BLUE does so many different jobs so brilliantly, it honestly makes other detergents seem old-fashioned. Listen to this:

1. RINSO BLUE blues as it washes. As a result, your shirts, sheets and towels — yes, even rayon and nylon clothes — come out cleaner and whiter, your colored clothes brighter. And you don't need to add any bluing!

2. This new RINSO formula gives you the cleaning power to get even soiled work clothes really clean in your washing machine.

3. It's also delightfully mild. That's why so many gals use RINSO BLUE for dishes.

Lever Brothers unconditionally guarantees new RINSO BLUE, just as we have always guaranteed Rinso soap in the green box.

If you don't agree that RINSO BLUE is a big improvement on the detergent you are now using, we'll gladly refund your money.

Queries from Men

Is ours a nation of snobs?

Men are just as interested in etiquette as women. Here are some of my recent letters from male readers.

Q. With all due apologies, who, in these United States, cares "what the well-bred Englishman says or does"? In this country we breed pigs, not people. Leaving the bottom button undone on a "weskit" is a peculiarly English habit. And in the good old days we used to call galluses suspenders. Now, thanks to people like yourselves, the best Fifth Avenue haberdashers call them braces. Are we to become a nation of snobs?—H.J., Las Cruces, N. M.

A. I quote the Thorndike-Barnhart Dictionary on well-bred: "well brought up; having or showing good manners." As for the bottom button of a vest being left undone, I merely said this seems customary among well-dressed gentlemen. Suspenders? That is what I call them myself. (So does Brooks Brothers.) We'll never become a nation of snobs. We are leveling off into a vast and prosperous middle class whose taste sartorially and otherwise is constantly improving.

Q. When speaking of your wife, do you refer to her as "my wife" or "Mrs. Ward"?—E.E.W., San Francisco, Calif.

A. Socially, a man says "my wife." If his hearers have not met her and do not know her name, he refers to her as "my wife, Edith." A man in an executive position speaking with his associates, says "my wife" if they do not know her by her first name. If an executive speaks of his wife to his employees, he refers to her as "Mrs. Ward."

Q. When we have guests and I am carving, how do I serve the plates? What is the best method of getting the vegetables to them?—K.B.C., Dallas, Tex.

A. Serve the first filled plate to the lady on your right, the next to the lady on your left. Then serve alternately right and left. It is more convenient for the hostess to have the vegetables in front of her with the necessary serving utensils. Then as guests are served she asks that they pass their plates to be served by her with vegetables. Bread, wine, etc. may be passed from hand to hand.

Q. In planning a wedding reception, is it mandatory to include whisky?—A.R.T., Washington, D.C.

A. At a wedding, a punch and, or champagne is usually offered; my letters indicate that young men especially like to see whisky available too. But it is never necessary for people who have strong convictions against alcohol to offer it to their guests.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS will be answered in this column as space permits. (Miss Vanderbilt cannot answer letters personally.) Address: Amy Vanderbilt, PARADE, 285 Madison Ave., New York 17, N. Y.

HOLLYWOOD.

Most young movie actors cannot act. They are pleasant or interesting personalities whose charm and sex appeal are coaxed out of them by directors. Occasionally, however, a young actor appears on the movie lots who is blessed with genius. Such—by all present indications—is James Byron Dean, a quiet, moody, sandy-haired farm boy of 24 from Fairmount, Ind.

Dean is currently starring in the film version of John Steinbeck's novel, East of Eden. His performance in this money-minting production, directed by Elia Kazan, has aroused more praise—and controversy—in the movie colony than any other single performance in years.

On the strength of this one film, Jimmy has been signed to a five-year, non-exclusive contract by Warner Brothers. He already has been cast opposite Elizabeth Taylor in the upcoming film of Edna Ferber's best-selling novel, Giant. He has also been assigned the lead in Rebel Without a Cause, a drama about juvenile delinquency. Reputedly these are the studio's two most valuable properties. In addition, his $1,200-a-week salary is being hiked, and nearly every studio is begging to get him for a picture.

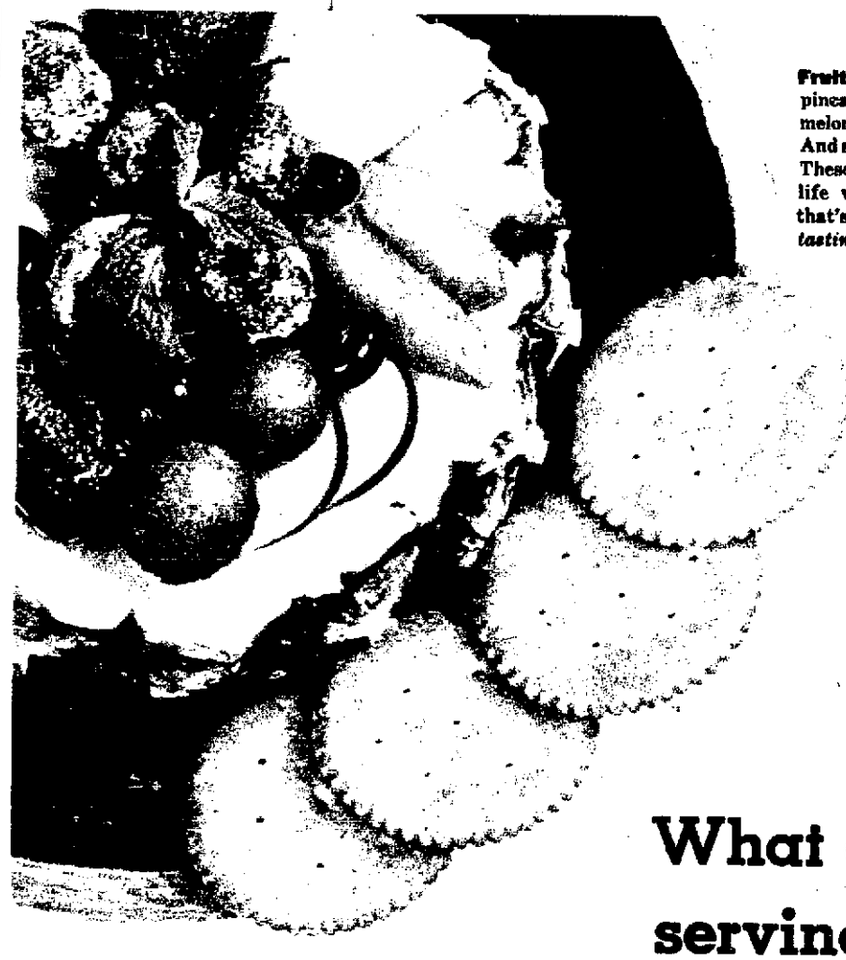

In film circles such a quick rise never goes unchallenged. Dean's detractors admit he can act—"only," they smile, "he acts like Marlon Brando, both on and off the screen. He's an affected, neurotic nonconformist."

As evidence they point to these facts: Jimmy dresses like an unmade bed; lives in a one-room, $30-a-month garage apartment; roars to work on a high-powered motorcycle. "You can sit with Dean all afternoon," one publicity man told me, "and he won't open his mouth. He's worse than Brando, who at least is articulate."

"A few months ago," another informant reported, "Dean went back to Indiana, where he was raised on a farm by an uncle and aunt after his mother died when he was 8. He brought a magazine photographer with him. One day Jimmy escorted the photographer to the town's mortuary; there he leaped into a casket, crossed his arms over his chest and shouted 'Shoot away!' What a weird sense of humor!"

On meeting Dean, one finds many of these stories hard to believe; more than anything, he looks like a college sophomore. He stands only 5'8", weighs 155, wears glasses to correct his nearsightedness, dresses casually in slacks, sweaters and riding boots. His Hollywood apartment looks as though a hurricane had just hit it, with clothes scattered on the floor, motorcycle helmets and recording machines strewn about. "The artist's work comes first," he explains. "Everything else is bunk."

Hollywood? 'I prefer New York'

Of publicity, he says: "Maybe it's necessary, but I just can't see it. Who cares about me?"

Of money: "I never had much and don't need much."

Of friendship: "In this business, nobody helps you. You can be grateful to somebody for opening your eyes to certain things. And in return you can open somebody else's. But you do it all yourself."

Of girls: "Pier Angeli is one of the most beautiful I've met."

Of Hollywood: "I prefer New York."

To most questions he replies simply: "Not significant."

When I asked him where he was born (430 East 4th Street, Marion, Indiana), he lowered his chin and muttered: "Not significant."

"You're nuts," I said.

His blue eyes flashed and his face broke into a warm, dimpled grin. "Everyone is trying to make me into a character," he smiled. "Actually I'm a pretty normal guy."

Back home in Indiana, people have been saying that about Jimmy for years. Says the aunt who helped rear him: "Jimmy lived a perfectly normal boyhood here. He took music lessons, was on the basketball and track teams and always took part in high-school plays."

After graduation Jimmy came out here to Los Angeles and moved in with his father, Winton Dean, a hospital dental technician. He enrolled in UCLA to study theater arts, but quit after one semester to thumb his way to New York and try his luck before the TV cameras.

Directors quickly spotted an unusual quality in Dean—an intenseness that breaks out in volatile fury under proper stimulation. It won him roles in two stage plays, See the Jaguar and The Immoralist, plus TV acting jobs at $500 a crack.

Last year his agent heard that Kazan was casting Eden in New York and sent young Dean over to read for a part. Kazan promptly cast Jimmy as Cal, a tormented, frustrated adolescent who allegorically represents Cain, the force of evil. During the filming, Kazan refused to let Dean be interviewed because—according to an assistant—"the role had become such a part of Jim's being that Kazan didn't want to chance him being upset and losing it."

Dean's performance stirred a storm. Some critics acclaimed it; a few called it a "poor aping of Marlon Brando." But over at Warner Brothers they don't care what anyone says. Eden is making money and Jimmy Dean is on his way. ■

AT WORK, Jimmy toys with the emotions of Julie Harris in East of Eden. A Dean trademark: hair combed like a mop.

Problem on the dance floor: Barbara Babbitt, in "ballerina" evening dress and flat-heeled shoes, towers over a male partner of more average height.

IN CLASS, Barbara turns to smile at boy in nearby seat.

TALL TEENAGER

At 14, Barbara Lee Babbitt of Florida is 5′ 10″—and still growing. But she makes out. Here's how

CORAL GABLES, FLA.

A fresh-faced lad, roughly 4′ tall from heels to crew-cut, passed pretty Barbara Lee Babbitt on her way home from school here the other day. "Hiya, Shorty!" he greeted her. "How's the weather up there?"

Barbara's answer was a tolerant smile. At 14, she stands 5′ 10″, weighs 135 and has learned to live with the wit of her contemporaries. Two years ago she was the shortest girl in her class. Now she has grown mentally as well as physically and, as the photos on these pages indicate, takes life very much in her free-swinging stride.

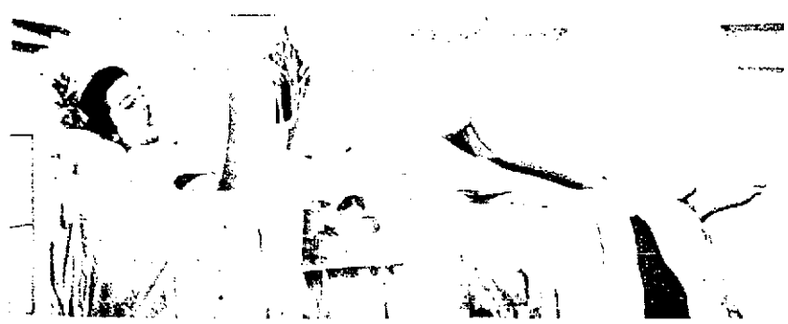

Of good-sized stock (her father, an airline pilot, stands 6′ 3″; her mother, a tennis champion, is 5′ 5½″), Barbara inherits pleasing proportions. Her "vital" measurements include a 32″ bust, 24″ waist and 34″ hips; she takes a 9½ shoe, a 12 dress. Being short-waisted is a problem, but she carefully avoids clothes with vertical stripes and too-straight skirts.

Because she is growing so fast, Barbara needs nine to 10 hours of sleep a night, and eats a big breakfast: fruit, cereal, eggs, bacon, toast, milk. Lunch is light, dinner hearty—and there are frequent icebox snacks.

Being tall is an advantage in sports, and Barbara excels in basketball, swimming and tennis. A "B" student in the ninth grade at Ponce De Leon High School, she also keeps up an active social life. She averages three parties a week, generally dates boys her height or taller (though one current beau is 5′ 6″). At home, she likes to play with her 8-year-old brother and the family dog, an energetic boxer.

"The worst thing about being tall," Barbara says, "is the kidding and the nicknames. But I don't mind too much. The short boys always seem kind of left out of things, somehow."

AT HOME, Barbara relaxes after putting up her hair and indulges in two favorite pastimes: chewing bubble gum and catching up with heroines of "romance comics."

The Fashion in Faces Has Changed

The new look is shockingly beautiful

We are just leaving the era of the heavily masked complexion that had a frankly phony color. The cake foundation that first came a long time ago had us all, for years, wearing a false Florida suntan, no matter how northern and freezing our actual life was. Suddenly these glaring, false faces seemed as old fashioned as high button shoes.

The current fashion for faces is this: first, a lighter color—paler make-up to give the skin a more fragile, sheltered look. And new make-up textures, which hide the sins of skin, but do not mask it so entirely. There is a more luminous, pearl-like look to the complexion these days—and a certain fragility that's oh! so very feminine—so completely disarming. You can get this shockingly beautiful new effect with LANOLIN PLUS Liquid Make-Up. Also, remember this is the only liquid make-up in the world to contain LANOLIN PLUS Liquid—the famous skin softener. $1, plus tax, in a choice of five head-turning shades. Wherever cosmetics are sold.

WINDOW FAN

If you're handy, you can make a 20" exhaust fan like the one shown on this page in a few hours. It will fit any window whose lower sash opening is 27" square or larger. All metal parts—blade, driveshaft, collars, bearing mounts and pulleys—were purchased in kit form from a fan dealer. The 1/6 hp, two-speed electric motor enables the fan to move 1,750 cubic feet of air a minute. (A cheaper one-speed, ¼ hp motor is nearly as satisfactory.)

Lumber for the project includes 1-x-12s to make a box 27" square, 1-x-6s for center shelf and its support, ¼" plywood for the front panel and 1-x-4s for the screened door frame.

Box is nailed together and center drive shaft-support shelf nailed in. Shelf's bottom surface should be even with midpoint of box sides.

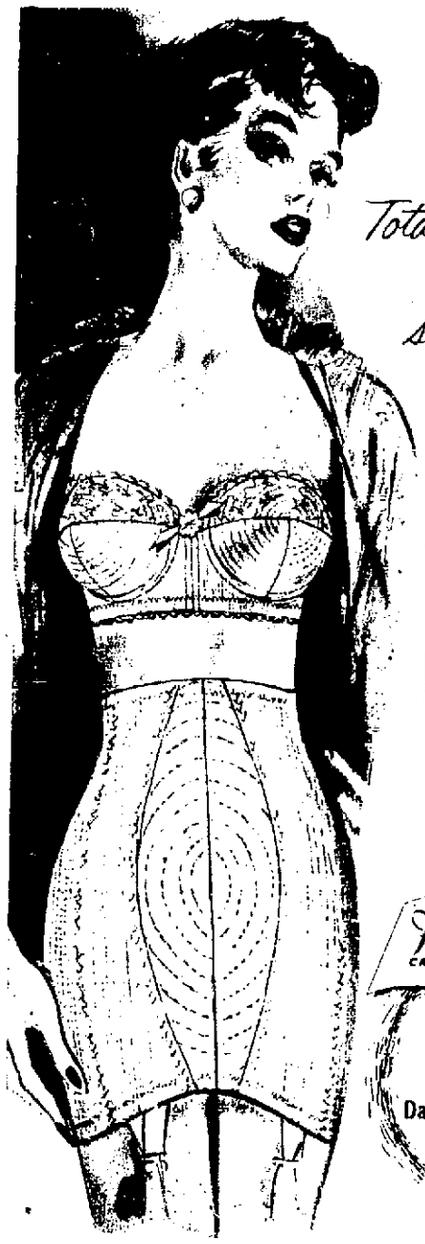

A hinged door, covered with ¼" hardware cloth stapled on, gives access for oiling. It's made to same outside dimensions as box and fastened at corners with angle irons or patent fasteners.

4 Front panel is centered on box "by eye." Tack it in place temporarily and mark overlapping edges for cutting. In finishing job, glue all joints.

5 1 x 2 board and lip on front panel form channel for window sash. Sash dropped into the channel holds fan.

MEDICINE: Atomic rays, beamed from a cobalt "bomb" at New York's Montefiore Hospital, frequently are proving successful against cancer.

GOOD NEWS:

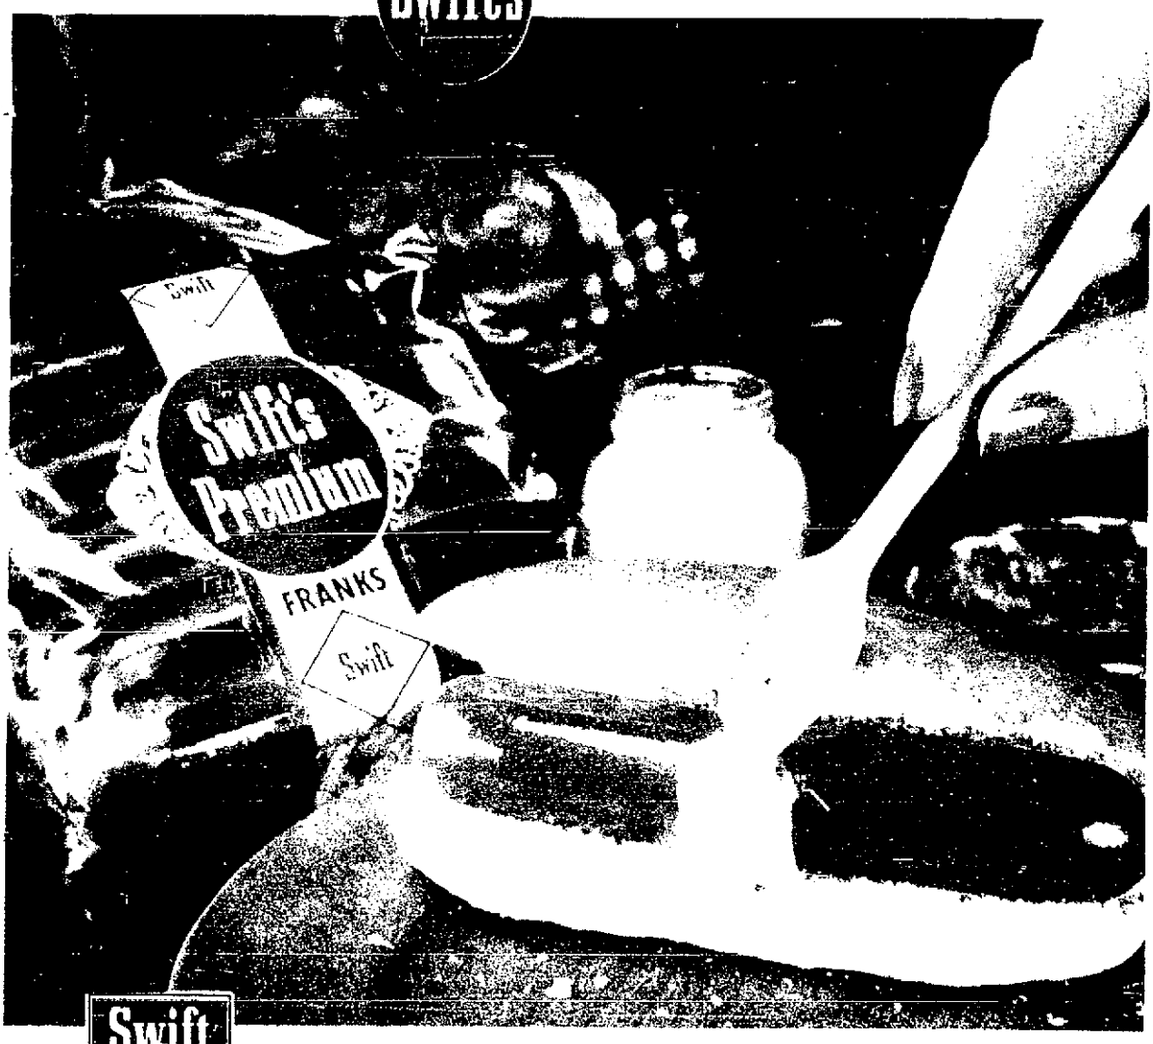

Not in the future, but right now—today—atomic

The atom will produce electricity for a song, we are told—but not until tomorrow. It will propel passenger ships for months and months without refueling—but not until tomorrow. It will power airplanes, distill sea water, make deserts bloom, erase disease—but not until tomorrow.

Yet the atom is hard at work for us today. In one way or another, atomic energy has already helped every man, woman and child in the U.S.—not in the glamorous manner of the crystal-ball gazers, but in down-to-earth, practical ways. It is making the tires of your car last longer; it is improving the quality of the food you eat; it is boosting the efficiency of many of your household gadgets. Because of atomic energy, many familiar items have been improved — washing machines, cigarettes, motor oil, paints, plastics, aluminum, cosmetics—and the list grows almost daily.

Some of its performances have been breathtaking. Take spinach, for example. What the atom has found out about that green vegetable will gladden the heart of every girl and boy, hold hope for relief from pain to the thousands energy is working wonders in your life. And some of its jobs will astonish you of adults suffering from osteoarthritis and gallstones.

Atoms at work—for YOU

The vegetable got itself reappraised when researchers put radioactive materials—called radioisotopes—into a batch of spinach. (The radioisotopes send off rays which can be detected on Geiger counters; by tracking these rays, the researchers could trace the spinach as it flowed through a human body.) Watching spinach "in action" for the first time, the researchers saw that it did deposit iron in the body—as mothers have been telling children since time immemorial—but that it also tended to steal body calcium.

To the scientists, this was both good and bad. The good side: Victims of osteoarthritis and gallstones have a high—too high—amount of calcium in their bodies. Feed them spinach, figured the researchers, and you'll cut down on their excess calcium.

Reports Dr. Charles F. Geschеckter of Georgetown Medical School: "We have treated a number of cases of osteoarthritis by asking them to eat spinach, whether frozen, canned or raw, at least once a day, five days a week, and to restrict the quantity of eggs, milk and cheese (all rich in calcium) in the diet. A remarkable improvement occurs in one to two weeks in many of these patients."

But what's sauce for older adults is not sauce for younger children, adds Dr. Geschеckter. "It is the old people, who won't bother to eat spinach, that need it," he says. "Young people should not eat it because it competes with their bones for precious calcium."

That bit of spade work on spinach is only one small job of the hundreds that atomic energy is performing—day in and day out. These jobs fall into three broad categories: agricultural, industrial and medical.

INDUSTRY: A Westinghouse scientist watches as a delicate scale measures a radioactive component of the first full-scale reactor for generating electric power, now being built.

I—ON THE FARM

Thanks to the atom, nearly every food being grown on U.S. farms today is in the process of being made better—for the atom is unveiling the most tightly guarded secrets of plant life. Here's how: at a U.S. Department of Agriculture plant in Beltsville, Md., a dozen workers are turning out radioactive fertilizer. Though not harmful to humans, the fertilizer, when fed to plants, sends back rays that trace its course through the plants. From this the experts are learning how to use fertilizer with the least amount of waste to get the biggest and best crop yields.

The atom also is bucking up the strength of some plants, making them more resistant to disease. This is done by spraying the plants with atomic rays, causing mutations (changes in the plant's hereditary makeup). Out of these mutations come plants with one or more traits differing from those of their parents. For example, a new strain of oats has been produced that resists murderous "oat rust." And a new kind of peanut is more than 30 per cent more productive than its parents.

II—IN THE FACTORY

The atom is doing big things off the farm, too. Of the 2,400 U.S. organizations and institutions now employing it, more than half are industrial concerns. And they're all getting their money's worth. Said an Atomic Energy Commissioner recently: "I believe the present savings—and I emphasize present savings—through the use of radioisotopes . . . are in the order of $100 million a year."

About one-third of that sum is being saved because the atom is the sharpest-eyed inspector in industrial history. It can measure the thickness and density of materials to a degree never before known. Yet it does the job simply and quickly. A source of radioactivity—a "beta gauge"—is put on one side of the material and a Geiger counter on the other; the strength of the rays coming through the material gives an exact measure of its thickness.

You've got better tires on your new

Many women think the disposal problem is one of the greatest nuisances of external pads. Why let yourself in for it when Tampax is so easy? More than a feeling, it's a fact: with Dial you never worry about odor. You see, normal perspiration has no odor until skin bacteria attack it. Ordinary soaps can't remove bacteria effectively. car because of the atom's eagle eye. Previously, tire makers never could make the fabric underneath the rubber treads exactly even in thickness. Now the atom makes this fabric even, producing a better-balanced tire that wears evenly all the way around, thus lasts longer.

The atom is checking on your cigarettes, insuring that every one is fully and evenly packed with tobacco. It's inspecting the engine blocks of many 1955 cars, functioning like an X ray to peer into the metal and discover any inner flaws. (The atom gets the call over X rays for this job because X-ray machines are bulky; the A-ray device is less ponderous, sometimes is small enough to be carried in one hand.)

Your new car will be running up more miles without a "ring job" because new engine oils have been developed by radioactive "tracer" tests. Example: after cylinder piston rings were made radioactive, different kinds of motor oils were put in the cylinders. The oils that stayed free from radioactivity the longest — and thus were keeping the piston rings whole — were tagged the best and put on the market.

Petroleum and atoms mix in other ways. In the Big Inch and other large pipelines used to ship oil across the country underground, radioisotopes now ride with the oil. Previously, when a shipment of crude oil was being sent through the pipe and a batch of refined oil was following after, the men at the end of the pipe would have to sample the oil constantly to make sure it was being channeled into separate storage tanks. Now, the radioisotopes riding with the oil send off rays that ring a bell as they enter the pipe's terminal, warning the men that a different grade of oil is coming in. The men promptly switch it to another tank, thus saving time and wasted oil.

For the ladies, the atom has helped make better washing machines. Dirt has been made radioactive, run through the machines; by tracking the dirt, the experts are able to tighten up the machines, make them more efficient. And cosmetic makers have made lipstick radioactive in tests to be sure it's kiss- and smear-proof.

III—IN THE HOSPITALS

But the atom has scored its biggest headlines – except for its menacing mushrooms at Hiroshima and Yucca Flat – in the field of medicine. Its special target has been cancer. Radioactive isotopes are used today as a matter of common practice to burn out cancerous tissue. In some cases an "isotope gun" shoots radioactive "bullets" into the tissue; in others the radioisotope is mixed with a substance and either injected into the patient or given by mouth (the famed radioactive "cocktail").

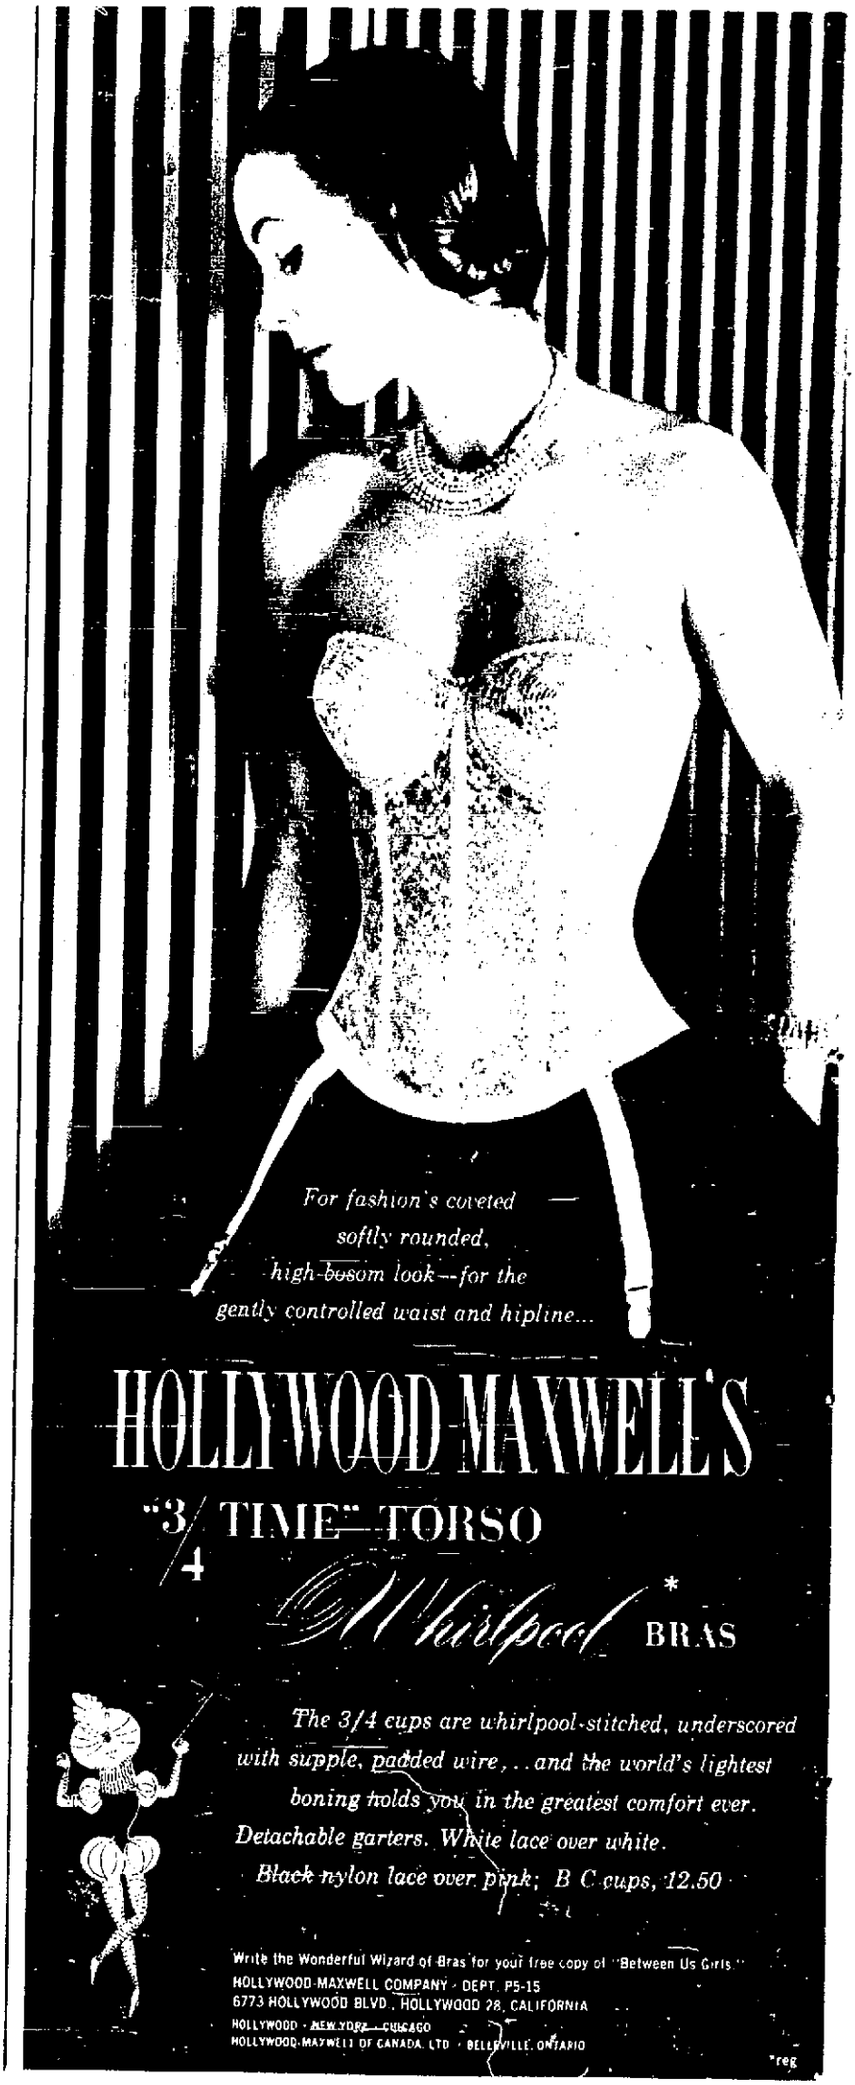

Besides such full-time jobs, the atom also has been called on in emergencies. Last winter it was on guard on the highest Rocky Mountain peaks, sending out signals from unmanned stations to tell the depth of winter snows; these figures gave engineers the data to predict accurately the spring run-offs, prevent floods.

And two days before last Christmas, a church in Oak Ridge, Tenn., sprang a leak in its heating system. The leak was somewhere underneath the cement floor of the basement. It had to be located and repaired in 36 hours, or Christmas Eve services would have to be canceled.

Normally it takes two weeks just to locate such a leak, but this was Oak Ridge—the first "atomic town." Radioisotopes, rushed from nearby labs, were put into the heating system and tracked through the pipes under the floor with Geiger counters. "Where the isotopes stop flowing," the scientists told the workmen, "is where you start digging."

The Christmas Eve services went on as scheduled.

Atomic wonders? They're coming your way every day—and they'll keep on coming. ■

LOVE That Thirteenager!

By Stella George

Going steady, to thirteen-agers, often means nothing more than walking home from school together. This photo was posed by John Jakubik and Caroline Betz.

WHEN your thirteenager comes in from school does he (or she) leave a trail of lunch boxes, sweaters, purses, books, shoes and sometimes socks from the front door to his room? Does he greet you with, "I'm-hungry-what's-there-to-eat?" as he walks in the door? Does he (or she) tie up the telephone for 40 to 50 minutes on end, and think you're unreasonable when you ask to use the phone for a business call? Good! If you have answered yes to these questions, it's likely that you have a very happy, well-adjusted thirteenager in the house.

A thirteenager is a person who can be delightful, perplexing, paradoxical, aggravating, lovable and fascinating at the same time. They are sophisticated and grown-up one minute and small boys and girls the next. They need and want love and outward signs of affection just as much as their small brothers and sisters.

Perhaps one of the most significant similarities between 13-year-old boys and girls is the fact that they are always hungry. From a thirteenagers' point of view it would be a good idea to keep a larder stocked with crackers, cookies, cake, ice cream, peanut butter, candy, popcorn, apples and ginger ale to meet all emergencies.

THERE ARE TIMES when a thirteenage girl will forget entirely about home bathing in any form. Showers after gym serve the purpose. But there are other times when taking a bath becomes a ritual seldom seen outside the movies. A supply of deodorants, powders, creams, eyelash curlers, hair removers, bath salts and powder puffs is ceremoniously arrayed on the bathroom sink and the bathroom itself will be occupied for at least two hours while the punctilious observance takes place.

Thirteenage boys sometimes have a tendency to break out in a rash when washing ears is mentioned.

"I washed my ears last week," is offered as a logical excuse for protesting against the ordeal. Occasionally a 13-year-old boy will decide to take a bath of his own volition (two mothers substantiated this statement). A generalization can almost be established in regard to this: Usually no soap is required. A period of meditation while soaking up to the waist, alternated with wild periods of splashing, diving, beating about in the water constitutes the secrets of this rite.

A thirteenager may say goodbye to a friend at the door, then 15 minutes later, when the friend gets home, engage in an hour-long phone call with his chum.

THIRTEENAGERS, boys and girls alike, seem to be allergic to unnecessary tidiness around the house, especially that which requires physical effort on their part. They don't mean to be untidy; they take the easiest course of action because it is easy. They will worry about personal and emotional problems which directly affect them. Household orderliness is not a personal problem. The gentle reprimand, "Put your things away in your room, dear," is often more effective than a running discourse on the untidy habits of young people in general.

Thirteenagers seem to feel that their parents are old-fashioned and should remember the French Revolution or at least the Civil War from first-hand experience. The fact that daddy was a popular man-about-town in the 1930s, and mother jitterbugged with the best of them at that time still makes it inconceivable that love and/or sex ever entered the lives of either parent. Therefore, viewpoints parents might have on these topics are sometimes questioned. If mothers and dads will think back a few years they might remember how they regarded their parents' opinions in these matters!

"Going steady" often implies to a parent the beginning of engagement, marriage, grandchildren and the care thereof. To a thirteenager it may be a phase in the boy-girl relationship - a mark of popularity satisfying the basic desire to be sought after. As a matter of fact, one 13-year-old girl was recently overheard to say, "Oh, I've gone steady three times this week!"

GOING STEADY does not necessarily mean going anywhere or doing anything. It often means nothing more than walking to school together, sharing desserts at lunch time and walking home from school together.

Thirteenagers want and need recognition. A 13-year-old girl said to her parents not long ago, 'It seems that only bad kids get written up in the papers." She went on to say that she was afraid that some older people might look at her and think she was bad, too, because she was a teenager. Most thirteenagers want to be recognized. When a girl runs up to a crowd of girls on the school grounds, shouting, "Hey, you guys . . .*" her mother might wonder if she'll ever grow up to be a lady. This behavior actually means nothing more than the fact that the girl wanted to be noticed and given attention. A baby crys for attention; an adult seeks perfection in a certain field; a thirteenager may become loud and boisterous in order to be noticed. It is really part of growing up.

Most thirteenagers uphold a cool hostility towards younger brothers and sisters. This often encourages undesirable character traits to show themselves in these younger editions. Parents often wail, "Why can't you get along? Play together—have fun together—you're brothers and sisters, remember." The point is that a thirteenager is worlds apart from pre-adolescent children. They seem to have less in common actually than a 13-year-old and his parents.

THE QUESTION was put to a group of 13-year-old girls, "What is your biggest problem?" At once, and almost in the same breath, they answered, "Being popular!" Thirteenagers are not really old enough to have outgrown all childhood fickleness. They still become mad at, and make up, with friends at a rate that astounds grown people. However, being one of the crowd is such an important problem that it explains many common incidents that often perplex and annoy mothers.

"All the girls are wearing Lanamere socks. I've just got to get some," or "All the boys are wearing those new wool slacks. I've got to get a pair," are typical statements every parent of a thirteenager has heard at one time or another. What the youngster is really saying is, "I want to look like my friends so I'll be accepted as one of the group." Thirteenagers are critical of one another and are wary of those who are different from

Hummingbird Heaven

By Harry R. Peterson

IF YOU'D LIKE to retire for a while from the harried and somewhat baffled age of atoms and jets to a peaceful, secluded world of birds—particularly hummingbirds, try a trip to the Tucker Wild Bird Sanctuary in Modjeska Canyon, 16 miles east of Orange in the Santa Ana Range. Some years ago, when owned by B. F. Tucker of Long Beach, the spot was nationally famous as the largest hummingbird headquarters in the entire country.

Because of Dorothy May Tucker's love for birds, Tucker in eight years attracted literally thousands of the darting, iridescent birdlets who stayed, nested and multiplied under ideal conditions on the beautifully wooded acres of "Oakwood."

Now, the California Audubon Society, to whom Tucker deeded the property in 1939, is restoring the rendezvous. Each year since active work was begun in 1951, more and more of the six California species have arrived. By the use of a new and ingenious bottle-type inverted feeder, attendants have brought the number of daily visitors up to several hundred. Mr. Tucker believes that in five years myriads of hummers will live at Oakwood again.

YOU MAY PHOTOGRAPH the birds if you visit the sanctuary in the middle of the week.

The birds are viewed from a screened observation porch built into a cabin. Twenty or more feeders filled with red-colored syrup bring in the zooming, oscillating feathered bombshells. They sip from bent tubes and perch or poise on the top of the bottle and the surface tension keeps it from running out.

The Anna, Costa and black-chinned hummingbirds are the species seen in summer; in the fall and spring come the migratory Rufous, Allen and tiny Calliope on their way from points north down into Mexico and back again through the mountains. The Anna is the only permanent resident of Southern California.

HUMMERS PERFORM in the main ring of the bird circus; the sideshow on a long tray with 24 compartments, below and beyond the bottles, is just as interesting. Here come the other wild birds in considerable numbers and many species. Quail, mourning doves, California thrashers, acorn woodpeckers, black-headed grosbeaks, towhees, songsparrows and scrub jays are the most common in summer. You may also see house wrens, the Bewick wren, hooded orioles, handsome western tanagers, the shy wrentit or perhaps a black phainopepla in the tops of the trees near the parking place. Two additional trays and the ground are used for more food. Each square in the long tray contains a separate kind of bird delicacy. It has been possible to study the feeding habits here by experimentation.

To reach the sanctuary, drive past El Modena and turn east on the Santiago Canyon road before reaching Irvine Park. Pass Irvine Lake and cross the Santiago Creek bridge. Then, 200 yards beyond, instead of heading into Silverado Canyon, turn right at the fork and drive to a small grocery store and cross a second bridge. The route is left into Modjeska Canyon. Follow this to the end, and stop at the Forest Service gate. There is a long parking place and a sign "Birds" near the "Oakwood" under the entrance to the sanctuary. All this route is paved, has easy highgear grades and is well signed.

Bird lovers find Tucker Wild Bird Sanctuary in Modjeska Canyon of top interest. This is the entrance to area.

Santiago Creek, that passes through the sanctuary, has its source near the twin peaks, Modjeska and Santiago; the former named for the famous Polish actress who lived just below the refuge, in her beloved "Forest of Arden."

It's an historic stream. Gaspar de Portola, heading the first party of white men, came this way in July, 1769. Father Juan Crespi of the expedition named it. In his journal of July 27 he says: "It has willows, grapevines, brambles and other bushes. It was given the name . . . of the patron of the Spains, Santiago."

NEAR THE END of the Modjeska road is a bridge and side thoroughfare, with a sign, "Cross at Your Own Risk." This is the entrance to the former home of Madame Helena Modjeska. To the north of Oakwood is a huge domed rock, Flores Peak, where a bandit involved in a murder and robbery in San Juan Capistrano jumped on horseback from the summit and dodged the hangman temporarily. Beyond is the Santiago Peak Trail, 15 miles and 5,691 feet to the top.

An extensive research program has brought much knowledge about the feeding habits of the feathered residents and migrants at the sanctuary. The path leads to the cabin, over a carpet to deaden sound; past an enormous oak stump. When it fell in 1952, the forester estimated its age as 700 years; it was the second largest in the Santa Ana Mountains and was frequented by the coastal Indians for centuries.

At the observation porch it is easy to watch the birds at close range. Above the screen is a list of the different kinds of bird feed in the compartments, each numbered.

As visitors tiptoe into the porch and sit down, the sight before them is startling indeed. One hummer after another swoops to a feeder in the long row only a few feet from the railing. First, an Anna, bright red throat glistening in the morning sun, poises before a tube, wings whirring all the time, and finally lights on the curved wire and takes a long sip. Two Costas, with lavender gorgets, dart in to eat; then a black-chinned, distinctive with its dark head and white collar—until there are a dozen of them, brilliant against the laboratory-like row of inverted bottles; red because coloring matter is added to the syrup.

Two valley quail are busy in square No. 1 of the long tray; the hen scratch. They kick out backward, their topknots bobbing, just like a couple of future fryers in a country back yard! Other quail strut into the peanut hearts compartment until there are six. If watchers make no quick movement and do not talk too much they will stay until satisfied. Four fawn-colored mourning doves are sampling the suet. Over in the sunflower seed box a black-headed grosbeak, red and ebony, a tropical visitor, cracks the large seeds in his strong beak with ease. Dark California thrashers, with curved long bills, wander around from one square to another. An acorn woodpecker, attacker of telephone poles, examines the walnuts and may be planning to do a rat-tat-tat on the porch beams.

ON THE GROUND, such wild birds as titmice, brown and spotted towhees and songsparrows investigate bugs and stray seeds. A flicker flies among the swinging birdhouses, from one great live oak to another, showing red underneath. They all seem as tame as hens.

As one professional photographer says, "The whole place is a challenge to anyone who'd like to get some good bird shots."

Suddenly a door slams inside the house; it has swung to accidentally. With the rush of a quail covey flushed from the chaparral, the whole flock vanishes in the tree branches and then up the canyon. They're still wild birds.

They will return. And bird lovers will want to visit the Dorothy May Tucker Wild Bird Sanctuary again also.

Feeding time for a family of hummingbirds at Tucker Wild Bird Santcuary in Modjeska Canyon. Father hummingbird whirs wings patiently as family feeds.

Her future in pictures seems assured. Here are a few scenes from her busy life. Top, with parents in U-I commissary and with William Campbell on set of "Man Without a Star." Middle: Taking a jump on a favorite horse; her own alluring self in a closeup, and as a boating enthusiast. Bottom, pool scene and Myrna in dancing class at the U-I studio.

CALIFORNIA YESTERDAYS

When White Men Scalped Indians

Drawing by the Author

Slain settler — a scene sure to bring white reprisals in pioneer California when Indian scalps brought bounties.

By Clarence Bernard Propes

CALIFORNIA once paid a bounty on Indian scalps. Ears had to be attached though.

The majordomo of Rancho Azusa, where Azusa now stands, appealed for help from Los Angeles to hold off the redskins.

In 1849, the Prefect of Los Angeles demanded arms and ammunition to combat the "depredations of Indian horse thieves and other evil disposed persons."

California's Indian past was often as bloody and desperate as anything dreamed of in Hollywood. Indians raided all the ranches in Southern California, ranches now occupied by Long Beach, Santa Barbara, San Diego and even the romance factories of Hollywood or Disney's new layout in Anaheim. At one time it was as daring to live in Southern California as it was to live anywhere on the Southwest frontier.

The Missions attracted a great many converts but there were many Indians who simply didn't like Christian ways. The latter would come down from the hills and mountains and try to kill as many non-Indians as they could. Then, too, Indian converts would change their minds about being Christians and take over the Missions after killing anyone who disagreed with them.

AFTER A TIME the Mission authorities got matters under control as far as most of the California Indians were concerned. There were other tribes from the Colorado River country who were not so agreeable. They looked at the growing herds of horses in California with a fond eye. They then started raiding. They did not hesitate to steal every horse in sight. When they wished to avoid battle they would leave the horses that were tied to hitching rails in front of ranch houses. The horses were driven east to be sold to immigrants or the settlements around Salt Lake.

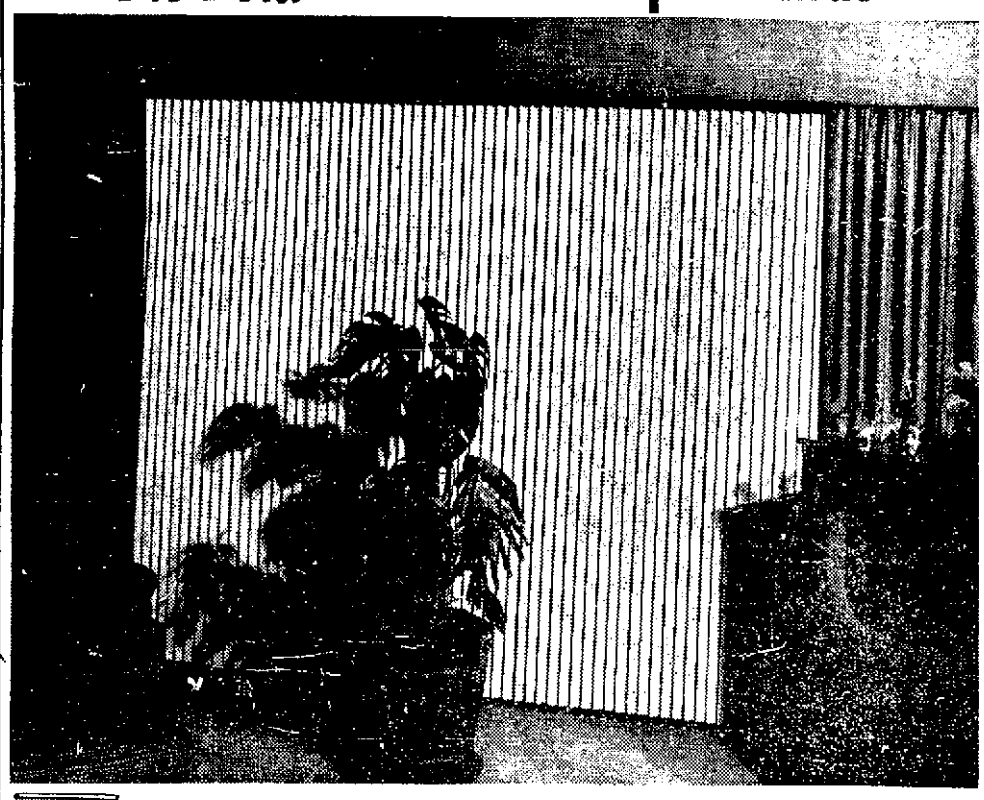

THE RAIDERS were Paiutes, Mojaves and Utes from east of the Colorado River and a scattering of California tribes from this side of the river.

The Utes were probably the most troublesome. They were proud people from the Colorado Plateau. Wakera was one of their great chiefs and an unpleasant sort of person. As an example he offered to sell several Indian slave children to a party of Mormons. When the Saints refused to buy them Wakera picked up one of the children by the heels and dashed its brains out. He then berated the Mormons for cruelty on the grounds that if the purchase had been made the child would not have died.

He appeared in the San Bernardino region in the mid-forties. He had a number of squaws and warriors with him but said his intentions were peaceful — that he wanted to trade and trap. He looked over the land and then made off with several hundred head of stock. A company of men went in pursuit and caught up with him in the desert. The Indians kept the horses and the

Offices Move Out to the Countryside

By Leif Erickson

AP Newsfeatures Writer

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE an office building going up in the block where you had bought a new suburban home?

It's not a gag question. In Menlo Park, home-owners like having Prudential Insurance, Magna Engineering, and Sunset Magazine as next-door neighbors.

Their "country style" office buildings harmonize architecturally with the neighborhood's homes. And their landscaping will match a country club's.

The companies' lawns, and their shrub and flower layouts, are a tough "keeping up with the Joneses" challenge for nearby householders. The companies can afford high priced gardeners.

The people of Meno Park, a peninsula suburb 30 miles south of San Francisco, are impressed with the way their "garden office building zoning" is turning out.

And, says Menlo Park's mayor, Charles P. (Chuck) Burgess, the companies make important and helpful taxpayers.

Like fast growing suburban home communities anywhere, Menlo Park needed and wanted substantial business taxpayers. It wanted its cake of attractive neighborhood living with a frosting of sweet business tax money.

AP Newsfeature Photo

When Menlo Park invited businesses to locate there in "garden office zoning," seven firms built attractive layouts like Sunset Magazine's (above).

THE ZONE ORDINANCE—"An invitation to large companies to build their offices in the country"—was enacted in April 1949.

Allstate Insurance Co., a Sears Roebuck subsidiary, accepted first, moving into its quarters in December 1950. Next came the Lane Publishing Co., settling in its showplace headquarters for Sunset Magazine in August 1951.

Magna Engineering, makers of an all-in-one power tool for home craftsmen, put in their shrubs and designing desk in September 1951.

Since then have come the American Insurance Group; the U. S. Geological Survey in the first unit of an eventual Pacific Coast survey center; A. C. Nielson & Co., market analysts who measure radio and TV audiences; and Prudential Insurance, with its Northern California mortgage loan office.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION now is a regional headquarters for Hardware Mutual Insurance of Minnesota.

Four similarly zoned sites remain, with eight to 10 more potentially shaping in a tract originally plotted as a shopping center.

The zone ordinance requires that each firm provide adequate parking space for its employes. Buildings can cover no more than 40 per cent of a minimum two-acre tract. Borders of parking areas as well as front lawns must be landscaped.

Are the firms happy?

Sunset Magazine's people keep busy guiding tours of readers through their building and grounds. They look like the modern rambling manor of a mogul with the fortune and taste to afford the ultimate in western living.

The managing executives glow about personnel morale and low job turnover.

Prudential's regional manager, Willard Hansen, said his office had virtually 100 per cent turnover annually in San Francisco's financial district.

"But not here. About the only girls we lose are those getting married and starting a family."

HOW DO the Jane Does on the payrolls like it?

Sheilah McClelland, phone operator and receptionist at Prudential, comes by car from San Francisco, where she and Janet Tarnello still like to live.

Sheilah turned down a receptionist job in another Prudential office in San Francisco.

"I guess I'm mixed up," she says. "I like living in the city and working in the country.

"When we moved in here, you know what? Jean Stasser, the receptionist girl at Magna, came right over to say 'hello' and asked me to coffee at their place.

"I guess you don't see that much in the city, do you?"

They Learn by Travel

By Jess Glawson

ALTHOUGH vacations abroad are now less expensive and less time-consuming than in years past, they remain in the realm of dreams for most of us. But not so for a group of local students and teachers. Two low-cost tours sponsored by Long Beach State College will make it possible for them to visit, this summer, the storied lands of Central Europe and the Orient.

The sights, sounds and moods of far-away places will become familiar to these groups which depart in June for overseas destinations. Dr. Frank Nelson of the English department at State College, and Dr. Wallace Moore, who heads the division of education and phychology, will conduct the tours.

Departing from New York by air June 22, Dr. Nelson and his group will visit England, The Netherlands, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and France, returning Aug. 7. They will tour famous old-world cities like London, Amsterdam, Frankfurt, Vienna and Paris. Lectures will be heard at the University of Innsbruck, and side trips will be made through the fabled lake district of Austria and the beautiful Alpine country of Switzerland.

THE 45-DAY tour of the Orient will begin June 30 when Dr. Moore and his group depart from Los Angeles. After a brief stop in Honolulu, they will fly on to the fabulous cities of the Far East: Tokyo, Hong Kong, Macao, Bangkok and Singapore, to name only a few. The group will attend a lecture series at the University of Hong Kong, visit famous shrines and cultural centers, and even tour the gambling houses of Kowloon. Returning via Manila, Guam and Honolulu, they will arrive back in Los Angeles on Aug. 13.

Not only will the travelers enjoy a once-in-a-lifetime vacation abroad, each will be given six units of credit by the summer session of Long Beach State College. The trips are designed especially for students and teachers but any mature person may accompany the group by registering as an auditor. For information call the school's summer session office.

THE TOURS are liberally spiced with days of travel for pure pleasure and days of leisure for sightseeing and shopping. Each route has been chosen with the distinct purpose of offering the traveler the widest selection of scenery, familiarization with representative cities and sightseeing that goes beyond the "tourist musts."

Dr. Nelson is a graduate of Haverford College and the University of California, has studied and taught in Europe and has made three trips covering the central countries. Dr. Moore, a graduate of Harvard University and Stanford, is well known for his work as consultant for the information program of the United States in Japan.

Sponsorship of the tours by Long Beach State indicates the interest this school shows in furthering international education and understanding, for the most direct and effective way to accomplish these ends is through personal knowledge of other peoples, their way of life and their problems and attitudes. The opportunity to gain personal knowledge is presented through carefully designed itineraries. And the impact of this knowledge is heightened by especially arranged lectures, tours of schools and education centers, and more than casual contact with universities in many cities.

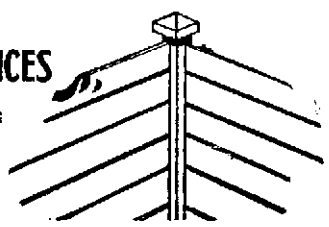

Paris will thrill State College tour group making the European trek. This is view of Notre Dame Cathedral.

Thailander astride water buffalo typifies some of sights State College tour of Far East will provide.

Love That Thirteenager

themselves. They dress not to please one another, but to be like one another.

Thirteenagers need all the love and affection that parents can give them. Since they are a paradox—grown-up one minute, and small children the next—they also need understanding along with it. Their problems are real, and getting a sweater "like the rest of the crowd is wearing" is as important as a new best dress for mother to wear to the women's club.

ON THE OTHER HAND, a thirteenager does not like to hear stereotyped generalities about himself and his friends. "What are you kids coming to? You're all alike," puts a 13-year-old on the defensive.

The implication is not favorable. After all, "All you mothers are alike" would probably be resented by the most ideal mother! While a cross parent may generalize about all youngsters, actually one of the most consoling thoughts to parents as a group is the fact that thirteenagers are alike. When one mother finds out that her daughter isn't the only one who carefully hangs up dirty clothes and scatters clean ones on the floor, but all her friends' thirteenagers do likewise, she stops worrying and feels reassured. When a mother of a 13-year-old son checks with a neighbor and discovers that the neighbor's same-age son also rebels at Saturday afternoon lawn mowing, she feels better.

An untidy, perpetually-hungry and happy 13-year-old has an excellent chance of becoming a slim, immaculately-groomed leading citizen in a few years. The boy whose mother has to bribe him to take a bath might well some day be a fuss-budget dad who complains about his son's poor ear-washing habits. The girl who has to have a skirt like her friends are wearing might be a top fashion model when she's 20—known for her striking individuality in dress!

Parents of thirteenagers are lucky—they have so much to look forward to, and will one day have such a lot to look back upon.

You Can Re-Cover Furniture

By Caroline Coleman

WHEN CUSHIONS, covers and dim lights fail to hide that soiled or worn chair, it's time to build yourself a new one.

Sound formidable? It isn't.

It's easy and it's fun. If you ring the whole family in on the job, the pleasure of the adventure increases. Though it may be a little hard to convince the man of the house — even if he is a "Mr. Fixit" — that upholstering is an at-home task, a little psychology will serve to arouse his interest. You might first propose buying a new chair and then suggest the upholstering proposal.

When he begins to conceive the idea as his own, he'll be very enthusiastic and a great help. Working together, the job will go faster and more smoothly. He can do the stretching and tacking; you can do the measuring, cutting and sewing.

First step will be to obtain the proper materials and tools. The fabric you select should be firm and strong and not a loosely woven one. An unnapped fabric which does not have a slick surface will wear longer. Your wisest choice is a durable wool fabric which will mold readily to the shape of the chair, be easy to handle and give you longest service.

A word of advice to beginners: Checks, plaids or stripes are more difficult to work with than solids or flecked or nubbed fabrics.

For a boudoir chair you will need 4½ to five yards of wool fabric, about two yards of black cambric for under the seat, four to 4½ yards of muslin for the undercovering and three or 3½ yards of burlap as a covering for the springs and stuffing. For requirements for other types of furniture check with any yard goods or furniture store.

Decide on the trim you will

Admiring their choice, couple prepares to reupholster boudoir chair in black tweed for use in living room.

MAJOR STEPS IN STRIPPING, REBUILDING AND RECOVERING FURNITURE

want for your chair and purchase it with your wool fabric. Trim that has a professional air are bindings of matching fabric. Bindings called "welts" — strips of fabric sewn around a welt cord — are easy to make.

The best tools to use include an upholsterer's hammer, which has a double-faced magnetic head; a curved needle and a straight double-pointed needle; long upholsterer's shears, and skewers, or pins. You also need "No. 4" tacks, webbing, tieing twine, cotton wadding and hair stuffing. Helpful also are a tack lifter and a webbing stretcher.

Though the list seems long, when you lay out the tools and add up the cost you will find that the requirements are neither large nor expensive.

THE MAJOR STEPS in upholstering are stripping, rebuilding and recovering. As you strip the chair note carefully how the professional job was done. It will help you a great deal when you are ready to rebuild if, as you strip, you mark all pieces and use them as patterns for measuring and cutting the new covering. The order of stripping is the reverse of reupholstering: Skirt (if any), cambric from underneath seat, trim, outside back, outside arms, inside back, inside arms and seat.

Now you are ready to rebuild. First check the springs to see that they are all securely attached and that none is broken.

For a satisfactory finished product, you will want to know that the chair is in good condition from inside out. You may find that the webbing, to which springs are attached, is worn. If this is so, stretch new strips of webbing taut across the chair and tack at each end, then replace springs. The man of the house can use the webbing stretcher to pull the webbing and hold it taut while you tack the ends to the frame. Replace front-to-back strips of webbing first, then weave cross-strips in.

In recovering, you will find it easiest to work on the various parts of the chair in the following order: Seat, inside arms, inside back, outside arms, outside back, trim.

As you measure and cut the various layers of cloth, remember to use the old pieces as patterns. Each material when applied to the chair should be stretched tight and attached securely. First the coverings are baste-tacked (driving tacks only part way in) and then, after any necessary adjustments to assure evenness, permanently tacked.

Since two or more layers of cloth will be tacked to the same wood area of your chair it is important that you stagger rows of tacks so that the frame is not split.

Covers for the inside arms and back are pulled through from the inside of the chair to the out-

Don't Feed the Animals

By Harry Squires

AN AUTOPSY performed on a camel that died at the Central Park Zoo in New York revealed a rubber ball in the animal's stomach. W. H. Latham, New York park supervisor, reported that baby monkeys have died in the Central Park Zoo and in the Prospect Park Zoo in Brooklyn from peanuts sticking in their throats.

Hundreds of zoo inmates in all parts of the country--including the West Coast—will die this summer unless those visiting zoos will be content to observe the animals, rather than molest or fatally injure them by throwing food and other harmful objects into the cages.

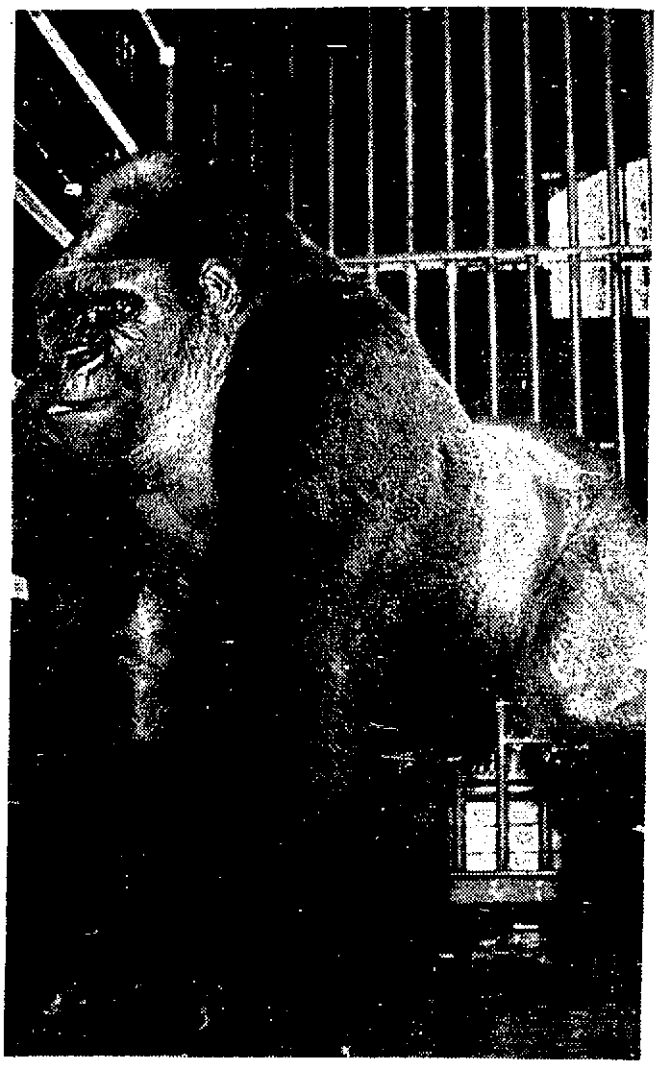

Latham said that the New York zoos have had sea-lions die from swallowing marbles, pennies, small stones and other objects that were thrown into the animals' cages.

"While this might seem a sorry state of affairs," said Latham, "we have found from experience that the general public has no intention of injuring the animals. As a matter of fact, I believe, their actions are prompted by a spirit of kindness."

Fortunately, most zoo visitors are kind to the animals; those few who threw harmful things into the cages do so out of a sadistic delight. For this reason, it has been necessary for many zoo supervisors to forbid feeding by the public.

BECAUSE of the tendency of monkeys to eat many things that are not good for them, R. Marlin

Small Mexican cafe stands on edge of Russian village. In old days, cafe could not have existed as villagers never "ate out" except with friends.

A Bit of Russia in Old Mexico

By Jack B. Kemmerer

NESTLED deep in the Guadalupe Valley lies the small Russian village of Guadalupe, an unspoiled settlement almost exactly like an 18th century Tolstoyan farming hamlet in the time of the Imperial Czar. Neither the United States nor Mexico have any qualms about this tiny, peaceful community located only 60 miles below the United States international border at Tijuana, Baja California.

The village of Guadalupe lies about 15 miles off the main highway from Tijuana to Ensenada and a dirt and gravel road leading to the valley turns off to the left from a point beyond the Half-Way House, about 50 miles below Tijuana. The road is passable for any automobile in dry weather. It was cut through by the Mexican government over the protests of the Russians who believed that a simple mule trail was sufficient for their needs in getting their crops to market. They feared interruption of their solitude by government officials and tax collectors.

In fact, government oppression by conscription and heavy tax assessments to further the Imperial Czar's aggressive schemes drove the Russians from their native land in the first place. Their first step was to withdraw from the Russian Orthodox Church, band into sects such as Mennonites, Dukhobors, Molliecans and Malakans, to name a few. Each sect differed slightly but all had two things in common: Tax payment and army service were refused. In 1904, when the Czar's forces seized the village grain supply and the young men in a small village near the Turkish border, flogging the old men as an object lesson, the entire village, all members of the Malakan sect, packed their meager belongings and fled to the United States. They first settled near Los Angeles, but soon decided that district was "too immoral" for raising children and accepted isolated sanctuary offered by Mexico in Guadalupe Valley.

Because their religion forbade the owning of land, they secured long term leases on thousands of acres and settled down to live their lives in the Russian fashion and raise their children and crops in peace.

The young men work in the fields and camp by their ploughs far from the village in the Russian style. The old men hang around the village doing the so-called skilled labor. If a man has a couple of sons over 14 or so he never goes to the fields at all. Instead, he grinds the wheat at home, works in his blacksmith shop and putters around the place until time for afternoon tea with the other "oldsters" of the village.

On the women, the same as in the homeland, falls the burden of the work. Not only must they raise large families, but must also raise all garden produce necessary for the family table. They bake their own bread, feed and tend flocks of geese and ducks, milk the family cows and goats, make cheese, butcher the family meat supply and tan leather for the family boots.

Until a few years ago the women wove homespun cloth on hand looms after washing, combing and spinning raw wool. They also made the felt boots worn by the entire family. In recent years the men have discovered that clothing can be purchased cheaply in Ensenada and Tijuana and this frees the women for labor in the fields.

The sect is very religious and in the early days all the Russian rites were strictly adhered to. The life of the village revolved around the church; smoking, drinking (hard liquor) and dancing were forbidden. The Malakans continued to wear Russian clothing and retained the ancient costumes of their homelands.

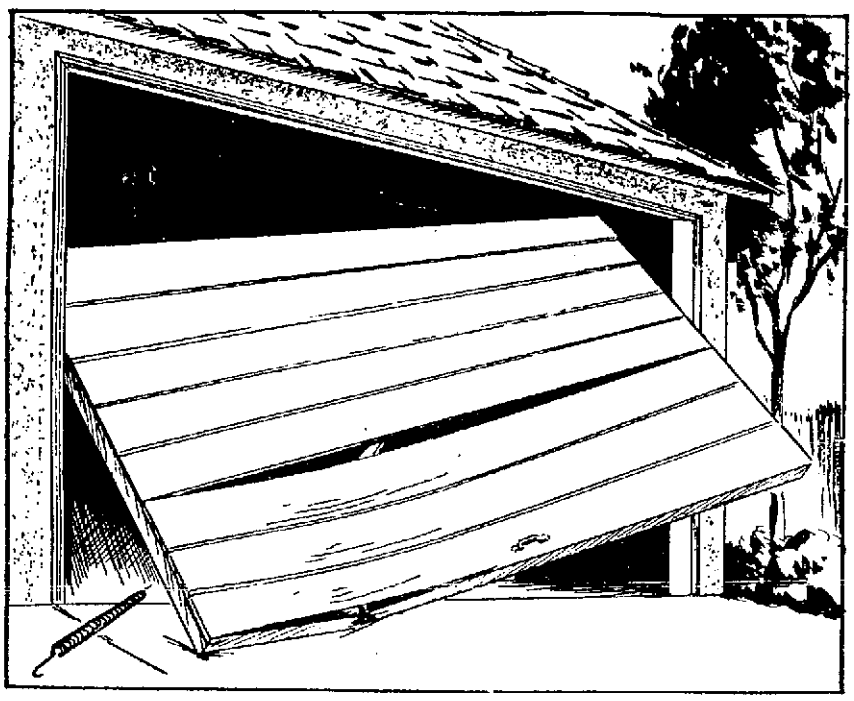

Old maids and bachelors do not exist for the families arrange early marriages for all children between the ages of 14 and 20. In accordance with a centuries-old custom, the boy and girl have to be of the same age. Inter-marriage with the Mexicans was strictly forbidden.

In 1930, Jack Dempsey built a large resort hotel and gambling casino at Ensenada and a white Russian, Daniel for short, was hired to decorate it. When Daniel heard of the Russian Col-

Russian-inscribed grave marker in Guadalupe Valley; may be symbolic of colony's gradual decline.

Moices Michicoff is 20, married. His father, still living, came over with the original group in 1905.

ony at Guadalupe, he immediately decided that it was his duty to tell them of the important things that had happened since they left Russia.

Daniel rode to the village to tell them the great news. As he was the first Russian to visit Guadalupe since its founding in 1905, the elders were greatly impressed and called a village meeting to hear his words.

They listened in complete silence as Daniel told them his great news. When Daniel finished the village patriarch rose slowly with the "Book of Wisdom" in his hands. He declared that the Book, their Bible and the only book permitted in the village, describes the Czar as the enemy of all mankind, but did not say anything about his overthrow or death. The village immediately decided that Daniel was a tax collector sent by the Czar to spy them out, and he was lucky to escape with his life from the aroused villagers.

As the old folks died and were buried in the small village cemetery the younger generation came into its own.

Only 27 families remain in the village and their numbers grow fewer and fewer. In another half century it is doubtful if this bit of Russia in old Mexico will still exist.

A FIRE DEPARTMENT expends as much energy going to a false alarm as it does to a real fire, and how very much like fire departments we humans are. We love to invite friends to our homes, then spend so much time and energy rounding up "the soup to nuts" that we're plumb tuckered out by the time they arrive.

One of the simplest forms of entertainment, and one which has the least chance of turning into just a false alarm as far as gracious hospitality goes, is a tea. You can't go wrong with a tea party, whether it be for two or 200.

Our hostess today, Mrs. Milton Katz, 1041 Tehachapi Dr., is a hostess in every sense of the word.

At her tea today, she is serving Tiny Cream Puffs, Miniature Chocolate Eclairs and Appetizers. She uses cream puff mixture as the base for all three, so that is the featured recipe of the day, to be found elsewhere on this page.

Mrs. Katz's Cream Puff Mixture:

½ cup butter
1 cup water
1 cup bread flour
3 eggs (unbeaten)

Add butter to water in saucepan. When butter is melted add flour (all at once) and stir vigorously until mixture no longer sticks to sides of pan. Remove from stove, cool slightly, add eggs one at a time, beating after each egg is added. Drop mixture from teaspoon or squeeze through pastry tube, some distance apart, on buttered tins, in 1 to 1½-inch balls. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 325° F. and bake about 10 minutes longer. Remove from baking sheet and cool. Cut one side, fill with custard or whipped cream. Dip tops in a variety of colored and flavored frostings.

Make a plain icing, as a foundation, but use no flavor. Take a small portion at a time, flavor and color as desired with fruit, coffee, lemon, orange and chocolate. Let stand until dry.

Gracious hostess is Mrs. Milton Katz, whose teas are famed for good things to eat. See cooking article.

Custard Filling

1 cup scalded milk
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 yolks of eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla

Mix cornstarch and sugar, add hot milk and pour gradually on the eggs, slightly beaten. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened. Cool and flavor with vanilla.

Whipped Cream Filling

2 tablespoons powdered sugar
1 cup heavy cream
½ teaspoon vanilla

Have cream ice cold, beat until stiff, add sugar gradually and vanilla and continue beating until firm.

Plain Icing

1 cup powdered sugar
2 tabl. spoons hot water (milk or cream)

Stir liquid into sifted sugar, a little at a time. The icing is of the proper consistency when it coats the spoon.

Miniature Chocolate Eclairs

Squeeze Cream Puff Mixture through pastry tube some distance apart on buttered tins in oblong shapes, 4x1½ inches. When baked and cooled, open at one side and fill with custard filling. Dip in chocolate frosting. Let stand until dry.

Chocolate Frosting

1¾ cups powdered sugar
1 ounce chocolate (shaved)
6 tablespoons boiling water
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

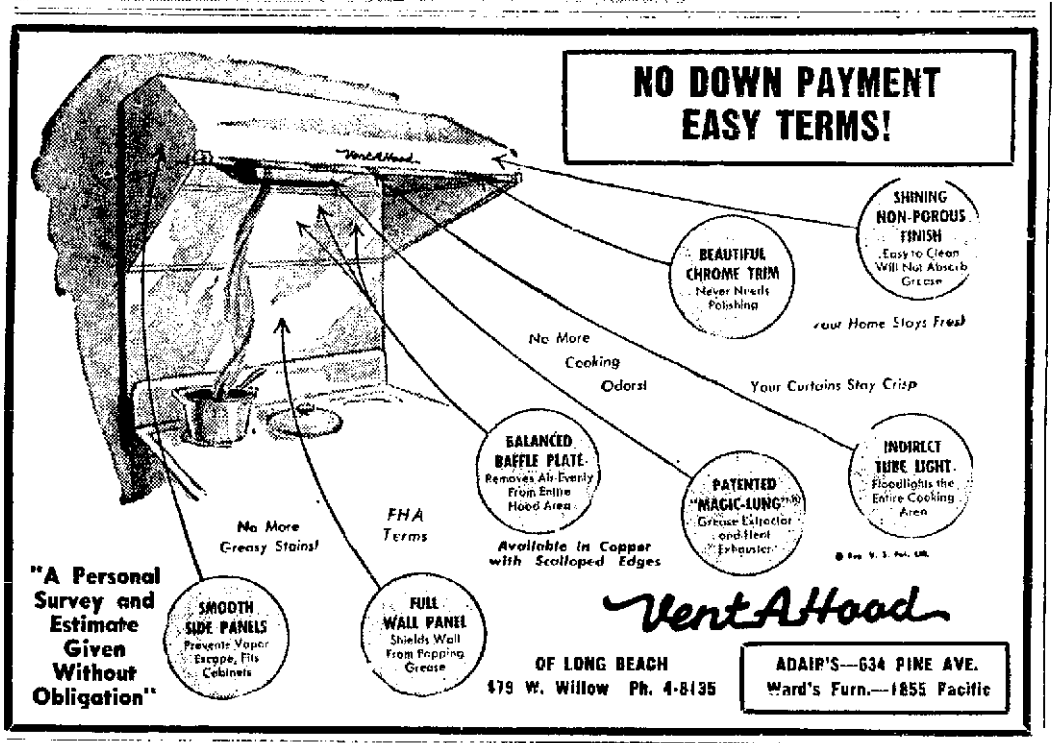

Melt chocolate over hot water, add boiling water and stir until smooth; add vanilla and stir in sifted sugar, stirring until mixture is smooth. Spread.

Appetizer

When Cream Puff Mixture has been baked and cooled, fill with chicken, seafood salad or well seasoned sandwich spread (omit frostings).

Kitchen Tip:

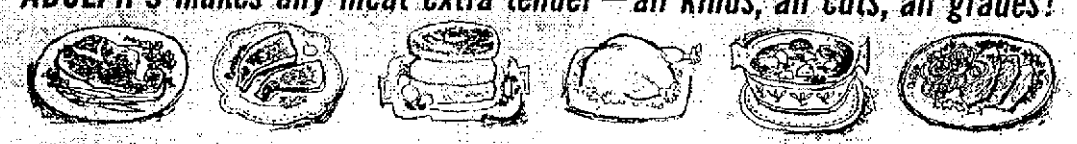

Mrs. Katz' Kitchen Tip: To cream sugar and butter easily, warm the sugar slightly.

smart wives use Adolph's every time they cook meat!

ADOLPH'S makes any meat extra tender—all kinds, all cuts, all grades!

1. With Adolph's you can serve more meat more often—cooked the way your family likes it—without increasing your food budget.

2. Adolph's reduces cooking time up to one-third and cuts meat shrinkage too. It locks in nourishing juices and healthful vitamins.

3. So easy to use—every time! Simply sprinkle Adolph's on all meat surfaces, pierce all sides generously with a fork and let stand at room temperature at least ½ hour for each ½ inch thickness of meat before cooking.

4. Adolph's is a 100% natural food product. It is available at your grocers in the condiment or spice section.

here's how smart wives serve steak often!

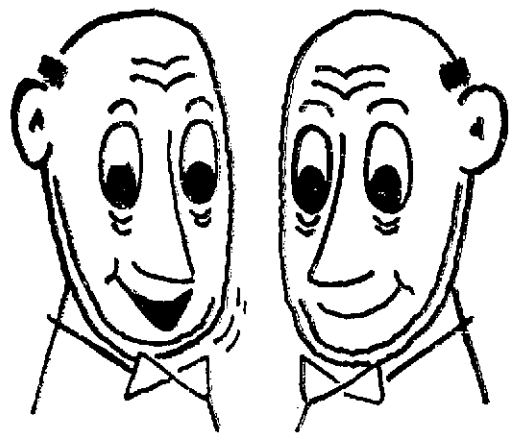

Select an inexpensive round or chuck steak 1½" thick. Slash fat edges to prevent curling. Sprinkle both sides evenly with Adolph's, using at least ½ tsp. per lb. of meat. Pierce both sides at intervals of 1 inch with fork. Leave at room temperature for 1½ hours. Place in broiler 3" from heat surface and broil 8 min. on each side for rare, 10 min. on each side for medium or 12 min. on each side for well done. Pick up Adolph's other FREE RECIPES at your favorite food store.

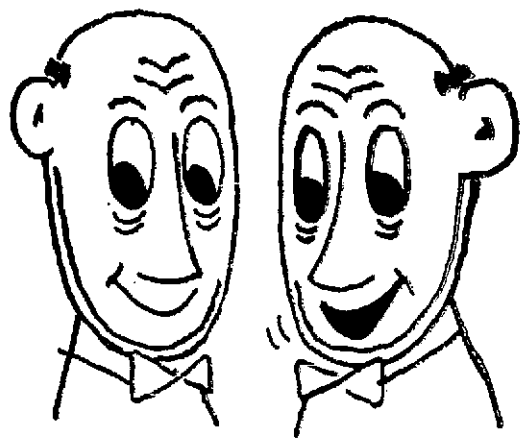

(Don't be surprised if a kiss is your reward!)

Giant old palms give the L. A. Mayes' home in Los Cerritos an air of permanence although the house is new.

Dining room windows, curtained in rose boucle, overlook front lawn. Walls are papered in unusual grass cloth.

By Eileen Ball

"THE SHOEMAKER'S CHILDREN always go barefoot," so the saying goes. This is to imply, also, that the baker's children go without bread and the builder's family goes without a house.

The L. A. Mayes prove that the old saying doesn't hold. Last September they moved into a new home built by Mr. Mayes at 3860 Pacific Ave.

Redwood board and batten siding painted a rich coffee tone combines with used brick and shake roofing to present a gracious exterior to the 2100-square-foot building.

A WALK lighted by a coach lamp leads to the small front porch capped with used brick. A door with tiny window panes in its topmost panels opens to callers and admits them to the entry hall.

Cocoa-rose carpet stretches from the entry into the living room, the dining room to the left and down the hallway to the right. This unbroken expanse of a single color fabric increases the feeling of restful spaciousness.

The living room fireplace of common brick is situated in a way that its sturdy masonry back turns itself to the entry. Forming a sort of free-standing wall, it provides an immediate focal point of interest.

A step to the left takes one around the fireplace side and on into the living room. Added textural interest is created in here with the use of vertical cherry paneling on one wall. Rich in color and surface finish, this deep-toned wood adds a charm that would be difficult to attain with any other material.

ALSO CRAFTED OF CHERRY are the bookshelves and cabinet unit that flank the fireplace to the left. The artistically turned cornice and the exact fashioning of the doors for the lower cupboards gives this built-in sectional all the finesse of a fine piece of case furniture. And as is true with any custom furnishing, it is possible to have one's exact desires met. The Mayes' elder son brought back with him from Europe an exquisite clock.

The entire back wall, adjoining the expansive terrace, is glass with enormous sliding panels that open for greater maneuverability of party guests. Socially active, Mrs. Mayes planned this feature to accommodate any overflow of guests as well as for the wonderful view of the back garden it affords.

Pastel rose-beige boucle draperies pull across the window wall to break glare and create a rosy overlone to the room without obliterating the view. Overdraperies are of deep chocolate cotton faille patterned with rose-to-creamy beige roses and blue iris. The same fabric was sculpture-quilted for the upholstery on the 12-foot curved sectional that spans half the width of the window wall.

Diamond-paned windows in the dining room overlook the front lawn. Draperies of rose boucle filter the west light over sedate Duncan Phyfe furnishings.

FURTHER TRADITIONAL ELEGANCE is lent by the hanging chandelier of cut crystal and the large beveled plate mirror over the buffet. The walls are papered in a contemporary fabric — peach Japanese grass cloth.

Again, in view of the amount of entertaining the house must accommodate, the dining room is made more functional with a pass-through in the butler's pantry just next to the kitchen. Here, on a level with a serving surface created by an under-counter storage unit, small sliding doors may be opened to the dining room. A hidden buffet is thereby established upon which dessert may be arranged before dinner, out of sight of guests yet ready for serving.

Fabric matching the green-and-rust wallpaper is used with sill-length ecru draperies in the Mayes' dinette.

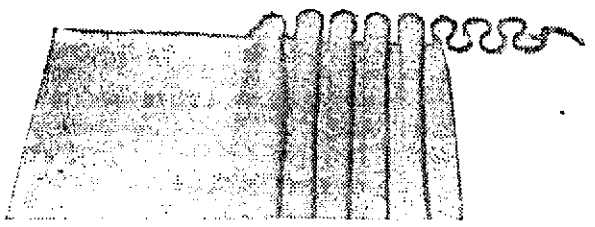

An abundance of exquisitely crafted red birch cabinets highlight the kitchen-dinette and give the area the sort of "living room" beauty that usually comes with the inclusion of fine furniture.

The hardware of the built-ins is of hammered copper, which is reflected on a scalloped copper hood over the built-in electric range. Counter tops are of ivory and brown-flecked oatmeal ceramic tile. The walls are painted creamy yellow.

A quaint dinette set of glossy dark mahogany features ladder back chairs. The walls of the eating area are papered in a tiny pale green and rust provincial print, which is repeated in matching fabric used to border the ecru-toned, pleated, sill-length draperies.

Mr. Mayes' study is at the end of a short hallway leading from the kitchen, past the service area with its half bath and is located a short flight of steps up over the garage. It is a large room, 20x20, furnished with an oversized desk, studio couches and white and brown narrow wood slat draperies.

In the other wing of the house are two bedrooms. One is the Mayes' son's — a good looking room carried out in aqua, gold and white.

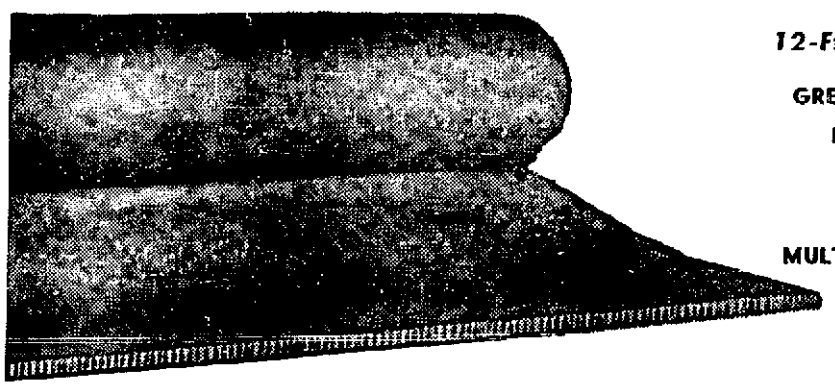

The master bedroom is papered in rose-mauve flocked paper with an unusual textural interest. The design is of field flowers, fluffy and interesting to the touch.

Twin mahogany four-poster beds set the colonial feeling for the room which overlooks, through large organdy-curtained windows, the terrace beyond.

This drawing shows the pleasant arrangement of the L. A. Mayes' home.

TELEVISION

They Visit the 'City at Night'

By John Frederick
Press-Telegram Radio-TV Columnist

THE GREATEST mystery about KTLA's "City at Night" each Thursday night isn't "where will it originate?" but rather, "why don't they announce where it will be?" The show has a great deal to offer in education and entertainment but as long as it is not known where the program originates, not enough people tune in.

The show itself is the brain child of Klaus Landsberg, vice president and general manager of Paramount Television Productions, Inc., operators of KTLA. He put the first one on the air at the General Service movie studios where sets for "Destination Moon" were viewed and explained.

Ken Graue, a former Long Beach resident, is the host-narrator-emcee and jack-of-all-trades. He has visited and explained a different locale or situation each week ever since.

Long Beach has been a popular port of call for "City at Night" and on July 12, 1950, the show originated in our harbor as the U. S. Marines embarked for duty in Korea. Other local shows have been the landing of Marines on Dec. 6, 1950, the arrival of the SS Caronia on Jan. 10, 1951, the Globe Trotters basketball game from the Auditorium on Jan. 31, the Atomic Energy Exhibit on July 18 and Roller Derby from the Stadium on August 22, the Water Ski Festival Aug. 19, 1953; Long Beach Harbor on Jan. 28, 1954, and this year the Jan. 6 "Operation Rainbow" and on March 8 the new fire boat in L. B. Harbor.

DURING THE YEARS of "City at Night," the show has picked up two "Emmy" awards in the Public Service classification from the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences as well as honors from many P-T. A., service club and university groups.

Graue, who attended Long Beach City College from 1939 to 1941, was the male lead in the college's play opposite Barbara Britton. Miss Britton has reached the heights of moviedom

St. Catherine's Boys Win a War

By Vera Williams

ANAHEIM.

FOR 65 YEARS St. Catherine's has stood behind its wide apron of green lawn on Palm Street in Anaheim. Three generations of boys have come and gone. The great gray buildings have been silent witnesses to their trials and victories.

Now new honors are coming to St. Catherine's. The military school is the locale of "The Private War of Major Benson," Universal-International's epic in color, due to be released in two or three months. Charles Heston and Julie Adams star—but the boys of St. Catherine's march and play in it.

Today, St. Catherine's Military School, 215 N. Palm St., Anaheim, has its annual fiesta and barbecue, from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m., open to the public. Proceeds will go to the Father Maguire Memorial Chapel Fund, from which it is hoped eventually to build a chapel to the memory of Father William A. Maguire, for 30 years a Navy chaplain — the famed chaplain of Pearl Harbor Day — who after his retirement served as chaplain to boy cadets at St. Catherine's until his death in 1953.

FATHER MAGUIRE was credited with saying "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition"—although he always denied it.

Red Skelton, Jerry Colonna, the Modernaires, Bob Crosby and his orchestra, Vince Barnett and the Mulcays are slated to entertain at today's fiesta. Stage shows featuring Hollywood personalities are slated for 1, 3, 5 and 7 p. m. with Bob Crosby master of ceremonies. Crosby's son is a fifth grader at St. Catherine's.

Events of the day include: 2 p. m. concert by the U. S. Marine Corps band from El Toro; 3 p. m., fashion show; 4 p. m., talk by Col. Francis Gabreski, USAF, who holds the Congressional Medal of Honor; 5 p. m., retreat parade and drill, directed by Maj. Gen. C. H. Schilt, USMC, another Congressional Medal of Honor man; 6:30 p. m., Hollywood show, Vince Barnett, emcee. Cash and prizes totaling $2,500 will be awarded. A fiesta barbecue dinner will be served from 1 to 5 p. m.

IN 1888, Rev. Father Stoeter, rector of St. Boniface Church in Anaheim, asked Mother Pia, superior general of the Sisters of St. Dominic in Mission San Jose, to open an academy in Anaheim. A three-acre tract was bought.

With Mother Amanda as superior, Sisters Vincentia, Emilia and Catherine went to Anaheim in 1889. The academy was dedicated by the Most Rev. Francis Mora, bishop of Los Angeles. Boys and girls, boarders and day students, were accommodated.

FIVE YEARS LATER, the Most Rev. James Montgomery, bishop of Los Angeles, appealed to St. Catherine's to accept orphans. Twenty-one little waifs were accepted from the Sisters of Charity in Los Angeles. In the next 19 years, St. Catherine's expanded to cover 26 acres.

When orphans were placed in private homes, St. Catherine's again opened its doors as a boys' boarding school. In 1923, the military aspect became prominent and, in 1925, His Excellency John J. Cantwell, archbishop of Los Angeles, officially approved St. Catherine's Military School.

TO ITS CADETS, St. Catherine's flashes the words of Cardinal Gibbons: "If your character is above reproach, you will win the battle of life."

"The Private War of Major Benson," in which many of St. Catherine's lads expect to see themselves as actors, tells the heartwarming story of Maj. Bernard R. (Barney) Benson (Charlton Heston), soldier of the old school who finds himself training cadets in a military school run by nuns. Dr. Kay Lambert (Julie Adams), just out of medical school, is the resident physician. There is a love interest, of course, and after quite a few vicissitudes, military-wise and otherwise, it all ends happily. The cast includes William Demarest, Tim Considine, Sal Mineo, Nana Bryant, Milburn Stone, Mary Field, Tim Hovey, Donald Keeler, Don Haggerty, Yvonne Peattie, Mary Alan Hokanson, Edward C. Platt, Kay Stewart — and the boys of St. Catherine's.

St. Catherine's School, Anaheim, wins new fame in movie, "The Private War of Major Benson." Here, Charlton Heston huddles with the football players.

Former Long Beach resident, Ken Graue, is emcee of popular "City at Night," Thursday evening show on KTLA.

City at Night

and now TV ("Mrs. North" of the "Mr. and Mrs. North" series) but as Ken says, "I just wasn't discovered."

Ken joined the Marine Corps and went overseas during the war and came out of the service as a first lieutenant in December, 1945. He married a girl from Stockton's College of the Pacific and they headed for a honeymoon in Hawaii. This lasted for three years as Ken went to work as an announcer on KGMB and later KPOA in Honolulu. Their son, Denny, now 7, was born in the islands.

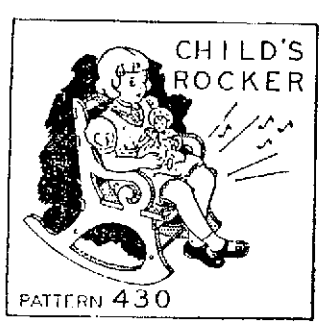

The Graues have another son, Mark, age 16 months, and they live in South Pasadena. Ken and Lucy have virtually built the entire house, including the swimming pool, from his own designs. A neighbor has aided in the project and Ken says, "We've really got a livable house designed just the way we wanted it."

This being emcee of "City at Night" isn't all it is cracked up to be. Take for instance the night he was concluding the show alongside a swimming pool where an aquashow had been staged. Just as he was ready to say his final good-bye, someone gave him a shove and, fully clothed, into the pool he went.

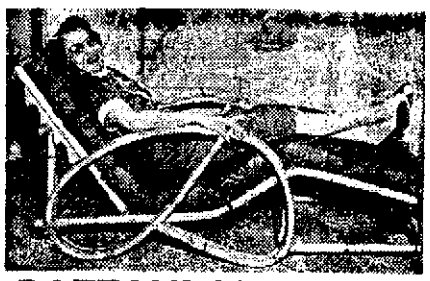

"Klaus Landsberg is always looking for a unique way to conclude these shows," said Ken. "This time he thought a dunking would be very funny. Well, it was to the viewers, but not to me. If I had expected it that would have been different, but I appreciate the idea and now am on guard for fear some night I'll be at a cannery and wind up as part of a sardine shipment."

Besides his regular weekly "City at Night," from which he has never had a vacation (he dashes back to do the show even during his annual leave) he has 16 shows per week . . . just about all a man can normally handle.

You Make It

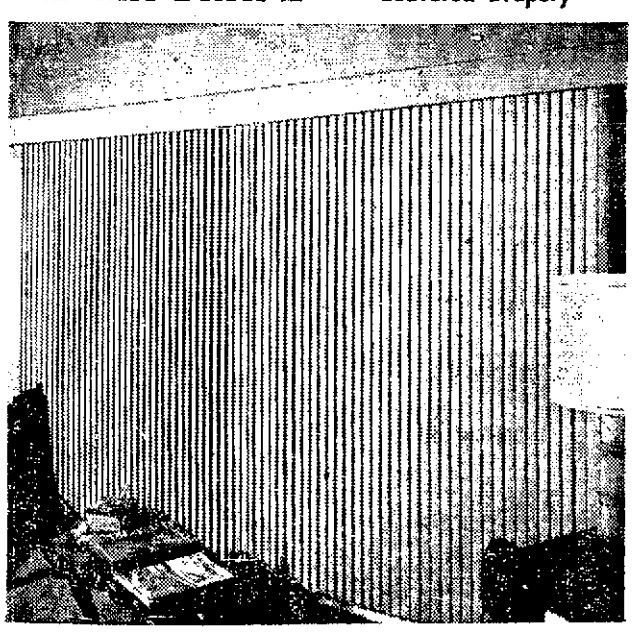

This roomy rocker will please most any little boy or girl. While the lines are rather quaint, the sides and seat are each cut out from modern plywood in a single piece. The assembly is quick and easy with cross pieces of solid stock. An attractive feature that may be added to this chair is the pendulum type musical movement that plays 18 notes of "Rock-a-bye Baby." These movements sell for about $3.50 at hobby supply stores. The saw lines are traced from the pattern to the wood. Everything is complete on pattern 430, which may be ordered from the address below for 25 cents. Send orders to: Pattern Dept., Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, Bedford Hills, N. Y.

Animals

Perkins, director of the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago, has installed glazed partitions between the public and the monkeys, and, except for those who have outside cages, this is not only adequate protection for the monkeys, but it also prevents them from contracting diseases, such as common colds.

In most instances, it is not peanuts that cause the most trouble but undigestible articles such as nails, razor blades, broken glass, paper clips, rubber balls, rocks and even lighted cigars and cigarettes. Perkins reported that all of these items were found in the cages at his zoo.

The Chicago zoo had a female elephant that would eat practically anything. When she died pieces of coal and bottle caps were found in her stomach.

C. N. BALDWIN, director of the San Francisco Zoological Gardens, said that his zoo forbids feeding of only the giraffe and chimpanzees. He has observed that the western zoos allow visitors to feed the animals, whereas eastern zoos, as a rule, prohibit this practice. Nevertheless, one to three animals die each year at the San Francisco Zoo from overfeeding by the public.

Feeding of animals requires accurate zoological and dietary knowledge which the zoo visitor does not have. Animals, like human beings, are fussy when it comes to food and how it is served.

Every animal in a well-kept zoo has a feeding chart — a record of the foods consumed by an individual animal for a given week.

So—the next time you go to the zoo, don't feed the animals!

side, stretched tight and tacked to outside surfaces of chair supports.

SO THAT TACKS will not show in the finished chair, the final cover of the outside arms and outside back are blindtacked at the top of the arms and back. To blindtack, let the material drape over the top of the arm or back with reverse side showing. Place a cardboard strip about one-half inch wide over the top edge of the fabric at the top of the arm (or back) where the fabric should be attached. Tack through the cardboard, then stretch the fabric down over the cardboard strip and tack bottom edge of fabric under the seat rails.

After each section has been covered with your wool fabric, finishing touches will be to cover seams at the front of the arms and along the sides of the back with the welts which you ordered from an upholsterer or made yourself. Black cambric is stretched across the bottom of the seat and tacked and then the skirt is attached.

Trouble Ripe for Violence

IN SCOTLAND, Flora MacDonald was a heroine who saved the life of Bonnie Prince Charlie when he had been hunted by British soldiers. In "The Scotswoman," by Inglis Fletcher (Bobbs-Merrill, $3.95) the removal of Flora, her family and compatriots, to America is begun. The Scots had much to do with the settlement of North Carolina, and when the MacDonalds arrived, trouble was ripe for violence with the British, the old enemies of the fighting Scots. Still, Allan MacDonald took the Tory oath and fought against the Colonial forces bent upon liberty. For a time Flora remained aloof from politics, until the choice lay between speaking up for the king, or denying her husband.

This is a rich and exciting novel, filled with characters of conflicting ideals and ideas. But it is still difficult for the mass of American readers to accept the Tory as a Revolutionary War hero, even though Mrs. Fletcher has given the best of her art to it. - G. L.

REMINISCENT of California's romantic Gold Rush days is "The Girl from Frisco," a lively novel by William Neuman (Morrow, $3). Except part of it concerns not gold but silver, which has been mined only in negligible quantities in the Golden State.

A man and a woman, the latter of dubious reputation, riding into the mining town of Kincaid on a Concord, inherit the stage line before their ride ends. How they make the line pay despite shenanigans of an unknown person out to ruin them make up the book. But no one is fooled for a minute as to the identity of the villain, except possibly the new owners of the stage line.—F. T. K.

IRIS HOLIDAY, beautiful daughter of a musical comedy star, has man trouble all the way in "The Four Fates," novel by Margaret Mackay (John Day, $4.50). After a severe case of puppy love, she has an unrequited marriage and then an extremely requited affair. This dissolves into a lusty marriage and is followed by a begatting spree in marriage No. 3. Iris just couldn't say "No," but this reviewer can.—G. C. F.

RUDYARD KIPLING once wrote, "I do not assert that it is impossible to hold intelligent conversation without the help of an atlas. But I do say that as soon as men begin to talk about anything interesting that really matters, someone has to get an atlas."

Well, Kipling would have been delighted with the beautiful new "Hammond's Ambassador World Atlas" (C. S. Hammond & Co., $12.50), one of the most comprehensive books of its kind published in recent years for office, home or school. It contains 416 pages, with 326 maps of which 241 are in full color, with a four-foot by three-foot wall map. In addition to detailed maps of every country and geographical area, state and province maps, vital distribution maps, resource-relief maps, there are also maps of human and physical geography, stratosphere maps and air age and polar maps. And, as if that were not enough, the gazeteer section contains more than 100,000 entries with pictures and 2,500 paragraphs describing the world's principal cities. Somewhere in it would have been the answers to all of Kipling's questions.- F. T. K.

BETTY BRIDGMAN'S "Lullaby For Eggs" (Macmillan, $1.75) — Dear Mrs. Bridgman: Your beautiful blue book, with Elizabeth Orton Jones' perfect pictures on every page, your immaculate phrases facing her colorful art, is before me; and I must confess that I was green with envy when I first read your "Lullaby For Eggs" in The Christian Science Monitor; and later I turned a violent green when I read that Macmillan had paid you $400 for these fourteen lines. Written for adults, your work is now claimed by children; and I thank you for shrinking me and chopping 33 years off my age, making me 10 again. Truly, "Lullaby For Eggs" is the most enchanting book of the year - for child or for adult. Yours sincerely and gratefully, JOSEPH JOEL KEITH.

AN ARTIST whose work is now exhibited in more than 30 of the nation's finest museums and has won two Guggenheim Fellowships, discusses his techniques in "Water Color, Gouache, and Casein Painting" (Studio-Crowell, $5.95). Adolf Dehn attempts to engender in the reader-artist the combination of passion and patience which, he says, every artist should possess. And he discusses for beginners his step-by-step methods in language that anyone can understand. Because Dehn is noted as a teacher, his methods should prove invigorating for advanced students, too. - F. T. K.

ALEUTIAN CHILDREN were amazed that American women wore "dead chickens" on their hats; when their Christmas dolls broke, they carried in their arms "stone babies," smooth stones wrapped in blankets. And when the children prayed, "Give us this day our daily bread," they said "gingerbread," instead, because gingerbread meant a party. This insight into life much different from our own is given by Mary E. Winchell in "Where the Wind Blows Free" (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $4) about her experiences as the matron in a mission orphanage at Unalaska. The book has unobtrusive humor, pathos and great kindness. — V. W.

NEW PAPERBACKS you'll like: "Revolt in 2100," excitement in the U. S. A. of tomorrow, by Robert A. Heinlein (Signet, $.25); "What, When, Where and How to Drink," a first-time-published manual on party giving with more than 250 recipes, by Richard L. Williams and David Myers (Dell First Edition, $.25); "Too Near the Sun," a novel of passions by Gordon Forbes (Dell First Edition, $.35); "Woman of the Avalon," novel of the New Mexico territory by L. L. Foreman (Dell First Edition, $.25); "Fort Sun Dance," an outpost against the Sioux, by Manly Wade Wellman (Dell First Edition, $.25); "The Schirmer Inheritance," deadly intrigue by Eric Ambler (Bantam, $.25); "Of Mice and Men," by John Steinbeck (Bantam, $.35).

RESORTS AND TRAVEL

Italy Boasts of Two Rivieras

FROM Genoa, Italy's busy northern seaport as a gateway, tourists may take in the whole, wide sweep of the Italian Riviera with its fun, flowers and sunshine, at much lower prices than are current along France's better-known adjacent strip of Mediterranean real estate.

Actually, Italy boasts not one Riviera but two—the Riviera di Ponente which stretches from the French border to Genoa, and the Riviera di Levante which stretches all the way down from Genoa to La Spezia. So completely linked together are the little seaside resort towns bordering on the deep blue Mediterranean coastline that it's hard to tell where one ends and another begins.

Pan American World Airways Photo

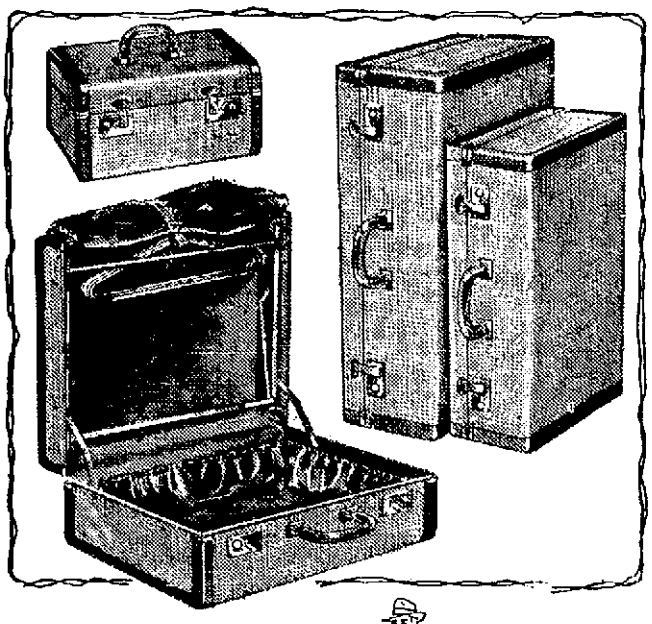

Popular on Italian Riviera is Portofino, noted for its harbor and yacht basin and for international cuisine.

Along the coastal highway, which the ancient Romans called the Via Aurelia, are places like Ventimiglia, Bordighera and Ospedaletti, all bathed in warm sunshine and dotted with umbrella-shaded cafes and restaurants open for business all year round, even in December. Flowers abound everywhere and perfume from the exotic flowers is shipped out in large quantities throughout the world. Good hotels are available at low rates, and private villas are readily available.

The Queen City of the Riviera di Ponente is San Remo, one of Italy's top resorts, noted for its famous gambling casino.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

"Can you suggest what I should wear on an eight-day freighter trip to the Panama Canal Zone? Sports clothes according to the company pamphlets . . ."

WELL, make them OLD sports clothes if this is an American freighter. I think shorts, old slacks and jeans are best. The problem with American freighters is dirt. They blow the stacks every few days and you are sitting in soot.

The deck hands' union seems to have taken away certain work rights — such as inside ship painting — from other unions. This was to keep the deck hands in plenty of overtime pay. The only trouble is, the deck hands don't always want to work overtime. There, decks don't get washed down every day.

"I have a small investment income of $125 a month. Would this be adequate to live modestly in Europe? By modestly, I mean the equivalent of $200 monthly budget in Kansas City . . ."

YES, probably better than $200 in K. C. Your countries for this are Ireland, Austria, Portugal.

"Do we need birth certificates for Mexico? Where do we change American dollars into pesos. Should we secure a book on Spanish conversational speech?

If there is no question of your birth in the United States (by accent, for instance), you don't need the birth certificate. The border immigration officers just ask you where you were born when you come back.

You need a Mexican tourist permit from a Mexican consul. You are supposed to bring proof of citizenship.

Change your pesos in a Mexican bank when you cross the border. Those highway hotels take a big bite for themselves when they change dollars. I think a Spanish phrase book is a big help.

Try a Trick or Two!

By the Shutterbug

MAY EVENINGS SEEM to us to be the ideal time for trying something new and different, for experimenting and finding new interests. And today we've got a suggestion to pass along — trick photography.

Don't think for a minute that trick photography's something for the experts — the box camera crowd can have their fun with it, too. As a matter of fact, much of trick picture taking is merely a matter of making mistakes on purpose.

One of the easiest and most effective varieties of trick photography is based on that familiar snapshooting gremlin, the double exposure. Most of us know all too well how to do this when we don't want to, but now we'll tell you how to do it for fun.

First of all, you have to put your camera on a tripod or other solid support, because these have to be time exposures. Camera movement would spoil the trick in this case.

To take a picture like the one we've used to illustrate today's column, set up your table where you can have a plain dark background. One way to achieve this is to put it in front of a door which is opened into a darkened room. Place your subject in the first position. Snap the picture. Then, without winding the film, move her to the next position and snap another picture, and so on, if you want her in the picture a third time. Be careful not to move the table. It has to be in the same position for each exposure.

"WESTERN AUTUMN" by Warren Nash won first place in Cinema Club's recent "Film to Fit a Record" contest. Other entries were "Autumn Leaves," Ren Fluke; "Sandpiper Ballet," Lewis Underwood; "Ebb Tide," Bob Ferris. Kyle Holmes showed "The Great White Throne," also fitted to a record, but not in the contest. The next meeting of the Cinema Club will be at 8 p. m. May 19 in Houghton Park clubhouse.

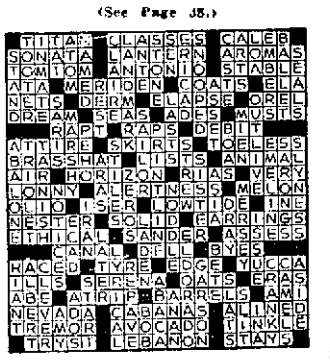

LOUELLA SHODEN, 824 Hoffman Ave. comments that last Sunday she read in the Southland a story about making a record of Long Beach with still pictures. "I am having the time of my life making a movie of Long Beach," she says.

Her suggestions: "The wide sweep of the shore with gay umbrellas, ships at their moorings, beautiful streets, flowering trees and exotic flowers all are here. . . . Use a tripod. This is the first requisite for good steady movies. Second, use an exposure meter. Discard all shots you feel are not up to the best you can do, take re-takes if necessary and then assemble your scenes in the best possible order."

CAMERA GUILD will have a color slide competition at 8 p. m. May 18 in the Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

"Now that we are completely finished with our building program once and for all, may I again take this opportunity to thank you and your organization for the many wonderful services which you have rendered to us in the past. It has always been a pleasure to deal with the Hammond Lumber Company and I don't know what I'd do if I didn't have you and Jimmie to kid. Actually, I am going to have to look for some excuse to come and buy some sticks now and then so that I can heckle you and your staff!

Transplants Fill a Garden Bill

Soil should be firmed thoroughly about the roots of a seedling after it has been set into place in the garden.

By Bob Gilmore

MAY IS THE MONTH of rising temperatures, a time when plants grow with increased vigor, many varieties breaking into bloom almost over-night. This is an excellent month for planting established seedlings. Both annuals and perennials are available with dozens of varieties now on display at garden supply dealers.

The seedlings are usually offered in regulation nursery flats which contain 100 individual plants. If they're on display you may be sure it's the correct planting time. Those transplants may start to bloom just a short time after being planted.

The soil should be prepared before bringing the plants home from the nursery as they should be planted immediately. The roots must not dry out or the sensitive seedlings may suffer a serious set-back. It is advisable to incorporate liberal quantities of American peat with the soil. American peat is clean, easy to use and economical. Just three per cent of it mixed with the soil will increase productivity. The material is especially valuable during the summer season for it absorbs up to 600 times its own weight in water.

ASTER SEEDLINGS take hold rapidly at this time of the year. These fast growing annuals have been a popular choice in hundreds of local gardens for many years. Practically all varieties are now wilt-resistant so you need not worry about losing the mature plants to this dread disease. The Crego or ostrich feather asters are excellent for this locality.

Fill your summer garden with petunias and you'll have blooms for months at a time. Few plants are as persistent in their blooming habits as the ever-popular petunia.

The way to accomplish this garden magic is to prune the plants back rather sharply next fall. You'll be amazed at how bushy they'll become during the winter months. The Ruffled Giants and Dwarf Giants of California are exceptional. The latter prehaps being your best bet for pot culture and window boxes.

Nor should you forget the single bedding petunias which have a tremendous capacity for flower production.

MARIGOLDS are another powerful plant for summer flower production. Some varieties are tremendous in size such as marigold gigantea which grows to three feet and bears flowers from five to six inches in diameter. For the smaller garden site try the Double Dwarf Harmony hybrids, a variety that usually keeps under one foot in height and produces flowers just about two inches across.

Other varieties of seedling plants now available include: Phlox, zinnias, verbenas, delphinium, portulaca, begonia, painted daisy, vinca and carnation. These are the transplants that easily may be moved from the nursery into your own garden.

Forming a basin around a transplant holds water around roots, assures seepage into root zone.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . More and more plants are now breaking into bloom. Which means that you should start a wholesale flower cutting program. Use a sharp cutting edge and cut at an angle rather than straight across. As soon as the blooms have been cut place them in a deep container filled with cold water.

The warm weather will also prove encouraging to all sorts of garden pests. Ants especially will now be on the move. Unfortunately, they may move into your home unless the proper controls are established.

Get your watering equipment in good condition for your plants are going to do a lot more drinking during the next few months. When you water your lawn don't sprinkle it for just a few minutes. It will require a thorough soaking.

Don't Delay Rose Care

Jiminy Cricket is a pert floribunda that pays top dividends for growers who follow a few rules.

By Walter Finch

ROSE CARE is not difficult. If your spring program is carried out on a regular basis, you can expect good results.

According to All-America Rose Selections, the country's leading association of growers, most of the people who complain of trouble in the garden bring it on themselves.

"At this time of the year, garden jobs cannot be put off," says Sidney B. Hutton, AARS, president. "Delay of a week can make molehills into mountains and once behind, it's very difficult to catch up. Yet, spectacular results with today's improved roses can be achieved so easily with a simple, regular program. This is one of the few fields where a beginner can look like a professional in the first year by following a few rules."

Good plants are an important first step. Leading growers recommend the famous All-America varieties which are thoroughly tested for two years before their introduction to the market.

When growth is under way and leaves are forming — fertilizer should be worked into the soil. There are many excellent all-purpose fertilizers on the market, and a heaping tablespoon for each plant will furnish plenty of nourishment. Follow this with a thorough soaking of the ground to carry the food to the roots. The next feeding should follow the first blooming, and the third should be put down early in August.

LIGHT CULTIVATION or an effective mulch will keep weeds under control. Remember one note of caution in connection with cultivation: Do not penetrate too deeply. Roses throw out a network of hairlike roots quite near the ground surface, and these are easily damaged by the over-zealous gardener.

Damage from fungus diseases and pests can be held to a minimum by starting a regular feeding and spraying program now. Dust or spray every 10 days and after each rain. Take care to cover both sides of the foliage for complete protection.

Fuchsias, because they seem to help gardeners along, are popular with all who give them space.

Fuchsias: Happy Gardening Choice

By A. C. MacLeod

FUCHSIAS are a gardening delight to beginning and advanced gardeners both, for they literally seem to help the grower along.

The flowering shrubs are named for a 16th Century German professor, Leonard Fuchs, who was a leading herbalist and worked hard to establish a method of botanical terminology. The fuchsia is native to Central and South America, Mexico and the West Indies. These geographical areas will readily indicate the type of growing conditions the fuchsia needs: Humidity, partial shade, moisture and lots of food.

In California these conditions are best met along the coast; although, as a contradiction to this, some varieties of fuchsias do very well in the interior valleys of the state. The proper varieties must be selected for culture in the valleys and should be given protection, a lath or the overhanging branches of a large tree.

FUCHSIAS may be planted as upright shrubs, against trellises, trailing in a rock garden or over a sloping area, in hanging baskets, or climbing. For the ideal fuchsia-growing area, the coastal locales, try Blue Flame (violet, blue and rose) or Mauve Beauty (lilac, rose and red) as your bush varieties. In the interior areas of the state some good bush selections are California (orange-red and coral) and Guinevere (orchid-blue and white).

Crown against trellises Lucky Strike (blue, rose and pink) and Patty Evans (white, pink and rose) are excellent. Trailing fuchsias can be used well in rock gardens, over walls and in hilly areas. Some good choices among these are Amapola (orchid-rose and rose) and Muriel (rosy lilac and scarlet) . . . both fine for the coast. For the warmer interior valleys Falling Stars (turkey-red and scarlet) and Swingtime (white and red) satisfy.

If basket fuchsias are your delight, Dr. John Gallway (white and red) and Pan America (light pink and red) are good.

Culture-wise, fuchsias require good drainage in a soil that is rich in humus and on the acid side. Because they are fast-growing and perpetually blooming they need a constant supply of moisture for the roots and will also appreciate overhead sprinklings daily. A mulch of Tomatoes like these and other vegetables can be grown in your own garden, with resulting economy, pleasure.

Grow Your Own--Garden Fresh!

By John Ronson

THERE are few gardening experiences that rival the rewards, in self-satisfaction and actual worth, of a well cared for vegetable garden. Many such plants can be grown from seed in your own yard.

Some of the summer vegetables require a longer growing period and also more initial care than others. It is usually more economical to purchase such plants as transplants from your local garden supply centers.

The vegetable plants in this category are tomatoes, peppers, egg plant and celery. In addition are lettuce and members of the cabbage family, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage and cauliflower, which are also available in most areas.

Tomatoes should be placed deeper in the ground than the plants were in the flat. Plant two feet apart and allow three feet between rows. Irrigate the plants well in trenches between the rows. As the plants grow taller place four stakes around each plant and tie strips of cloth to these stakes to support the plant. Once the blooms appear care must be taken to water only when the plants begin to wilt or the fruit will not set.

Pepper plants should also be set deeper in the ground than they were in the flat. Irrigate in trenches and set plants 18 inches apart in rows and allow two feet between rows. Peppers are similar to tomatoes in that they should not be overwatered once the bloom sets or the fruit will not develop.

Egg plants have similar growth habits to peppers, but should be planted the same depth as they were in the flat. Space two feet apart in the row with three feet between rows.

CELERY, LETTUCE and all members of the cabbage family require continuous moisture with cultivation between irrigations in order to aerate the soil.

This group will not give the best results in an area that is too warm. Space celery 10 inches, lettuce 10 inches, cabbage 12 inches apart in rows with 18 to 24 inches between rows. Brussels sprouts and cauliflower should be spaced 18 inches apart in rows with two to three feet between rows.

The compliments you'll receive at the dinner table for having garden-fresh vegetables cannot be overstated. This reward for having luscious, homegrown vegetables more than justifies the small amount of time and effort spent.

peat or leaf mold will keep their toes cool.

IF THE SOIL is rich and there are no greedy neighbors, the fuchsia plant requires no extra food the first year. After that, apply fertilizer during the main growing and blooming season, always making sure the soil is moist beforehand and that water is given after the feeding.

Generally speaking, healthy fuchsias are relatively free of insects and diseases. If you have any trouble, the California Association of Nurserymen recommends that you use the same sprays on the fuchsias that you are using on your other garden plants. To protect against frost in the interior valleys of the state, pile a mound of coarse sand or peat against the main stems of the bushes. Or you can take up the nearly dormant plants bare-rooted and place them length-wise in a shallow trench and cover with sandy soil.

PET PARADE

Born to Be a Guardian

By Eleanor Avery Price

THE BULL-MASTIFF was evolved for the singular purpose of protecting the lives of the 19th century gamekeepers of the large estates and game preserves in England which were subject constantly to poaching. Poachers would almost inevitably try to shoot it out with the keepers in hopes of escaping rather than facing the punishment meted out by law if apprehended.

Any number of dog breeds were tried out as protectors to find one that would would remain silent yet alert, and one that was fearless and would attack on command yet not maul the intruder.

Among the dogs tried were the bulldog and the mastiff. The bulldog of that time was far different than the gentle pet bulldog of today, and he proved too ferocious and too small. The mastiff was not quite fast enough and not sufficiently aggressive. A crossing of the two breeds produced the perfect dog for the purpose for which he was wanted.

Candy Storm and faithful protector and pal, Buck.

For some time, the bull-mastiff remained a utilitarian dog, and the only steps away from the reason for his being were the contests in which a muzzled bull-mastiff was engaged against a man with a restricted size club. In no instance could a man hold his feet against a dog of proven worth.

Naturally the outstanding performers, both as protectors and as contestants, were used most frequently for breeding purposes, and this assured the survival of the fittest and produced the best conformed dogs. Eventually the breed drew the attention of dog fanciers in this country. He received AKC recognition in October 1933.

A DARK BRINDLE bull-mastiff, often called the keeper's night dog, was preferred during the early years of the breed's existence because he was not too visible. However, as the breed bounded upward in popularity, as was inevitable, a light fawn coloring with black muzzle and densely colored ears became as desirable. Today's bull-mastiff may be either brindle or fawn, with no white points on head or body.

Although born to protect, the bull-mastiff possesses a wonderfully even disposition and a great deal of affection for both children and adults. He has a good scenting ability, is sound, refined, and beautiful, and needs no mutilation to make him so. Although his coat is short, he can tolerate the harshest kind of weather. He is a healthy dog, needing only a minimum of care, and is not as expensive to keep as his size would suggest. The adult male weighs approximately 115 pounds, the female about 100 pounds.

In the picture with this article, Candy Storm, 5, poses with the family's bull-mastiff, Branch of Bullmast (Buck), age 3. Both Candy and Buck are members of the Murray Storm household, 3143 Iroquois Ave., Lakewood Plaza.

IRISH SETTERS will parade in their specialty show on June 4 at Lakewood Country Club. Some of the finest of this breed will be on hand.

BROOKSIDE PARK in Pasadena is the setting of the benched dog show and obedience trial of the Pasadena Kennel Club on Sunday, June 5. Entries must be received by Jack Bradshaw not later than midnight Monday, May 23 (telephone entries not accepted). Specialty shows at this event include shetland sheepdogs, beagles and Boston terriers.

KITTENS and most rabbits can be housebroken to a shallow pan or cookie sheet, the kittens using sand in the pan and the rabbits using newspaper. The pan for a rabbit should be slightly elevated at one end. Put pan where it is accessible and need not be moved except to be washed. Place the pet in the pan several times daily. Be especially patient with a rabbit.

THE "RUNT" of the litter will often catch up with her heartier brothers and sisters if fed a little orange juice daily and given cod liver oil mixed in the evening meal.

HOW TO Plan Built-in Storage for Every-Day Items in Home

CAREFUL planning will put those things you use every day within easy reach when you want them —yet out of sight when they're not in use. Here are some examples of well-planned storage of those things you use frequently.

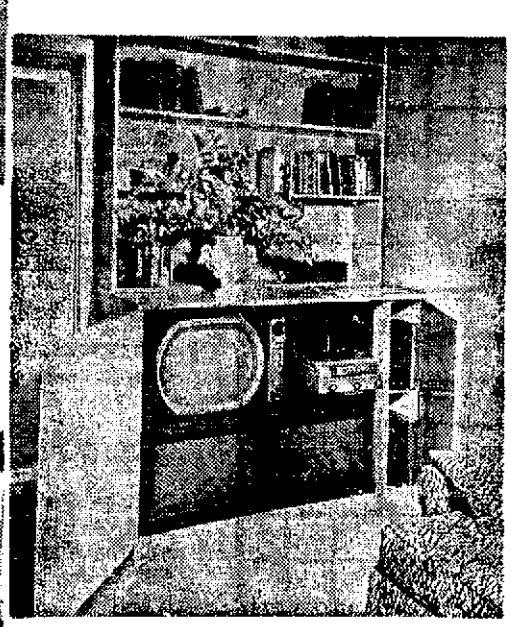

1. MANY MAJOR ITEMS can be tucked away within easy reach in a storage wall. This one, built on either side of a double door, makes it possible to use the room for televiewing, studying, or housing a guest.

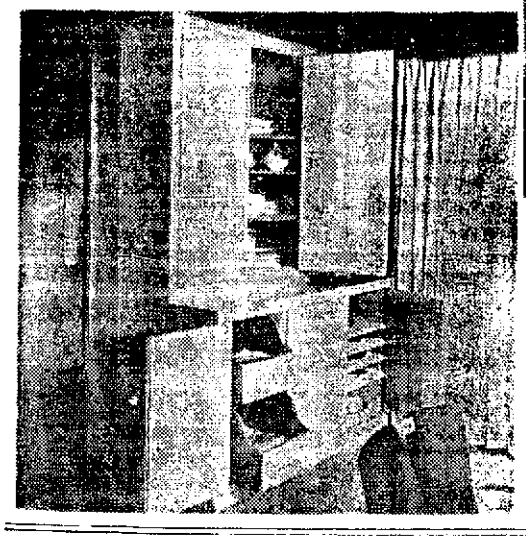

2. A WRITING TABLE pulls from the left of the storage wall. Bottom shelves hold linens for guest sofa beds.

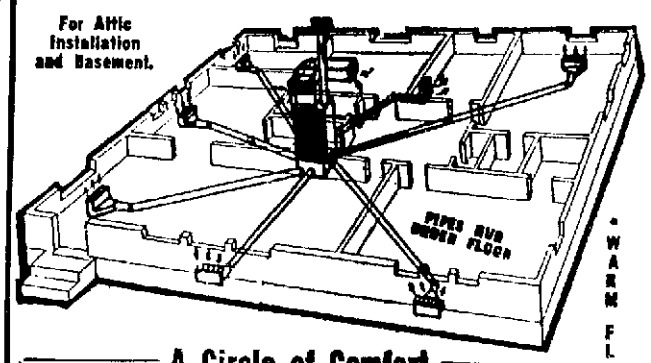

3. TELEVISION SET, radio, and record player are grouped together behind doors on right side of wall. For an evening of home entertainment, the family opens the doors and takes its choice.

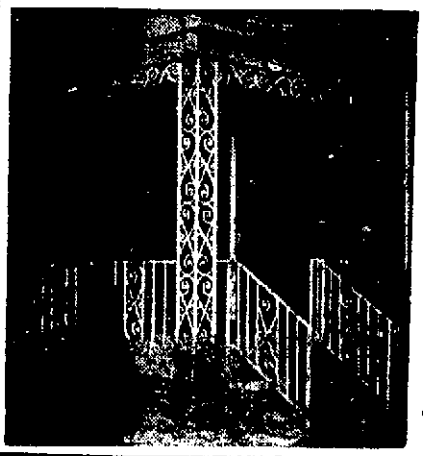

4. ANOTHER STORAGE wall near the dining area will take care of linens, "best" china, and silver. Sliding shelves (lower left) are covered with quilted plastic to protect fragile platters.

They Scalped Indians

Californians returned with their wounded and dead.

On one of his raids he left a party of 15 warriors at a spring where he knew his pursuers would stop to water their horses. Everything worked according to plan. After watering their horses, the Californians lay down for a short rest. The Utes attacked and the surviving Californians returned to San Bernardino on foot. The Utes had taken their horses.

American military forces came into the state and tried to cope with the problem. A company of the Mormon Battalion was stationed at Cajon Pass, the favorite route of the Indians into the desert. There were a number of forays and it was during one of these engagements that they learned of the California custom of paying for scalps. This law was repealed on the spot as far as these soldiers were concerned when they saw a Californian peel a scalp.

Wakera continued his raids right up to the outskirts of Los Angeles. Abel Stearns led one posse and recovered several hundred head of horses after killing ten warriors.

In 1851, the Mormons built a stockade around the city of San Bernardino. But the Indians kept up their attacks and raids.

The Ute raids tapered off in 1855 when Wakera died.

OTHER TRIBES were as active but not as fierce as the Utes. The Mojave and Paiutes got in their innings and rode off with thousands of head of stock leaving dead settlers and burning buildings behind them.

Some mining camps were closed down and no new relocations were allowed for weeks at a time. The miners had fled before the Indians.

One of the last and most sensational attacks occurred in 1866 when the owner of Rancho San Pasquale (now the site of Pasadena) was killed by arrows, together with several of his men.

In all justice to the Indians, several of these raids were led by white men. Pegleg Smith a former mountain man and a Blackfoot chief, led several parties. On one raid his leg was shattered by the bullet of a Californian. Smith amputated his own leg on the trail.

The Inidans had little reason to regard the whites with affection. They were driven from their lands, exploited and murdered. They were regarded as less than human. Fremont's attitude was typical of the day. In one of his journals he wrote that he and his men tried to shoot some game and at least one "Buck" a day.

The Indians fought and lost. But they won some skirmishes and many who know the true facts are glad they did.

TOMMY NOH
It's Demi-Dinner Time

PEOPLE are constantly amazed to learn that the Lafayette Hotel—one of Long Beach's fanciest hostelries serves complete dinners at very modest prices.

One of the most successful dinners dreamed up by Lonnie Bowles, Lafayette catering manager, and his assistant, Tommy Noh, is the hotel's Demi-Dinner. Priced at only $1.95 complete, the Demi-Dinner presents a different entree every night.

Featured entrees include Supreme de Poulet en Jabon which is breast of chicken on ham; country-fried steak, breaded veal cutlets, braised short ribs, leg of lamb, Swiss steak and baked ham. The guest also receives a large bowl of soup, choice of several varieties of appealing chilled salads, potato, another vegetable, hot rolls and blueberry muffins, choice of beverage and choice of dessert. Numerous fine desserts are offered, including strawberry tarts, parfaits, chiffon pies and cheesecake.

Nor is that all. As a finale, the guest receives a generous serving of after-dinner mints.

The Demi-Dinner is served in the hotel's large and glamorous Main Dining Room, which is always open to the public, and also in the comfortable Grill room.

Numerous Table D'Hote dinners are also on the menu. One of the most popular is prime rib—fine, juicy slices — priced at $3.50 on Sundays and $2.95 the rest of the week.

On Fridays at 12:30 p. m., Wilma Hastings presents fashion shows with the emphasis on shapely models who stroll through the Main Dining Room, Grill, Mezzanine and private dining rooms displaying the ultra-latest in clothes and coiffures.

There is no added charge for the fashion shows and no change in luncheon prices, which start at $1.10. —TEDD THOMEY.

ONLY CHEER

WASHES CLOTHES SO WHITE YOU CAN SEE THE DIFFERENCE!

because only blue Cheer has the amazing

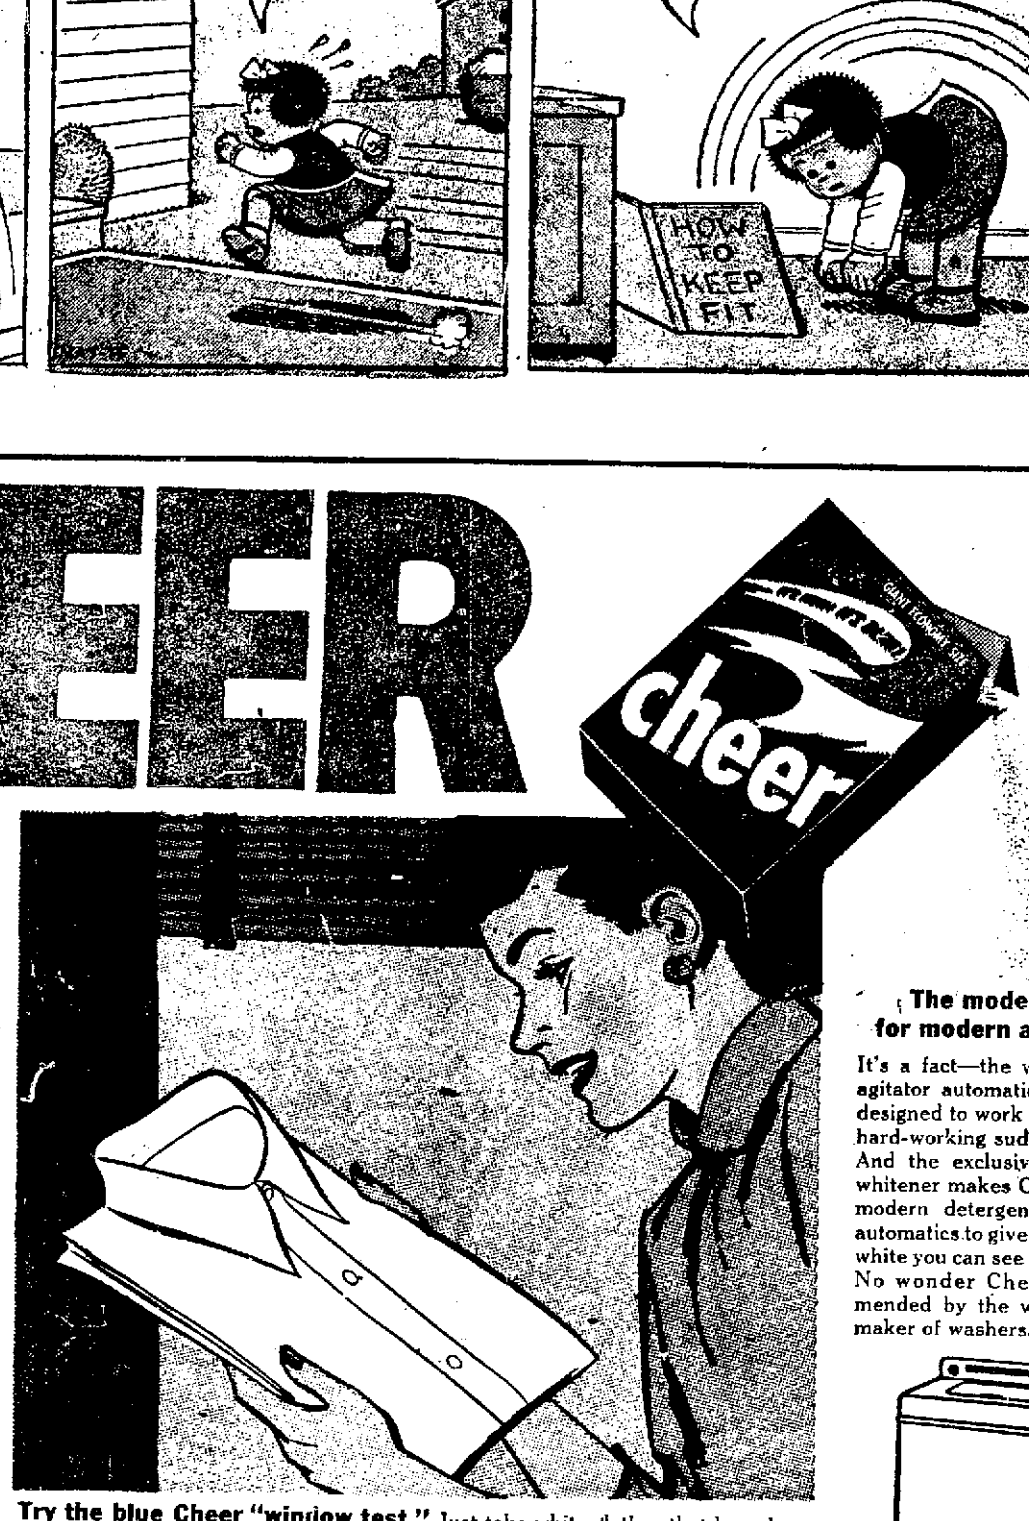

BLUE-MAGIC WHITENER

Not just a bluing! More than a bluing! The new, better whitener for all your wash

It's true! Blue Cheer is like no other product, because only Cheer has the Blue-Magic whitener.

And this Blue-Magic whitener is not merely a bluing; it's more effective than bluing, actually gives your wash a new kind of whiteness . . . so new, so different, so white that one look tells you it can only be a Cheer wash.

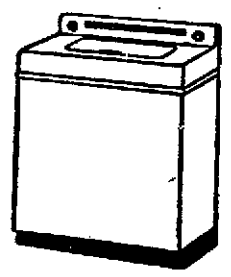

Try blue Cheer with the amazing Blue-Magic whitener. See how it washes out dirt, washes in whiteness with a difference you can see.

Try the blue Cheer "window test." Just take white clothes that have been washed in Cheer to a window. Even on a gray day, you'll see sparkling new whiteness in shirts, sheets, all your regular wash. And when you "window test" really hard-to-whiten things like nylon, you can see a wonderful difference.

The modern suds for modern automatics

It's a fact—the wonderful new agitator automatic washers are designed to work best with rich, hard-working suds like Cheer's. And the exclusive Blue-Magic whitener makes Cheer the truly modern detergent for modern automatics to give you washes so white you can see the difference. No wonder Cheer is recommended by the world's largest maker of washers.

ANDY, CHASING A RABBIT FROM THE VEGETABLE GARDEN, IS BENT ON RUNNING THE THIEF OUT OF THE COUNTRY

GAINING AS THEY RACE ACROSS AN OPEN FIELD, ANDY IS OBLIVIOUS TO EVERYTHING BUT THAT BOBBING WHITE TAIL

BUT WHEN THE RABBIT SUDDENLY DIVES INTO COVER AND MAKES A FAST TURN...

...ANDY IS SO STARTLED AT THE DISAPPEARANCE OF THE "TAIL LIGHT"...

...THAT HE WASTES SEVERAL MOMENTS BEFORE HE REMEMBERS HIS NOSE

AND THE "FLAG-WAVING" RABBIT IS SOON SAFE IN HIS HIDEOUT, RESTING UP FOR ANOTHER RAID ON THE GARDEN

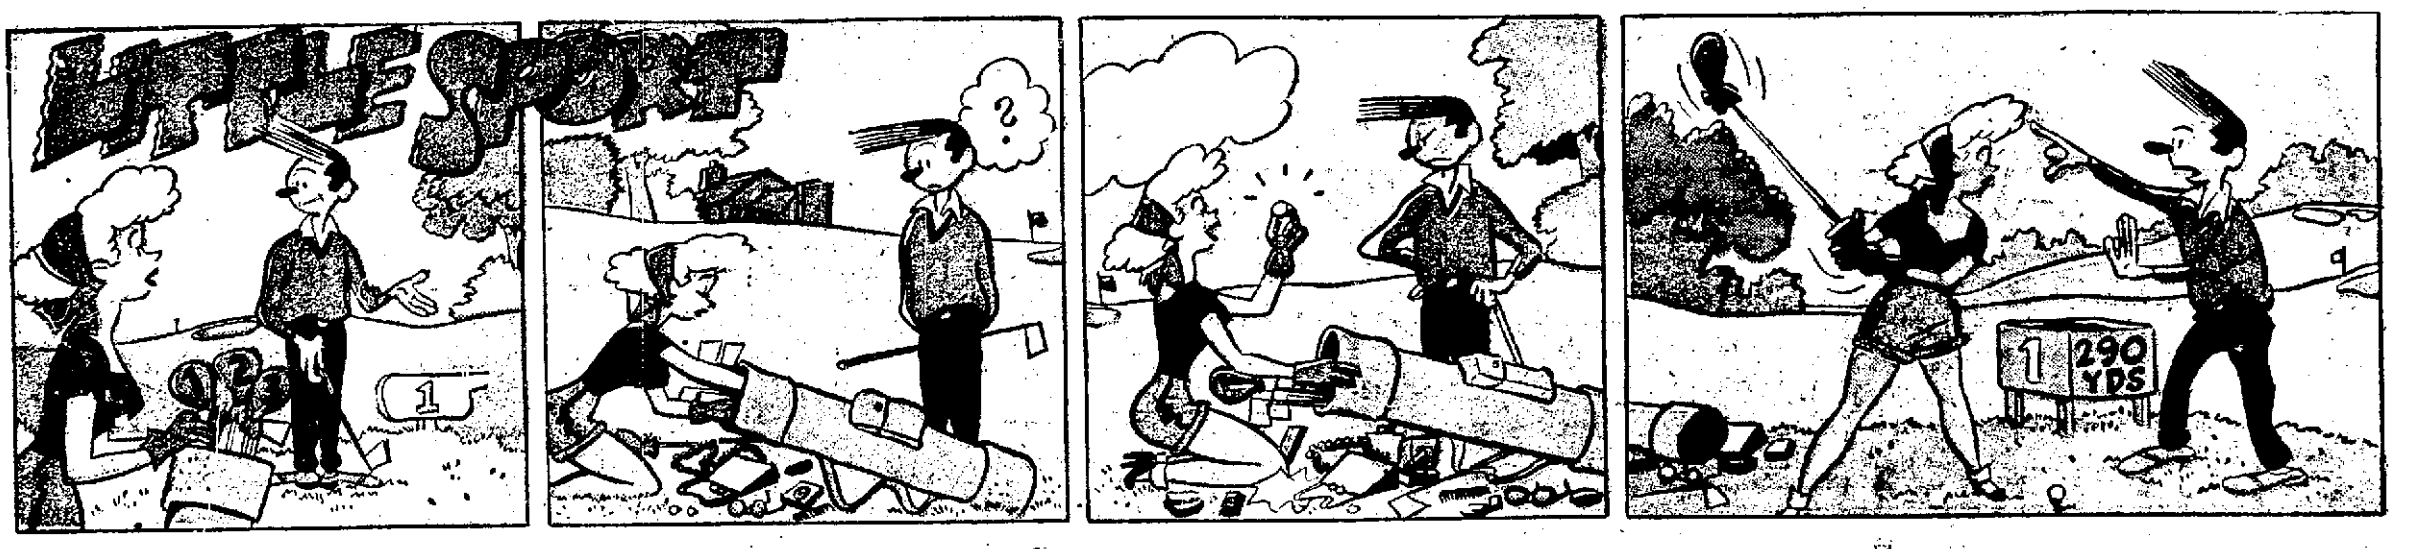

TRAIL WAYS

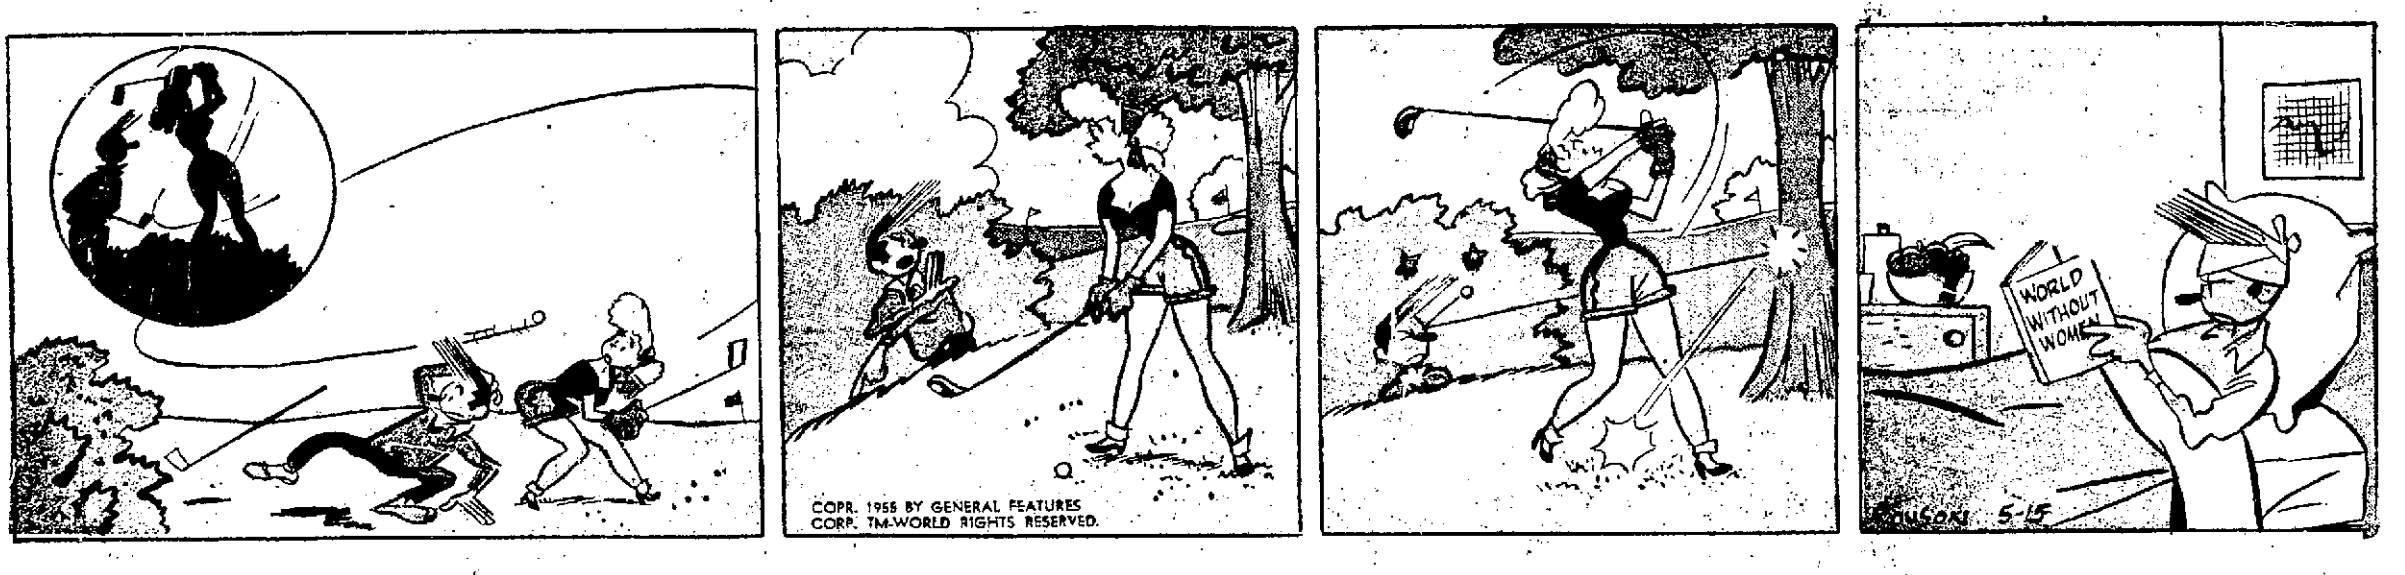

THE COTTONTAIL'S WHITE POWDER PUFF SERVES TWO PURPOSES: TO GUIDE OTHER MEMBERS OF HIS OWN KIND, AND TO CONFUSE PURSUERS

BOTH DEER AND RABBITS GUIDE THEIR LITTLE ONES THROUGH DIM WOODS AND FIELDS BY THE FLASHING OF THEIR WHITE TAILS
